SOME NEW ROCKWELL MANOEUVERS

During March and April, George Lincoln Rockwell engaged in a variety of stunts to keep his name and face in the news, and thus win new attention and support. Most of these attempts fizzled, although a few did succeed.

In mid-March, Rockwell undertook a cross-country excursion, in a desperate effort to raise funds and win publicity. This endeavor apparently strained the American Nazi Party leader's resources to the breaking point, as he pointed out in a letter (March 26) begging for funds:

> . . . . my recent trip around the country has "busted" the Party -- especially since, for some unknown reason, and in spite of the terrific battle we are putting up everywhere with our lives, our liberty and our fists, contributions have almost completely stopped for the past three weeks.

Rockwell was counting heavily on repeating the "success" he had scored in Boston in 1961, when his attempted picketing of the film Exodus was attended by a riot. Advance mailings announced that once again Rockwell's Boston incognito would be "Nathan Ginsburg," the name he had used in registering at a hotel there prior to last year's disturbance. Despite considerable effort, his March 1962 stay in Boston produced scant response, either by way of funds or notoriety.

Rockwell's attempts to hold a rally in Union Square in New York City continued. On March 24, he wrote to the New York City Commissioner of Parks, rejecting the meeting place assigned for his projected rally on April 20. Refusing to speak in Jeanette Park, a grassy strip not far from a fish market, he insisted on being allowed to meet in Union Square, as originally requested. Some 20 carbon copies of this letter were sent by Rockwell to newspapers, radio and TV networks, colleges, Jewish organizations and other groups -- but this tactic produced only the barest mention in the press. At this writing, the scheduling of the New York ANP rally is still in abeyance.

On April 2, Rockwell made another bid for publicity, telegraphing to a number of Jewish organizations an "invitation" to join him in picketing a Union Square rally scheduled to be held on May Day. No one rose to the bait.

On April 4, Rockwell won considerable notice by creating a minor disturbance during the testimony of former Major General Edwin A. Walker before the Special Senate Preparedness Subcommittee. Capitol police expelled Rockwell and two cohorts for refusing to remove lapel swastika emblems. The trio was ejected from the hearing room and from the Senate Office Building on the basis of regulations laid down by the Senate Rules Committee which forbid the wearing of political armbands or other insignia. On April 5, a Washington newspaper reporter querying Mr. Walker on his opinion of Rockwell was punched in the nose by the former military officer.

The most consistent attention accruing to Rockwell in the past few months stemmed from an unexpected source -- a series of speaking engagements before college student groups. Acting out of a misguided desire to support academic liberty and free speech, students at three colleges invited the neo-Nazi agitator to present his "side" -- as if an exponent of nazism represented any "side" of a genuine issue in the United States.

In February, the student forum at Bucknell College canceled its invitation to Rockwell, but the outdooor rally he staged in nearby Lewisburg, Pa., a few days later drew substantial public notice. On March 9, Rockwell's appearance at San Diego State College in California -- cut short when an irate student struck him -- made front-page news from coast to coast. On April 11, the mass media gave detailed coverage to Rockwell's last-minute failure to show up for a scheduled talk before the Competency Party, a student group at New York City's Hunter College, Bronx Division. Informed that city police were waiting to greet him with an old disorderly conduct warrant, issued in 1960, Rockwell hastily decided to stay out of town. At the New Jersey end of the George Washington Bridge, Rockwell stepped aside and sent three henchmen to fill his engagement at Hunter. In the Bronx, large details of police were on hand to prevent disorder. A crowd protesting the Nazis' appearance numbered about 1,000; the audience in the hall, about 500. Speaking in Rockwell's stead was "Captain" Seth David Ryan. His rambling, 25-minute diatribe, delivered in halting fashion, was received for the most part in silence. After the meeting, Ryan, "Lieutenant" Roy James and "Trooper" Schuyler Ferris were escorted by police out of the area.

GERALD SMITH STILL AT SAME OLD STAND

At a March 15 meeting at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel in San Francisco, Gerald L. K. Smtih told an audience of 200 that he has "nothing but good words for the John Birch Society," even though "they may not go as far as I do." The new faces in the field, Smith said, do not provoke his envy. Announcing that he was conducting his own investigation in and around San Francisco, which he called a hotbed of "wrong thinkers," Smith eventually reverted to his old theme, which he has plugged for some 25 years. Communism, he declared, "is just another word for Judaism . . . this handful of immigrants who sneaked in on us during the 1900's isn't going to rob us of our Christian heritage."

LITERATURE IN BRIEF

U.S. hatemongers are currently offering for sale The Jewish War of Survival, by Arnold Leese, a 124-page diatribe issued in 1945 in England and printed in the United States in 1947 . . . . Subscription lists of two Southern racist newspapers have been turned over to the National States Rights Party. A flier soliciting the support of former readers of The Georgia Tribune and The Virginian says that the setback suffered when "these courageous publications were forced to cease publication" can be turned into victory if all unite behind The Thunderbolt. The National States Rights Party is also circulating petitions around the country asking for the impeachment of President John F. Kennedy.

At year's end, there were signs of an official crackdown. On January 30, 1963, an Argentine State Security Decree became law, providing stringent penalties for, among others, instigators of "religious, racial and class struggle".

CROMMELIN TRAILS IN LATEST RACE

Another energetic campaign of anti-Semitism was mounted this spring in Alabama by retired Admiral John G. Crommelin. Running for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, Crommelin made the utmost of this opportunity to spread his vicious platform throughout the state, through literature, local TV appearances and sound-truck tours.

Crommelin ran last in the three-man primary race May 1. Incumbent Senator Lister Hill won easily with 364,000 votes; runner-up Donald Hallmark polled 73,000. Crommelin's 57,000 votes represented 11 per cent of the total -- a slight drop from the 13 per cent he had garnered in 1960, when he challenged incumbent Senator John J. Sparkman in the Democratic primaries. Back in 1956, the last time he ran against Senator Hill, Crommelin received 32 per cent of Alabama's votes -- but this was before the Admiral's virulent anti-Semitic sentiments were generally known.

The Thunderbolt official publication of the National States Rights Party. According to The Thunderbolt, Crommelin also had the help of four out-of-state ministers: the Reverends Wesley Swift of Los Angeles, Gordon Winrod of Little Rock, Owen F. Polito of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Dale J. Benjamin of Portland, Ore. A front-page article in the April issue of The Thunderbolt related that these ministers came "to spend these final critical three weeks beside the brave Admiral" and to "rally White Christians" behind him. They and the candidate managed "five sound trucks all over the state blasting away the Christian message that Communism is Jewish from start to finish..."

Crommelin's campaign literature was devoted to promoting his rabid anti-Semitism. His "Alabama Platform" declared, for example, that "the satanic plot to mix the blood of the Whiteman with the Negro is financed and directed by the communist-jewish conspiracy." On the basis of many such "planks," the Admiral urged Alabamans to "reject the two Kosher candidates" opposing him.

ROCKWELL AND HIS FOLLOWERS

George Lincoln Rockwell, still awaiting a new allocation of time and place for his projected New York City rally, has not remained idle in the interim. Just off his press is a 30-page item emblazoned "Top Secret -- The German Report," purportedly smuggled out of Germany. The Report, among other things, [redacted] iles "the last 10 per ce[redacted] of the German people" as:

> ... people who properly all must be executed... To them, further, belong most of the "important" politicians of the democratic Germany.

A number of incidents reported by police during March and April involved Rockwell cohorts and admirers. On March 21, in Fredericksburg, Va., police arrested Joseph Newlin for possession of more than a thousand amphetamine tablets ("goof balls"). Among the papers Newlin was carrying were a photograph of himself in Nazi attire and application forms for membership in the American Nazi Party.

On March 24, in Los Angeles, four uniformed ANP storm-troopers were beaten up while picketing a bookstore. They were "Lieutenant" Leonard Holstein, 21; Bob Lewton, 24; John Gillette, 23; and Kenneth Raven, 27.

On April 2, an ANP member and a 16-year-old aspirant dogged the footsteps of a telephone company employee trying to install a phone in the ANP's Vinland Bookstore in Chicago. Wayne Mueller, 18, brandished a gun and announced he was "protecting the American Nazi Party." On the telephone man's complaint, police arrested Mueller and turned the teenager over to juvenile officers. ANP "Captain" Malcolm Lambert was also involved, on Mueller's claim that Lambert had "issued" the gun to him. Mueller reportedly told the police he was carrying the gun because a rock had been thrown through the store window some nights earlier, and he thought the telephone man was "a phony."

SQUABBLES BESET ARKANSAS NSRP CHAPTER

The National States Rights Party is having problems in Arkansas, the state where the party showed its greatest strength at the polls during the 1960 Presidential election. At an April 13 meeting, two top Arkansas officials tendered their resignations. While State Chairman Pat R. Crawford ascribed his withdrawl to a general lack of support, Secretary-Treasurer Theodore C. Baldwin presented more substantive reasons for his decision. Baldwin described his objections to NSRP's hate campaign against Jews and Negroes, and his disapproval of the party's tactic of labeling all opponents Communists. Following these remarks, chairmanship of the meeting was assumed by J. B. Stoner, a leader of the national party, who harangued for more than an hour against Jews, Negroes, the United Nations and the FBI.

BOMBING SUSPECTS ARE ARRESTED IN MIAMI

Three men were arrested May 3 in connection with the February 18 bombing of the home of Don Shoemaker, editor of the Miami Herald. Months of police investigation, spearheaded by a patrolmen working under cover, led to their apprehension. In the course of his infiltration of their group, which they called The Minutemen, the patrolman, as a dodge, seemingly helped in an attempt to "bomb" Miami's Temple Anshe Emes April 28. Actually, he exchanged five sticks of dynamite for five wooden facsimiles to make the dummy bomb "discovered" at the Temple.

The trio arrested consisted of Donald Branch, who was charged with actual perpetration of the bombing, and Mike Babey and George Victer, who were charged with transportation and possession of explosives. The police reported finding a large quantity of anti-Semitic literature, including many American Nazi Party items, in Branch's home; also correspondence indicating that Branch had applied for membership in Rockwell's group. Branch and Babey are employees of Miami's water works; Victer is an electrician. Branch and Victer are said to be members of Florida States Rights, Inc., a group unaffiliated with the National States Rights Party. Branch's trial is set for June 19.

IN BRIEF

James K. Warner, former Rockwell storm trooper who defected and attacked the ANP leader in an expose, recently joined the staff of The Thunderbolt, discontinuing his own newsletter, Action . . . . Thunderbolt editor Ed Fields, pressing a libel suit in Florida, won only nominal damages when the case was decided in March. Fields had been falsely characterized as "working with Communists." . . . . Georgia's United Klans of America issued an "emergency fiery summons" to all Klansmen to gather in Atlanta July 2-9, for the occasion of an NAACP convention scheduled to be held there on those dates . . . . Dixie Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, a group headquartered in Tennessee, was granted a certificate to do business within Virginia by the State Corporation Commission in April . . . . The Prince of Pride Starring, a paperback novel written and designed by Robert James Lowry, levels an anti-Semitic attack against psychiatry and mental-health procedures. Issued under the imprint of National Genius Books, Cincinnati, Ohio, this novel has not been widely distributed.

PREACHING THE RACIST NSRP LINE

Two ministers have taken to the road to spread the message of the anti-Semitic, racist National States Rights Party (NSRP). The Rev. Gordon Winrod of Little Rock, Ark., chaplain of the NSRP, recently completed a series of speaking engagements in the South, Southwest and Midwest. NSRP lent considerable support to many of these appearances. Following in the footsteps of his father, Gerald Winrod, known in pre-Pearl Harbor days as "the Jayhawk Nazi," the son distributes his own anti-Semitic propaganda -- The Winrod Letter and tape recordings of his diatribes -- as well as products put out by such old-time hatemongers as Elizabeth Dilling.

The Rev. David K. Stacey of Farmington, N.M., appears to be similarly devoted to the NSRP mission. A photograph in the May 1962 issue of NSRP's The Thunderbolt shows this itinerant preacher's automobile bearing the painted slogan, "Against the Khazar Jew -- For Repatriation."

George Lincoln Rockwell's former bimonthly National Socialist Bulletin. The garishly colored cover of Issue Number 1 (dated February but issued in June) features a gross caricature of a Jew. The magazine's 24 pages are devoted, in the main, to a succession of remarks about Rockwell by Rockwell, plus photographs and reproductions of news clippings referring to the ANP and its leader, however unfavorably. Priced at 50¢, The Stormtrooper is a bargain in Rockwelliana compared to the ANP leader's autobiography, This Time the World, a $10 item.

According to The Stormtrooper, a "Second National Speaking Tour" is in the offing for Rockwell, despite the admitted failure of his fund-raising excursion across the country last March.

Members and would-be members of the ANP continue to run into problems with the police. On May 18, Joseph Newlin pleaded guilty before a Fredericksburg, Va., court to possession of narcotics and to forging medical prescriptions. Newlin, who was carrying ANP application forms in his car when arrested, was sentenced to four concurrent three-year terms. On June 6, Rockwell denied that Newlin had ever been a member of his organization. Storm Trooper Robert F. Garber, after serving a one-year term in Virginia for participating in an assault on a 13-year-old boy, was extradited to Los Angeles, where on May 18 he was convicted for unlawful possession of a submachine gun. Sentence was scheduled for June 11. On May 15, Chicago's corporation counsel filed new charges against three storm troopers -- Eugene M. Lambert, Clifford Uthene and William W. Mueller -- charges relating to their parading without a permit and distributing handbills exceeding the legally permitted size. The trio had previously been charged with criminal defamation and disorderly conduct arising out of an incident last March.

IN BRIEF

The May 15 issue of Conde McGinley's Common Sense, reviving the old canard that Washington is under the control of Jews, features ten photographs of prominent Americans under the page 1 headline: "3 PERCENT CONTROL 97 PERCENT. NON CHRISTIANS OPERATE NEW FRONTIER." Two other recent products of McGinley's Union, N.J., press are a leaflet, Satan vs. Christ, and a 10-inch label bearing anti-Semitic remarks allegedly made in the House of Commons more than 40 years ago . . . . Jerald Quillan Dutton, director of public relations for the racist National White Americans Party, edits The White American Confidential Newsletter for the group headed by Robert A. Bowling in Atlanta. A typical "confidential" revelation is that "the Jews" are currently responsible for trouble in Algeria, Argentina and Atlanta . . . . Intelligence, published in Cambridge, England, by Derek Tozer, charges that "what helps keep Communism alive is the support of leading world Jews, in positions of great influence. . ." Tozer's anti-Semitic publication quotes liberally from Gerald L.K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag.

ANTI-SEMITIC FLARE-UPS ABROAD STIR WIDESPREAD CONCERN

This summer has been marked by continuing anti-Semitic activity in a number of countries. Campaigns of terror against Jews persist in Argentina and Uruguay, while Great Britain is plagued by a series of extremist demonstrations and riots.

South America

Buenos Aires, Argentina, and nearby areas were rocked by a series of bombings and shootings in July. Major targets were Jewish business establishments, homes and a building which had formerly housed the Jewish daily newspaper, Die Presse. A number of threatening letters against Jews appeared in Correo de la Tarde and other Argentine newspapers under the signature of Horace Sherman Miller, who runs a one-man "Klan" in Waco, Tex.

In Uruguay, a series of anti-Semitic attacks during July resulted in one fatality; Samuel Saltzman, an elderly concentration-camp victim, was beaten to death. Eight persons were branded with swastikas, among them Dr. Maximo Handel, an Argentine physician.

High officials of Chile and Brazil have voiced protests against such barbaric acts in neighboring states. Significant reactions have also come from the United States and the United Nations.

On August 1, the U.S. Ambassador in Buenos Aires discussed the wave of anti-Semitism informally with the Argentine Foreign Ministry. Similar conversations took place in Washington during a recent visit between the Argentine Minister of Economy, who came to negotiate financial aid, and Teodoro Moscoso, U.S. coordinator of the Alliance for Progress.

On August 2, United Nations Acting Secretary-General U Thant announced he is keeping in touch with a number of international organizations and member governments in regard to racial manifestations such as the anti-Semitic outbreaks in Argentina and Uruguay. The next General Assembly is pledged to debate a resolution touching on "manifestations of racial, national and religious intolerance."

Great Britain

Despite a British Home Office ban, U.S. Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell entered England illegally July 29, to attend a camp meeting of Colin Jordan's extremist British National Socialist Movement. He eluded police 11 days before his capture on August 8 by Scotland Yard and his deportation the next day. Neo-Nazis from West Germany, France and Austria were also reportedly among those present at the Gloucestershire outdoor meeting. Swastika flags were prominent, members wore Nazi uniforms and listened to anti-Semitic, anti-Negro lectures. London press photographers were bidding for pictures of Rockwell at the camp. Storm troopers armed with air rifles shot one photographer who tried to get too close, inflicting minor wounds. Another newspaper printed its own picture of the American Nazi delivering a talk. On August 7, some 100 local villagers raided the encampment. Colin Jordan, who took no part in the violence, told the invaders he wanted to "exterminate the Jews."

Anti-Semitic demonstrations were staged earlier in the month by followers of Sir Oswald Mosley, long-time British Fascist. These meetings precipitated three July riots in England.

On July 22, in London, a Mosley meeting drew some 5,000 to 7,000 people. During the disturbance that ensued, one man was injured and 55 persons arrested.

At a Manchester demonstration on July 29, an angry mob of more than 500 raged while 250 policemen, 12 on horseback, sought to control them; 46 arrests were made.

London's East End was invaded July 31 by Mosley followers chanting "Jews out, Jews out." Max Mosley, 22-year-old son of the Union movement leader, was among those arrested in the riot. Sir Oswald himself was pushed to the ground by shouting, jeering demonstrators milling around the platform truck. The meeting was closed on police orders; his son was acquitted the following day.

West Germany

Increasing quantities of pro-Nazi propaganda are appearing in West Germany, most of it literature published by George Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi Party. According to West German security officials, the bulk of the hate literature is shipped directly from the United States, but deliveries also arrive from Nazi sympathizers in Britain, Belgium, Switzerland and Sweden. Rockwell's ANP storm troopers also have been propagandizing through "pen-pal" letters to correspondents in West Germany.

IN BRIEF

Two American Nazi Party members, Roger Foss, 34, and Gene Shalander, 23, were convicted of vagrancy and inciting to riot after their July 3 picketing of a building on Miami's Flagler Street. Foss was also charged with assault and battery on a police officer. The two-man anti-Semitic demonstration drew a crowd of nearly 3,000 protestors.... The trial of 25-year-old Donald Branch, charged with dynamiting the home of Miami Herald editor Don Shoemaker last February, has been postponed until September 26. Branch was recently sentenced to six years in prison for possessing and transporting explosives intended for an April 25 synagogue-bombing in Miami. He is being held in Dade County jail pending trial.... Two men who admitted painting swastikas on Norwalk's Beth Israel Synagogue Feb. 1, 1960, were denied an appeal to the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors. Harold Fahy and William Arnold of Norwalk, sought unsuccessfully to have the court view their act as a prank. Fahy is a University of Virginia graduate. Arnold is a German national who had applied for American citizenship.... Having lost its Virginia charter after a new state law banned use of the name "American Nazi Party," Rockwell's group filed for reincorporation as "A.N.P., Inc." The State Corporation Commission set September 4 as the date for a hearing "to determine whether the certificate of incorporation will be granted."

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised through the Joint Defense Appeal.

ROCKWELL VISITS SPOTLIGHT PRO-NAZIS IN BRITAIN, CANADA

George Lincoln Rockwell tried this summer to form an international Nazi combine. Trips abroad kept his name in the news and focused attention on a number of groups promoting hatred of Jews and Negroes.

England

Addressing an outdoor camp meeting of Colin Jordan's British National Socialist Movement on August 5 -- shortly before his deportation from England -- Rockwell announced plans for a World Union of National Socialists, to be led by Jordan with Rockwell as deputy. An elaborate document called "The Cotswold Agreements" outlines the projected structure and aims of an international Nazi network and calls for coordinated "dramatic worldwide demonstrations" at least once a month.

The furor over Rockwell's visit and his expulsion by the British Home Office drew attention to racist activities of all stripes and apparently set off vigorous efforts to seek out and prosecute hatemongers.

Investigators turned up a para-military group called Spearhead, composed of some 25 members of Colin Jordan's National Socialist Movement (NSM). A search of Spearhead offices August 10 by Scotland Yard turned up the usual Nazi paraphernalia, plus a German automatic pistol, truncheon, steel helmet and a walkie-talkie communications system. Investigators also found canisters of a weed-killer which may be converted into an explosive by adding sugar; the label had been fixed up to read "Jew-killer." Jordan and three aides -- John Tyndall, Ian Kerr-Ritchie and Dennis Pirie -- were charged with usurping the duties of the police and armed forces and are due for September trial.

Earlier this summer, both Jordan and Tyndall were convicted of charges arising from disorders at an NSM rally held July 1 in Trafalgar Square. Jordan's conviction was reversed on appeal, the court ruling that his statements were "borderline." Tyndall's conviction was upheld, though his six-week sentence was reduced to a fine.

Ireland and Scotland

Police also revealed the existence of an Irish neo-Nazi group outside Dublin, allegedly involved in Rockwell's incognito entry. Parents sending children to a youth club run for two years in a Glasgow school were shocked to learn that the club leader, Arthur Smith, was a self-styled "Scottish Fuehrer" and head of the National Socialist Scottish Party. Many withdrew their youngsters after this disclosure.

Canada

On another trip, Rockwell entered Canada August 28, creating a commotion in Montreal once his identity became known. This gave him a platform from which to deliver statements, including a boast that he had contacted certain unnamed Polish and Hungarian groups which would "solidly support" a Canadian Nazi Party. The ANP leader advised French citizens to shoot DeGaulle "because he is selling the country to the Communists." Finally, Rockwell had some kind words for Real Caoette, a deputy leader of the Canadian Social Credit Party, a minority party which gained political significance in Canada's 1962 election. Caoette recently voiced his admiration for Hitler and Mussolini, subsequently explaining that he referred only to "their economic achievements in the 1930's."

KKK
MEMBERS

Pegging their efforts to rising tensions over desegregation, Ku Klux Klans operating in Georgia and Louisiana have stepped up attempts to regroup themselves and swell KKK membership.

Near Albany, Georgia, the site of a Labor Day meeting of the Albany Desegregation Movement, 3,000 persons attended a Klan rally staged as a counter-demonstration. Alabama Grand Dragon Robert M. Shelton predicted there would be "bloodshed" before the Klan had won its battle in the South. Imperial Wizard Calvin Craig, whose United Klans are headquartered in Atlanta, attacked Georgia Governor S. Ernest Vandiver for not stopping school desegregation. Klansmen distributed membership applications to the crowd, with many takers.

More than a dozen crosses flared throughout Louisiana September 1 in an avowed show of Klan strength in the state. Fire trucks had to be called to the cross-burning at the State Capitol in Baton Rouge.

AMERICAN NATIONAL PARTY

Another racist organization hit the headlines in August -- John Patler's American National Party, a group composed of a handful of disaffected American Nazi Party stormtroopers. Wearing white shirts and black armbands with insignia, five members staged a picketing demonstration August 18 to protest an outdoor school-integration rally in Englewood, N.J. Patler was arrested and convicted on two counts of disorderly conduct.

Although the American National Party is presently concentrating on "the Negro problem," its Nazi and Fascist character is evident in its two publications, The Nazi Fascist and KILL!, both edited by Dan Burros. A swastika decorates the masthead of The Nazi Fascist, which describes itself as "a clandestine news sheet of international Racial Fascism and National Socialism." The back cover of KILL! shows a dangling noose with this boldly inked legend: "Impeach the Traitor John F. Kennedy for Giving Aid and Comfort to Enemies of the U.S.A." Feature articles laud the "crucified martyr" Eichmann and the Algerian O.A.S.

Patler became an American Nazi Party henchman while a private in the Marines. Known in those days as John C. Patsalas, he was discharged from service "under honorable circumstances" when his association with Rockwell became known.

ANTI-SEMITISM STILL RAMPANT IN ARGENTINA

Argentinian police finally detained 33 youths for participating in terrorist attacks and demonstrations against Jews. After several months of police complacency toward a wave of outrages, these first arrests hold out some hope to Argentinian Jewry of a shift in the attitude of the authorities.

On August 28, three 19-year-olds, each charged previously with membership in the terrorist group Tacuara, were arrested for firing shots at a Jewish theatre in Buenos Aires. The car they were driving contained three revolvers; four ammunition clips; and a notebook labeled "Advance Post of Communism in Argentina." The next target was to have been a tourist agency owned by Jews.

On September 10, 30 Tacuara members were held after a violent demonstration in downtown Buenos Aires. Reportedly 1,000 youths had visited the grave of their 19th-century hero, Quiroga, and then returned to town to stone police and daub swastikas and racist slogans on walls.

Despite these arrests, the trend of events is still not clear. On September 5, Federal Police Chief Horacio Enrique Green was reported to have declared that "there is no evidence to implicate the Tacuara group in any anti-Semitic event."

Green attributed anti-Jewish excesses to Communist provocation and to hurt national pride over the apprehension of Adolf Eichmann by Israeli agents. Promptly Tacuara registered its disagreement. The group's leader, Alberto Ezcurra, asserted that his organization was indeed anti-Semitic, supporting the racist views put forth by Father Julio Meinvielle in his book, The Jew -- A Mystery of History.

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised through the Joint Defense Appeal.

VENOM IN PRINT

Increasingly in recent years, professional anti-Semites in the United States have been concentrating on mass distribution of literature. Today a number of prominent bigots maintain virtual depots of hate literature. Their lists include not only their own products, but also material by like-minded propagandists.

Thanks to a largely informal exchange among anti-Semites, racists, neo-Nazi and Fascist elements around the world, the stock includes imported tracts by Swedish, British and German neo-Nazis. U.S. hate literature in turn reaches such far-off places as South Africa and Australia.

The journalistic essentials of timeliness and factual accuracy have little meaning in this specialized marketplace. Pamphlets reviving canards long disavowed or disproved continue to circulate.

Among the most prominent purveyors are: oldtimer Gerald L. K. Smith; Conde McGinley, active since the early 1950's; and two newcomers -- the National States Rights Party and the American Nazi Party -- whose deliberately shocking offerings plumb depths never even approached by their predecessors.

Gerald L. K. Smith

Smith's Christian Nationalist Crusade, with headquarters near Los Angeles, continues as a profitable publishing and book-selling enterprise. The monthly magazine, The Cross and the Flag, largely comprised of brief "editorial" items, frequently sounds themes later picked up by active anti-Semites around the country. This well-printed magazine, one of the oldest anti-Jewish periodicals in the nation, is still one of the most widely read. Smith also issues the New Letter, a bulletin of "inside information."

Included in the literature Smith offers for sale is: Iron Curtain Over America, an anti-Semitic political diatribe by the late Professor John O. Beaty, first published in 1951; The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, the forged document purportedly proving a Jewish world conspiracy; The International Jew, another long-repudiated canard; and a series of small pamphlets and tracts.

Conde McGinley

From Union, N.J., headquarters, McGinley also operates as both publisher and bookseller, using his semi-monthly Common Sense (circulation, 91,000) to promote an exhaustive list of scurrilous books, pamphlets and recordings. Selected issues of Common Sense are also reprinted in bulk for wholesale distributors in various parts of the country.

In the past decade, McGinley has circulated hundreds of thousands of copies of The Coming Red Dictatorship, a large broadside displaying photographs of prominent Americans of Jewish background, with invidious identifying captions.

Following are some typical books and pamphlets presently being promoted by McGinley:

World Hoax, by Ernst Elmhurst, a pro-Nazi propagandist. This book was originally published in 1938 by Silver Shirt leader William Dudley Pelley, subsequently convicted of sedition by an Indiana court. Elmhurst tries to prove that Bolshevism is Judaism, attributing atrocities committed during the Russian Revolution to Jews, some of whom he labels "political-ritual murderers." In 1946, the author was convicted of unlawful assembly for his part in a New York street-meeting at which "blood-libel" literature was distributed.

World Conquerors, by Lajos Marschalko, a leading Hungarian Nazi living in West Germany. Published in English in 1958, this book interprets recent history, to the time of the 1956 Hungarian uprising, in viciously anti-Semitic terms.

Iron Curtain Over America, by the late Professor John O. Beaty, published in 1951. This political diatribe espouses the crank theory that Jews are not really Israelites but descendants of the Khazarim, a 9th century Tartaric tribe.

Facts Are Facts, by Benjamin H. Freedman, longtime Common Sense supporter. His "Talmud exposé" was first issued in 1954.

Know Your Enemy, by Robert H. Williams. Issued in 1951, this 56-page pamphlet offers lurid "proof" of the slander that Jews are Communists bent on world domination.

National States Rights Party — The racist National States Rights Party, with headquarters in Birmingham, Ala., entered the field more recently, advertising its wares in The Thunderbolt, Party publication launched in 1958. Many of the items sold by Smith and McGinley are also promoted by NSRP. In addition, this Southern depot ballyhoos Fraudulent Conversion, by the British Nazi, Colin Jordan. Late in November, NSRP distributed an inflammatory leaflet describing in detail its forthcoming reprint of Jewish Ritual Murder, by the late British Fascist Arnold Leese.

American Nazi Party

Although George Lincoln Rockwell is best known for his attention-compelling picketings and demonstrations, he also has been trying to build up a mail-order literature and "novelty" business. Most of his stock is created by Rockwell himself. The ANP issues a bi-monthly magazine, The Stormtrooper, and a semi-monthly newsletter, Rockwell Report. A bulky autobiography of the would-be fuehrer, This Time the World, and The Trooper's Manual are the book entries. Advertisements offer photographs of Adolph Hitler and Rockwell; Jew Zoo, a cartoon portfolio of caricatures of 20 prominent Americans; swastika stickers; and such shocking items as "Anne Frank Soap Wrappers."

REVIEW OF 1962

Organized anti-Semitic activity continued unabated during 1962. American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell again captured the lion's share of headlines -- through public demonstrations, lecture dates and well-publicized trips to woo other racists at home and abroad. Many less well-known agitators -- and the racist National States Rights Party -- took the cue from Rockwell, infusing their literature with increasingly venomous appeals. In sheer volume, however, the field was led by Conde McGinley, New Jersey publisher of Common Sense, which registered a circulation rise during the year.

The mainstays of anti-Semitism in the United States were still the tireless propagandists like McGinley, who blamed the Jews for every source of tension in the nation and the world today. As in the past, Jews were smeared as the agents of communism; as the force behind desegregation in the South; as plotters bent on world domination. The United Nations was characterized as a "Jewish-Communist-Zionist front." Social welfare legislation, unionism, the Federal Reserve system, Federal centralization and mental health programs were attacked as part of a Jewish plot to control the nation and its destiny. In addition, the bigots continued to promote distribution of such outrageous "historical" canards as the Protocols of the Elders of Zion and the so-called "Talmud exposés."

GEORGE LINCOLN ROCKWELL

Rockwell kept seeking public attention by staging flagrant and shocking demonstrations. His autobiography, This Time the World, published in January, set down the calculated rationale behind his provocations:

> All at once I had the answer! By being an open, arrogant, all-out Nazi, not a sneaky Nazi -- with the swastika, storm-troopers and open declaration of our intention to gas the Jew traitors... [I would] make an end of this filthy silent treatment, for they could never ignore Nazis with swastika armbands and talk of gas chambers.

The highlight of Rockwell's year came in July when he entered England illegally to attend a camp-meeting of Colin Jordan's British National Socialist Movement in a rural retreat in the Cotswolds. Several European groups sent "delegates." Rockwell and Jordan formed the World Union of National Socialists (WUNS), with Jordan as leader and Rockwell as deputy. Stated aims of the group included "a just and final settlement of the Jewish problem," all-out efforts to hold "dramatic world-wide demonstrations at least once a month" and a World Nazi Congress in 1963. In August a raid of the racists' encampment by townsmen led to extensive publicity and eventually the deportation of Rockwell by British authorities.

At home, waves of protests against Rockwell's appearance on college-forum platforms kept the Nazi spokesman in the spotlight.

-- The Student Forum of Bucknell University in Pennsylvania invited Rockwell to speak late in January, then withdrew the invitation in the face of local protest. Rockwell turned up nonetheless on February 2, with a retinue of uniformed stormtroopers, and harangued a jeering crowd in nearby Lewisburg.

-- On March 8, while speaking at San Diego State College, Rockwell was struck by an enraged student.

- On April 11, Rockwell failed to show up for a scheduled address before the Student Forum of Hunter College (Bronx Division) in New York City. After a last-minute decision not to enter the city, Rockwell sent henchman Seth David Ryan to address the audience of 500 while more than 1,000 protesting pickets milled outside the hall.

-- On October 8, Rockwell delivered a racist tirade to a student-sponsored meeting at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn.

Another noteworthy Rockwell excursion took place in February, when he attended the Chicago convention of Elijah Muhammad's black-supremacist Temple of Islam. Rockwell praised Muhammad as "the Adolph Hitler of the black man" to an audience of 5,000 and declared that Muhammad "is a leader who is trying to do what I am trying to do. In the past, if the black people had wanted to slaughter the white people, they would have had some cause."

A number of well-announced pickетings were staged by the American Nazi Party -- usually without the physical presence of the Commander himself.

Among Rockwell's henchmen involved with the law during 1962 were:

Roy James, 24. He struck the Rev. Martin Luther King in the face September 20 during King's address before the Southern Christian Leadership Conference in Birmingham, Ala. James drew a 30-day sentence.

Roger Foss, 34, and Gene Shalander, 23. The July 3 picketing of a building on Miami's Flagler Street led to their conviction on charges of vagrancy and inciting to riot.

Robert F. Garber, 32. After serving one year in jail in Virginia for assaulting a 13-year-old boy, he was extradited to Los Angeles; there, on May 18, Garber was convicted of unlawful possession of a sub-machinegun.

TARGET NUMBER ONE: THE SOUTH

Hatemongers throughout the nation found a fertile field in Southern discontent over desegregation. Anti-Semitic propagandists from all sections continued to flood the region with charges of a "Jewish plot" to "mongrelize" the nation, and other vicious canards, some dating back to mediaeval times. The National States Rights Party, abetted by Klan elements and a number of other bigoted Southern groups, undertook mass distribution of anti-Jewish propaganda.

Ku Klux Klans — Despite internal friction, the Klan movement remained an active force, particularly in Alabama, Florida and Georgia. Estimated membership in all units ranged between 20,000 and 50,000.

-- The first week of July, a series of Klan rallies was staged near Atlanta, where a convention of the National Association of the Advancement of Colored People was going on.

-- On September 1, 3,000 attended a Klan rally in Albany, Ga. The Albany Desegregation Movement was meeting in the same city. Racist tirades were delivered by Grand Dragon Robert M. Shelton of the Alabama Klans, and Imperial Wizard Calvin Craig of the United Klans, headquartered in Atlanta.

-- On Labor Day, more than a dozen crosses were burned throughout Louisiana in a demonstration of Klan opposition to school desegregation.

-- In November, police of DeKalb County, Ga., thwarted an attempt to destroy a five-story cable-car structure at Stone Mountain. Two admitted Klansmen were convicted of stealing the dynamite to be used.

National States Rights Party — Continuing to gain strength in the South, NSRP merged during 1962 with Robert Bowling's National White Americans Party, acquiring NWAP's Atlanta headquarters and appointing Bowling national coordinator of NSRP. The Party's annual convention, held September 1 in Montgomery, Ala., featured as speakers retired Admiral John G. Crommelin, a perennial political hopeful who runs for Alabama offices on a platform of anti-Semitism; Wally Butterworth, former Atlanta radio announcer, who was dropped when his Klan connections were revealed; and Robert DePugh of Norborne, Mo., leader of the extremist Minutemen.

With NSRP support, Admiral Crommelin entered the Alabama primary race against incumbent Senator Lister Hill. Although he ran last in a three-man race, he managed to garner 11 per cent of the total votes cast.

Defensive Legion of Registered Americans

A new group, launched in April, the DLRA is led by James R. Venable, an Atlanta attorney, and Wally Butterworth. The group's first move was to level racist attacks on desegregation. In September, the program was expanded to include "anti-kosher" boycott campaigns against nationally advertised products, conducted under the front name, Christian Voters and Buyers League.

THE PRO-ARAB LINE

U. S. anti-Semites promoted the pro-Arab line mainly by using the terms "Zionist," "Jew" and "Communist" interchangeably in their invidious literature. Some domestic hatemongers -- Conde McGinley and James H. Madole, for example -- advertised and distributed literature of Arab origin.

Principal sources of Arab propaganda in the United States were the Arab Information Office, the Organization of Arab Students, embassies and UN delegations of various Arab nations.

VIOLENCE AND VANDALISM

Scattered anti-Semitic outrages occurred throughout the year, following the pattern of 1960's "swastika epidemic." In January, swastikas were daubed on five Minneapolis synagogues, and two Texas boys, 12 and 14, were seized on their way to blow up a Fort Worth synagogue. In February, the homes of two ministers, one Unitarian and the other Lutheran, were bombed as the clergymen took part in a panel discussion at Temple Sinai in Los Angeles. In April, police thwarted a plan to bomb Temple Anshe Emes in Miami. In August, two teenagers were caught smearing swastikas and anti-Semitic epithets on a Catholic church in Old Lyme, Conn. In October, a Jewish fraternity house at Syracuse University was wrecked. And in November, a synagogue, a junior high school and several homes in San Francisco were defaced.

ANTI-SEMITIC LITERATURE

Conde McGinley's semi-monthly Common Sense, published in Union, N. J., led the field in circulation (91,000). Next in line was the monthly magazine The Cross and the Flag, issued from Los Angeles by Gerald L. K. Smith (25,000).

Two new entries were launched by the American National Party, led by former Rockwellite John Patler -- a monthly magazine called KILL! and a newsletter, The Nazi Fascist. Rockwell revamped his bi-monthly, The Storm-trooper, into a lurid, multi-colored, pocket-sized magazine, and similarly modernized Rockwell Reports, his semi-monthly newsletter.

Among the numerous anti-Semitic publications issued regularly throughout the year were: James H. Madole's bi-monthly National Renaissance Bulletin (New York City); Elizabeth Dilling's Bulletin (Chicago); James A. Lovell's Kingdom Digest (Dallas); Gordon Winrod's The Winrod Letter (Little Rock).

Virtual depots of hate literature were operated by such anti-Semitic propagandists as Gerald L.K. Smith, Conde McGinley and the National States Rights Party. They pushed the sale of outdated works by bigoted authors both native and foreign, such as: Iron Curtain Over America, by John O. Beaty (1951); The International Jew (1920); World Hoax, by Ernest Elmhurst (1938); Know Your Enemy, by Robert H. Williams (1951); World Conquerors, by Lajos Marschalko (1958). In December NSRP reprinted Jewish Ritual Murder, by Arnold Leese (1938).

ANTI-SEMITIC ACTIVITY ABROAD

Capitalizing on world tensions and domestic problems in various countries, hatemongers abroad managed to gain considerable notoriety during the past year. In the context of political discussion, they aired a variety of neo-Nazi, neo-Fascist themes. Many exchanged literature and propaganda ideas, and shared information and advice with their fellow-fuehrers in other countries. As in past years, there were attempts to establish a monolithic, centrally-directed worldwide anti-Semitic network, but these moves showed no evidence of success. Far more evident was the fact that "international meetings" stimulated and encouraged the natural tendencies of like-minded activists toward greater informal cooperation.

WEST GERMANY: This country remains the principal source of overt neo-nazism, despite counteractive measures by the government. The West German Ministry of the Interior, in its report issued last year, points to a healthy economy and a drop in the number and membership of neo-Nazi groups; but it discloses that during 1961 there were 90 Nazi-oriented groups and publishers, with over 35,000 members. Forty-six neo-Nazi and anti-Semitic publications, with a total circulation of 160,000, are cited. The report also notes the activity of Slavic, Hungarian, Croation and other East-European Fascist groups based in Germany.

ENGLAND: Such Fascist groups as Oswald Mosley's Union Movement supplemented the anti-Semitic facets of their programs by exploiting the tensions arising from the influx of West Indians and Asiatics from Commonwealth countries. The Union Movement, in addition to making provocative forays, into Jewish neighborhoods, attended by disorders, put up candidates for municipal councils, averaging about 5 per cent of the vote in each such election.

Other groups attempting to attract members by staging anti-Semitic demonstrations are the British National Party, headed by John Bean, and Colin Jordan's British National Socialist Movement. Jordan and American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell announced the formation of the World Union of National Socialists at an international meeting held last August in a rural retreat in Gloucestershire. Rockwell secured worldwide publicity when his illegal presence in England became known and authorities finally deported him. Jordan was later convicted for his part in the establishment of the activist arm of his Nazi movement -- an elite group called "Spearhead".

ITALY: Principal sources of anti-Semitic activity are extremists in the neo-Fascist Muovimento Sociale Italiano (MSI), a political party. In 1958, MSI polled over a million and a half votes in the national elections. It holds 25 seats in the Italian Parliament, and is represented in several municipal governments. Teenagers of MSI's youth movement, Giovane Italia, have participated in violent clashes, such as the outbreak in the Jewish quarter of Rome last June. An offshoot of MSI, Nuove Ordine, printed and distributed 2,800 copies of a 600-page anti-Semitic book, "The Plot Against the Church" among delegates to the Ecumenical Council last December. The Eichmann trial was widely exploited by the neo-Fascists.

Symptomotic of a disturbing leniency, legislators and other authorities appear loath to take action to dissolve MSI under the Italian Constitution, which prohibits reorganization of the Fascist party.

FRANCE: With political ferment stirring the country, scapegoatism presently extends to other groups than Jews. Nevertheless, several anti-Semitic publications flourish, such as Rivarol, which recently increased its circulation to 50,000, and Aspects de France (25,000) which is put out by Xavier Vallat, former Vichy commissioner for Jewish affairs.

Vichy Commissioner for Jewish Affairs, Pierre Poujade, whose anti-tax movement garnered a substantial national vote in 1953, was convicted and fined last December for publishing anti-Semitic statements.

BELGIUM: This country appears to be an active center of national and international anti-Semitism. Troublesome groups are: The Mouvement Social Belgique, led by former SS officer Jean Robert Debbaudt, which has connections with the European Social Movement, an international group headed by Per Engdahl of Malmo, Sweden; and the Mouvement Action Civique (MAC), a consolidation of other Fascist groups, which claims extensive connections in Europe and Africa.

ARGENTINA: Especially in the Buenos Aires area, groups such as the neo-Fascist, student organization, Tacuara, perpetrated pogrom-type acts during the past year. Synagogues were bombed; the headquarters of the Jewish community were machine-gunned; "Molotov cocktails" were thrown against Jewish schools and institutions. Swastikas were not only daubed on buildings, but were carved on the body of a 19-year-old girl and on an 18-year-old boy. Anti-Semitic publications were widely circulated. One such, The Jew in the Mystery of History, was written by Julio Meinvielle, a priest regarded as the spiritual advisor of Tacuara, though this is denied by him. Some of the violence spilled over to neighboring Uruguay, where eight people were branded with swastikas, and a man was killed.

ROCKWELL IS BACK ON THE CAMPUS CIRCUIT

Again this year a number of college student organizations invited George Lincoln Rockwell to present his "side", or political platform, in lectures. In February, the American Nazi Party leader visited three campuses.

The first date (Feb. 14) was at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, under the auspices of the conservative John Randolph Society. The audience -- numbering about a thousand students and faculty members -- greeted the neo-Nazi tirade with laughter and hoots. Although state troopers were on hand in case of trouble, no disorder developed. Rockwell wore civilian clothes instead of his customary uniform, in line with a university regulation. Governor Albertis S. Harrison had publicly deplored the use of state-owned facilities as a forum for Rockwell and for Communist leader Gus Hall, a previous lecturer.

Rockwell next turned up at Chicago University (Feb. 25), on the invitation of a group of students who live in Vincent Hall, a dormitory. Here his remarks to a gathering of 275 students included praise for the Black Muslims, a nationwide racist Negro organization with headquarters in Chicago. Moved from its scheduled location because of anonymous bomb threats, the meeting attracted some 400 bystanders, who crowded outside the hall. Two concentration-camp survivors began to make speeches and were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

At Shimer College in Mt. Carroll, Ill. (Feb. 26), Rockwell's "lecture" to students and faculty members took place without incident.

While Rockwell toured campuses and produced hate literature, some of his henchmen were also in the news.

In Arlington, Va. (January), former "trial member" Weston L. Weed of Mt. Laurel, N. J., was arrested near Rockwell's headquarters on charges of having robbed three New Jersey supermarkets and a bakery of $30,000. Returned to New Jersey, Weed led police to a hiding place where they recovered $15,000. According to police, Weed, who escaped and was recaptured, said he had given Rockwell $80 and two pistols. Rumors of a larger contribution were denied.

Also in Arlington (Feb. 13), stormtrooper Roy E. Frankhouser, Jr. and four youths who are not ANP members drew 30-day terms for disorderly conduct. The five had been involved in a February 1 brawl in front of ANP's Arlington headquarters.

In Philadelphia (Feb. 25), a jury acquitted five ANP members of charges of incitement to riot and conspiracy. The charges grew out of disorders that took place October 12, when the uniformed group picketed a meeting addressed by Gus Hall, Communist spokesman. Defendants were stormtroopers Robert Sharp, Paul Uhrig, Edward Kester, Bernard Davids and Bernard Cook.

In Florida (Mar. 1), the ANP opened new Miami headquarters. By March 4, the Nazis' office was the scene of an arrest. Deputy Commander John C. McClure was held for illegal possession of a gun, under a state law forbidding felons to possess firearms. In 1958, according to Miami police, McClure was convicted on a narcotics charge -- which, they assert, is a felony. Two days before his arrest, McClure and David Peterson, another stormtrooper, marched in front of the Hotel Fontainebleau, picketing an Israel Bond rally. When disorders broke out, police took them to headquarters where they were released.

NSRP EMBARKS ON EXPANSION CAMPAIGN

The National States Rights Party, mainly active in the South, has set about organizing active units on both the East and West coasts. A small meeting was held in New York in December under the direction of NSRP area director William Hoff, but the main push to date has been in the West.

After several private organizing sessions, the party in January staged an open meeting in Los Angeles. Held at the Embassy Auditorium, the event featured as speakers James P. Thornton, California NSRP director; the Rev. Conrad Lynch, state organizer; and Robert Lewton, captain of the racist party's "security division." Wearing a military uniform and an armband emblazoned with the thunderbolt emblem, Lewton was flanked by men in helmets.

Five party organizers, after a February meeting in a cafe near San Bernardino, Calif., were arrested on assault charges. A cafe patron, Mexican-American Emilio Parker, reportedly had objected to anti-Negro and anti-Semitic remarks; he charged he was shot with a pellet-gun by one of the NSRP members, then held and beaten.

In Florida, the party announced appointment of a new state chairman -- Dewey Taft, another of the long-inactive hatemongers NSRP has been enlisting. Taft merged his "Conservative Party of America" with NSRP.

The Thunderbolt, official party publication, is boasting that circulation of a recent issue passed the 100,000 mark. Illustrative of the increasingly rabid tone of this newspaper is a January feature of photographs and text describing kosher slaughter (shechita).

NEO-NAZI MEETINGS IN NEW YORK

James H. Madole's neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party has revived its storm troops after almost a decade of inactivity and has launched a series of indoor rallies in the Yorkville section of New York City.

A typical NRP meeting, held March 8, was chaired by a former marine, Frederick Jones, attired in a brown shirt, black tie, pants and armband bearing the lightning-bolt insignia originally symbolizing the Hitler Jugend. Several others, similarly garbed, flanked him. Jones told an audience of 70 that the uniformed men were part of the NRP's new "S. E." or "Security Echelon."

Leader Madole spoke on "The Myth of German War Guilt." In his harangue he tried to disprove that six million Jews had died under the Nazi regime, and he also demanded that American Jews be deprived of their citizenship. Various items of literature sold or distributed at the gathering included Jewish Ritual Murder, a pamphlet first published in 1938; old works by former Silver Shirt leader William Dudley Pelley; and several issues of an Arab periodical.

Madole started the National Renaissance Party in 1949, attracting former German-American Bundists and other pro-Nazis with his flagrantly Hitlerian propaganda. During the 1950's, he held regular summer street meetings in Yorkville, "protected" by youthful storm troopers dubbed the "Elite Guard." At first Madole drew small, casual audiences. But after he was "discovered" by a radio commentator, his notoriety spread.

Over the years, Madole's publications have had wider impact than his meetings. His bi-monthly newsletter, National Renaissance Bulletin, distributed nationally, often features front-page caricatures of Jews, in cartoons angled to subjects of current news value. The November-December issue, for instance, shows a Russian soldier intercepting a money-laden figure fleeing to Israel. The mocking caption reads: "'Shocking' Russian Anti-Semitism!" A Madole article in the same issue makes invidious comparisons between U. S. and Soviet policies toward Jews and toward Israel:

> Apparently the Soviet regime does not recognize the Hollywood-manufactured horror tales concerning the death of six million Jews since Eastern Germany has never been asked to pay one cent of indemnity to the pirate state of Israel or to individual Jews...While Russia is purging the majority of her Jews from government office, President Kennedy has appointed 86 to major-political offices...

Madole's propaganda pursues a variety of conspiratorial themes. His current booklist offers for sale such far-ranging items as World Conquerors, a compendious anti-Semitic work by Hungarian Fascist Lajos Marschalko; Frankfurter's Red Record, a scurrilous pamphlet produced by U. S. bigot Conde McGinley; and a biography of Nasser. At his Manhattan rallies, he fans resentments against Negroes and Puerto Ricans, blaming neighborhood tensions on "Jewish domination."

CROMMELIN'S LATEST CAMPAIGN

Running in the Montgomery, Ala., mayoralty primaries on March 19, Admiral John G. Crommelin (USN, ret.) polled 1,509 votes out of 17,851 cast, or about 8½ per cent of the total. This was a decline since his last try for the city post in 1959, when he polled about 10 per cent. In statewide primary races, Crommelin's totals have gone as high as 30 per cent (1956) and as low as less than one-half of 1 per cent (1958).

Though not as vigorous as earlier campaigns, Crommelin's recent bid for the mayoralty included two TV appearances and a double-page advertisement in a local newspaper. While the ad's text was not anti-Semitic, one portion of it reproduced an anti-disarmament statement originally issued as a broadside by Gerald L. K. Smith. A smaller campaign advertisement included among four platform points the candidate's promise to "expose and eradicate, wherever discovered, what I believe to be the Communist-Jewish subversion in our City Government."

IN BRIEF

The Public Appeal, a bigoted weekly issued in Durham, N.C., has been advertising a 1962 edition of Mein Kampf. An article in the March 20 edition explains that even though the translators were anti-Hitler, "nevertheless there is enough truth in the translation to merit reading".... George Lincoln Rockwell has launched a new publication, The Intra-Party Confidential Newsletter, detailing activities of American Nazi Party members. Unlike other Rockwell periodicals, the first issue is unsensational in appearance.....Colin Jordan's British National Socialist Movement also began issuing a newsletter, a mimeographed sheet edited during Jordan's jail term by Roland Kerr-Ritchie.....The National States Rights Party is offering new subscribers to The Thunderbolt a special bonus -- a copy of Conrad Grieb's Uncovering the Forces for War, published in 1947. The book charges that "international bankers" and "Zionists and Jews" carry most of the guilt for World War II. During pre-Pearl Harbor days, Grieb was involved in large-scale distribution of hate literature....Panorama, an anti-Semitic quarterly with a deceptively innocent-looking cover, has recently appeared on London newsstands. Contents consist mainly of full-page, inflammatory cartoons. Issued in London by C. S. Drummond, the magazine advertises Drummond's book, The Twentieth Century Hoax, a bigoted commentary on the infamous Protocols of the Elders of Zion. Hitler, Drummond writes, "was the scapegoat chosen to put into action Zionist strategy which destroyed the military power of Germany."

NEO-NAZI ACTIVITIES DURING APRIL

Nazi-like activities reported last month ran the full gamut, ranging from university appearances by George Lincoln Rockwell and New Yorker James H. Madole to swastika defacements in Dallas and San Francisco.

National Renaissance Party

Taking his cue from Rockwell, James H. Madole cashed in on the current vogue of invitations by college students to arrant neo-Nazis, appearing April 17 before the Political Assembly Club of Columbia University. His small retinue included a uniformed member of NRP's "Security Echelon." Madole's speech set off a bedlam of heckling from his excited audience of some 300 students, many of whom interrupted with speeches of their own. Among other points, Madole alleged Jewish control and domination of all major Negro organizations except the Black Muslims, whom he praised for their stand on segregation. Asked why he had joined NRP, Madole's young stormtrooper replied he was "tired of having the Hebes run this country." After almost two hours, the session ended abruptly when a student called for a mass walkout to "show our contempt."

In a concentrated effort to organize storm troops, Madole issued Man, a manual presenting the official uniform and insignia of NRP's "Security Echelon." Text describes how his storm troop of earlier years, the "Elite Guard," had "earned honor in several street-battles against numerically superior forces of terrorists." Beginning the latter part of May, Madole plans a series of street meetings in New York City.

American Nazi Party

ANP leader George Lincoln Rockwell delivered a lecture on freedom of the press to a journalism class at the University of Maryland on April 26, arriving in business attire with two henchmen.

The "literature" produced out of Rockwell's Arlington, Va. headquarters is designed to test U. S. devotion to free expression to the straining point.

A new low was reached in April with publication of a small pamphlet, The Diary of Ann Fink, a collection of 11 atrocity photographs from concentration camps and crematoria, each accompanied by a "humorous" caption.

A special "project" to celebrate April 20, Hitler's birthday, was set forth in the April 9 issue of Rockwell's Intra-Party Confidential Newsletter:

> To commemorate the occasion, colorful swastika stickers, with the inspiring message -- "Hitler Was Right" -- are being prepared in various languages. All units should be expecting packets. The simultaneous show of racial solidarity will be international.

Three Rockwellites in Arlington, Va., succeeded in stirring up publicity by petitioning the local circuit court for a writ of mandamus to require local school-board enforcement of segregated seating at its meetings. The petition was dismissed, but only after considerable public attention had been drawn to the American Nazi Party instigators.

In Los Angeles, violence erupted on April 28 when ANP picketers demonstrated against an Israel Independence Day celebration at the Shrine Auditorium. Onlookers who protested were struck by picketers with unusually heavy sticks bearing their placards. Four police officers joined the battle. At least 10 persons were injured, policemen and Nazis requiring hospital treatment. Booked on suspicion of assault were ANP members Leonard Holstein, Lyle McLaughlin, William Krauss and Marvin Reeves.

Swastikas

In San Francisco, Temple B'nai David was defaced on April 16 with swastikas -- an outrage which appears to be the work of adults.

In Dallas, an anonymous phone call to police on April 22 warned that a bomb had been planted in Temple Emanu-El. No bomb was found, but a dozen swastikas had been daubed on the temple, and left-over paint thrown over stained-glass windows and doorways. A week before the daubing, and again a week after it, small, printed red-white-and-black stickers bearing the swastika and the legend "We are back!" had been placed on the windows of Jewish-owned stores in downtown Dallas; some 20 stores were involved in these two incidents. Similar swastika stickers inscribed with the same legend have long been advertised by George Lincoln Rockwell in his publication, The Stormtrooper.

Teen-Agers

Nazi-style uniforms and paraphernalia apparently still appeal to some high-school youth. In Boonsboro (Md.) High School, the principal last month issued a ban against coming to school in such outfits. Many students had been caught up in a fad of wearing black shirts and black trousers, giving the Nazi salute and shouting "Heil Hitler!" Swastikas were found scrawled on blackboards. Reportedly students were talking of getting "authentic" Nazi emblems, bayonets and pistols.

NATIONAL STATES RIGHTS PARTY

Two leaders of the National States Rights Party, trouble-making racist group centered in the South, ran afoul of the law in recent weeks. On April 1, James K. Warner was convicted of trespassing on University of Alabama property and sentenced by a Tuscaloosa court to 180 days in jail and a $100 fine. Conviction arose out of his arrest the previous week in connection with a picketing demonstration against Arthur Dean, U. S. disarmament negotiator. Robert A. Bowling, NSRP's "activity supervisor," was arrested in Atlanta April 1, for an extracurricular activity: he was charged with stealing from parking meters.

Several members of NSRP's California unit also fared badly in the aftermath of a San Bernardino cafe brawl over their racist remarks (FYI, March 1963). Two of the five arrested were acquitted in April. In a previous trial, Neuman and Rufus Britton, brothers, were convicted of battery and disturbing the peace, and Connie C. Lynch was found guilty on the count of disturbing the peace. Appeals will be taken.

Party activists capitalized on the severe racial tensions in Alabama. In Birmingham, an NSRP leaflet blaming Jews for instigating Negro civil-rights demonstrations was widely distributed. In Montgomery, on April 25, NSRP's 1960 candidate for vice president -- retired Admiral John G. Crommelin -- voiced vehement protests from the sidelines when police removed 18 pickets from the front of the state Capitol. Picketing featured anti-Semitic, racist signs leveled at Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy's visit to Alabama's governor.

BRIEF ITEMS FROM ABROAD

A large anti-Semitic poster bearing the name "Canadian Nazi Party" was displayed in Toronto during Canada's recent election campaign . . . . A racist publication appeared recently in Dublin, Ireland -- Nationalist News, featuring reports of neo-Nazi movements in various countries, including the United States . . . . The United Arab Republic's U. N. Mission is circulating a pamphlet, Anti-Semitism: A Fiction of Israel . . . . Kenneth DeCourcy's Intelligence Digest, published in England, assesses Israel's position as grave and foresees "Jewish influence" upon the U. S. and other powers. The article lists some 70 names of persons described as of Jewish background, who "occupy key positions in America." All but a few of the names appeared in a similar listing published by U. S. bigot Conde McGinley in the March 1 issue of his newspaper, Common Sense.

MUCH ADO ABOUT MADOLE

After about a decade of relative obscurity as an anti-Semitic publicist and agitator, James H. Madole last month got his first major exposure to the limelight. Widely reported disorders accompanied a street meeting of his neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party, held May 25 in the Yorkville section of Manhattan against protests by a crowd of more than 3,000.

Madole had held many similar Yorkville street meetings during the 1950's; but they went largely unnoticed, generally drawing fewer than two dozen onlookers. Only once did a sizable crowd appear -- after a radio commentator, who had "discovered" Madole, made angry mention of him on the air.

What accounts for the inordinate size of the crowd on May 25, 1963? Ironically, a principal factor was the well-intentioned, though wholly misguided efforts of the very people most outraged by Madole's nazism. Various veterans' groups were active in mounting protest. The Yorkville Chamber of Commerce asked neighborhood homes and stores to fly the American flag in counter-demonstration. At the last minute, the press reported that the NRP would meet May 25 in Yorkville. Each impulsive display of opposition helped spread the word about Madole, inflamed tempers -- and thus swelled the size of the crowd.

Under heavy police protection, Madole spoke from a platform. Only reporters and NRP followers -- about 10, a few attired in storm-troop uniform -- were admitted to the area in front of the speaker's stand. The hooting, screaming crowd was contained behind barricades across the street. The din drowned out Madole's diatribe. Eggs and tomatos were thrown.

As Madole was charging the Yorkville Chamber of Commerce with being "Jew-dominated," a Jewish veterans' leader, followed by others, broke through police lines to make a citizen's arrest of Madole for "inciting to riot against the Jewish people." During the free-swinging melee that ensued, the platform was overturned.

National Renaissance Party flag-bearers swung about with their heavy poles. One of them, Louis Mostaccio, injured a detective, was arrested and convicted of assault. Charges of disorderly conduct were preferred against eight other persons, anti-Nazi protestors among them. No charges were lodged against Madole, who surveyed the commotion with a bland smile.

The results: unprecedented publicity for Madole. Press and TV coverage were extensive. Observers noted that Madole had in this instance surpassed even George Lincoln Rockwell, publicity-wise leader of the American Nazi Party. Efficient police work -- advance precautionary measures and effective handling of the incident -- prevented more serious disturbances.

NEW WAVE OF KLAN ACTIVITY

Recent racial demonstrations in the South have spurred intensified activity by the Ku Klux Klan, often in direct response to desegregationist activities.

May 10, Bessemer, Ala. During the Birmingham riots, the Klan held a meeting at nearby Bessemer, attracting an audience of 1,200. Speakers delivered anti-Negro and anti-Semitic tirades. Shortly after the rally, the home of the Rev. Arthur King was bombed. As yet, the perpetrators have not been apprehended.

May 21, Anniston, Ala. Kenneth Adams, a gas-station owner reportedly active in the Klan, was convicted of firing shotgun blasts at two Negro homes and a Negro church on May 12. After drawing a sentence of 540 days in jail and a $300 fine, he was released under appeal bonds totaling $900.

May 23, Greensboro, N.C. Sixty white youths bearing signs "Bring Back the KKK" brushed shoulders with Negroes demonstrating in downtown Greensboro. With policemen guiding the two lines, violence was avoided.

May 25, Atlanta, Ga. Sixty robed Klansmen met at an abandoned gun-club to conduct ceremonies before some 100 spectators. Departing from standard KKK practice, they set up a cross illuminated by electric-light bulbs -- thus conforming with city ordinances against cross-burning. Handbills announcing the rally, keyed to current steps to desegregate public facilities, featured a photo of Negro and white families sharing a swimming pool. "THIS MUST NOT Happen in Atlanta White People!" was the headline. Text called on white students to "start resistance protest demonstrations against mixed swimming pools, hotels, restaurants."

June 8, Tuscaloosa, Ala. On the Saturday night before Governor George C. Wallace's announced barring of Negro students from the University of Alabama, a sizable KKK rally was held just outside town. Six heavily armed men identified as Klansmen were arrested on their way to the rally. Two hundred robed and hooded Klansmen ignited a 50-foot fiery cross. After the rally, nine men were arrested on charges of possessing concealed weapons such as cotton hooks. Police searches of Klansmen's cars unearthed four bayonets, two nightsticks and two pistols.

Klan membership traditionally expands or contracts, accordion-like, as tensions flare or subside in a given area. Robert Shelton of Alabama, newly elevated from Grand Dragon to Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America, Inc., boasts that in Birmingham alone, KKK membership today runs as high as 3,000. Unfortunately, as long as racial disturbances persist throughout the nation, a resurgence of Klan strength seems likely.

A new neo-Nazi monthly, The Banner, published in Springfield, Mass., reviews the hatemongering activities of other racist groups in the U. S. A. and abroad. A full-page portrait of Hitler accompanies the latest issue of this mimeographed bulletin . . . . The New York "branch" of the racist National States Rights Party is credited with publishing a new periodical, Storm, similar in appearance and content to George Lincoln Rockwell's Stormtrooper. Issue No. 1 features a cover photo of Leander H. Perez, Louisiana White Citizens Council leader. NSRP is giving broad promotion to its recent reprint of the May 1934 issue of Julius Streicher's Der Sturmer; although the text is in the original German, the monstrous drawings more than amply serve NSRP's purpose of spreading charges that Jews practice ritual murder . . . . Addressing the largest student group he has yet "lectured," George Lincoln Rockwell was hooted and jeered by 3,000 at Colorado University on May 14. Rockwell, pleased at the turnout, claims his reception won him further invitations to address other campus groups . . . . Dan Burros, a former Rockwellite currently editing a monthly newsletter, The International Nazi Fascist, recently issued a German-language edition in order to encourage "comrades" in Germany and show that Nazis are active in the U.S.A. . . . . A May decree ordered the suppression of Tacuara, terrorist youth group involved in large-scale anti-Semitic violence in Argentina during the past several years . . . . Outrages involving swastikas and anti-Semitic slogans were reported last month from Sydney, Australia; Stockholm, Sweden; and Toronto, Canada . . . . British Nazi Colin Jordan, having completed a nine-month sentence for violation of the Public Order Act on May 7, was promptly sentenced to another month for "insulting behavior" in connection with his Trafalgar Square rally last July.

MADOLE AND SEVEN NEO-NAZIS ARRESTED

An attempt to counterpicket civil-rights demonstrations at two Bronx hamburger stands was launched, July 14, by members of James H. Madole's neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party. The result: eight neo-Nazis arrested, and a cache of arms seized by police.

Three Madole supporters went to police headquarters to complain that Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) demonstrators had attacked them and damaged the truck they were using. Examining the vehicle, parked outside the station house, police discovered firearms, tear-gas weapons, darts, arrows and even a cross-bow. The three NRP complainants were arrested on the spot; five other neo-Nazis -- including Madole and his "security chief", Dan

Six Madole cohorts were booked for anarchy, conspiracy, attempting to incite a riot and violation of the concealed-weapons law: Edward Cassidy, John Corrigan, Paul Joachim, Peter Krauss, Ian Lehr and Anthony Wells. Madole and Burros were charged with conspiracy to incite a riot. Disposition of the cases is pending.

BOSTON ASSOCIATE OF ROCKWELL ARRESTED AFTER YEAR-LONG PROBE

Speros Lagoulis, Boston proprietor of the Broadway Costume Shop and the Joe McCarthy Book Store, was arrested by Federal authorities on July 23 at a summer cottage in Pittsburg, N. H., for possession of an unregistered sub-machine gun. Two pistols were also seized by the Government agents, who were accompanied by New Hampshire and Massachusetts officials.

The arrest climaxed a year-long investigation by the office of New Hampshire Attorney General William Maynard based on Lagoulis' affiliations and activities with the American Nazi Party. Lagoulis was freed on $2,000 bail after a hearing before a U. S. commissioner, and awaits Federal grand jury action in September.

ARAB PROPAGANDA STRIKES OUT AT U. S. FILMS

A recent issue (April 29, 1963) of the Arab Observer, a weekly English-language magazine produced in Cairo, charges that "the Zionists" control the motion-picture industry and use it to project their propaganda. Cover illustration caricatures Ben Gurion and a movie queen, with a winding-key attached to her back. The blurb reads: "Who Winds Her Up? Zionists and the Cinema." The issue's featured article, "Zionist Myth Factories," charges that "the Zionists" conspired first, to convince Jews that "their loyalty was not to their countries of domicile" but to "the Jewish community of Palestine," and second, to make Jewish moviemakers "purveyors in their films of the Zionist mythology." The article continues:

> This done, the next aim was toward a larger target-group, the Goyim, or non-Jew. Through the cinema, they had to be convinced of several propositions: That the Jews had suffered more than anyone else, that their sufferings were uniquely undeserved, that Zionism was the only movement working for the Jews, and that Israel was the only country where they could live in peace.

The six-page article is studded with photographs of well known movie personalities, captioned with crude insinuations. A world-famous comedian, for example, is pictured in a kneeling position under these words: "Shalom, to the Golden Calf!"

NOTORIOUS ANTI-SEMITIC PUBLICIST DIES

Conde McGinley, who edited Common Sense from Union, N. J., for 18 years, died of cancer on July 1 at the age of 73. Born and raised in Oklahoma, McGinley moved to New Jersey in 1929 to start a small chain of drive-in restaurants. Attracted by the extremist views of Father

Charles E. Coughlin, he became a staunch supporter of Social Justice. Early in the 1940's, faced with wartime restrictions and labor shortages, McGinley went out of business. For several years, he marked time as an inspector in a factory. When the war ended, he launched his own "journal of truth" -- which he first called Think, later Think Weekly, and finally Common Sense.

According to its most recent sworn statement of circulation (October 1962), this vitriolic semi-monthly has an average readership of 91,000. Corporate ownership of Common Sense rests with the Christian Educational Association. (One of CEA's listed stockholders is John G. Crommelin, Jr. of Montgomery, Ala.) Besides publishing the newspaper, CEA promotes and disseminates hate literature from a variety of sources, domestic and foreign. Volunteers are enlisted to help operate the Union, N. J. distribution center, one of the large depots for hate literature now in business.

The latest issue of Common Sense (July 1963) is devoted entirely to tributes to the deceased McGinley -- editorials and letters signed by such known hate-mongers as Marilyn Allen, Elizabeth Dilling, Kenneth Goff and Charles B. Hudson. One salute entitled "Modern Paul Revere" bears the name of Benjamin H. Freedman, for many years a major financial supporter of Common Sense. Another tribute, "Sword of Truth," appears over the name of Gen. P. A. del Valle. Many of the letters of condolence and praise close with only initials and a listed city of origin.

A brief note, "My Father," by William McGinley, states: "Many subscribers are concerned about the continuance of Common Sense. We too are concerned....We are searching for a solution...."

B. Stoner of Atlanta, served as attorney for Melvin Bruce, a George Lincoln Rockwell sympathizer, when Bruce came before a Federal Court jury in Oxford, Miss., on charges of interfering with U. S. marshals during the University of Mississippi riots. He was acquitted on July 2....The National Citizens Union, New York hate-group recently launched by Betty Shepherd, spells out its purpose in the maiden issue (June) of its publication, The Appeal: "There must be an organization which deals solely with the problem of wresting the Jews from political and financial power; this is the only way to end the Communistic influence on our culture."....In Sweden, the government is taking measures to prevent anti-Semitic broadcasts; the action followed an inflammatory radio talk on Arab-Israel tensions by schoolteacher Gerhard Johansson....In Argentina, a Catholic journal printed a rabidly anti-Semitic outburst by Father Juan Malensek, commending the activities of Tacuara, terrorist youth group, and recommending a number of anti-Semitic publications. The Argentine Jewish community protested to the Primate of the Argentine Church, Cardinal Antonio Caggiano.

NSRP ACTIVISTS INDICTED

Eight members of the anti-Semitic, segregationist National States Rights Party -- including its leader Edward R. Fields and counsel Jesse B. Stoner -- were indicted by a Birmingham Federal Grand Jury on September 23, in connection with disorders accompanying the desegregation of three Birmingham schools. Besides Fields and Stoner, others accused are James K. Warner, associate editor of NSRP's vitriolic monthly, The Thunderbolt; Gerald Dutton, the group's youth leader; and members Ralph Lewandowski, Barney Carmack, Jr., Jack Cash and David Stanley.

Among other charges, the indictment accuses all except Cash of conspiring to obstruct justice by interfering with the Court's desegregation order. It alleges that Fields, on September 4, directed his followers and a crowd of 75 to "overpower the police, cross police lines, injure Graymont school and commit depredations" inside the school. Cash is charged with attempting interference by threats and with possessing a pistol on which taxes were unpaid.

Headquartered in Birmingham, the NSRP has preempted the Klan and other racist groups in mobilizing demonstrations against desegregation in that city. On September 3, the day before the critical school opening, NSRP staged two open-air rallies, drawing crowds of 600 and 2,000. Fields attacked city officials and warned against the "Jew-Communist plot to mongrelize the nation." On September 4, as classes began, NSRP members, some wearing the party's Nazi-style uniform, led a flying squadron of demonstrators. They sped from school to school, picketing, shouting epithets and engaging in bitter scuffles with the police.

The brutal climax of tensions over school desegregation came September 15, with the church bombing which killed four young Negro girls attending Sunday school. No arrests have yet been made for these crimes, which so deeply shocked the nation. NSRP leader Fields denied any connection with the bombing which he deplored because it"disrupted everything" for the segregationists. He expressed the fear that "If the Negroes decide to retaliate, they probably will bomb or shoot up my house." Trying to cast himself in a martyr's role, he added, "With the bombing and all that uproar about it, the jurors have to indict someone..."

As information director of NSRP and editor of The Thunderbolt, Fields has built up his monthly as the party's main outlet for airing militant anti-Semitism and racism. The publication has concentrated on scandalous attacks against Administration leaders and reprints of such inflammatory anti-Semitic canards as Jewish Ritual Murder, The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, and an issue of Julius Streicher's Der Stuermer with bestial illustrations.

A MONUMENTAL FIZZLE: ROCKWELL'S COUNTER-MARCH ON WASHINGTON

After a vigorous two-month build-up, George Lincoln Rockwell's much-vaunted efforts to stage a counter-March on Washington August 28 ended in a fiasco. No more than 50 followers appeared with him, in mufti, at the Washington Monument grounds, where they meekly allowed themselves to be herded by police into an area carefully cordoned off for their demonstration. The single exception was "Deputy Commander" Karl R. Allen, who began a speech to the group against police orders. He was arrested for speaking without a permit, convicted and, two days later, fined $50. As soon as Allen was taken into custody, the American Nazi contingent departed without further incident, marching back to Arlington headquarters in single file.

In preparation for August 28, the date of the March on Washington for Freedom and Jobs, Rockwell announced his plans to enlist 10,000 counter-demonstrators. He toured Virginia cities and towns for two months; his henchmen fanned out to other states, distributing racist pamphlets keyed to the major civil-rights demonstration. The principal recruiting leaflet, headed "WHITE MAN FIGHT!!!" warned:

> You can be damned sure that the Niggers aren't afraid of the possibility of race riots and bloodshed...August 28 will be the day the White Man will sweep away the Black Revolution...Washington, D. C. will be the battleground...

Dropping his previous stress on anti-Semitism, Rockwell concentrated all his energies on recruiting support for his latest stunt, keyed to the March on Washington. Here are some highlights from his swing around Virginia:

-- In Richmond, on July 4, Rockwell spoke from the steps of the city hall, afterward complaining there was "not one word in the press" about his appearance.

-- In Emporia, on July 19, Rockwell and henchmen Roy James and Don Wiley were arrested on charges of conspiracy to incite the white population against the Negroes. Rockwell was released on bond after a night in jail.

-- In Danville, on August 17, Rockwell had to call off a speech in the city auditorium. A court injunction was issued against the use of the hall. In addition, authorities withdrew permission because Rockwell had failed to pay the full rental and incidental charges.

-- In Lynchburg, on August 20, Rockwell addressed a group of teen-agers, telling them to "fight Communist race-mixers in the streets by standing up and meeting them in the streets."

-- In Charlottesville, on August 22, Rockwell promised an audience of 150 that at least 12,000 sympathizers would join in his counter-march on Washington.

Despite the failure of his major effort against the March on Washington -- a dignified demonstration singularly free of disorder -- Rockwell nonetheless found grounds for self-congratulations. Claiming 87 followers, he took solace in his radio, TV and press notices, and boasted that his was "the only opposition to stand in the middle of all that black horror and treason."

* * * *

In Pennsylvania and California, ANP members also were active. On August 19, a Pittsburgh court fined David France, Roy Frankhauser, Lynn Giesy and John Patler for distributing hate literature. On August 25, the California Supreme Court sustained the Nazis' right to demonstrate in Los Angeles and nearby localities. Three days later, in an outdoor meeting at Burbank, regional ANP leader Ralph Forbes was roundly booed by an audience of 100.

MORE ARMS CHARGES

Over the summer, as reported in FYI, weapons charges have been lodged against members of James H. Madole's National Renaissance Party in New York; against American Nazi Party supporter Speros Lagoulis in New Hampshire; and, most recently, against National States Rights Party member Jack Cash in Birmingham. In addition, two other arrests involving arms were reported in August.

In Los Angeles, George L. King, Jr. was charged with selling machine guns; according to authorities, King belongs to NSRP and the California Rangers, a vigilante group. And in Alexandria, Va., ANP follower Benton Lee Johnson was arraigned before a U. S. Commissioner on charges of violating a Federal law which prohibits felons from carrying weapons across state lines.

HATE IN PRINT 1963

The past year saw no decrease in the volume of anti-Semitic printed material. For the most part, hatemongers adapted ancient libels to topical issues, viewing desegregation as a "Jewish-Communist plot to mongrelize the nation," the UN as a scheme of "the Zionists" for achieving world-control, and high Government officials as "dupes" of subversive elements. There was, as always, the linking of Jews with Communists.

The hate press ranged from the scurrilities of Rockwell's American Nazi Party publications to the less bizare but equally venomous "news analyses" of Gerald L.K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag (circ. 26,700), Common Sense (circ. 90,000) and The Thunderbolt (circ. 30,000), organ of the National States Rights Party (NSRP) of Birmingham, Ala., were other principal disseminators of anti-Semitic material. The latter ran into difficulty toward the year's end because of the indictment of its editor, Edward R. Fields, and seven other Party members on charges of obstructing Birmingham's school desegregation.

The American Nazi Party's publications -- The Stormtrooper, The Rockwell Report, Intra-Party Confidential Newsletter and various flyers and "novelty" items designed to create an impression of high volume -- are produced by Rockwell and a few henchmen in the Party's run-down Arlington, Va. headquarters. Among the "shockers" listed for sale during the year were Jew Traitor's Surrender Pass, Brotherhood Dictionary, Boat Ticket to Africa, "Nazi stickers -- bright little hell-raisers," and The Diary of Ann Fink, a sickening booklet of more than a dozen Nazi death-camp atrocity photos bearing Rockwell's "humorous" captions.

Within days after the assassination of President Kennedy, Rockwell issued an "extra" of The Rockwell Report, charging the "Jew-Communist-Zionist Plotters in America" with involvement.

The Winrod Letter, put out at Little Rock, Ark. by the Rev. Gordon Winrod, son of the late "Jayhawk Nazi" Gerald Winrod, used "prophetic interpretation" and Biblical quotations as springboards for bias. Lead item in the November issue (after a New Testament citation) attributed the death of Vietnamese President Diem to "certain internal destructionists and revolutionaries /always Jews and their puppets/ who were calling themselves Buddhists." Another "prophetic" preacher is Kenneth Goff, professional ex-Communist and former Gerald L.K. Smith factotum, who publishes The Pilgrim Torch from Englewood, Colo. His October-November issue revived the international banker theme with an article entitled "Who Financed the Bolsheviks?".

James H. Madole's neo-Nazi National Renaissance Bulletin continued, despite his July indictment for anarchy as a result of his actions against a civil-rights demonstration at a Bronx luncheonette.

The Councilor, organ of the Citizens' Council of Louisiana, coupled its racism with attacks on "the Rothschilds," its September 20th and November 20th issues blaming them for the Income Tax Amendment of 1913 as well as for numerous offenses dating back to the Civil War. The publication also stressed the "borscht background" of some Presidential assistants.

In June there appeared a new rabbid monthly, Appeal, under the imprint of the National Citizens Union (NCU). Since renamed Countdown Nine and published in New York by Betty Shepherd, the headline of its initial issue read, "The Jews must be resisted Openly - Now!" A generation older than Miss Shepherd's publication, Elizabeth Dilling's voluminous mimeographed newsletter was still issued regularly from Chicago. Its principal feature was exhaustively detailed "resource material" for the benefit of other agitators. The Truth Seeker (New York), promoted racism and anti-Semitism along with attacks on Christianity.

Supplementing such periodicals were many books and pamphlets listed for sale by Common Sense, the Christian Nationalist Crusade and the National States Rights Party, among others. Though some were of pre-Pearl Harbor vintage, many were recent publications or reprints. The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, in various formats and editions, was much in circulation. Widely distributed books were Prof. John O. Beaty's bigoted political diatribe, Iron Curtain Over America, and World Conquerors by Lajos Marschalko, a compendium of canards translated from the Hungarian. The pamphlets of Robert H. Williams (e.g., Know Your Enemy), though published a decade ago, were still sold, as were those of the late George W. Armstrong (Third Zionist War).

The publications of anti-Semites here had their counterparts abroad. In Germany there was reprinted the "Ritual Murder" issue (May 1936) of the late Julius Streicher's Der Steurmer, replete with revolting drawings and cartoons. During July, West German authorities at Karlsruhe arrested three men for possession of 100 copies. The British National Socialist Party's publication ran a column of comment by George Lincoln Rockwell.

SECRET MEMO LISTS NINE OBJECTIVES

AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE MOVES INTO FOREIGN AFFAIRS

from our own correspondent

New York:

Although its name signifies purely U.S. attachment, the American Jewish Committee has recently enunciated its decision to broaden its scope with a foreign affairs programme based on the following objectives:

1. To protect and advance civil and religious rights and security, on the basis of equality, of Jews in other countries.
2. To assist Jewish communities and organisations in other countries in resisting anti-Semitic policies and propaganda, or tendencies inimical to democratic justice and equal rights for all.
3. To strengthen Jewish identity and security by aiding Jews in other countries to develop communal, religious and cultural institutions, and by promoting, wherever necessary, the wholesome integration of Jews within the societies of which they are part.
4. To advise Jews in other countries on community and public relations concepts and techniques.
5. To secure satisfactory restitution and indemnification settlements for the benefit of Jewish victims of Nazism, and the adequate implementation of such settlements, and to participate in the equitable and purposeful distribution of the proceeds of such settlements.
6. To assist in the promotion of Israel's development; to encourage the establishment of peace in the Middle East; to uphold American support of Israel's legitimate needs, within the framework of American interests; and to create bonds of understanding between the Jews of Israel and Jewish communities elsewhere in the world, especially in the United States.
7. To combat the re-emergence of pro-Nazi and anti-Semitic tendencies abroad.
8. To promote respect for democratic ideals and human rights on the international scene, with particular emphasis on the role of the United Nations in this effort.
9. To seek the liberalisation of immigration policies throughout the world, especially in the United States.

All these objectives were spelled out at recent meetings of the A.J.C. in New York, and the points listed here were included in a confidential memorandum provided for the Committee members involved in its foreign affairs programme.

Fund-raising aspect: To the uninitiated, it might seem rather strange that an organisation so American in structure and even name should so forthrightly indicate that its bailiwick is indeed the entire globe. But this indicates a variety of things, one being the increasing competition amongst the various so-called defence bodies to find or at least articulate what seems to be a programme that will hold and possibly increase membership.

BROOKLYN YESHIVA STUDENTS
Exporting the American way of Jewish life?

Another factor is tied in with fund-raising. The American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith have severed their former fund-raising partnership in the United States and have mounted their own campaigns. This involves not only the retention of considerable fund-raising staffs, but also the production of programmes which are sufficiently impressive to warrant community support to the tune of $4 million - $5 million annually—the sum which the two agencies will try to collect from the various federations and welfare funds all over the country.

Such a broad foreign policy also emphasises the fact that the issues at home in the United States may not warrant the retention of such large organisational structures as are maintained by bodies like the American Jewish Committee. The general tendency seems to be for almost all of the defence bodies to react to events abroad, even though on occasion imagination must be stretched to the limit to provide a reasoning as to why this should be.

"World Outlook": But the American Jewish Committee spells out why it feels it must be active on the international front. Headed "World Outlook," this is the Committee's analysis—again, from its confidential memorandum—of the international scene as it affects Jews:

"Social unrest, economic instability and political weaknesses plague many Latin American countries, with potential civil conflicts lurking in the background. The threat of Communist subversion, some of it spearheaded by Soviet - dominated Cuba, menaces democracy throughout the continent.

"Dissension in the Western world, especially with regard to the denial of British entry into the European Common Market and the scope of military agreements, has created an atmosphere of confusion and uncertainty.

"Recent revelations concerning former highly placed Nazis now in positions of authority in West Germany, as well as the Der Spiegel affair, have raised new doubts about that country's progress towards democratic principles and practices.

"Increases in anti-Semitism in certain countries and especially in Latin America in recent times have made clear the necessity for constant vigilance and considered action by Jewish communities and the governments involved.

"Jewish emigration from North Africa and Eastern Europe to Israel and, in the case of Algerian Jews, to France, is creating basic and serious problems of settlement and integration.

"The growing influence of President Nasser of Egypt and the efforts of his supporters and others to forge a unified Arab bloc in North Africa and the Middle East are arousing concern in Israel and will probably present new challenges to Jewish communities in that area and elsewhere."

Of major concern in following its programme, the American Jewish Committee emphasises, is getting the facts—"seeking to know where and, if possible, when Jewish interests might be adversely affected, and preparing means of meeting threats swiftly and effectively."

HALEVY EXPRESSES HIS CONCERN

REMARKABLE OUTBURST BY ANGLO-JEWISH ASSN.

from the Jewish Affairs reporter

Should there be an international Jewish organisation to co-ordinate all the world-wide organisations, or should each national Jewish group work on its own and speak for itself? This has long been one of the disputed issues in Jewish communal life, and most attempts to overcome it have, over the years, ended in failure.

Recently, however, Dr. Nahum Goldmann, together with some leading American organisations and with representative Jewish organisations from all parts of the world, established the World Conference of Jewish Organisations, known as C.O.J.O. Though still in its infancy, there were many indications that here, for the first time, there might be a timely and successful initiative in giving the national Jewish organisations a necessary forum for united action.

This has now produced a remarkable outburst from the president of the Anglo-Jewish Association, Mr. R. N. Carvalho. Commenting on the decision of the Board of Deputies, he warned the Anglo-Jewish community as to "the dangers of this kind of internationalism". In language which could hardly be commended for its appositeness, he expressed his concern that the responsibilities of the members of the Anglo-Jewish Association might well become confused and strained if they found that they were involved in decisions and expressions of opinion "on behalf of so-called international Jewry".

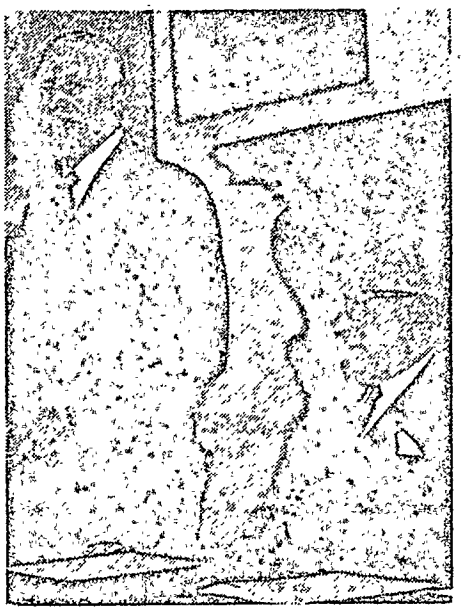

Great anger: They were worried enough, Mr. Carvalho continued, by their involvement with Israel, which sometimes made for ambiguity in their status, but so far that problem had not become "overbearing". It was a difficult matter when it came to "international Jewry, with its Machiavellian atmosphere".

It would be possible to argue that there are aspects of the organisation of C.O.J.O. which need further development and consideration, but it is probably unique for the president of a representative Jewish body to use this kind of language and it is, therefore, not surprising that it has raised great anger in the Anglo-Jewish community.

Mr. Jacob Halevy, Chairman of the Zionist Federation, expressed his great concern that it should be possible, in this age, for a leading communal spokesman to address himself in such a manner to a section of Anglo-Jewry, however small and unrepresentative, without being immediately challenged. Mr. Halevy said he could not understand how the editor of the Jewish Chronicle could support Mr. Carvalho's statement, all the more so in view of the position taken by the Anglo-Jewish Association's opposite number in the United States, the American Jewish Committee.

Why the silence? Far from sharing Mr. Carvalho's horror of international action, Mr. Halevy said, the American Jewish Committee (as reported above) is apparently preparing to form itself into a representative organ of international Jewry and to influence world Jewry in line with American thought.

Why, asked Mr. Halevy, did Mr.

HALEVY (WITH AMBASSADOR LOURIE)
A question of language

Carvalho have nothing to say about this major incursion by his American colleagues into the affairs of European, Latin-American and other Jewish communities?

Surely, it was far more democratic and representative, and advantageous to all Jewish communities, to have a broadly-based organisation such as that proposed through C.O.J.O., rather than purely national organisations like the American Jewish Committee, and similar bodies in other countries, attempting to intervene in Jewish life in the image of their national administrations?

That way—and it is Mr. Carvalho's way—lies disaster. There is still time to bring some kind of order into international Jewish life, and the first thing to be done is to stop, once and for all, the kind of reminiscently obnoxious language which Mr. Carvalho employed.

Difficult to believe: Apparently, the President of the A.J.A. is prepared to co-operate with other Jewries when disaster strikes, but not before, Mr. Halevy concluded. But to take steps beforehand, to co-operate and to anticipate hardship before it overtakes other Jewish communities, is clearly repugnant to Mr. Carvalho. For this smacks of the dreadful concept of "internationalism" and becomes particularly obnoxious to the A.J.A. when applied to "International Jewry", for then it becomes enveloped in "a Machiavellian atmosphere", Mr. Halevy said.

"It is difficult to believe that these words were spoken by a Jew, and the more so by one who claims to be a leader of Anglo-Jewry."

BLACK AND WHITE SEGREGATIONISTS' "JOINT" MEETING

An audience of Negroes and whites -- dedicated to separation of the races -- heard neo-Nazi leader James H. Madole attack Jews as conspiratorial race-mixers and slum-exploiters, at the African Universal Church and Commercial League (AUCCL) in New York on November 17. Madole, leader of the National Renaissance Party, had high praise, as usual, for Nasser. Another speaker was Willie Hoff, New York organizer for the activist National States Rights Party.

Madole was flanked by uniformed stormtroopers Ed Cassidy and Dan Burros who, with him, are under indictment for anarchy, conspiracy to incite to riot and related charges arising out of their counter-picketing of a civil-rights demonstration at a Bronx lunchstand last July.

Head of African Universal Church And Commercial League

AUCCL, a Negro apartheid movement, is headed by "Archbishop and President-General" Clarence C. Addison, whose propaganda appears to be concentrated in New York and Chicago. Addison's current leaflet, reprinted in the November, 1963 issue of Gerald L.K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag, states that "75% of the NAACP membership had no idea that it is an organized tool for the purpose of destroying black and white in the interest of International Jewry."

C.C.

This is not the first instance of Addison's collaboration with anti-Semitic groups. As far back as April 1, 1959, Conde McGinley's hatesheet, Common Sense, ran Addison's picture over the following:

> Several months ago Archbishop C.C. Addison spoke at our headquarters on "God is the Author of Segregation - the Devil is the Author of Integregation." His talk was well received and many have asked for copies. This talk is now available in a 12 page pamphlet for the asking....

A few months later (June 1, 1959) Common Sense promoted AUCCL's "national convention," running photographs of six of its leaders. The April 1, 1960 issue of Common Sense printed Addison pronouncements against desegregation.

member American Nazi Party

ROCKWELL'S NAZIS-
STUNTS AND STUMBLES

George Lincoln Rockwell continues to include burlesques of civil-rights demonstrations in his bag of publicity tricks. During the 1961 Freedom Rides he dispatched a small "Hate Bus," packed with henchmen, to New Orleans. Last August, he organized his own "March on Washington" to counter the huge demonstration for civil-rights. The latest Rockwell gambit appears to be "non-violence." Two American Nazi Party members, picketing in Boston on November 16, did not resist when their placards were grabbed and torn up by indignant youths. One Nazi continued marching, holding the bare pole. Mimicking Negro attorney Paul Zuber's decision to enter the New Hampshire Presidential primaries to state the Negro's case, Rockwell announced on November 15 he would enter the primaries "to prove that the people believe in the same thing I believe in...."

D.C. Md. Va.

Non-violence was not the tactic last April when four Nazi pickets at an Israel Bond rally in Los Angeles attacked participants and police. Convicted of felonious assault on November 12, they will be sentenced on December 3.

BRIEF ITEMS

THE NATIONAL STATES RIGHTS PARTY, whose leaders Edward R. Fields and J.B. Stoner, together with six other members, are under Federal indictment for obstructing school-desegregation in Birmingham, Ala., has launched a defense-fund appeal. NSRP's Personal Newsletter complains that "our regular income during September was the lowest in over a year .... also we are behind with our newspaper ...."

....THE LEAGUE FOR CULTURAL DYNAMICS, of Sausalito, Calif., an odd cult of "evolutionary" humanism, has reprinted an essay on "cultural dynamics" by its founder, E. L. Anderson. The bibliography includes World Conquerors by Lajos Maschalko, the Hungarian Nazi, Brainwashing by Kenneth Goff, former henchman of Gerald L.K. Smith, and the late Prof. John O. Beaty's anti-Semitic political diatribe, Iron Curtain Over America....BETTY SHEPHERD, supporter of neo-Nazis in the New York area, has changed the name of her hatesheet from The Appeal to Countdown. Her organization remains The National Citizens Union....Hitler Was Right is the title of a mimeographed sheet put out regularly by American Nazi Party organizer George A. Lincke, who operates from "headquarters" in a dingy basement in New York City's Yorkville section. Despite the sale of his screed, supplemented by that of Rockwell's vituperative leaflets, Lincke finds the going rough....DAN BURROS, neo-Nazi activist now under indictment, with Madole and others, for a variety of offenses, has published under his own name a one-page reprint of an article "interpreting" the swastika's symbolism. The article was originally written and published by the pre-war British Imperial Fascist League....

ABROAD

After a year's lull, swastikas appeared this month in Austria, daubed on streets and bridges. The smearings coincided with the dedication of a memorial for Nazi victims in Vienna....

On November 3rd a large swastika was painted on the reading platform of a London synagogue, and several silver ornaments were stolen....In Uruguay, police shut down Montevideo's anti-Semitic publication, The Broom, on government orders November 5th....Ireland's Nazi publication, Nationalist News, ran a "satire" on newspaper handling of a "Nazi underground meeting." The roll-call of those present at this mythical meeting was taken by counting the number of jackboots and dividing by four, because "This method is an infallible ready-reckoner, as 'Nazi beasts' must have four legs...."

Mr. Millenson dropped by the Bureau and talked to Kemper. He left the attached manuscript entitled "The Confusion of Color and Crime" by Marvin E. Wolfgang. Mr. Millenson said this book was going to be published by the Fellowship Commission of Philadelphia and the American Jewish Committee of New York, and he wanted to know if it would be possible for the Director to write a foreword.

The manuscript was reviewed by the Uniform Crime Reporting Section and they advised that they rely heavily on UCR statistics and that the interpretation of them is somewhat slanted. It was not felt that the study was completely objective.

Kemper called Mr. Millenson and advised him that the Director's commitments were such that it would not be possible to assist. Mr. Millenson said that we could have the attached book.

The above-captioned person dropped in to see me to discuss his interest in combating extremisms of the left and the right. There is nothing derogatory in Bureau files concerning Mr. Millinson. He impressed me favorably.

Mr. Millinson spoke very approvingly of the Director's statement of April 1, 1961, to all law enforcement officials, a copy of which is attached. Mr. Millinson said he wondered if it could be brought up to date and given a timely frame of reference. He said that the Director's thought in this particular context is so valuable that he believes that if it were restated, it could continue to accomplish much good. I thanked Mr. Millinson for his suggestion and told him that it would be taken into consideration. This statement was originally prepared in the Domestic Intelligence Division.

RECOMMENDATION:

That permission be granted for this Division to go ahead and bring it up to date for consideration as to whether or not it might be used in connection with one of the coming issues of the Law Enforcement Bulletin.

TO ALL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS:

America, historically an impregnable fortress against tyranny, is engaged in a mortal struggle with world communism. It is time for both citizens and governmental authorities to confront this threat in a calm, realistic, rational, law-abiding manner.

The ingredients for communist coups in nations which have fallen under its spell always include a populace shaken with fear, hysteria, and confusion. Above all, however, is the danger of irresponsible counteraction by citizens who lend impetus to communism through inept attempts to fight this insidious menace.

The leaders of worldwide communism proclaim that even America can succumb to the "rules of revolution" conceived by Karl Marx and galvanized into the first successful communist revolution by V. I. Lenin.

Lenin said, "The more powerful enemy can be conquered only by exerting the utmost effort, and by necessarily, thoroughly, carefully, attentively and skillfully taking advantage of every, even the smallest, 'rift' among the enemies...."

There exists today in our land a vital "rift" which the communists are exploiting. Unfortunately, this involves certain people across the country who engage in reckless charges against one another. The label of "communist" is too often indiscriminately attached to those whose views differ from the majority. Those whose lives are not led according to what one segment of society might decree to be the "norm" are too frequently challenged as "Reds."

Attributing every adversity to communism is not only irrational, but contributes to hysteria and fosters groundless fears. Communism is, indeed, our paramount adversary, and it leans on its credo of invincibility and a concept of historical inevitability to accomplish its ends. The way to fight it is to study it, understand it, and discover what can be done about it. This cannot be achieved by dawdling at the spring of knowledge; it can only be accomplished by dipping deeply into thoughtful, reliable, and authoritative sources of information.

The job of curtailing and containing communism is one for legally constituted authorities with the steadfast cooperation of every loyal citizen. This is neither the time for inaction nor vigilante action. We must unite as a people, we must understand our basic American heritage under law, and we must face the communist menace with deliberation, quiet courage, and knowledge. These are the qualities which communism shrinks from--these are the qualities against which communism can never succeed.

Very truly yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

INTERNAL SECURITY - RUSSIA -CUBA

DECLASSIFIED BY SP-3 TEK
ON 9-12-79 BY Pre Disclosure

SYNOPSIS:

Leo Sauvage, a 51-year-old French correspondent for a socialist newspaper and reported employee of the French Communist Party in 1956, wrote critical and ostensibly objective article entitled "The Oswald Affair" which appeared in the March, 1964, issue of "Commentary", a publication of the American Jewish Committee. This article is similar to other articles being written by foreign authors having a background of Communist sympathies. It is based on speculation, unfounded material and half-truths. Sauvage tries to discredit many of the facts indicating Oswald is guilty and also implies the true facts will never be brought out because of the influence of the FBI and other police agencies.

RECOMMENDATION:

DECLASSIFIED BY 9145 RLD
ON 11/19/84 CH#37047 PER RELEASE

It is not felt we have the responsibility of furnishing the Commission with every piece of inaccurate, speculative commentary on the assassination. If you approve, the President's Commission will not be furnished a copy of this article as the magazine containing the article is readily available in the United States. A copy will be furnished to Dallas for its information.

LEO SAUVAGE

Leo Sauvage was born 2/23/13 in Nancy, France, and was reported to be a correspondent and chief of the New York Bureau of "Le Populaire," French socialist newspaper. (40-0-3796)

"Commentary" describes Sauvage as an author and New York correspondent for "Le Figaro," Paris for nearly 15 years.

In 1951 information was developed that Sauvage was a member of a small group close to Louis Dolivet who was refused re-entry to the United States due to Dolivet's suspected communist and comintern background. (100-23792-148)

On 9/27/56 a confidential source abroad advised the name of Leo Sauvage appeared on a list of individuals employed by the French Communist Party. [redacted] b3 b7E

AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

This organization has been described as being founded in 1906 and incorporated in 1911. The fundamental purpose of this organization is said to be to safeguard the civil and religious rights of Jewish people throughout the world and to combat discrimination and prejudice. In 1946 it was described as being pro-Palestine with its ultimate aim being to secure a "real homeland" in Palestine. The committee has been critized by the communist "Daily Worker" in the past for its anticommunist assertions. Some individuals connected with the committee have had communist affiliations. (62-102104-8)

"COMMENTARY"

"Commentary," a monthly magazine published by the American Jewish Committee, states it aims to meet the need for a journal of "significant thought and opinion on Jewish affairs and contemporary issues." It will be "hospitable to diverse points of view and belief" and it hopes to encourage "original creative endeavor." The editor maintains the opinions and views expressed therein are the authors own and do not necessarily express "Commentary's" viewpoint or position.

DETAILS:

Sauvage prefaces his "objective" article with several observations which serve to set the tone of the article which is to follow. He first of all stresses that all the evidence against Oswald was "leaked" to the various news media and he accuses the FBI as one of the principals in leaking this information. Sauvage then states as the Dallas authorities convicted Oswald by "press and television" the FBI has "forced" the hand of the President's Commission by leaking the results of our investigation and in this manner assuring that the Commission will return a verdict of guilty for Oswald.

CONFIDENTIAL

Sauvage proceeds in a systematic manner to review the alleged evidence against Oswald from the assassination on. He quotes freely the published statements of individuals such as Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade, Chief Jesse Curry and Captain Will Fritz of the Dallas Police Department, and then endeavors to show that the early erroneous statements made by them were really intended to deceive and cover up the true facts. Sauvage imputes to impulsive publicity-seeking statements intrigue and conspiracy. In order to lend credence to some of his theories Sauvage goes as far as to attribute public statement to SAC Gordon Shanklin of Dallas regarding the assassination. Of course these statements are completely untrue.

Some of the alleged facts which Sauvage highlights as showing Oswald could not be the assassin are as follows:

1. That it was physically impossible for Oswald to have traveled from the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository Building and escape without anybody seeing him.

2. That because of the lack of security around the building immediately after the assassination anybody could have entered or left the building without being seen.

3. Sauvage claims the assassination rifle would not lend itself to three accurate shots and that Lee Harvey Oswald did not have the talent or the experience to fire the rifle as accurately as alleged.

4. Sauvage also quotes various statements from doctors at Parkland Memorial Hospital who afforded the President emergency treatment, that the President had been shot from the front. This, of course, is completely erroneous and has been checked out numerous times. This is a favorite of the communist press.

5. Sauvage also claims four shots were fired not three and he is skeptical of the findings of the FBI Laboratory that the three bullets fired were from the assassination rifle.

6. He suggests clues leading to Oswald's arrest were planted well in advance of the assassination and suggests a conspiracy.

7. He raises doubts concerning the murder of Officer J. D. Tippit by Oswald suggesting the facts as known are completely false.

Memorandum to Mr. Belmont
RE: LEE HARVEY OSWALD

In order to show "objectivity" Sauvage agrees with the facts as known to date that Oswald and Ruby did not conspire together. In fact, Sauvage goes so far as to say that any such idea is "rather childish."

Sauvage's attempt to appear as a humble modest reporter merely inquiring into the facts falls short and it is quite obvious that his intents and purposes for writing this article are to create embarrassment for the U. S. Government and to cloud the true facts relating to Oswald's guilt as well as to elicit support from sympathetic groups.

RFK Limits Birch Tie as Job Barrier

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (UPI) Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.) said today that he "would not absolutely bar members of the Birch Society from serving on a police force," but he would bar members "of any extremist group" from the FBI and the Secret Service.

"I believe the questions of the FBI and the Secret Service are a different matter," Kennedy said in a booklet on extremism published by the American Jewish Committee. "These agencies have special responsibilities in the field of national security and . . . it does not seem to me to be wise to allow members of an extremist group to serve on them."

(In Washington, an FBI spokesman commented: "The Senator had no basis for mentioning the FBI. There are no FBI agents who belong to the John Birch Society.")

Kennedy said he believed in extreme caution in denying any individual a job because he belongs to a particular organization. However, he said, the John Birch Society is clearly identified with some positions "which would make it very unlikely that any individual policeman who agreed with them would be able to enforce the law fairly and equally for all citizens."

"Therefore, I would not absolutely bar members of the Birch Society from serving on a police force; but I would see that a special effort was made to see that the personal views of each applicant are such that he will be able to enforce laws fairly."

SUBJECT: SENATOR ROBERT F. KENNEDY
STATEMENT REGARDING MEMBERSHIP OF FBI AGENTS IN EXTREMIST GROUPS

A United Press International news item on 12-1-66 reported that Senator Robert F. Kennedy had stated on December 1st that he is opposed to FBI or Secret Service Agents joining organizations such as the John Birch Society because of their "special responsibilities in the field of national security." The story stated that Kennedy, in discussing "extremism in America" in a booklet published by the American Jewish Committee, stated he did not "think it wise to allow members of any extremist group to serve in any security forces."

The Director stated in this regard, "If any inquiry, indicate the Senator has no basis for mentioning FBI as no FBI Agents belong to Birch Society. H." "Also write American Jewish Committee and tell them they might have checked with FBI first as no Agents belong to John Birch Society. H."

It is to be noted inquiries from United Press International and Associated Press were received by your (Mr. Wick's) office on the afternoon of 12-1-66 concerning this matter. Both were advised in accordance with the Director's instructions.

The booklet mentioned in this news report is entitled, "Extremism in America Today," and it was issued by the American Jewish Committee, 165 East 56th Street, New York City. The New York Office has obtained a copy of this booklet and it is attached.

The booklet contains interviews of Senator Clifford P. Case (R.-N.J.); Senator Kennedy; and Morris B. Abram, an attorney who is President of the American Jewish Committee. The booklet is based in part on a 5-15-66 television interview of these three men.

which was conducted on the program "Opinion in the Capital," a production of station WTTG, Washington, D. C. Additional written questions were submitted to the three participants at a later date and these questions were answered independently by them. The reference by Mr. Kennedy to the FBI was made in reply to the following question on page 22 of the booklet.

"Question: It has been suggested that there has been considerable penetration of police agencies by the John Birch Society and other right-wing extremist organizations. Would you permit a member of an extremist group to serve on the police force? How about the FBI or the Secret Service?"

"Senator Kennedy: I think we should be extremely cautious about automatically denying any individual a job merely because he belongs to a particular organization. However, the John Birch Society has been clearly identified with some positions which would make it very unlikely that any individual policeman who agreed with them would be able to enforce the law fairly and equally for all citizens. Therefore, I would not absolutely bar members of the Birch Society from serving on a police force; but I would see that a special effort was made to see that the personal views of each applicant are such that he will be able to enforce the laws fairly. I believe the questions of the FBI and Secret Service are a different matter. These agencies have special responsibilities in the field of national security, and from my personal experience with them, it does not seem to me to be wise to allow members of any extremist group to serve on them."

OBSERVATIONS:

It is not known whether this question was submitted to Kennedy on the television program of 5-15-66 or in written form at a later date; and, therefore, it is not known who was responsible for preparing the question. In any event, the question is simply a hypothetical inquiry, contrasting the FBI as the foremost Federal investigative agency with the local police, and there is no inference of Birchite activities on the part of FBI Agents. Apparently Mr. Kennedy mentioned the FBI in his answer only because of the specific reference to it in the question.

In view of the [redacted]-content of this question, it is believed consideration should be given to not writing a letter to the American Jewish Committee concerning this matter.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the Director may wish to consider not writing the American Jewish Committee regarding this matter.

But I don't think American Jewish Committee is [illegible] Congress in [illegible] about any bogus [illegible] —Error of opinion may be tolerated when reason is left free to combat it.

THOMAS JEFFERSON
First Inaugural Address

INTRODUCTION

Freedom of the mind has been a cherished hallmark of American democracy ever since this nation began. Our traditional openness to all shades of opinion has made possible the free exchange of ideas and the injection of new and imaginative concepts that have immeasurably enriched our country's social, political and intellectual life.

Yet, throughout our history—and especially in periods of crisis—there have been Americans unwilling to trust the reasoned and informed judgment of the people, and ready to subvert, even to sacrifice, our democratic tradition to advance their own fanatical social and political dogmas. These "super-patriots" have been responsible for some shameful pages in American history—the Alien and Sedition Acts, the Know-Nothing period, the Palmer Raids and, most recently, the frightening and repressive McCarthy era.

Today, as our nation faces mounting political and social tensions at home and abroad, certain Americans are once more seeking to impose their own easy answers, and to restrict the free national debate vital to the search for rational solutions. "Under the strains and frustrations imposed by constant tensions and harassment," warned the late President Kennedy, "the discordant voices of extremism are once again heard in the land. . . . [these men] look suspiciously at their neighbors and their leaders. They call for a man on horseback because they do not trust the people."

The American Jewish Committee believes that today, as in the past, the best defense against extremism is an alert and informed citizenry determined to protect the democratic process. As a contribution to the enlightened discussion of a crucial issue, the Committee is pleased to publish this thoughtful analysis of the dangers of extremism by three outstanding Americans.

Senator Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), who has represented his state in the Congress of the United States for more than 20 years, has been a courageous defender of this nation's liberal tradition both within his own party and on the national scene.

Senator Robert F. Kennedy (D., N.Y.), who gave distinguished leadership to the legal battle for civil rights as Attorney General of the United States from 1961 to 1964, has consistently upheld the right of Americans to free expression of opinion on all controversial issues.

Morris B. Abram, noted lawyer, U.S. Representative to the United Nations Commission on Human Rights and president of the American Jewish Committee, is an eloquent spokesman for the rights of man in this country and throughout the world.

This pamphlet is based in part on a television interview, "Opinion in the Capital," originating in the WTTG studios of the Metromedia Television Network on Sunday, May 15, 1966. The program, moderated by Herb Brubaker, helped mark the Sixtieth Anniversary Meeting of the American Jewish Committee in Washington. Additional questions, submitted in writing at a later date and answered independently by the three participants, are included in the present text.

QUESTION Gentlemen, does extremism continue to be a threat in the United States despite efforts to combat it?

SENATOR CASE Of course it does. It will always be a threat. I think it's a threat we are going to continue to meet, that we can never let up on.

MR. ABRAM I think it's more of a concern at present than it is a real danger. But I think it could become more of a threat than it is.

SENATOR KENNEDY As long as we have difficult and complex problems, and as long as there are groups within the United States who feel that there are easy answers—that everything has to be seen in black and white, and that we can deal with these matters rapidly, without a great deal of thought and a great deal of time—we are going to have some extremism. As long as these same groups feel that they cannot have confidence in the judgment of democracy or in the American people, we are going to have extremism.

QUESTION What is the difference between a right-wing extremist and a genuine conservative? Between a left-wing extremist and a genuine liberal?

MR. ABRAM A genuine conservative accepts the need for gradual social change, but he is concerned with preserving that which is wholesome and worthy of retention in our society. A right-wing extremist looks at everything in the past through rose-colored glasses, and views all social change as automatically evil.

The true liberal would accelerate the process of social change and is less sentimental than the conservative about the past, but both the true liberal and the true conservative have faith in the American people and hold sacred the democratic process.

The extremists, left and right, would take the basic decisions away from the people and substitute their own judgments of right and wrong. And—most important of all—the extremists, left and right, are convinced that the end justifies the means.

SENATOR CASE

An extremist, left or right, believes there is only one answer—his—to every problem. It is usually an answer that would require radical changes in our political system and processes which now basically aim at arriving at a consensus. So strong is the extremist's conviction that he rejects the essential and pragmatic process of accommodation and adjustment that is the hallmark of our democratic society. In some cases, he feels justified in resorting to the secret society, infiltration and the seizure of power through whatever means, legal or extralegal, that are at hand. It is the conspiratorial, secretive aspect of extremism coupled with its rigidity that presents the most serious threat.

SENATOR KENNEDY

I believe that extremists of both the right and the left share certain characteristics. They are totally intolerant of the views of others and totally unwilling to engage in discussion. They don't have to because they have a simple answer for every problem. I would say that a genuine conservative or a genuine liberal sees that there may be more than one way to resolve a particular issue. And he is willing to engage in discussion and listen to the views of others about what should be done. Then, too, there are overtones of violence to extremist movements, which I suppose is natural when one is unwilling to discuss his position. Finally, I think that the extremists of both the right and the left can be identified by their inability or unwillingness to accept our system as the basic vehicle for social change, and their consequent lack of a program that we would call constructive.

QUESTION The demonstrations that we see against Vietnam policy in the U.S. are among the most talked-about forms of extremism today. Senator Kennedy, are these demonstrations going too far?

SENATOR KENNEDY Well, I may disagree with some of the demonstrations that are taking place—in fact, I do. I think that some of the demonstrations have weakened the position of those who advocate a particular cause. But this doesn't mean they are illegal. Unless they violate local or Federal laws, I don't think that we have to take any legal action to protect ourselves. And I think the fact that so many young people and so many other citizens are taking such an active interest in this matter is healthy for the country, whether they agree or disagree with our present policy. It's healthy for the country that we discuss all these matters, so these demonstrations are not a matter of great concern to me. There are other kinds of extremism, from both the left and the right, against which such organizations as the one Morris Abram represents have to be continually vigilant.

QUESTION Mr. Abram, do you believe that any of the Vietnam demonstrations are extremist in any way?

MR. ABRAM I believe that when people carry a Viet Cong flag in a demonstration, it impairs the process of rational debate which Senator Kennedy is trying to encourage. To the extent that people are demonstrating in order to get a discussion of all the issues in the Vietnam crisis, I think this is healthy and good. But I think such overt acts as demonstrating with a Viet Cong flag and burning draft cards are to be deplored, because they clog the channels of debate rather than contribute to rational discussion. But I don't think the Vietnam type of activity represents the really dangerous extremism in the United States today.

SENATOR CASE I agree with both my colleagues. It certainly is true that when these anti-Vietnam war demonstrations are deliberately provocative there is likely to be a lessening of rational discussion, because they provoke very hot feelings on the other side—and understandably so. And this doesn't contribute to the kind of discussion that ought to be going on continuously in this country about everything that we're doing, including foreign policy, and including Vietnam.

QUESTION Mr. Abram, you say you don't believe this is where the real threat comes from. Where does it come from?

MR. ABRAM I think that today it comes more from those right-wing extremists who are apt to equate any kind of dissent with disloyalty. They don't want to solve the problems of our society – and we've got lots of them—by rational discussion, debate and majority vote. They tend to regard those who oppose them as guilty of treason.

Such an attitude, it seems to me, makes it impossible for democracy to solve its problems, which can only be done by debate, discussion, consensus, or at least a vote, and the acceptance of the will of the majority.

SENATOR KENNEDY I agree with that. This country faces very complex difficulties internally—in the field of civil rights, in the field of poverty, in our relationship with communism, whether it be the Chinese or the Soviet Union kind—and great and complex problems in dealing with the undeveloped world. Some of our citizens feel that there are easy answers to these matters: The Communists are here and they've been here for 50 years. Why don't we threaten them with the atomic bomb? Why don't we make them disappear?

Then we have Cuba, and we have Castro down there. We are a bigger, more powerful nation than Cuba.

Let's get rid of Castro. Let's get rid of the Communists in Cuba.

Why are the Communists in Berlin? Why do we have to put up with this behavior from 14 or 15 million people in North Vietnam? Why don't we just destroy them? The Negroes are causing unhappiness within our major cities. Why should they? Everything was fine five years ago. They were happy then; they were contented; and now they've been all stirred up. Why don't we go back to what it was like several decades ago?

In the same way, there are those on the extreme left —those involved, for instance, in some of our civil-rights movements—who claim that if you're a white man you're automatically evil. There have been writings by some of these groups that say the United States Government is the most evil government in the world because the answers and solutions for what they feel are the most basic problems are not forthcoming immediately. And on the other side, the extreme right also feels that we're not dealing with these matters as rapidly as we should.

These people have no confidence in the democratic will of the people, or our ability to develop answers to these problems over a period of time. They want these problems to disappear right now. They feel that they have to protect the Constitution, protect the white race, protect the womanhood of the United States and protect the country against communism. So they turn to extremism.

MR. ABRAM In a way, these people behave like immature children. As Senator Kennedy has pointed out, they see everything in black and white. Children sit in front of a television set and they know which is the cop and which is the robber. They see the cowboy against the Indian, the G-man against the bandit. And they see the whole world in the same fashion. And I think the extremist of the left or the right has essentially the same childish attitude about life.

SENATOR CASE Well, I think that's true of some. But there are some very intelligent, very mature people, probably more of them on the left than on the right—we may be wrong about this, but I think we rather have the feeling that there are more intellectuals on the left than on the right—who are really understanding people.

But there are certain intellectuals way over on the left —Communists or whatever—who want very deliberately to destroy the present society.

MR. ABRAM A person may be intellectually brilliant and emotionally still an infant.

SENATOR CASE I don't think the people on the right want to destroy the present society. They want to go back to something which, as you suggested, Bob, never existed—to a forgotten past when everything was utopian for them. This isn't quite the same as a deliberate effort to tear down.

Now I agree with both of you that right-wing extremism is a greater danger—though as you suggested earlier, not clear and present in the sense that drastic or sumptuary action may be required—and I think the reason is that it's more likely to be successful. These people are more likely to find a response among the American people to many of the things they advocate. They wrap their causes around institutions and symbols for which all of us stand—the church, home and motherhood, the flag and so on. That makes it more difficult to oppose them than it would be if they came out straight with what they had in mind.

QUESTION Senator Kennedy, you talked about some of the problems in the South. Do you see any evidence that the strength of the Ku Klux Klan is diminishing, or is it still a real threat?

SENATOR KENNEDY Well, I think that in some areas, over the period of the last few years, the Ku Klux Klan has gained in strength. Here again, the Klan offers easy answers to those who don't like the fact that the Negro in the South is beginning to come forward and express himself. The Negroes are beginning to vote. They might vote in some people who haven't commonly been accepted, or whose philosophy hasn't been commonly accepted. Join the Ku Klux Klan, the racists say, and you can end that. That's part of extremism on the right. And on the left we have some extremism which disrupts racial relations just as the Ku Klux Klan does.

QUESTION Are you saying then, that possibly this new voting rights act might cause a resurgence in the strength of the Klan?

SENATOR KENNEDY Yes, I think so. And I think that we are also seeing a resurgence of extremism in the Northern communities. When we start to move in these areas, it makes some people uncomfortable, because things are not the same as they have always been. The American Jewish Committee has been active in this field, Morris; you talk about it.

MR. ABRAM Well, I was a Southerner, living in Atlanta, when the Supreme Court said that Negroes could vote in the Democratic white primaries. I remember that I felt certain—naively I now know—that with one-third of the population able to vote, racist campaigns would no longer be possible in the South. How wrong I was! The immediate, short-range result of Negro suffrage in the South was that the whites began to register and vote as a bloc and, for a few years, they ran practically every moderate politician out of office. But that's what happens in the short run.

In the long run I think the vote in the hands of any group acts as a shield as well as an opportunity to advance their legitimate democratic programs. So as I look at what's happened in the South, I see the possibility of a rise in Ku Klux Klan activity, as Bob points out. But Negroes constitute 25 to 33⅓ per cent of the population in the South. I think that the fact that they have the right to vote and are exercising that right will have a very fine effect on Southern politics. And I predict that Southern politics is going to be good, liberal and moderate politics.

SENATOR CASE I'd like to second that completely. And I'd like to express, as far as it is within my competence to do so, an admonition to the members of my party: Don't attempt to take advantage of temporary irritations on the part of those people who want to maintain white supremacy in the South with the view to gaining or maintaining a political advantage. If you do, you may succeed in electing a few officials within the next couple of years, but in the long run you will destroy the party not only in the South but nationally.

QUESTION Do you believe that the extremist attacks on the Supreme Court and on the courts in general can result in a weakening of the American judiciary?

SENATOR CASE Because members of the judiciary cannot respond, at least directly, and because most citizens are not lawyers or familiar with court opinions, it may be that extremist attacks on the Supreme Court and the judiciary have a greater chance of success than, say, an attack on the Executive Branch. But despite all the shouting to "Impeach Earl Warren," for example, I have not encountered evidence that the campaign has attracted many adherents or even much attention outside extremist circles.

MR. ABRAM I do not think the position of the courts has been seriously undermined by the extremist attacks thus far. As Senator Case indicates, the move to impeach Earl Warren—one of the most inane programs adopted by the John Birch Society and other extremist groups—is not being taken seriously outside their own circles.

In those areas of the country where extremist attacks on the courts have been most bitter—as in some of the Southern states—they have been unsuccessful either in influencing the courts or in endangering the implementation of court orders and the judicial process. But there is a good reason why extremists are making the courts a prime target.

Our judiciary is an integral part of the system of government outlined in our Constitution. Under that system each branch of government—legislative, executive and judicial—complements the other. Should that balance be destroyed, our entire fabric of government would be correspondingly weakened.

SENATOR KENNEDY

I think those who refuse to abide by the decisions of our Supreme Court and of other courts weaken not only the authority of the courts, but our entire system of government. Basically, the only way that any decision of any court becomes effective, in a meaningful and stable way, is when compliance with it takes place voluntarily. Those who have resisted the implementation of Supreme Court decisions—like those who advocated massive resistance to the Brown decision in 1954—have undoubtedly caused the Court to suffer in the eyes of the nation. On the other hand, it is important not to stifle legitimate criticism of court decisions. The proper way to deal with criticism like that which followed the reapportionment decisions and the decisions protecting the constitutional rights of persons accused of crimes is to answer it through free and open discussion and debate. It would damage our society more, in my judgment, if we undertook to deal with such criticism by stifling it.

QUESTION Senator Case, you're having trouble with extremists in your state, aren't you?

SENATOR CASE Well, in New Jersey we're investigating a group called the Rat Finks. They seem to be a bunch of silly kids who go around singing nasty songs, meeting and getting pleasure out of various adolescent actions which, I think, are quite disgusting. And some of them—just a handful I hope—were part of a young Republican organization. The state executive committee has now voted to get rid of these people. Unfortunately they have to have a two-thirds vote of the whole membership and they may or may not get it. But the State Republican Committee has given the Young Republicans until June 1st to get rid of these people—and I'm glad to say our Congressional delegation has stood unanimously behind the state committee. If this is not done, further action will be taken to eliminate them from any party connection. And I feel this is absolutely right, absolutely sound.*

QUESTION You feel then that the efforts to purge these elements from the party are going to be successful?

SENATOR CASE Oh, I think there's no question about it. No people with any self-respect or claim to represent a decent segment of American society can tolerate that sort of thing. And we surely will not tolerate it in the Republican Party in New Jersey.

*On June 17, 1966, seven Young Republican County organizations controlled by the Rat Finks were suspended by the State Young Republican Executive Committee, with a mandate to rid themselves of Rat Fink domination or face permanent expulsion.

QUESTION Does the Republican Party generally still reflect much of the influence of Senator Goldwater?

SENATOR CASE You're making quite a big jump there, if I may say so. As you know, I didn't support Senator Goldwater, for reasons which I made very clear at the time. I think he should have taken the lead in eliminating any appeal to racism in the campaign—and he did not, which I thought was quite wrong. But he himself, in my opinion, is in no sense a racist and is personally a very decent individual. So I'm sorry you made the jump so quickly. Now what was the question again?

QUESTION Is the Goldwater influence still very much present in the Republican Party?

SENATOR CASE Well, there are people who regard Barry Goldwater as a great person. In many people he appeals to a nostalgia for a time which probably never existed completely—a time when small-town people were bigger shots than they are now. And this is not altogether an unworthy thing; it's just too dreamy to be right. And the trouble is these people got hot-eyed and decided they'd have one last fling and carry us all back to the good days with the simple virtues of a small town and shady streets. You know, we were all brought up in an atmosphere pretty much like this. It was the controlling factor in America. America has gone beyond this, and it can only be a part of America today. But it's a good part and we should keep as much as we can.

Fine and wonderful people, many good conservatives, supported Goldwater. But if our party is to remain a major party, they cannot take it over and run it completely because they are not, and do not represent, the majority of the American people.

QUESTION If extremist forces find they are unable to dominate either political party, is there a danger that ultra-rightists and diehard segregationists will try to form a third political party in 1968?

SENATOR KENNEDY There is some indication that a third-party effort headed by extremist forces may occur in 1968. I think that if all of us—of all races and beliefs—act responsibly and reasonably concerning the internal problems now facing us as a nation, this extremist effort will not succeed. If we are firm against lawlessness and at the same time we remedy injustice fairly and expeditiously, then I believe that we as a people will be able to deal satisfactorily with the problems presented by an extremist political effort.

The New York Times

MR. ABRAM The more realistic and practical extremist forces will, I believe, continue their efforts to win control of the major political parties—and I do not think they will succeed. The more lunatic fringe will no doubt try to create their own local and national political machinery—indeed, there seems some evidence that such moves are already in the wind, with Governor George Wallace of Alabama and former Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson of Utah as possible favorite sons for 1968.

SENATOR CASE It might be a good thing if the extremist groups were to form a third party, if only because it would show how small a following they really have. That's why they will continue, I believe, to concentrate on trying to get into positions of power and influence within the major parties.

QUESTION Moving on to another topic, what about the American Nazi Party? Do you see any parallel between its growth here and the pre-Hitler era in Nazi Germany? Is it any real threat?

SENATOR KENNEDY I don't think it's a threat. I think they're a little like those people in the United States during that nostalgic period 30 years ago, who used to go around swallowing goldfish. I think we will always have people who are a little odd. And if you join the Nazi Party now you're very odd. I don't think it's a great threat and I don't think anybody pays very much attention to those people. They walk around with their flags and they get dressed up, and I think what they stand for is most offensive, just as I think the John Birch Society is offensive. And I think that they violate the basic tenets of American life which, as Senator Case has said, they claim they're fighting for.

Both the John Birch Society and the American Nazi Party are the antithesis, really, of everything that we stand for in this country. And in my judgment they would destroy all that if they had their way. But I don't believe the American Nazi Party is getting any great following. You always see the same five or the same six men. And so I'm not concerned with them as a great power, and I'm not concerned that they are going to receive any popular support. They're simply a bother and a nuisance and despicable.

MR. ABRAM That's right, Bob. The American Nazi Party is a tiny minority, so obviously way out that they cannot possibly be taken seriously. But when you get people who are not so far out, and who hold basically the same views, then you have trouble. And this is true, I think, of the majority of the people who join the John Birch Society.

SENATOR KENNEDY Again it goes back to looking for simple answers to very complex problems. The John Birch Society attracts a greater number of adherents because they say: "We could deal with communism if it weren't for the kind of people who are now in Washington; China went Communist not because of her internal difficulties, but because we had traitors in the American Government. President Eisenhower is a Communist. That's why we have difficulty around the world. We can deal with Southeast Asia; we can deal with all these problems. Just follow us."

That's an easy answer and something that people can identify with. You don't have to start thinking about it; you don't have to start working on it; and you don't have to try to come up with the complex solutions needed to deal with these problems.

MR. ABRAM I'd like to emphasize, in this connection, that the really important right-wing extremist groups in this country have no known connection with any kind of international Fascist or neo-Fascist movement. None whatever. They are all native grown. And I think they have a highly dangerous potential.

Those minuscule groups like the American Nazi Party or the Rat Finks are, I agree, an aberration and not the norm in any political party. But I do feel that both great political parties in this country are rather like horses, and a lot of jockeys want to ride them. Back in the thirties, the extreme left tried to ride the Democratic donkey, but the Democratic Party got rid of this excess baggage. And I think it's important for any party that is going to be a national party and a responsible party to admit this danger and repudiate it. I thoroughly agree with you, Senator Case, that Senator Goldwater is not an extremist. But I think it is terribly important for the people who follow his tradition to expose the extremists in the Republican Party and repudiate them out of hand, decidedly, definitively, and by name. Otherwise you may get some mighty bad jockeys, who can make the horse run poorly.

SENATOR CASE And of course the trouble is that politicians, generally speaking, are very timid people. They don't want to offend anybody. This is even more true at the grass-roots level than it is up at the top. But the grass-roots level is the place where many political organizations have their basic strength—in the county committees, and in the municipal elections. The officeholders on these levels don't want to offend anybody. So the extremist is not exposed and denounced and put out as unwanted, because politicians are so in the habit of not denouncing anybody.

SENATOR KENNEDY That's why I think that groups such as the American Jewish Committee play such an important role.

SENATOR CASE Among other things they force us politicians to take positions about this, and it's good.

QUESTION It has been suggested that there has been considerable penetration of police agencies by the John Birch Society and other right-wing extremist organizations. Would you permit a member of an extremist group to serve on the police force? How about the FBI or the Secret Service?

MR. ABRAM I think it is terribly important for the peaceful functioning of our democracy that our law enforcement officers—like Caesar's wife—be above suspicion. In other words, police officers not only have to do their duty efficiently, they must be able to convince the public they serve that their capacity to discharge their duties impartially is beyond question. I don't think policemen who are Birchers can ever convince the public of such impartiality—and in our sensitive cities Birchite policemen operating in Negro communities can easily help spark an explosion. I think such officers should be offered the choice of resigning from the Birch Society or from the Police Department. And, of course, I would consider the incompatibility between the two memberships even greater, if possible, for Federal law enforcement officials.

SENATOR CASE

I believe members of law enforcement agencies should not be permitted to join secret organizations with political aims or purposes. There is no way to know—or to refute—what the society teaches or may require of its members. The power of a secret society over its members is so capable of being abused that membership is incompatible with responsibility for maintenance of law and order.

SENATOR KENNEDY

I think we should be extremely cautious about automatically denying any individual a job merely because he belongs to a particular organization. However, the John Birch Society has been clearly identified with some positions which would make it very unlikely that any individual policeman who agreed with them would be able to enforce the law fairly and equally for all citizens. Therefore, I would not absolutely bar members of the Birch Society from serving on a police force; but I would see that a special effort was made to see that the personal views of each applicant are such that he will be able to enforce the laws fairly. I believe the questions of the FBI and Secret Service are a different matter. These agencies have special responsibilities in the field of national security, and from my personal experience with them, it does not seem to me to be wise to allow members of any extremist group to serve on them.

QUESTION How can we cope with extremist groups without violating constitutional rights—First Amendment rights, for example?

SENATOR KENNEDY First, in a positive way, by expressing one's point of view clearly, by speaking out so that the general public understands where we stand on these matters. And I think that private organizations and discussions such as this also perform a very valuable function.

SENATOR CASE Oh, there's no question about that.

MR. ABRAM There are seven to ten thousand right-wing television programs in this country every week. I think it's absolutely imperative that they be counterbalanced by expressions of opinion that represent the mainstream of American life. And I think television programs that air these issues serve a very useful purpose. I do not believe in restrictive legislation that would impair free speech, free press or freedom of association. I believe we should fight overt acts, but not expression of ideas.

QUESTION How can the ordinary citizen differentiate between legitimate debate of important national and international issues and extremist exploitation of these issues for their own ends?

SENATOR CASE Exposure by political leaders as well as by civic, social and other community leaders is part of the answer. But it is only part. It is also important to recognize that the extremist feeds upon concerns that are very real among people. It is not enough, for example, to insist that integration of schools is morally right. Parents not unnaturally are concerned about the quality of education. Is the integrated school a good school in an educational sense? It is up to the local leaders, political as well as civic and educational, to work together to make sure that the integrated school not only does not lower the quality of education but is up to the best that the community can offer.

Similarly, with housing and other areas. The immediate personal concerns: Will the neighborhood deteriorate? Will my child be safe on the street? These can be met only by concrete steps to see that the fears do not materialize.

In short, the best answer to extremism is the successful practice of democracy on every level of government—a continuous effort to meet needs and resolve problems in a way that takes account of all legitimate interests.

MR. ABRAM Those who engage in honest debate are willing to admit that there may be valid differences of opinion on important issues, and acknowledge that those who oppose their view are equally convinced of the truth and validity of their positions. As I indicated earlier, the extremist equates dissent with treason and the opposition with the devil himself. An honest airing of issues is always desirable; the goal of the extremist, however, is really to cut off all opinion but his own by impugning the motives, the patriotism, and the personal integrity of anyone who dares to disagree with his point of view.

SENATOR KENNEDY

Yes, as we have pointed out all along, what is important is to think about whether those who advance a particular point of view are willing to discuss the matter and listen to the arguments of others. Those who advance the simple answer to the complex problem, or are completely intolerant of any point of view other than their own, or who tend to advocate violence, or contend that their opponents are conspiring against them, are certainly not acting responsibly. I think there is an obligation on the part of all of us to stay informed and aware and to read the responsible newspapers and periodicals which discuss national and international issues, and which themselves make an effort to distinguish between extremist exploitation of issues and legitimate debate and discussion.

QUESTION What can a political leader, a political party, do to stop extremist infiltration before it starts and to deal with it after it starts?

MR. ABRAM The first step, I think, is for the party to recognize the existence of extremists within its ranks and accept the responsibility of cleaning them out, even if, as Senator Case points out, it means stepping on certain toes and making certain local leaders uncomfortable.

The only way extremists can succeed in influencing the major political parties is to infiltrate the local party machinery. This means it is up to the precinct leaders to carry the ball—to familiarize their constituency with extremist tactics and objectives, to counter extremist arguments with facts, and to see to it that the rank and file is sufficiently concerned and knowledgeable to outvote the extremists in their midst in the accepted democratic tradition.

SENATOR CASE Political leaders, and both parties generally, have an obligation to speak out. As I indicated, this is an obligation that political leaders do not rush to shoulder and of which they need to be constantly reminded by those who are aware of specific problems in their civic, social, educational or other non-political roles.

The party organizations need to be alert to attempts to "infiltrate." Too often there is a tendency for the party organization to take it easy between elections. Active participation by a broadly representative group falls off. During the lull, those who have an axe to grind are often willing to take on chores and make themselves useful in order to establish a claim of sorts for party posts such as delegate to a national convention.

SENATOR KENNEDY

The primary thing which I think can and must be done is to publicize the extremist infiltration in the party. I have confidence in the judgment of the American people to reject any such infiltration, so that the most important thing is for the matter to be brought out in the open. And then, it is also true that just as the price of liberty is eternal vigilance, so the price of maintaining the effectiveness of a political party is careful and vigilant organization to maintain control in the face of extremist infiltration.

COURTS TERMED UNFAIR TO BLACKS

Study Rules Out Genetics as Factor in Crime Rate

By DEIRDRE CARMODY

The system of criminal justice in the United States is unfair to Negroes and the result is that more blacks are arrested, jailed, convicted and given more severe penalties than whites, according to a study prepared for the American Jewish Committee.

The 118-page report was written by Dr. Maryin E. Wolfgang, director of research for the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence and chairman of the sociology department of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. Bernard Cohen, assistant professor of sociology at Queens College.

It was published by the American Jewish Committee and released last week as the start of the organization's campaign, "Shaping Safer Cities." The campaign hopes to create an alliance of national and local organizations to work to reduce crimes of violence and develop a more effective system of criminal justice.

One of the main points in the crime report, which is based on studies of crime statistics, is that there is no scientific evidence that blacks are more genetically prone to commit crimes than whites.

'Color And Crime'

"What is most regrettable is that many people—partly from exaggeration of a few facts, partly from a readiness to believe—strongly associate the two factors of color and crime," the study says. "In so doing, they not only make more difficult the plight of the Negro offender, they also begin to see color as sufficient reason for suspecting crime."

"No one really knows whether Negroes, as socially defined, commit more crimes than whites," the report continued. It notes that the category Negro in crime statistics is a vague one and often includes persons who appear black but who may be partially white. According to one study cited in the report, about 40 per cent of persons classified as Negro are either half white or more white than Negro.

The study also found that Negroes were generally treated more severely in courts than whites, particularly if the victim of the crime was white.

For instance, between 1940 and 1964 in Florida, 125 white men were convicted of raping white women and 68 black men were convicted of raping black women. In each category, approximately 4 per cent of those convicted were sentenced to death.

Convictions Recorded

However, during that same period, 84 black men were convicted of raping white women and 54 per cent of them were sentenced to death. Eight white men were convicted of raping black women and none were sentenced to death.

At a news conference at the American Jewish Committee offices at 165 East 56th Street, Dr. Wolfgang said, "The amount of fear that we find among whites of being attacked by blacks is far, far out of proportion to the amount of crime committed."

Among the report's conclusions are these:

¶Whites are much less likely than blacks to be victims of major violent crimes.

¶White women are least likely to be victims of major violent crimes, but Negro women run a risk substantially greater of being attacked than do white men.

¶In interracial crimes of assault and battery, more Negroes are victimized by whites. That is, whites attack and assault blacks more often than blacks attack and assault whites.

¶Negro women are the most likely victims in forcible rapes and assaults with intent to rape.

¶Negro men are the most likely victims in cases of robbery and major assaults with a dangerous weapon.

¶Men and women are most likely to be victimized by a member of their own race.

FREEDOM INFORMATION ACT REQUEST - [redacted]

Yellow

Enclosed herewith is a request for access to files previously determined available concerning the activities of extremist groups such as the Black Panthers, the Klu Klux Klan and others.

Pursuant to 28 CFR Section 16.5 which took effect on March 1, 1973, the head of the responsible division shall, within 10 working days, either comply with or deny a request for records unless additional time is required.

In cases where additional time is required the requester should be notified of the reasons for the time extension, which should not exceed 10 additional working days. An extension of time in excess of 10 additional working days requires the approval of the Deputy Attorney General.

If the request is denied, the requester should be informed that the denial may be appealed within 30 days to the Attorney General, and that judicial review will be thereafter available.

Copies of all acknowledgements and responses to the requester should be forwarded to the office of the Deputy Attorney General.

Mr. Lawrence Silberman
Deputy Attorney General
Department of Justice
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Silberman:

This is in further reference to a matter we discussed on the phone recently. It was your suggestion that I put my request in writing and that you would refer it to the appropriate office for implementation.

Recent newspaper accounts of the materials obtained by [redacted] under the Freedom of Information Act have been read with much interest by my associates in New York. As you may know, we have a Trends and Analysis Division which has richly earned a national reputation for the excellence of its studies of extremist groups in the United States. Because of our vigilant support of the democratic process, we feel it our duty to monitor the works and the pronouncements of extremist groups who would undermine our basic freedoms. It is in this context that we believe there may be valuable information for our further study and evaluation in the FBI files on such groups as the Black Panthers, the Ku Klux Klan and others.

This, then is our request under the Freedom of Information Act for a copy of the files which you have already determined to be appropriately available for [redacted] Please advise how we may proceed to obtain these records.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Webster:

Enclosed please find a recent American Jewish Committee statement expressing our concern over the escalating violence against women's health and abortion clinics. I thought you would find it of interest.

I am sure you would agree that this rash of arson and bombing attacks gives us all great cause for alarm. Yesterday's bombing of the three clinics in Pensacola, Florida was particularly disturbing. Does there not seem to be a conspiracy linking these nationwide events?

I understand that the investigation of these crimes is currently under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. However, in light of the increasing evidence that these attacks are all linked or at least all similarly instigated, I would hope that the FBI is now involved in the effort to apprehend the perpetrators.

I look forward to hearing from you soon as to what steps you are taking in this matter.

With best wishes for a happy New Year.

NEWS FROM THE COMMITTEE

ajc THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE Institute of Human Relations, 165 E. 56 St., New York, N.Y. 10022, (212) 751-4000

The American Jewish Committee, founded in 1906, is the pioneer human-relations agency in the United States. It protects the civil and religious rights of Jews here and abroad, and advances the cause of improved human relations for all people.

MORTON YARMON, Director of Public Relations

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18... The American Jewish Committee today urged the U.S. Government to intensify its investigation of increasing acts of violence against women's health and abortion clinics.

Stating that "there can be no question that these violent acts are not only illegal but dangerous," Susie Elson, Chairperson of AJC's National Women's Issues Committee, called on Administration officials to "step up" their investigations.

The American Jewish Committee statement follows:

"The American Jewish Committee is gravely concerned over the escalating violence against women's health and abortion clinics. In the last year alone, there have been 24 reported incidents of arson and fire bombing of such health care facilities, many of which have also reported frequent harassments of both patients and service providers.

"The American Jewish Committee strongly condemns these actions. There can be no question that these violent acts are not only illegal but dangerous.

"We call upon Administration officials to step up their investigations of these acts, and to bring the prepetrators to justice."

The American Jewish Committee is this country's pioneer human relations organization. Founded in 1906, it combats bigotry, protects the civil and religious rights of people here and abroad, and advances the cause of improved human relations for all people everywhere.

Dear [redacted]

I have received your December 26th communication setting forth your concern and that of your Committee members over the attacks against abortion clinics and family planning centers. I want to assure you that I share your concern and find these acts deplorable.

As you know, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) has been vigorously investigating these incidents for the better part of two years and is doing a credible job. It has devoted considerable resources to the investigation, bringing about the solution of a substantial number of the incidents. They consider it to be one of their highest priorities, and the FBI has been working very closely with them by sharing information and making available other investigative resources as needed.

Should information be developed that any organized groups are involved in these bombings, we will take any additional action as may be appropriate consistent with the ongoing investigation by ATF. The arrangement whereby ATF has primary enforcement responsibility for explosions using incendiary devices has been in place between the Department of Justice and the Department of the Treasury for over ten years and it has been effective in maintaining an orderly Federal approach to dealing with these problems.

Dear Mr. Webster:

On Wednesday, October 1, a delegation of Baltimore Chapter leaders will be visiting Washington to meet with representatives of government and some organizations to discuss concerns and current matters of interest to the American Jewish Committee.

We would like to visit the FBI at about 2:30 p.m., after a Capitol Hill luncheon. We are interested in hearing from a speaker who can address the threats of terrorism on domestic and foreign soil, with a particular emphasis on the Middle East.

I look forward to hearing from you. Thank you for your cooperation.

Warm regards.

Dear [redacted]

Judge Webster has received your July 25th letter and he wanted me to tell you how much he appreciates your interest and that of your organization's other delegates in visiting the FBI while you are in Washington.

I am pleased to inform you that a tour of our building has been arranged for you at 2:20 p.m., on Wednesday, October 1, 1986, which will be followed by a discussion on terrorism by a representative of our Criminal Investigative Division. Upon your arrival at the J. Edgar Hoover F.B.I. Building, you should report to the Special Tour Entrance which is located on E Street between Ninth and Tenth Streets, Northwest.

Dear Bill:

Here I go again, asking a favor of you!

I am active, as you know, in [redacted]

The Committee is going to have its National Executive Council meeting in Seattle, Washington from October 30 through November 1, 1986. Would it be possible for you to address the opening plenary session on Friday morning, October 31, 1986, on the subject of "Violence-prone Extremism?"

The American Jewish Committee is probably the most prestigious of the national Jewish communal organizations, and I feel that the topic is one that falls well within the area of your expertise, and that you would feel very comfortable with the people there. With you as a main speaker, I would even make every effort to attend (the last National Executive Council meeting I attended was in 1983).

I know how tight your schedule is, but if you could fit this in, it would be great! Please let me hear from you.

Dear Chief Webster:

The National Executive Council of the American Jewish Committee will be meeting in Seattle from October 30 through November 1, 1986. A major plenary session on Friday morning, October 31, will focus on extremism and anti-Semitism in the United States, and I write to extend a cordial invitation for you to address our leadership on this subject.

The American Jewish Committee, as you may know, is the oldest human relations organization in this country. From its inception in 1906, it has been in the forefront of efforts to ensure the health of our democratic society and the dignity of all groups within it, as well as a leader in the field of international human rights.

We have previously shared with you our awareness of the Bureau's exemplary work in monitoring violence-prone extremist groups and in apprehending individuals who have translated their ideology of hatred into violent crimes. Seattle would be an especially appropriate site for a presentation, since the Northwest has been a primary target area for such groups as the Aryan Nations, the Order and the Posse Comitatus.

Several hundred members of our national governing body (including several from St. Louis) will participate in our meeting, where they will formulate AJC policy and determine Agency priorities for the coming years. The Seattle events will also be the culmination of our 80th Anniversary Celebrations.

10 SEP 18 1986

We would be deeply honored by your acceptance of this invitation and would appreciate a response at your earliest convenience.

With kindest regards.

Sincerely yours,

Theodore Ellenoff

Morton Yarmon
Director of Public Relations

The AJC protects Jewish interests the world over; combats bigotry and promotes human rights for all; defends pluralism, enhances the creative vitality of the Jewish people, and contributes to the formulation of American public policy from a combined Jewish and American perspective. Founded in 1906, it is the pioneer human-relations agency in the U.S.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 ... The following statement was issued today by Theodore Ellenoff, President of the American Jewish Committee, on the racial harassment of FBI Agent Donald Rochon:

"The recent account of the brutal and continuous racial harassment (including death threats) inflicted on a black FBI agent, Donald Rochon, by other FBI agents, apparently with impunity, is so appalling as to be almost beyond belief in this day and age. Yet it actually happened. It has been authenticated both by the Justice Department and the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission. Until now, the investigation has not been vigorously pursued.

"The American Jewish Committee is gratified that FBI director William S. Sessions has declared that this matter will now receive priority attention and that racism of any type will not be tolerated in the FBI. Mr. Sessions stated that the matter will be fully investigated, that those agents found to have been involved will be disciplined, and that any who may have participated in criminal behavior will be prosecuted. The American Jewish Committee applauds Mr. Sessions for his forceful response and looks forward to a prompt resolution of what appears to be a most despicable case of racial bigotry."

The American Jewish Committee is this country's pioneer human relations organization. Founded in 1906, it combats bigotry, protects the civil and religious rights of Jews here and abroad, and advances the cause of improved human relations for all people everywhere.

Dear Mr. Rabinove:

I appreciate your sending me a copy of the statement by Theodore Ellenoff, President of your organization, concerning allegations of racial discrimination against the FBI by Special Agent [redacted]

I am extremely troubled by the allegations of racial discrimination by [redacted] His complaints are extremely serious and, as Mr. Ellenoff noted, I have instructed that this matter receive the highest priority and attention to resolve properly the issues raised. Because of pending civil litigation and an ongoing FBI civil rights investigation, it would be inappropriate for me to comment any further on these allegations. You have my assurance that upon completion of the investigation and a comprehensive review of the factual findings, I will take whatever action is necessary and appropriate. I appreciate the Committee's concern over these allegations and its recognition that this matter is being properly addressed.

You and Mr. Ellenoff might be interested to know that the FBI has made great strides in the recruitment and advancement of minorities during the past decade. For example, over 400 black Special Agents are now on board with the FBI, and many of them are in our management program. Thirty-one percent of all new Agents hired by the FBI during the past 12 years were either minorities or females. I hope to improve on this already excellent record.

You may be assured that I share the Committee's views on racial discrimination and will do my best to ensure that the FBI remains free of discrimination.

Mr. Louis Freeh
Director, FBI
10th & Pennsylvania Ave. NW
Washington, D.C. 20535

Dear Mr. Freeh:

On Monday evening, November 15, 1993, the American Jewish Committee will honor Theodore Pincus, chairman of The Financial Relations Board, with its prestigious Civic Achievement Award.

We hope that you will honor us by being our keynote speaker. It would be the perfect tribute to Mr. Pincus and the AJC if you could be with us on the night of the 15th.

Your personal and professional goals as well as your dedication to pluralism and equality of opportunities for all of our citizens are representative of the principles of the American Jewish Committee.

Ted Pincus, who is chairman of both the nation's largest investor relations consultancy and one of the largest independent public relations firms, is a most deserving recipient of AJC's coveted award. Ted served as Communications Advisor to the Clinton Campaign and is active in many civic and philanthropic organizations.

The event will take place at the Hotel Inter-Continental and will begin with cocktails at 5:30 followed by dinner at 6:30.

I look forward to your favorable reply.

Dear Ms. Merker:

Thank you for inviting me to be the keynote speaker at the Civic Achievement Award Dinner of the American Jewish Committee in Chicago, Illinois, on November 15, 1993. Due to my hectic schedule I will not be able to attend the dinner. I am honored that you thought of me, however, and I wish you the best of success with your dinner.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Rabbi Kravitz:

It was a pleasure to meet with you during my visit to Phoenix yesterday. I was pleased to learn that you attended the first Phoenix Division FBI Citizens Academy in 1993. You can be proud of the many efforts you have undertaken to help your community. By law enforcement agencies and citizens working together we will continue to make this Nation a much safer environment.

INTRODUCTION

In all the lands between the Atlantic and the Ural Mountains, there are fewer than four million Jews. Over half live in the Soviet Union. Before World War II, Jews in the same countries numbered nearly 10 million.

Today, 20 years after Hitler converted prejudice into mass murder, it seems almost incredible that anti-Semitic activity should persist—here or anywhere in the world. Yet, throughout Western Europe, Nazi-minded organizations are again openly promoting hatred of Jews and transmitting their warped ideologies to members of a new generation. Though these groups are small and for the most part politically powerless, they may have a potential which we dare not disregard.

Equally disturbing are recent developments in Latin America, where over 600,000 Jews have their homes. In some of the South American countries, rocked by grave economic problems and seething with political discontent, small but virulent anti-Semitic organizations are conducting Nazi-style terrorist operations.

Although these scattered movements lack central planning and direction, they have established a degree of informal international cooperation, particularly for propaganda purposes. Their publications promote one another and carry advertisements for counterparts all over the world. Subscribers to one such journal quickly find themselves on the mailing lists of half a dozen others in as many countries. Occasionally, campaigns are visibly coordinated; thus pamphlets in defense of Eichmann, similar enough to suggest a common source, appeared simultaneously in Italy, Switzerland and Great Britain.

Neo-Nazi and neo-Fascist groups have sought to take advantage of unsettled political conditions and to infiltrate organizations of disaffected citizens. In France, for example, they injected anti-Semitic ideology into Pierre Poujade's anti-democratic movement. Later, anti-Semites gained a foothold in the Secret Army Organization, the terrorist group established to prevent Algerian independence.

In sum, the neo-Nazis have managed to keep anti-Semitic ideas alive in many parts of the free world, hoping that some political or economic cataclysm may provide them with new opportunities. Where prosperity reigns, as in Western Europe, no such opportunities are within sight, and the anti-Semites' following seems actually to be declining. But where conditions are unsettled, as in Latin America, Nazi-like movements and ideas may exert a dangerous appeal.

Meanwhile, in the Soviet Union, anti-Semitic measures are officially sanctioned. Soviet spokesmen keep reiterating that their country's Constitution guarantees religious freedom and explicitly forbids "any restriction of the rights of citizens on account of their race or nationality" as well as "any advocacy of racial or national hatred and contempt." Yet the Government abridges the religious and cultural rights of Jews, restrains Jewish community life ever more tightly (even prohibiting the baking of matzah for Passover), publicizes the Jewish backgrounds of persons on trial for economic crimes, and singles out Jews for capital punishment in such cases. Allowed neither to assimilate nor to live Jewish lives nor to emigrate, the Jews of the Soviet Union today are trapped in a desperate predicament.

The present survey deals with organized anti-Semitism. It is concerned with overt activity — not with underlying psychological or sociological factors. Some opinion-poll figures are cited merely as background information.

The material presented here was gathered and analyzed by the American Jewish Committee's offices and representatives in New York, Paris, Frankfurt, Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro.

WESTERN EUROPE

GREAT BRITAIN

Until the summer of 1962, when disorders were provoked in London's Trafalgar Square by anti-Semitic harangues, Fascist groups in Great Britain had attracted no significant attention, despite their efforts during the previous decade. According to the Board of Deputies of British Jews, 24 Fascist meetings took place in Trafalgar Square from 1959 through 1961, but were virtually ignored by the public.

On July 1, 1962, Colin Jordan's National Socialist Party staged a meeting under the slogan, "Free Britain from Jewish Control." It was the first such gathering to receive advance publicity in the national press. Jordan and John Tyndall, his national secretary, called for the expulsion of Negroes and, in effect, the murder of Jews. An angry demonstration broke up the meeting. The police helped Jordan and his followers flee the crowd. Similar outbreaks took place at subsequent outdoor meetings called by Sir Oswald Mosley's Union Movement and Andrew Fountaine's British National Party. Finally, the Government barred the use of Trafalgar Square for the summer.

The three organizations that agitated these disturbances, numerically small and at odds with each other, are today the main active Fascist groups in Britain. Mosley's Union Movement is by far the most important.

The Union Movement

Formed in the 1930's, the Union Movement had its heyday in 1936, when it gained substantial strength. Many splinter Fascist groups cropping up in Britain at various times have been offshoots of the Union.

Unlike similar, now defunct, organizations of the pre-war era such as the Imperial Fascist League formed in 1929 by Arnold Leese, which followed the Nazi line in its anti-Jewish themes, and the National Socialist League founded by the notorious William Joyce, who broadcast for the Germans as "Lord Haw-Haw" and was hanged as a traitor, Mosley's Union has managed to survive. But according to Alan Rogers, reporter of the London Daily Herald, who during 1962 succeeded in joining the movement for 10 weeks, its membership is only a fraction of the 40,000 claimed by Union officials.

Rogers found that immediately after the Trafalgar Square riot involving the Mosley party in July 1962, membership rose rapidly for a few weeks; however, by November, enrollments tapered off to about 40 a week. Rogers also reported that the movement's branches included about 14 in the London area, four in Manchester and several recently revived or set up in Sheffield, Middlesbrough and other northern towns. The organizing secretary, Barry Ayres, told Rogers that in towns having no branch about three-quarters of the new members left almost immediately. Apparently the tendency to quit is widespread once people grasp the nature of the movement.

Conversations with Sir Oswald's son, Max Mosley, led Rogers to believe that no one of importance was on the secret list of supporters. "But they have promised support if ever we are near power," Max Mosley said. Minimum annual expenses are estimated at about $50,000, with membership subscriptions paying about one-third. Top contributions seem to be about $600 a year; a $3,000 gift is considered exceptional. Rogers is convinced that Mosley himself makes up the annual deficit.

The Union's publication is Action, a journal appearing sometimes fortnightly, sometimes monthly, and at times disappearing for several months — depending, it may be assumed, on the movement's financial condition.

Rogers' exposé in the Daily Herald characterized the Union Movement as a myth, not a menace, and described Mosley as "a bad joke," with no future even in the event of an economic slump, and no one to replace him when he dies. The proper answer to any disturbances stirred up by the Mosleyites, Rogers suggested, was not counter-demonstrations, which would only give them free publicity, but stronger laws against inciting race hatred.

The British National Party

At the start of 1960, two Fascist groups which had appeared on the scene several years earlier formed a coalition. One was the National Labour Party, founded by John Bean after his expulsion from A. K. Chesterton's League of Empire Loyalists, an organization launched in 1954 to "preserve the British Empire against treacherous elements," especially "international finance." The other was the White Defence League, a group created by Colin Jordan in 1959. Bean's group, with Andrew Fountaine as honorary president, now joined with Jordan's to form the British National Party.

An elite unit called "Spearhead" was set up within the new party as a means of appealing to the youngest followers. Members of "Spearhead," Jordan wrote, were expected "to march on in the spirit of the Storm Trooper of the '30s." They wore special uniforms and were the party's street-fighters. But Bean and Fountaine disapproved of the total identification with nazism advocated by Jordan, and the alliance broke up in February 1962. Jordan thereupon formed his British National Socialist Party on avowed Nazi lines, while Bean and Fountaine retained control of the British National Party.

Following the split, BNP kept the party paper, Combat, replacing its Sun Wheel insignia with the Celtic Cross. BNP leaders demand steps against the "biological extermination of the white race." They assert they will not pass any anti-Semitic laws, should they come to power, but will create a climate in which Jews will not want to live. By forming a "Committee for Preservation of Free Speech," they pose as defenders of democracy in opposing legislation that would curb expression of racial and anti-Semitic hatred.

BNP's enrollment is believed to be quite small. In 1961, before Jordan's withdrawal, the party claimed 5,000 members, all "of pure Northern racial ancestry." About a fifth or tenth of that figure was probably nearer the truth. After the breakup of the coalition, BNP retained the bulk of the membership, leaving Jordan with a following whose estimated size varies from twoscore to three or four hundred.

The British National Socialist Party

Colin Jordan is considered the spiritual heir of Arnold Leese, leader of the pre-war Imperial Fascist League, whose widow gave Jordan her house in Notting Hill, plus some financial support. After his split with BNP, Jordan kept the Leese house and control of the Northern European, organ of the Northern European Ring, an international neo-Nazi group with which the BNP-Jordan coalition had been affiliated.

Unlike BNP, Jordan calls for a boycott of elections and expulsion of Jews and colored peoples from Great Britain. He defines Christianity as servility to Jews. Democracy is to be abolished. And, as noted, he believes in storm-troop action.

A raid by Scotland Yard on the organization's headquarters yielded uniforms, flags and other paraphernalia revealing the existence of the "Spearhead" group. The Government began legal proceedings on August 17, 1962, against Colin Jordan and three other members of his National Socialist Party for violation of Section 2 of the Public Order Act of 1936, which forbids members or supporters of groups to be > . . . organized and trained or organized and equipped either for the purpose of enabling them to be employed for the use or display of physical force in promoting any political object, or in such manner as to arouse reasonable apprehension that they are organized and either trained or equipped for that purpose.

On October 15, after an 11-day trial, the first of its kind under this Act, Jordan and his three supporters were found guilty and sentenced to prison terms up to nine months.

In a separate action, Jordan and Tyndall were tried for their roles in the July 1 Trafalgar Square riot. Both were found guilty, and Jordan was sentenced to two months' imprisonment for violating the Public Order Act by using insulting language likely to cause disorder. But on September 4, 1962, a court of appeals acquitted him on the ground that his speech was only "very, very near the borderline," not over it.

The police now appealed the case to the High Court, in order to determine how far officers of the law might go under the Public Order Act in dealing with insults against racial or religious groups. On March 19, 1963, Lord Parker, Lord Chief Justice, ruled against Jordan, stating that guarantees of free speech did not give anyone the right to vilify others — to "threaten, be abusive or insult them in the sense of hitting them by words." The case has been returned to the London courts for restoration of the conviction and determination of the sentence.

Jordan, a teacher at the Stoke Secondary Modern School at Coventry, had meanwhile been suspended from his position, with full pay, until December 31, when he was dismissed. Recently released from prison, he still faces charges of unprofessional conduct before a committee of the British Union of Teachers.

Legislative Curbs on Hate Groups

During the late summer of 1962, after the outdoor meetings called by the Fascists had led to counter-demonstrations and resulted in about 200 arrests, the Government justified its temporary ban on the use of Trafalgar Square on the ground that "it would not be right to allow these meetings at a time of year when there were likely to be holiday-makers and other visitors in the square."

Under present British law, action against hate groups can be taken on two grounds. The first, as Home Secretary Henry Brooke reminded the House of Commons on November 3, 1962, is sedition, for which prosecution is rare; but if the Common Law were invoked, the penalty could be imprisonment for an unlimited period or a fine in an unlimited amount, or both.

The second ground is afforded by two legislative measures — the Public Meeting Act of 1908, which imposes a penalty not exceeding £5 or imprisonment up to one month for creating disorder at public meetings; and the Public Order Act, which imposes a fine not exceeding £50 or imprisonment up to three months or both, for the use of threatening, abusive or insulting words, or behavior with intent to provoke a breach of the peace in a public place or public meeting. Home Secretary Brooke, in his statement before the House of Commons, recognized that the scale of punishments laid down in the Public Order Act was inadequate.

Lord Parker's decision in the Jordan case has become a major factor in the debate about the need for additional legal curbs. On March 24, 1963, Brooke told the Anglo-Jewish Association that the decision tended to prove the adequacy of existing laws. He also reaffirmed an earlier promise that "we shall seek to increase the penalties provided by the 1908 and 1936 laws." On the other hand, several Members of Parliament who had introduced bills against racial discrimination and incitement of race hate, as well as for strengthening the Public Order Act, announced they would continue to press for new legislation.

Neo-Fascists and Elections

On various occasions, members of the Fascist groups have tried to win seats in municipal, county and national elections. In the last general election, in 1960, Sir Oswald Mosley made an all-out campaign in the North Kensington district, confidently expecting a third of the vote but getting 8 per cent. In November 1961, at a parliamentary by-election in Moss Side, Manchester, the Union Movement's candidate, Walter Hesketh, obtained 5.2 per cent of the total vote in a very low poll, in an area where the entry of colored people had been accompanied by community tensions.

In the London County Council elections of 1961, Union Movement and British National Party candidates in six districts won 8 per cent of the total vote, on the average. Early the same year, in borough elections in a Leeds ward, the BNP polled less than 4 per cent, while Union Movement candidates in Liverpool, Manchester, Sheffield and Watford polled 4.5 per cent. At Sheffield, in June 1961, the Union Movement obtained 2 per cent, and at Birmingham, in December, even less. During the autumn, the party entered two by-elections in the Islington area of London. In one, a two-sided fight, it won 18 per cent; in the other, a five-cornered contest, just over 5 per cent.

In 1962, Mosley's followers contested 60 municipal seats in London, Edinburgh, Birmingham, Manchester, Sheffield and Middlesbrough, claiming about 5 per cent on the average.

An analysis of the results by the Board of Deputies of British Jews concludes:

> In general terms it can be stated that in spite of the fact that most of these elections have been held in areas where colored immigration has been a problem, in no way can their campaign claim to be successful.

Appraisals of Racism in Great Britain

K. L. Little, Reader in Anthropology at the University of Edinburgh, writing in Le Monde Diplomatique (January 1963), commented at length on racism in Great Britain. While many Britons consider themselves superior to other peoples of any and all races, he said, they do not turn their habitual vague xenophobia into a doctrine and have no use for racial philosophies. Therefore, Mosley's group and the British National Party do not influence the public, despite the publicity they have received, Professor Little asserted. Yet he went on to warn:

> On the other hand, the existence of a nucleus of egotistical individuals having the means to diffuse racist propaganda is a permanent source of disorder. It might constitute a real danger for the well-being and security of colored people and Jews if one day the slightly xenophobic attitude were to change and become national intolerance with regard to foreigners.

Professor H. R. Trevor-Roper of Oxford, author of The Last Days of Hitler, declared in the London Sunday Times (August 12, 1962) that any comparison with the German experience was absurd. The essentials of German nazism — long-established nationalist and racist movements, plus the effects of economic depression, plus Hitler's positive policies — were lacking in Great Britain, he argued, and therefore British Fascists need not be taken seriously. The thing to do, Professor Trevor-Roper concluded, was "not to resist them but to reduce them to their proper dimensions. And that means, emphatically, not resisting them."

Taking the contrary view, the Sunday Telegraph (August 12, 1962) asserted that the middle classes did display "the classic preconditions for mass Fascism":

> The fact of evaporated British world power has now percolated throughout the nation; equally the fact of our relative economic decline. After years of inflation the middle classes have fallen well behind the workers. . . . And throughout the nation the sense of crisis and insecurity breeds a general edginess. All that is lacking is mass unemployment — so far . . .

But, the article concluded, "the British Fascist neurosis expresses itself in ways directly opposite to prewar Fascism — in extreme individualism."

FRANCE

"Why has avowed and organized anti-Semitism never succeeded in really implanting itself [in France since 1945]?" asks Jacques Nantet, in Le Monde Diplomatique of January 1963, a special issue devoted to racism. "The various military-fascist groups that appeared in 1951, multiplied in 1954 and made themselves talked about in 1958-61 — why didn't they team up directly with that anti-Semitism for which, theoretically, they constitute such an excellent breeding ground?"

Nantet gives several answers. First, in the years immediately after World War II, with the horrors of Hitlerism exposed, anti-Semitism became virtually inadmissible. Second, the creation of Israel greatly enhanced the image of the Jew in the public mind. And third, racist tendencies of late have in part been deflected from Jews and directed against former colonial peoples. True, the Algerian war provoked some extremist attacks on Mendès-France and other Jews in public life who favored a negotiated peace with the Algerian Front of National Liberation; but the chief scapegoats in recent years have been Arabs, Algerian Moslems and, to a lesser extent, all non-whites.

While various anti-Semitic incidents have occurred during the past decade — scribblings on subway and street walls, desecrations of synagogues and cemeteries, the swastika outbreak of 1959-60 — no group has succeeded in effectively exploiting whatever latent anti-Semitism may exist in France. On two occasions, anti-Semites have managed to insinuate themselves into political movements having impetus and public appeal, but neither has prospered for long.

The first was the meteoric tax-protest movement headed by Pierre Poujade. In January 1956, Poujade gained international prominence when his movement won 53 seats and 11 per cent of the vote in the parliamentary elections. He lacked any real ideology, and anti-Semitic elements hastened to give him one. But today, having failed to deliver the economic improvement he promised, Poujade is discredited. His newspaper, Fraternité Française, does not appear to have any sizable circulation now.

The second occasion was during the Algerian conflict. In 1958, right-wing groups hailed the downfall of the Fourth Republic as proof of the weakness of democracy and the validity of their own theories. But when de Gaulle came to power, his policies disappointed right-wingers who were striving desperately to keep Algeria French. By that time there had appeared an openly anti-Semitic activist movement, Jeune Nation; its publication of the same name boasted of its anti-Semitic ideology, its members were largely responsible for anti-Semitic inscriptions and desecrations, and one of its leaders — Jean Susini — was to become one of the top leaders of the terrorist Secret Army Organization (OAS). Both the movement and the publication were suppressed by the Pflimlin government in the last few days before the Fourth Republic fell, reappeared under the name of the French Nationalist Party, and were banned again. Likewise barred, at the time, were three other political splinter groups with clear anti-Semitic tendencies. Today Susini is in exile and, except for the Poujade remnant, there are no organized political parties fomenting anti-Semitism on the French scene. What is more, every passing day reduces the likelihood of a successful OAS putsch which could throw France into the kind of anarchy that might bring anti-Semitic elements into power.

The leaders of OAS are far from unified in their attitudes toward Jews. For example, Georges Bidault and Jacques Soustelle, both now in exile, have not only avoided but denounced anti-Semitism; in fact, Soustelle was the leading sponsor of a group devoted to fighting racism and anti-Semitism. On the other hand, the extremist ex-Colonel Antoine Argoud, recently captured by the French police, was supported by Belgian and international neo-Nazi groups whose anti-Semitism is notorious.

The arrival of a large number of Jews from North Africa — about 100,000 from Algeria alone during 1961 and 1962 — does not seem to have stepped up anti-Semitism, as was feared in segments of France's Jewish community. To date, metropolitan Frenchmen have treated the Jewish newcomers like all the others. Even usually xenophobic groups have emphatically welcomed all refugees, including Jews, from Algeria.

Anti-Semitic Groups and Publications

Though there are no open political threats on the horizon today, some old-time, well-known anti-Semitic movements and publications still exist. Their influence has long permeated large segments of French society — royalist, ultra-Catholic, Fascist-intellectual and Vichyite collaborationist. The views set forth in such weeklies as Aspects de la France, Rivarol and La Nation Française, and the monthly, Défense de l'Occident, are the most typical. In addition, a new monthly, Europe Action, was launched in January 1963; it carries advertisements of all the other anti-Semitic publications.

Until recently, the anti-Semitic publicists concentrated their fire on de Gaulle and gave relatively little attention to Jews. Once or twice they tried to link Jews with de Gaulle, but the attempts carried no real conviction and were quickly dropped. But since the end of the Algerian conflict, anti-Semitic articles have appeared again; thus, Xavier Vallat, editor of Aspects de la France, who was Commissioner for Jewish Affairs in the Vichy regime, attacked "Jewish racism," and Rivarol devoted almost a page to anti-Semitic fulminations.

Rivarol, the largest of the anti-Semitic publications, prints about 50,000 copies each week — about 20 per cent more than four years ago. Aspects de la France has remained constant at about 25,000. La Nation Française, a more extreme offshoot of Aspects, has overtaken the parent publication and now turns out about 30,000 copies, as against 20,000 in 1958. No doubt there is much duplication in the circulation of these journals.

Aspects has lost its leading editor, Georges Calzant, and seems to be having financial as well as editorial difficulties. The group connected with the paper holds occasional political meetings in cafés, and sponsors a summer camp for young people; these activities are carried on under the name Mouvement Restauration. The camp, held annually in improvised locations, is devoted partly to sports, partly to ideological indoctrination; participants are believed to number 20 or less per season.

During the past few years Défense de l'Occident, whose editor, Maurice Bardèche, is a veteran anti-Semite active in various neo-Nazi internationals, has devoted a large part of each monthly issue to cultural matters and philosophical analyses of political developments from a Fascist point of view. It recently announced that with the departure of certain contributors and the addition of others, it intends to become more of a political magazine. Its circulation is much smaller than that of the other publications.

The public is perhaps more inclined to anti-Semitism than the limited circulation of these journals might indicate. Long-standing anti-Jewish attitudes undoubtedly persist — notably those perpetuated by distorted teachings about the Crucifixion. But efforts are afoot to dry up the sources of prejudice in religious teaching; and the experience of the past decade suggests that whatever hostility toward Jews may exist is not strong enough to lead to action. Overt manifestations, such as the swastika daubings of 1960, usually have met with decisive condemnation by public opinion.

BELGIUM

Bitterness about the fate of the Congo and the struggle over Katanga have provided the main focal points for increased right-wing and anti-Semitic activity in Belgium during the past few years. Belgian extremists have had close relations with the French OAS, both groups sharing a common outlook with regard to ex-colonial territories. A common frontier helps make communication easy.

In postwar Belgium, neo-Nazis and avowed Hitler supporters took refuge mainly in two organizations— the Mouvement Social Belge, presided over by a former SS member, Jean-Robert Debbaudt, and the Flemish political party, Volksunie, which polled 182,000 votes in the 1961 elections, increasing its representation from one to four seats. Volksunie's main appeal has always been its advocacy of Flemish separatism in Belgium.

Several movements of more recent vintage are associated with French anti-Semites. These include the Parti National Belge, the Union National des Independants, and — most active at the present time — the Mouvement d'Action Civique. Poujadism, too, has had its reflection in Belgium. A notary public, Sneyers d'Attenhoven, founded a Parti Independant which managed to win 38,000 votes in 1961, just failing to gain a seat. Later, the Parti Independant was absorbed by the Liberal Party.

The Mouvement Social Belge (MSB)

Debbaudt, the leader of MSB, is somewhat out of favor with his Fascist friends because he concealed a brief past as a Communist. He has always proclaimed his fidelity to Belgium's leading Nazi collaborator, Léon Degrelle, now living in Spain. The MSB is connected with the Malmö neo-Nazi international founded by Sweden's Per Engdahl; its monthly, L'Europe Réelle, has correspondents in Switzerland, Canada, Italy and Germany.

MSB advocates a corporative regime for Belgium plus a United Europe along corporative lines, and calls for a struggle against monopolies, capitalism and communism. According to competent observers, the party has practically no political influence. In 1954, the only year it entered an election, it drew less than 500 votes.

The Parti National Belge

A Brussels lawyer, Gerard Hupin, formed this party in March 1961, issuing a paper, La Nation Belge, most of whose French correspondents were contributors to the French anti-Semitic papers, Aspects de la France and La Nation Française. Today the party's most prominent member is General Emile Janssens, former commander of Belgian forces in the Congo. In the 1961 elections, the party received 4,700 votes in Brussels and 10,000 throughout the country, but failed to obtain any seats. The paper's circulation is said to be only about 400.

The Union National des Independants

Founded in 1958 by Roger Chevalier, who had briefly tried to issue a Belgian edition of the French anti-Semitic paper, Rivarol, the Union received 12,000 votes in its first year.

Mouvement d'Action Civique (MAC)

This group started in July 1960 as the Comité d'Action et de Défense des Belges d'Afrique. It then sought to rally former Congo colonials to a program stressing anti-parliamentarianism and intervention by the Belgian Army in the Congo, but met with little success. In September 1960 the organization was joined by Jean Thiriart and Paul Teichman, who gave it new vigor and its present name.

Thiriart, 40 years old, owns a chain of optical shops. He was a member of the Friends of the Great German Reich and was imprisoned for collaboration. Teichman, 34, on one occasion represented Poujade in Belgium and later was reported to be a key contact between the OAS and the MAC. Another member of the MAC directorate, Henri Moreau, was responsible for much of the anti-Semitic material in the MAC paper, Nation Belgique, now revamped under the name Jeune Europe.

The MAC adopted as its symbol the Celtic Cross of the French extremist movement, Jeune Nation. It sought the support, with some success, of members of two small extremist student groups, the Etudiants Nationaux and Les Jeunesses Nationales.

In the 1961 elections, the MAC unsuccessfully tried to organize all the right-wingers. Most important, however, it rapidly became the principal agent of the OAS in Belgium, publishing OAS communiques there. In 1962, when the Belgian police raided MAC headquarters, it was clearly established that the OAS and Moise Tshombe of Katanga had been financing the MAC, and these funds were then blocked.

Thereafter, Thiriart reorganized the MAC, which became part of the international Jeune Europe organization. His newspaper, originally called Nation Belgique, then Nation Belgique et Jeune Europe, recently renamed itself Jeune Europe. It now features articles, in a variety of languages, from Joven Portugal, Giovane Europa, Joven Europa and similar groups abroad. In an editorial in the last issue of 1962, Thiriart wrote: "In a few days MAC is going to totally disappear together with Nation Belgique. [The last few years] were a colorful and rich period USEFUL, finally, for their negative teachings." This editorial, and others, made the point that instead of remaining an emotional, ineffective organization, such as the Poujadists and Colons de Roi, Jeune Europe was going to become an assemblage "of cold-thinking monsters." Its membership requirements would be "intelligence, discrimination, physical courage and effectiveness. We shall make a science of politics, a science applied BY US."

According to Michel Géoris-Reitshof, a Belgian journalist who has published a detailed description of "The Extreme Right and Neo-Fascism in Belgium," Thiriart's newspaper had a circulation of about 7,000. About 1,000 were sold and 2,000 distributed free in Belgium. The remaining 4,000 were sent, under covering envelope, to France, where the publication was forbidden. In Géoris-Reitshof's opinion:

> Thiriart's group is at present the only serious and organized Fascist movement in Belgium. Its hold on student youth and the bourgeoisie makes it a dynamic organization. The fact that it refuses to play the parliamentary game, unlike the other small groups of the extreme right, can bring it the support of Poujadist elements, middle classes deceived by traditional politicians, and . . . others.

True, as far as Belgium's present democratic regime is concerned, the organizations described represent no threat. Thiriart's movement is probably handicapped rather than helped by its onetime OAS connections, and its size is small; the membership is believed to consist of about 150 ex-colonials and a handful of ex-parachutists, plus some 60 students at Brussels University, plus as many again at Louvain University and in a few Brussels high schools—totaling about 500 in the whole country. Still, the very existence of any tough and energetic neo-Fascist group, especially one trying to stimulate like-minded partners abroad, is necessarily a source of concern.

ITALY

There is no entrenched tradition of political or social anti-Semitism in Italy. Racial laws and policies instituted there during the war years, largely under German pressure, met with widespread ridicule and resistance. Still, Italy was the birthplace of fascism, and segments of the people remain imbued with the authoritarian concepts of the Mussolini era. Today such ideas find expression chiefly in the Italian Social Movement — the only neo-Fascist party in Western Europe with a sizable following and some influence. There is reason to believe that similar concepts also linger unexpressed in the minds of citizens not currently active in politics.

The MSI

The Italian Social Movement (MSI) represents about 5 per cent of the country's electorate. In the parliamentary elections of 1953, it received 1,600,000 votes and 38 seats in the Senate and Chamber of Deputies combined. In 1958, its vote dropped to 1,400,000 and its representation to 32 seats. But in the municipal elections of 1962, the MSI regained ground. In the city council of its stronghold, Rome, it added one seat to its previous 12; in the Naples city council it increased its seats from three to four. And in the 1963 parliamentary elections, the party almost duplicated its 1953 showing, with close to 1,600,000 votes. It now has the largest number of parliamentary seats in its history: 15 in the Senate and 27 in the Chamber of Deputies. However, its proportionate parliamentary strength is about the same as before, since the Chamber has been enlarged.

The first MSI group was organized at the end of 1946, largely by diehard Fascists of the "Salò Republic" formed by Mussolini under German protection toward the end of the war. They advocated drastic social changes which, they claimed, fascism had originally planned to introduce. These "social revolutionaries" were joined by more conservative old-time leaders of the Fascist hierarchy released from prison. The latter argued that the revolutionary philosophy would alienate the bourgeoisie, and that therefore the party line should concentrate on super-patriotism and anti-communism. By 1950 these "pragmatists" were in the majority; since 1952 they have been in undisputed control. A third, smaller wing, which has almost disappeared from the MSI proper, advocated racist theories like those of Julius Evola, who helped write Mussolini's racial laws.

Control by the conservative wing has led the more fanatic elements to break away — providing a convenient alibi for the MSI, which seeks to portray itself as a respectable party dissociated from the anti-Semitic, anti-democratic agitation of its affiliates and other splinter groups.

The MSI got its postwar start in the depressed parts of Italy, the central and southern regions where its primary strongholds are still — but by no means exclusively — to be found. It absorbed much of the old Qualunquist (Everyman) movement, and attracted onetime minor Fascist functionaries, some returned prisoners of war, minor white-collar workers, hard-pressed small landowners, and a number of high-school and university students to whom Italian democracy seemed weak and negative.

Students form the bulk of an affiliated organization, Giovane Italia, whose estimated strength is presently between 5,000 and 10,000. Its members have been involved in anti-Semitic incidents in the Jewish quarter of Rome, and in scrawling swastikas and other anti-Semitic symbols in Milan, Genoa, Florence and Naples. They do much of the street fighting and dirty work, trying to break up meetings of opposing parties and student groups, while their party elders profess ignorance of such acts. They have been most active before elections; thus, in May 1962, a month before the municipal elections, there were 40 such incidents. On February 19 and 20, 1963, a congress of neo-Fascist youth groups, held at Bari, was marked by clashes with the police.

Since 1952, when Arturo Michelini became Secretary-General, "respectability" has been one of the MSI's aims. Under his regime, the party abandoned its plan to make itself the core of a wider right-wing bloc which would absorb the Monarchist Party, then become the right-wing party in Parliament, and eventually take over the government. Instead, its main objective has been to join the government coalitions formed around the Christian Democrats.

The Christian Democratic Party is itself a conglomeration of disparate elements, some more willing than others to do business with Fascists. For years the party, even when hard pressed for votes, flatly rejected MSI's overtures. Finally, in July 1960, Premier Fernando Tambroni, representing the Christian Democrats' right wing, appeared ready to come to terms with MSI. Flushed with anticipated success, the MSI decided to hold its annual congress that year in Genoa, former stronghold of the Italian Resistance. But public reaction was so violent that the congress was never held, and Tambroni's downfall as Premier followed.

Both the aspirations of the MSI and the "direct-action" approach of its affiliates, which have operated for years with impunity in the knowledge that no serious governmental measures would be taken against them, have lately been frustrated by the "opening to the Left" — the coalition of the Christian Democrats and Nenni Socialists — which is currently the main feature of Italian political life. The outcome of the 1963 parliamentary election showed some slight opposition to the alliance on both the Right and the Left, and the MSI managed to capture part of the right-wing opposition vote — presumably at the expense of the Monarchist Party, whose share of the total vote dropped from 4.8 to 1.7 per cent. But meanwhile, the continued existence of the "opening to the Left" appears assured.

Why MSI Survives

Fear of communism is probably the underlying reason why a neo-Fascist party has been able to become a political force. Italy today is the only Western European country where the Communists have enough political leverage to overthrow the government, provided they can find Socialist allies. In the 1963 election, the Communist Party polled 25.5 per cent of the total vote. Thus, the ruling political forces have been reluctant to oppose the anti-Communist MSI with real vigor. Christian Democratic governments, while refusing to let the MSI join a coalition, have not outlawed it.

The party could be banned under Article XIII of Italy's Constitution, which forbids "reorganization of the former Fascist party in any form whatsoever." Furthermore, according to Italian law No. 645 (June 20, 1952), the "dissolved Fascist party shall be considered as having been reconstituted if any association or movement pursues anti-democratic aims characteristic of the Fascist party, by advocating, threatening or using violence as a means of political action . . . disparaging democracy, democratic institutions and the ideals of the resistance movement, or engaging in racial propaganda."

A bill to outlaw the MSI was presented by Socialist Senator Ferruccio Parri, Italy's first postwar Premier, in December 1961. During a three-day debate, the MSI was compared with the Fascist party, and evidence that MSI members participated in anti-democratic provocation was produced. Nonetheless, members of the Liberal, Social Democrat and Christian Democratic parties joined with neo-Fascist supporters to defeat the proposal, 124 to 93. One Christian Democratic Senator declared that "the Senate, as a political body, cannot decide whether a political party is violating the Constitution. Only the Constitutional Court is competent . . ." The Minister of the Interior, Mario Scelba, termed the Parri bill "juridically illegitimate" for the same reason.

The Courts

In the postwar era, the courts, as well as the Government, have maintained an attitude toward the Fascists of "no recrimination for the past" — in part, no doubt, because many high-ranking judges were holdovers from the Mussolini regime. The courts have interpreted Article XIII very narrowly. Over a decade ago, they ruled that the MSI was entitled to exist, referring to a law of December 3, 1947, which declared that a reorganized Fascist group was not subject to dissolution unless it had been "reconstituted for the purpose of launching a military organization and exalting the use of violence."

A new court action against the MSI, brought by a small group in Cuneo, is now pending. But whether there is a judge in Italy today who is ready to outlaw the MSI remains to be seen. Similarly, despite a law forbidding calumny against any religion, passed in February 1948, the courts have been far from vigorous in protecting Jews against insult. Perhaps the most serious case was a suit brought against Giovanni Durando, a Turin magistrate and editor of a journal, La Voce della Giustizia, which published an unsigned article on May 6, 1961, attacking the Eichmann trial. The anonymous author wrote:

> The Jews, by not recognizing the divine innocence of Christ, must be considered deicides even today. . . . The unconscious and permanent authors of the crucifixion of Christ must be deprived of the possibility to judge those not belonging to their progeny . . . Jews are totally lacking in morality.

The president of the Turin Jewish community, Ugo Levi, and more than 50 other individuals sued Durando for calumnies against Judaism and defamation of Jews as a group, asking damages of 500,000 lire to be paid to the Association of Deportees to Nazi Concentration Camps. The public prosecutor demanded an 11-month jail sentence and a fine of 50,000 lire. Durando denied having written the article, but refused to divulge the author's name and assumed full responsibility for the contents, which he termed a statement of religious principles. After two hours of deliberation, the court acquitted Durando of both charges, declaring that "the fact in question [disparaging the Jewish religion] does not constitute an offense," and that defamation of Jews as a group was not established "because of lack of evidence." The public prosecutor took the case to the Genoa Court of Appeals, which upheld the acquittal. A final appeal to the highest court, the Corte di Cassazione, is pending. Meanwhile, Durando has been suspended from his judgeship, and La Voce della Giustizia has ceased publication.

Italy's Jews have been gravely disturbed by the verdict and the attitude of the courts in the Durando case. For years, the Union of Italian Jewish Communities has been trying to obtain legislation which would outlaw anti-Semitism; but these efforts have invariably elicited the response that existing laws are adequate.

The importance of Durando's article and his trial probably lies not so much in the Fascist themes as in the charges of deicide against Jews. Catholicism is all-pervasive in Italian life; Catholic teachings that Jews are "guilty" of Jesus' death, and therefore doomed to suffer eternally, have undoubtedly encouraged anti-Jewish sentiments, latent or otherwise. Fortunately, the Church's teachings are undergoing reexamination, to a greater or less degree, in many European countries and, with the added impetus provided by the recent deliberations of the Ecumenical Council, the outlook for eliminating prejudice-producing ideas from religious education is encouraging.

Neo-Nazi Groups and Activities

The most openly anti-Semitic group in Italy at the present time is Ordine Nuovo, an offshoot of the MSI. The leaders, Pino Rauti and Paolo Andriani, take their "spiritual leadership" from Julius Evola; their slogan is "neither war nor peace, but revolution," and they consider themselves the commando force of that revolution. Membership of Ordine Nuovo, which publishes a paper of that same name, is about 1,000.

At the time of the Eichmann trial, Ordine Nuovo units issued pamphlets hailing Eichmann as a hero, a victim of "international Judaism . . . Western democracy . . . and Marxist barbarism." The organization also is believed to be behind a rehash of the infamous forgery, the Protocols of the Elders of Zion, entitled Complotto contro la Chiesa, which was distributed exclusively to the 2,800 delegates to the Ecumenical Council at an estimated printing cost of $8,000. The author, Maurice Pinay, is believed to be one of the Ordine Nuovo leaders. There are reliable reports that the Nasser government financed this scurrilous publication. It may be said to have boomeranged because it inspired pro-Jewish articles by the Church.

The total membership of all anti-Semitic splinter groups, including Ordine Nuovo, is estimated at about 2,500. Among them are the Mussolini Legion, led by Mussolini's nephew, Count Theodorani, and the National-Social Study Center founded by Ernesto Massi, who broke away from the MSI because he thought it too conservative. Neo-Fascist sheets include Prima Fiamma, Giovane Nazione, Minoranza, and others, all with insignificant circulation. However, some influential journals, such as the weekly Borghese, also display bigoted and anti-democratic trends.

On November 3, 1961, a Florence court acquitted a defendant charged with painting swastikas on houses, on the ground that "the fact in question does not constitute an offense." A disturbing incident of another kind occurred in Rome on February 22, 1962, when a clearly racist and anti-Semitic text was assigned for translation in the state qualifying examination for teachers of Spanish. Following a protest by the Union of Italian Jewish Communities, the Minister of Public Education apologized and the examining commission resigned.

How do Italians evaluate the prospects of fascism in their country? Three statements, all printed recently in the Gazetta del Popolo of Turin, indicate that opinion is far from unified. Giorgio La Pira, mayor of Florence, says the Fascists "belong to a period that is finished . . . They are old, they are silly . . . they are dead people." And Vittorio Foà, secretary of the General Confederation of Italian Workers, believes that "fascism today does not represent a grave danger because it no longer constitutes an alternative. Today, the right seeks other solutions." But Senator Emilio Lussu of the Socialist Party warns: "Let's have no illusions. Fascism still is lively enough as an extreme tendency among the bourgeoisie. The last proof of this was furnished by the OAS . . ."

WEST GERMANY

A belief widely held in West Germany today is that the neo-Nazi and right-radical groups are not a significant force, having no real influence or following among the German people. Barring a reversal of present political, economic and social trends, these groups are not considered a threat.

This view is shared not only by those who might be expected to discount ultra-nationalist manifestations in Germany, but also by citizens who are vigorously fighting neo-nazism, dealing frankly with the Nazi past, and seeking to build up democratic institutions.

Shadows of the Past

To be sure, several disturbing features are evident in German life. First, authoritarianism persists in many quarters, particularly in the ministries and the government bureaucracy, where large numbers of former Nazi civil servants hold posts. Only now, 18 years after the war's end, are real efforts being made to remove judges and prosecutors with an unacceptable Nazi past. Some have been allowed to decide when to retire, but not all of them have taken this opportunity. No doubt the presence of these men on some tribunals has influenced public attitudes toward the trials of war criminals.

Second, despite the country's democratic constitution, there still is a tendency to treat opposition and criticism of the government as if it were treason. How such attitudes contaminate the political atmosphere is strikingly illustrated by the recent case of the magazine Der Spiegel, involving the arrest of the publisher and editors who had sharply criticized West Germany's defense program.

Third, the major political parties have tended to make concessions to rightist elements. In the opinion of qualified observers, this policy has served to undercut ultra-nationalist groups, such as the party organized by refugees from the East, but it has also weakened the major parties' commitment to democratic ideals.

Finally, Germany still retains a deep psychological reluctance to come to grips with the Hitler past, unless forced to do so by some jolt such as the swastika epidemic of 1959-60. To name one illustration of this reluctance: early in 1963, the Christian Social Union in Bavaria selected a former Himmler aide, Max Fraundorfer, as a candidate for the Federal Parliament. That a high-ranking ex-Nazi should have been automatically disqualified did not seem to occur to the party chiefs; not until loud public protests were heard did they drop the man of their choice.

Signs of Progress

But there also are positive factors. A new generation has grown up since the war and is now entering careers in education, administration and the legal profession, including the judiciary. Though these younger people perhaps are not firm democrats, they certainly are not Nazis and have nothing to hide or apologize for in their past. Meanwhile, efforts are being made to improve education about the Nazi period, and to provide for adequate civics and social-science courses in the school curriculum.

In the field of public affairs, the challenge of ultra-rightist groups as a political entity has waned. War criminals and Nazi murderers are at last being flushed out of their hiding places and prosecuted, regardless of the effect on the image of the new Germany.

Perhaps the most important change is that during the last year or two public opinion has been growing into a force to be reckoned with. In a year-end survey of 1962, the liberal Frankfurter Rundschau said the Spiegel affair had revealed "unsuspected democratic forces bestirring themselves when the rule of law appeared to be in jeopardy." It was too early, the paper said, to speak of a democratic awareness among the masses, but dedicated minorities were making a greater impact than formerly. According to the Rundschau, public opinion, aroused by the high-handed methods used against Der Spiegel, brought down a Defense Minister said to have "an ambivalent attitude toward the law . . . and unbridled ambition"; moreover, it challenged the State Secretaries, "an entrenched clique of powerful bureaucrats . . . most of whom had served the Nazis."

Neo-Nazi and Ultra-Nationalist Organizations

Openly neo-Nazi groups and parties declined in voting strength during the 1960's. In the Federal elections of September 1961 the most successful of these organizations, the Deutsche Reichspartei (DRP), received 263,000 votes — less than 1 per cent of the total vote and 40,000 less than in 1957. The party's organ, Der Reichsruf, conceded that the Reichspartei "had failed to capture the national opposition vote."

In December 1961, dissension between the party chief, Heinrich Kunstmann, and the Lower Saxony state chairman, Adolf von Thadden, led to a split: Thadden became head of the party, and Kunstmann left to form a new group, named the Deutsche Freiheitspartei.

In the 1962 state elections, held in Hesse during November, and in Bavaria during December, the Reichspartei ran no candidates, citing "financial reasons" and announcing that it would concentrate instead on the next year's elections in the state of Rhineland-Palatinate. It had shown strength there in the past — notably in the 1959 provincial elections, when it polled 87,000 votes, or more than 5 per cent of the total. The party's registered members in the country as a whole were then believed to number between 17,000 and 20,000; about one-fifth had previously belonged to the neo-Nazi Sozialistische Reichspartei, outlawed by the Supreme Court in 1952.

Another neo-Nazi group, the Deutsche Gemeinschaft, received 27,000 votes in 1961. Its candidate for the Federal Parliament was August Haussleiter of Munich, a veteran of Hitler's unsuccessful "Beer Hall Putsch" in 1923. The Deutsch-Soziale Union, presided over by Otto Strasser, a Nazi who broke with Hitler in 1930, could not meet the financial requirements for placing a candidate on the ballot.

The ultra-nationalist refugee party, the Gesamtdeutsche Block-Bund der Heimatvertriebenen, showed a marked decline in the 1961 Federal elections. For electoral purposes, the refugee party was aligned with the right-wing Deutsche Partei in a coalition called Gesamtdeutsche Partei. In 1957 this coalition polled 2,380,000 votes, 8.5 per cent of the total; in 1961, its vote fell to 870,000, less than 3 per cent. Former supporters of the refugee party, as well as other discontented refugees, have been absorbed by the three major parties — most by the Christian Democrats or the Free Democrats, and some by the Socialists.

Two additional neo-Nazi groups were organized in the summer of 1962. On July 29, the pre-war Deutschnationale Volkspartei was re-established in Kassel under the leadership of a farmer, Walter Schmidt, and about 1,000 persons joined. This party, which sponsored the coalition government of 1933, with Hitler as Chancellor, now calls itself "the conservative conscience of the German people" and plans to become the "true national opposition." In September, former holders of Hitler's highest war service medal (Ritterkreuzträger) met at Bad Godesberg to form a new organization, which they claimed had no political aims but was merely a mutual-welfare association.

As the various neo-Nazi and ultra-nationalist forces have lost support, they have reacted in diametrically opposite ways. Some have become more extreme; Kunstmann, for example, took his followers out of the Reichspartei on the grounds that it was too conservative and was in effect following NATO policy. But others are replacing out-and-out extremism with what looks like infiltration tactics. Thus, in the 1961 Federal election, SS veterans' groups and some ultra-right newspapers, among them the Deutsche Soldatenzeitung, supported not only neo-Nazis but all "reliable German nationalists" — even including a few candidates who favored Germany's affiliation with NATO.

Analyses of Rightist and Neo-Nazi Trends

In March 1962 and again in March 1963, the West German Government reported on extreme rightist and anti-Semitic trends in the Federal Republic. According to these reports, neo-Nazi organizations are becoming more and more fragmented, while their overall membership strength is shrinking. Statistics show a steady rise in the number of groups and a progressive decline in total enrollment:

Number and Combined Membership (in Parentheses) of Extreme Rightist and Anti-Semitic Groups

Parties	8 (17,200)	9 (12,300)	15 (11,500)
Youth groups	18 (2,300)	13 (2,100)	19 (1,000)
Others	35 (36,500)	40 (20,800)	46 (14,900)

Extremist youth organizations were reported to be far from unified in point of ideology or sociological character, and suffering from heavy membership turnover. Each of the two largest ultra-national youth groups — the Bund Vaterländischer Jugend and the Bund Heimattreuer Jugend — was said to have split, and both had virtually stopped functioning because of government restrictions.

Ultra-rightist publications, on the other hand, were found to have grown steadily; their combined circulation jumped from 129,500 in 1959 to 160,000 in 1961 and 191,700 in 1962 — about 10 per cent of it outside the country. During the same years, ultra-rightist publishing houses numbered 25, 24 and 32. While the reports do not identify publications, there is reason to believe that most of the circulation belongs to Der Reichsruf, the Reichspartei organ, and the weekly Deutsche Nationalzeitung (formerly Deutsche Soldatenzeitung), a veterans' paper now seeking a broader audience.

The neo-Nazi parties' combined income was estimated at about $55,000, most of it from dues and contributions of the faithful.

The Government reports also traced connections between German neo-Nazi organizations and their international counterparts — the Belgian Jean Thiriart's Jeune Europe, the World Union of National Socialists recently founded by Colin Jordan of Great Britain, and others. The influence of the international groups was dismissed as insignificant; the 1962 report credited them with only 350 followers in all of West Germany. (No figure was given in the later report.)

In 1962, it was suggested that neo-Nazi groups, though weak and divided, might gain ground in the event of political or economic tension. A year later, no such deterioration having occurred, the Government was able to state that the extreme right had made no significant impact at the polls in the states of Bavaria, Hesse, North Rhine-Westphalia or Schleswig-Holstein. Nevertheless, the report went on to warn that "among the population of the Federal Republic there may slumber right-radical attitudes which do not find expression in the membership figures of rightist extremist groups or in the election statistics of nationalist parties . . ."

The Government's analyses deal only with known, overt, aggressive neo-Nazi groups; they do not evaluate the Nazi potential or gauge the influence of Nazi ideas in more "respectable" organizations, such as certain veterans' societies or the associations of former Iron Curtain refugees with their millions of members. Indeed, the reports do not even state just which groups were analyzed — whether, for example, so dubious a body as the Reichspartei was included or not. However, two excellent book-length studies, by Manfred Jenke and Hans Helmuth Knütter, serve to fill this gap.[1]

Jenke lists all groups to the right of the Christian Democrats and describes the early success of neo-Nazi groups like the Sozialistische Reichspartei, as well as the self-serving dealings of many politicians with former Nazis. Knütter deals primarily with the ideologies of neo-Nazi parties. Both authors conclude that neo-nazism so far has been unsuccessful, but question whether Germany's democratic base is firm enough to withstand a more critical situation. In other writings, Jenke has expressed concern about the major parties' concessions to the ideas and demands of rightists.

Attitudes Toward Jews

There are some 35,000 Jews in West Germany today — less than one per 1,000 in the population. Most are elderly people, concentrated in West Berlin, Frankfurt and a few other cities.

[1]Manfred Jenke, Verschwörung von rechts; Hans Helmuth Knütter, Ideologien des Rechtsradikalismus in Nachkriegsdeutschland. Both were published in 1961.

Over the last decade, German public-opinion polls have continually tested attitudes toward Jews. Despite inevitable technical imperfections, which permit respondents to feign a pro-Jewish stance, these polls are of some informative value. Two questions follow, with the responses tabulated in percentages:

1. "Would you say it would be better or not for Germany to have no Jews?" (Asked by Allenbach Institute)

Year	"Better"	"Not Better"	Undecided or no answer
1952	37	19	44
1956	28	36	36
1959	22	38	40
1961	16	43	41
1962	14	49	37

2. "Do you think that Jews must consider themselves partly responsible for what happened to them under the Third Reich, or not?" (Asked by DIVO)

Year	Yes	No	No opinion or no answer
1951	21	53	26
1961	12	58	30
1962	10	61	29

As both sets of replies show, anti-Semitic sentiment has ebbed during the decade; but the large figures in the "undecided" column leave little doubt that much latent anti-Semitism still exists.

A recent survey, taken under UNESCO sponsorship as part of a still unpublished study of youth, indicates that about one-quarter of West Germans would reject almost any relationship with Jews, not only as friends or relatives by marriage, but even as fellow workers or neighbors.

Other polls, taken by the Institute for Social Research in Frankfurt at the initiative of the American Jewish Committee, indicated that Germans were thoroughly aware of the Eichmann case (some 95 per cent, an extraordinarily large proportion, knew why Eichmann was being tried and, later, 67 per cent knew what the verdict was), but that the proceedings in the Jerusalem court had virtually no effect on Germans' attitudes toward Jews.

War Crimes Trials

With numerous war criminals currently on trial in West German courts, the record of mass killings, deportations and other horrors is daily fare in German papers — much more so than five or six years ago.

Seemingly respectable citizens — a city councilman, a high-school teacher who has built up one of the best student choirs in Germany, a police chief — are brought to book, their past deeds come to light, and they are revealed as murderers.

Within a single month, January 1963, a former Lieutenant Colonel in the SS, Martin Fellenz, was sentenced for his part in the murder of 40,000 Jews while he was Police Chief of the Cracow District; two police officers involved in the murder of several hundred Jews in Lithuania in 1941 were retried; a court in Frankfurt was weighing the fate of three former Nazis charged with helping to kill thousands near Pinsk; the West German Foreign Office requested Chile to extradite a former SS leader, Walter Rauff, who had been responsible for the construction of gas wagons; and in Bonn 12 former SS men stood accused of the murder of 180,000 Jews in the Kulmhof annihilation camp.

The trials have done much to spread knowledge; no longer can any German claim, as many used to, that he did not know of the Nazis' deeds. But the sentences are often so disproportionately light as to amount to exoneration. Fellenz was sentenced to a mere four years in prison, with credit for time served in detention before trial. One of the two men involved in the killing of the Lithuanian Jews was released and the other sentenced to only two years — on the grounds that they had "merely" stood guard during the murders. The three Nazis brought to book in Frankfurt were released on bail for "lack of evidence."

Punishments so far removed from fitting the crime have cast doubts on the role of the judiciary. In June 1961, following prolonged embarrassing publicity about the Nazi background of many judges and prosecutors, a law was passed permitting those who had officiated during the Nazi period — specifically, between September 1939 and May 1945 — to retire prematurely on a pension. In September 1962, the Federal Ministry of Justice revealed that 149 of West Germany's 11,500 judges and prosecutors had availed themselves of this provision. Only eight judges and four prosecutors said to have "participated in irresponsible and inhuman death sentences" had declined the opportunity. However, the number of jurists with an unacceptable Nazi past is at least 400, according to informed unofficial estimates cited by the Wiener Library on January 15, 1963.

Sometimes the Nazi records of jurists crop up in ways highly uncomfortable for the Government. Thus, when the leaders of the Association of Victims of Nazism (Verein der Verfolgten des Nazismus), said to be a propaganda bureau for the Communist Party, were being tried, the defense showed that the judge, Fritz Werner, had been a storm trooper in 1933 and had written an apology for nazism in 1934.

Education for Democracy

Throughout the past 15 years, education for democracy has been caught in a conflict. Germans have been, and continue to be, notoriously reluctant to face the past; many still profess to see a Communist plot in every charge of nazism. But on the other hand, the press, trade unions, certain government leaders and state agencies have long recognized that democracy must be strengthened through education.

Today a central agency of the Federal government, the Bundeszentrale für Heimatsdienst, operates an extensive program of publications to promote informal training in democratic values and encourage voluntary civic action. A federally sponsored Conference of State Ministers of Education frames measures for improving civic training and recommends them for adoption by the states, which carry the actual responsibility for the schools. Thus, in February 1960, after the swastika outbreaks, it was recommended that "candidates for all types of schools [should be required] to prove that they were acquainted with the political system based on law" and possessed a "knowledge of German history in our century and awareness of the main facts which, during the Nazi era, led to the destruction of the political system based on law. . . ." On July 31, 1962, the Conference recommended that the period since World War I and the causes of Germany's present situation receive greater emphasis in history courses; that textbooks condemn totalitarian trends as "decisive threats to our world"; and that the differences between democracy and totalitarianism be discussed.

To help prepare Germany's youth for political democracy, the American Jewish Committee in 1960 initiated a program for bringing German educators to the United States and familiarizing them with American methods of civic education. So far, five missions, representing a total of 30 secondary school teachers and staff members of teachers' colleges, have visited this country. The program is now financed by the West German government in collaboration with private foundations, German and American.

Other trends favorable to democratic education are evident in Germany's social framework. One is a growing desire for better relations between Christians and Jews. Several groups are energetically promoting this cause — including a coordinating council with branches in over 30 cities, which has sponsored an annual Brotherhood Week with considerable success; the central conference of the Lutheran Church, known as Evangelischer Kirchentag; and a Catholic group which works through published bulletins (Rundbriefe). The last two operate with the encouragement of leading individuals in their respective hierarchies.

Campaigns for better relations between Germans and Jews, conducted by Erich Lüth, an official in Hamburg, have attracted wide attention over the last few years. Half a dozen new books on nazism and the persecution of Jews were shown at the 1962 Frankfurt Book Fair. At the same time, interest in Israel continues to mount; in 1962 more than 7,000 Germans, mostly students and members of youth groups, set out on their own initiative to tour that country.

To the Germans, as has often been pointed out, democracy is not a system that has worked for generations, not part of the collective national experience. It is still psychologically linked with discouragement and defeat: discouragement because of the Weimar Republic's failure, defeat because democratic government was re-established in a vanquished Germany by the victors. The new political forms and institutions have not yet undergone any real test or crisis. Still, the varied forces striving to strengthen West German democracy afford a measure of hope.

AUSTRIA

Stability has been the outstanding feature of political life in Austria since the war, as it has been of the Austrian economy. A coalition of the Popular and Socialist Parties governs the country. There also is a so-called Freiheitspartei, or Freedom Party (formerly known as League of Independents), whose right wing has been closely associated with neo-Nazi elements, but it has never played a major role.

The two major parties divide 90 per cent of the total vote between them, and their strength is practically equal; in each election only a few parliamentary seats shift from one to the other. In 1959, for example, the Popular Party took 79 seats, the Socialists 78 and the Freedom Party 8; in 1962, the corresponding figures were 81, 76 and again 8. After every election there is a squabble over the division of cabinet posts, but both major parties are determined to maintain the coalition.

The Freedom Party's principal strongholds are in the provinces of Vorarlberg, Salzburg and Carinthia (the province with the largest electorate); in 1962, the party's share of the total vote in these three was 14, 12 and 11 per cent, respectively, whereas in the country as a whole it was 7 per cent. In Vorarlberg the Freedom Party's vote was larger than in 1959 (19,400 as against 14,800); elsewhere it decreased slightly.

Old Nazis and New Nazi Groups

Both major parties as well as the Freedom Party have energetically wooed former Nazis. In an article, "Neo-Nazis in Austria," the London Economist (April 7, 1962) stated:

> Numerically, the Nazis in Austria are an insignificant minority. But the political parties are so evenly balanced that the Nazi voters are in a position to tip the scales. Awareness of this has led to many nods and winks in their direction by both the main parties.

Over the years, thanks to these nods and winks, neo-Nazis and ultra-nationalists have become "respectable" and have been received back into the country's social, political and economic life. Because of the universal willingness to overlook the Nazi past, potential rather than overt neo-Nazi groups are the chief cause for concern. It was with a view to such groups that the Minister of the Interior, Josef Afritsch, warned in February 1962 "not to underestimate Nazi subversion in Austria."

One potentially troublesome mass organization is the Turnerbund, successor to the defunct Deutscher Turnerbund which was a Nazi fifth column previous to the absorption of Austria by Germany in 1938. The Turnerbund has some 60,000 members; many of its present leaders belonged to the pre-war group. A large veterans' organization known as Kameradschaftsgruppe IV is similarly suspect. The number IV in its name stands for the four branches of the Nazi armed services: the Army, Air Force, Navy and SS. Veterans of the SS have significant influence within the association.

As for openly neo-Nazi groups, estimates of their total membership range from 4,000 to 8,000. "Kein Volk, kein Reich und viele Führer" ("No nation, no Reich and many Führers") was how Forum, a magazine published in Austria by the Congress for Cultural Freedom, characterized these movements in 1960, parodying the old Nazi slogan, "One nation, one Reich, one Führer." Even the police, wrote Forum, had trouble keeping track of the various mergers and splits, as the same persons kept turning up in new formations like cards in a deck. The description still applies; altogether about 50 separate organizations have been counted in the decade before 1963.

The Ring Volkstreuer Verbände, headed by Dr. Roland Timmel, united various neo-Nazi and pan-German elements in academic circles, as well as in certain activist organizations seeking the return of the South Tyrol to Austria. The Austrian chapter of the European Social Movement, an international neo-Nazi federation based in Sweden, exists mostly on paper. Headed by Wilhelm Landig, it has never had more than about 60 members.

Occasionally, when overt neo-Nazi activities threaten to become embarrassing, the Government takes action. Thus, in 1958, the authorities disbanded the Social Organic Movement of Europe, an international body organized by an old Nazi, Theodor Souček.

Youth Organizations

The chief cause for concern in present-day Austria is not so much the old Nazis themselves as what Chancellor Alfons Gorbach has termed "sustained attempts by incorrigible old-timers to pervert the young."

The Government has dissolved a network of youth groups established by former Nazis during the 1950's, under the name Arbeitsgemeinschaft Nationaler Jugendverbände, as well as their subsequent regroupings, such as the Bund Heimattreuer Jugend. Austrian affiliates of certain Nazi-minded youth groups organized by Konrad Windisch in Germany, were disbanded in 1960. However, another neo-Nazi "youth" organization, Legion Europa, which actually includes former SS men as well as youngsters, is still permitted to function. The founder, Fred Borth, an SS volunteer at 17, describes his movement as "a herald of the new Europe."

Even more serious is the infection of student movements with Nazi ideas. Two organizations associated with the Freedom Party are of particular concern. One, the Ring Freiheitlicher Studenten (RFS), operates in colleges and universities; it has shown itself much stronger in student government elections than its parent party in general elections, polling as much as a third of the vote. The other, known as Ring Freiheitlicher Jugend (RFJ), appeals mainly to secondary school students. RFJ has absorbed some members of the banned neo-Nazi youth organizations. The bulk of its following is found in the provinces, where over 90 per cent of all teachers once were Nazi party members. A number of RFS and RFJ members were arrested in 1961 for assaults on Jewish students (including some Americans), desecration of a Jewish cemetery at Innsbruck, and an abortive attempt to bomb the Parliament; another student group, the Olympia Burschenschaft, to which the culprits also belonged, has since been disbanded.

Thus the Freedom Party, with its Nazi-tinged ideas and background, has a hold on a large portion of tomorrow's educated adults. Some current attitudes among young Austrians are reflected in a survey, published by a youth magazine in May 1962, which found anti-Semitic tendencies — often cautiously expressed but nevertheless unmistakable — among 40 per cent of the persons questioned. Meanwhile, recent history is not yet being taught in such a way as to inform youth of the Nazis' crimes, though labor and liberal groups have called for such teaching.

SWEDEN

Neo-nazism in Scandinavia is almost entirely limited to Sweden. In Norway and Denmark it has virtually no appeal; here the memory of wartime occupation lingers, and the few neo-Nazi organizations hold mere handfuls of members. The Swedes, on the other hand, never had to endure nazism at home, and some of them do not seem completely repulsed by it.

Nazi Germany avidly cultivated Sweden. Before the war, there were about 80 Nazi and Fascist-oriented groups in the country, though none with broad popular support. Today, according to a study by the journalist Armas Sastomoinem, there are still about 20 organizations with a Nazi cast, either blatant or subtle. Some are youth groups, others are coteries of "intellectuals"; all are anti-Semitic.

Neo-Nazi Groups

The neo-Nazi organizations constantly divide and reorganize. Many are successors or revivals of prewar associations. One thus reincarnated is the former Svensk Socialistisk Samling (SSS, Swedish Socialist Rally), a major pro-Nazi group. Its leader, Sven Olaf Lindholm, supported Hitler's Norwegian puppet, Vidkun Quisling, and the Danish Nazi, Fritz Clausen, during the war. Today's most blatant neo-Nazi group, a political party formed in 1956 and known as Rikspartiet, is the successor of the SSS. Its members wear uniforms, as did those of the SSS, and its leader, Göran Assar Oredsson, uses essentially the same vocabulary as Lindholm.

In 1960, Oredsson claimed a following of 15,000, while the police credited his organization with only 50 members. The focal point of the movement appears to be Malmö, in the south of Sweden. The party's two papers, Nordisk Kamp and Bohusläns Folkblad, are full of familiar allegations: that the murder of six million Jews by the Nazis is a Jewish fabrication, that all the world's ills stem from international finance, capitalism and "Jewish Bolshevism," and so forth. Because of the crudeness of Oredsson's program and ideology, other Nazi-minded groups have avoided contact with his organization.

More important because it is more "respectable" is the group headed by Per Engdahl. Now 53, Engdahl has a long history of Nazi activity. He has been prominent in attempts to unite neo-Nazi groups throughout the world in the European Social Movement founded in 1951. For his domestic organization, the New Sweden League (also known as the New Swedish Movement), Engdahl claims about 4,000 members, though conceding that "sympathizers" would be a more accurate term. He also publishes a newspaper, Vagen Framat, in Malmö. Like some other neo-Nazis, Engdahl denies being anti-Semitic, but his record and his writings prove otherwise; for example, he has contributed regularly to Der Weg, an anti-Semitic German-language publication, and the secretary of his movement, Bengt Olov Lungberg, writes for anti-Semitic publications in West Germany. Engdahl's aim apparently is to infiltrate professional, economic, political and other organizations; he has organized student cells and clubs to build up support in university circles.

Another movement of some importance is the Sveriges Nationella Förbund (SNF, Swedish Nationalist Association), with a journal, Nationell Tidning, that has been published for three decades. Rutger Essen is the present leader. Originally an offshoot from the right wing of the Conservative Party's youth, SNF has seemed respectable enough to reach non-Nazi groups; it maintains contacts with both the upper middle class and the nobility. The SNF believes that democracy cannot bring forth the "elite" needed to run the country, and that Europe needs to be unified under the leadership of a strong Germany. It constantly minimizes the excesses of nazism and occasionally advocates anti-Semitism.

Finally, there is Einar Aberg, who for two decades has been distributing scurrilous anti-Semitic leaflets in various languages throughout the world. In 1949 the Government adopted a law to curb such publications, but penalties meted out under the "Aberg law" have been very mild, for fear of precedents which might interfere with freedom of opinion. Aberg was briefly jailed after suits brought by the Jewish community, but this punishment has not stopped him.

C. E. Carlberg (deceased 1962), a civil engineer who was known in neo-Nazi circles as "our millionaire," founded an institute in Stockholm which serves as a propaganda center and meeting place, and contains a library of standard Nazi literature, such as Hitler's Mein Kampf and the writings of Alfred Rosenberg. Meetings commemorating Hitler's birthday have attracted as many as 300 persons to the Institute. The country's leading newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, commented on the presence of high-school students at these gatherings:

> It may be asked why interest in Nazi and Fascist ideas continues to be an alarming fact. Naturally, only a small number of those "interested" are conscious of what Nazi ideology really implies. The majority have joined in the movement without knowing anything of the ideology. The motive seems instead to have been the need to shock, to taste forbidden fruit. . . . In addition there is the false romanticism in which the person concerned wraps himself. . . . If factual and thorough information about the Fascist movements is imparted in the schools this false romanticism is bound to lose its effect.

The Ministry of the Interior and the police keep close check on neo-Nazi groups, even though they do not publish their findings. But neo-Nazi organizations as such are not generally considered a serious threat, despite their number; at any rate, old-timers like Engdahl and their followers are thought to be of little importance by the majority of observers. If there is cause for concern, it is, rather, that some young people still are attracted by Oredsson and the Carlberg Institute.

Surveys by the Swedish Institute for Public Opinion Research (SIFO) have shown some latent antipathy to Jews and some stereotyped anti-Jewish attitudes. Other polls have shown some rejection of Jews among high-school students. Young people were asked whether they would object to members of 12 ethnic groups, from Scandinavian to Bantu, as classmates or friends. The average score for all groups was 6.0; Germans rated 5.7 and Jews 4.4.

LATIN AMERICA

ARGENTINA

Since the swastika-daubing incidents of 1959-60, Argentina's century-old Jewish community has lived through the most threatening wave of anti-Semitic demonstrations and crimes in its history. Almost nothing was done to check the rising tide of violence until May 1963, when two organizations believed to be responsible for most of the offenses were at last banned by the Government.

Recent anti-Semitic activity in Argentina must be viewed against the country's turbulent political and economic conditions. The present civilian government is subject to irresistible pressures by the military; leaders of the armed services in effect control public life. At the same time, the services themselves are disunited. The economy is in deep trouble: at home inflation is severe and constantly growing worse, and abroad the peso continues to fall. Wages are low, prices high. The Government is often unable to meet its payroll, and civil servants go unpaid for months.

As a result the country is ridden with tumultuous social unrest. The workers demand a change; many of them want Juan Perón returned to the Presidency. General strikes are held from time to time to register protest. The situation is explosive.

Recent Outbreaks

Adolf Eichmann's capture and trial in 1960-61 signaled an intensification of anti-Semitic activities. During August 1961, an attack resembling a commando raid was made at dawn on a Jewish agricultural camp in a Buenos Aires suburb; several young people were seriously injured, and much property was damaged. In September, on Rosh Hashanah, a teenager leaving a synagogue was attacked by a gang wielding knives. The following day, a young man was caught placing a bomb in the entrance of a synagogue; the police released him before any charges or investigations could be made.

In Mar del Plata a public ceremony honoring Israel was nearly broken up by a group shouting anti-Semitic slogans. Throughout the year, many Jewish organizations, synagogues and businesses in various cities were similarly attacked.

After Eichmann's execution on May 31, 1962, the outrages multiplied; ten serious incidents occurred in the first week of June alone. For example, "Molotov cocktails" were found in the entrance of the Paso Synagogue in Buenos Aires; the office of the Zim Israel Navigation Company was machine-gunned, as was that of the newspaper Diario Israelita. On June 21, a Jewish university student, Graciela Sirota, was kidnaped and driven to an isolated place, where swastikas were carved on her body. Jews were daily subjected to anonymous threats, provocations and personal attacks, most of which were never reported in the press. A "League for the Protection of the Rights of Non-Jews" plastered posters all over Buenos Aires scoring Jews as "anti-Argentine."

In the wake of the Sirota case, the whole Jewish community took an unprecedented step. On June 28, 1962, a 12-hour work stoppage was staged by all Jewish-owned stores and factories, as well as by Jewish professionals and students. A sign in every store proclaimed: "Closed as a protest against Nazi aggression in Argentina." Many non-Jews joined in the protest.

On July 4, 1962, following the shutdown demonstration, former Minister of the Interior Carlos Adrogue, who is considered a sincere democrat, promised action by the forces of law and order. For a time, armed soldiers were stationed at Jewish institutions. But little else was done then; the police were plainly unwilling to take the necessary steps.

Anti-Semitic Groups and Their Friends

Many of the outrages were the work of Tacuara, a neo-Fascist, ultra-nationalist organization of upper-class youth in Buenos Aires. Another group thought to have been involved was the Guardia Restauradora, a movement affiliated with a political splinter party called Unión Cívica Nacionalista. Tacuara and the Guardia Restauradora were comparatively small, with a combined membership estimated at only 6,000. They lacked coordination, and their political appeal was narrow; in the last election, only 3,000 votes went to neo-Fascist candidates. Yet the two groups' violent methods and the impunity they enjoyed made them dangerous out of all proportion to their size.

The anti-Semitic groups had friends in respectable circles, who advised them, wrote their propaganda for them and shielded them from arrest and prosecution. At least one member of the Catholic clergy was a sympathizer: Father Julio Meinvielle, a rabid anti-Semite. (Meinvielle's book, The Jew in the Mystery of History, now in its third printing, charges Jews with promoting communism in the guise of capitalism.) Even more important, there are indications that certain military officers secretly and without official sanction aided the Fascists. For example, government weapons were found on members of Tacuara.

Sympathizers in the services probably were behind the police's prolonged unwillingness to take action against anti-Semitic offenses; the national police has been controlled by the Navy since the inter-service battles that marked the regime of President Arturo Frondizi (1958-1962), and some leading positions are held by anti-Semitic military officers. A somewhat tougher attitude was adopted late in 1962, when police began to remove anti-Semitic posters and scrawls as soon as they appeared, raided Tacuara headquarters and arrested a few members. But even so, no convictions had been secured by the end of 1962. Finally, on May 2, 1963, the Government took decisive action, banning Tacuara and the Guardia Restauradora on the grounds that "organizations which oppose ideological, political and religious freedom are incompatible with organized democracy."

Sources of Anti-Semitism

Widespread condemnation of anti-Semitic incidents — by the man in the street, the press, the mass media, and student movements of the Left and Right — might suggest that the bulk of Argentine citizens are free from deep-rooted hostility toward Jews. Unfortunately, this is not wholly true. To date, attention has focused on organized anti-Semitism with its sensational manifestations; but equally serious, though less talked about, is the growth of general, non-violent anti-Jewish feeling among the people as a whole. A recent study by a leading sociologist, Dr. Gino Germani of the University of Buenos Aires, estimates that almost a quarter of the 5,000,000 people in the Buenos Aires metropolitan area are prejudiced against Jews.

The present surge of active anti-Semitism may be traced to several causes. First, anti-Jewish violence apparently serves as an outlet for the frustrations and insecurities that beset large numbers of young people under the country's chaotic conditions. Second, the Arab League and the Embassy of the United Arab Republic are carrying on a large-scale propaganda campaign which confuses Jewry in general with Israel, presumably in order to arouse hostility against both. Third, the kidnaping of Eichmann, in violation of Argentina's territorial integrity, stirred up feelings of resentment, and injured national pride. Finally, and most important, the current economic and political crisis requires scapegoats for those in power.

The basis for today's acute anti-Semitism was laid during the early years of World War II, when Argentina, though neutral, was a center of Nazi intelligence and propaganda, and her Army was being trained by German officers. Many Germans remained after the war, and the country also became a haven for escaped Nazis.

Yet anti-Semitism in Argentina antedates these influences. Particularly among wealthy landowners, industrialists and professional military men, hostility against Jews has been evident for several decades. Many of Argentina's authoritarian leaders, in their attempts to shape a national consciousness and foster patriotism, have resorted to anti-Semitism as a political weapon. In the 1930's, right-wing organizations shared a common outlook blended of fascism, exclusion of non-Catholics, anti-Semitism and a strong attraction to Nazi Germany.

In the war between Argentina's Right and its still heterogeneous Left, the middle class is caught in dead center. The Jews, being mainly of the middle class as well as a minority group, are in a doubly exposed position. The door has been opened to anti-Semitic violence, which may well recur if the perpetrators think they can gain anything thereby. Worse, if a shrewd demagogue were to seize power and adopt an anti-Semitic stance, Argentina could become the breeding ground for a revival of nazism in the Western Hemisphere. Thus, the Jewish community's physical and spiritual security depends on the survival of democratic government and the restoration of national stability.

Among Latin American countries, Brazil is probably most nearly free of anti-Semitism. One of the reasons, presumably, is the nation's multi-racial and multi-ethnic character.

A few anti-Semitic incidents occurred in 1962: Jewish cemeteries in Curitiba and Porto Alegre were desecrated on a large scale. Public opinion was shocked. The press pointed out that cemetery desecration was utterly alien to the Portuguese-Brazilian tradition, and suggested that the culprits must have been extremists from one of the numerous German or Polish communities in South Brazil. Surviving members of the defunct Integralist party, a Fascist group active in the 1930's, were also suspected; but the leaders of the Partido do Representação Popular, which consists of former Integralists, denied any complicity and condemned the vandals' acts.

The Minister of Justice, Candido de Oliveira Neto, in 1962 forbade distribution of a new Portuguese reprint of Hitler's Mein Kampf and ordered the edition confiscated by the police. This action was based on a law forbidding the circulation of subversive material and direct incitement to racial or religious persecution. The book also was barred from the mails by an order of the Minister of Communications, Helio de Almeida.

In January 1963, shotgun fire spattered the doors and windows of several Jewish-owned stores and a Jewish community center at Salvador, the capital of the state of Bahia. No one was injured. The shots came from a moving automobile; the culprits were not identified.

The following month, painted swastikas with legends such as "Death to the Jews" and "For a Clean Brazil" suddenly appeared on many public buildings in Rio de Janeiro — including the Copacabana Orthodox Synagogue, the Federal Court of Appeals, the National Students' Union and the city's leading Portuguese community center. The daubings were quickly removed by the city government and roundly condemned by civic associations and the press.

URUGUAY

Perhaps the most democratic country in Latin America, Uruguay has no tradition of anti-Semitism. It is vulnerable, however, because of its proximity to Argentina, across the Río de la Plata. There is a great deal of casual commuting between the two countries, so that members of Tacuara and other Fascist groups can easily enter and stir up trouble. Also, it is generally believed that the Arab League, which seems to be actively fomenting anti-Semitic feeling all over the continent, has its Latin American headquarters in the Egyptian Embassy in Uruguay.

On four different occasions during July 1962, following the outrages in Argentina, swastikas were carved with knives on kidnaped persons. Only one of the victims was Jewish. Some observers thought the criminals had simply mistaken the rest for Jews; others suggested that the attacks were meant as an indirect threat to Jews. In any event, Uruguayans are convinced that the anti-Semitic knife wielders came from Argentina and fled back to Buenos Aires. A nationwide strike was organized to protest the crimes; the Uruguayan Congress and Council of State expressed emphatic condemnation and took strong measures to prevent a recurrence.

SUPRANATIONAL ANTI-SEMITIC ORGANIZATIONS

Since the war, repeated attempts have been made in Europe to coordinate or merge the numerous anti-Semitic, racist and ultra-nationalist groups scattered through different countries into an international movement under central direction.[2] As far as is known, all these attempts have miscarried. Supranational anti-Semitism today is not a unified movement but a tangle of small, loosely knit alliances, torn by doctrinal squabbles, tactical disagreements and personal jealousies. What is more, these alliances lack a solid operating base — chiefly because neo-Fascist and neo-Nazi political parties such as the Reichspartei in Germany and the Italian MSI (the only one anywhere with a substantial following) have been wary of international involvements.

But though neo-Nazi organizations in different countries have not merged, they have succeeded in establishing informal liaison with one another — as well as with former Nazis and Fascists in hiding or beyond the arm of the law in Spain, Argentina and the United Arab Republic. Anti-Semitic propaganda is sent from country to country and from continent to continent; anti-Semitic journals freely borrow each other's themes and carry advertisements for one another.

The neo-Nazi internationals today are weak and divided, and likely to remain so — certainly if Western Europe's prosperity continues. Yet, if nothing else, they are keeping Nazi ideology alive, in the hope that some future political catastrophe or economic disaster will afford them the opportunities they now lack.

Historical Background

At the end of World War II, a number of wanted war criminals and collaborators eluded the occupation authorities and reached asylum outside Europe with a degree of smoothness which suggested that a cohesive, efficient Nazi underground was at work. Within a few years, neo-Nazi and ultra-nationalist parties in the former Axis countries were gaining substantial ground at the polls; in the Austrian national elections of 1949, in the West German state of Schleswig-Holstein during 1951, and in Italian municipal and provincial contests the same year.

Even more alarming than the Nazis' actual gains was the potential size of their following. In the late 1940's, war-ravaged Europe still held millions of desperate and alienated people. In West Germany, largely a land of ruins, 11 million refugees from former German territories behind the Iron Curtain were looking for jobs and housing. Austria had some 300,000 refugees, and unemployment was high. In Italy, beset by economic difficulties, there were great numbers of disillusioned war veterans, as well as many persons disaffected through the loss of pre-war prestige and power.

Two additional circumstances combined to create a climate tolerant of Nazis and ultra-nationalists. First, the threat of communism, internal and external, seemed to overshadow every other danger. And second, large numbers of people wanted to let the bygones of the Hitler era be bygones. So many had been implicated in the workings of the Nazi and Fascist regimes that there was little popular desire for reckoning; politicians in search of votes readily made concessions to the tens of thousands with dubious records who were seeking re-acceptance.

European Social Movement (ESM)

Such were the conditions in 1951, when 30 representatives of neo-Nazi and neo-Fascist groups in various countries met openly for the first time, in Malmö, Sweden. The theme of the meeting was sounded by its organizer, Per Engdahl of Sweden, who said "the fact that nazism suffered defeat in war proves nothing as to its actual purpose." An international federation, the European Social Movement (ESM), was formed, with a program calling for a centralized European empire built around a rearmed, completely independent Germany.

[2] A report by the West German Government, released in March 1962, estimates the total number of such groups at roughly 540 — about 90 of them in Germany.

Like its founder, Engdahl, the ESM has always tried to keep its anti-Semitism muted or hidden and pretends to a degree of racist intellectualism; its directorate includes men who regard themselves as political philosophers and ideologists, such as Professor Maurice Bardèche of France.

During its early years, ESM was in contact with the Spanish Falange, with Ustashi groups (successors of the Croatian-Slovenian separatist movement backed by Hitler) and with the Hungarists, the self-proclaimed heirs of the wartime Nazi regime in Hungary. Today, the group is said to be associated with some 30 organizations in 14 countries, not counting connections in the Arab world; but the major neo-Nazi parties of Western Europe, excepting Scandinavia, are not among these. The Italian Social Movement (MSI), formerly inclined toward close cooperation with ESM, has withdrawn as a result of internal dissension, though certain of its members maintain personal contact with Engdahl.

European New Order (ENO)

As early as 1952, some French and Swiss members, finding ESM not sufficiently revolutionary and anti-Semitic, broke away and formed a "European Liaison Office," with headquarters in Lausanne. In 1958, this body became the European New Order (ENO), headed by Gaston Armand Amaudruz of Switzerland, with units in Germany, Austria, Italy and Belgium. An affiliated youth group is known as Jeune Légion Européenne. ENO's roster is believed to include some former members of the Secret Army terrorist organization in Algeria.

Today, ENO is reported to be virtually moribund. The extremist French sections have been suppressed by the de Gaulle regime; the leader of the Belgian section, Jean-Robert Debbaudt, has become discredited even in neo-Nazi circles; and Amaudruz himself has no followers. ENO's publication, L'Europe Réelle, appears only sporadically and has a circulation of about 100. Attempts to reconcile ENO with ESM have come to naught.

Other Federations

Several other would-be federations have fared no better. In Austria, for example, an old Nazi, Theodor Souček, launched a movement during 1958; it was soon suppressed by the authorities. Another veteran Nazi, Otto Strasser, briefly figured as honorary president of a European Folk Movement, which was founded in Strasbourg, held a congress in Paris during 1959, and subsequently disappeared. In January 1961, a Northern European Ring was founded in Great Britain under the auspices of the British National Party, which then numbered Colin Jordan among its leaders. In June of the same year, the Ring invited representatives of German and Italian groups to a meeting at Narford in Norfolk; but since then, little has been heard of the organization.

More significant was a conference held in Venice in March 1962, where representatives of neo-Nazi and neo-Fascist political parties met with spokesmen for other neo-Nazi groups attached to ENO. Jean Thiriart of the Belgian Mouvement d'Action Civique (MAC), believed to be one of the promoters of the conference, was present, as were delegates from the German Reichspartei, the Italian MSI, the British Union Movement, Austria's Legion Europa and Sweden's Rikspartiet. A National Party of Europe was formed, with a "liaison office" that was to convene every two months. But the plan foundered almost immediately. The Reichspartei representative, Adolf von Thadden, said his signature did not commit his party; the MSI took an evasive stand out of resentment against a resolution concerning the South Tyrol; representatives of the more extreme groups within ENO were generally critical. Thus, no effective mechanism came into being.

Thiriart has since tried to transform his MAC movement into what he hopes will be an international organization of his own, Jeune Europe. By May 1963, an Italian affiliate was holding its first meeting, in Bologna, under courteous but firm police supervision. The leader of the new unit, Pier Franco Bruschi, envisioned it as a precursor of "an overall European party." Other speakers and guests included Antonio Lombardo, the head of the Italian Ordine Nuovo; Sir Oswald Mosley of Great Britain; and Fred Borth, chief of the Austrian Legion Europa. Neo-Fascist and neo-Nazi political parties remained aloof, however; an MSI spokesman, Count Loredan, was coolly received, and the German Reichspartei did not even send a representative.

Considerable publicity attended the formation of the World Union of National Socialists (WUNS) in Great Britain in August 1962. Colin Jordan, then much in the news, was proclaimed "international leader" of the new group, and George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi Party, was made his deputy. The founders met at a farm near Guiting Power, in Gloucestershire; only nine foreign neo-Nazis besides Rockwell got there before the meeting was broken up, following protests by local residents. Rockwell, whose arrival in Britain had been secret, was subsequently deported.

WUNS's immediate aim, according to a declaration of purposes known as the Cotswolds Agreements, is "to form a monolithic, combat-efficient, international political apparatus to combat and utterly destroy the international Jewish Communist and Zionist apparatus of treason and subversion." One of the "eventual" purposes is "to find and accomplish on a world-wide scale a just and final settlement of the Jewish problem." The declaration also specifies that "no organization or individual failing to acknowledge the spiritual leadership of Adolf Hitler, and the fact that we are NATIONAL SOCIALISTS, shall be admitted to membership in WUNS."

Nation Europa Magazine

The best-known international neo-Nazi publication probably is Nation Europa, a German-language monthly published in Coburg, West Germany, which features authors from all parts of the world. The magazine has been in circulation for more than 10 years and sells an estimated 8,000 copies per issue, nearly all by subscription. It is not formally affiliated with any particular organization; financial support comes from individual backers. A former SS general, Arthur Ehrhardt, is the publisher, and C. E. Carlberg of Sweden was one of the owners until his recent death. Pedantic in style and pretentiously pseudo-intellectual, Nation Europa does not seem to have much influence or to command any attention among the younger generation in West Germany.

Programs and Policies

Since the days of the Malmö conference, virtually all the international neo-Nazi groups have featured a "European" political outlook. Their favorite example of "European cooperation" is the international Waffen-SS of Hitler days.

The international neo-Nazis want a Europe which will be fully armed and neutral — a third force holding the balance of power between the United States and the Soviet Union. "Neither the Kremlin nor Wall Street," "Neither Capitalism nor Communism," are characteristic slogans. An ever-recurring thought is that the West has only now, belatedly, begun to understand the threat of communism — the implication being that Hitler was right. A "Manifesto of the European Nation," published by Jeune Nation in November 1962, sounds the main themes:

> A Europe from Brest to Bucharest . . . Let us wipe out Yalta . . . For free enterprise against stateless finance . . . Against the party system . . . Against the sterile struggle of classes . . . Break up economic colonization of Western Europe by the dollar . . . Strong neutrality means being armed . . . We are the legitimate Europe, the European nation, the legal Europe . . .

Crimes against the Jews are consistently minimized. The persecution and annihilation of Jews are described as lesser crimes than, for example, Allied bombing of German cities; and "proof" is constantly advanced that "only" one and a half million Jews, or half a million, or none at all, perished at the Nazis' hands. At other times, anti-Semitism may be disguised in veiled references to "international stateless capitalism."

A point often stressed during recent years is that neo-Nazi organizations are, or must be, an "elite" — probably because they have failed to attract mass support. At the same time, the younger groups, such as Ordine Nuovo in Italy, Jeune Europe in Belgium, and the National Socialists in Great Britain, are embracing a vague "activism" which emphasizes activity for its own sake; in their opinion, the oldtimers have failed. Whether the younger "activists" — a minority within the small Nazi movement — will be any more successful than their predecessors and mentors remains to be seen.

In November 1962, the only synagogue in Lvov, the capital of the Western Ukraine, was closed. It had served a community of about 30,000. The closing was the culmination of an intensive year-long campaign by the Communist party paper, Lvovskaya Pravda, which charged the synagogue with being "a shelter for idlers, speculators, parasites and moneygrubbers." In the spring of 1962, several members of the board had been arrested, convicted and imprisoned for "profiteering and hooliganism."

The identification of the synagogue with economic malpractices was purposeful, indeed symbolic. Jews have been the prime targets of a drive against "economic crimes"; of the 58 trials for such offenses held in 36 cities from the start of the campaign until March 1963, more than half have involved Jews.

"Economic Crimes"

Beginning in May 1961, the Soviet Union enacted decrees extending the death penalty to economic offenses like pilfering public or state property, counterfeiting, currency speculation and bribery. Most observers interpreted this drastic move as an attempt to wipe out the nearly universal graft and corruption in Soviet industry and agriculture. Such practices are an inevitable response to the realities of the Soviet economy: shortages of raw and manufactured goods, unrealistic production goals, a complex bureaucracy and a low standard of living. As experts on the Soviet Union have pointed out, bribery to obtain needed supplies and graft to cut through red tape are often necessary if the economy is to function under these conditions. In a wider sense, the economic offenses express a desire to eke out, by whatever means, some measure of "private" security in a tightly controlled, Spartan economy.

The death penalty is being publicized to frighten those involved in economic malpractices, and to scare off others who may be tempted by the financial rewards. During the two-year period from May 1961 to April 1963, 141 persons were reportedly sentenced to death for economic offenses. Cases of this sort are covered more extensively in the Soviet press than others; the Government wants as many people as possible to learn that death by shooting is the ultimate penalty for economic crimes.

The barbaric severity of the punishment has shocked the outside world — witness a recent petition initiated by Henry Steele Commager, Lewis Gannett, William Ernest Hocking, Martin Luther King, Linus Pauling and Norman Thomas, and signed by 223 other prominent American scholars and clergymen. The document urged the Soviet Union to repeal the decrees on the ground that "the conscience of mankind rebels against excessive and inhumane punishment, of which capital punishment for economic crimes is a lamentable example."

Jews as Scapegoats

No less disquieting is the fact that nearly 60 per cent of those put to death for economic offenses have been Jews. The International Commission of Jurists has pointed out that the application of the death sentences shows "racial overtones," and that the number of Jewish-sounding names in the lists of the condemned is strikingly large. Observers of Soviet affairs believe that this is not accidental — that Jews, being a vulnerable minority, are made scapegoats for the bureaucrats in charge of the vast production and distribution machinery and forced to bear the brunt of public discontent with shortages or inferior quality of goods. In addition, Jews are singled out for object lessons showing how severely the state regards economic crimes.

The Soviet press emphasizes the Jewishness of the defendants in various ways. Repetition of obviously Jewish-sounding family names like Kaplan, Shapiro, Rabinovitch, Goldman, Zuckerman is most common. When the surname alone is not clearly Jewish, the first name and patronymic may be given in full instead of being abbreviated as is the normal practice; thus A. L. Kraisman appears as Abraham Lazarevitch Kraisman, and M. I. Maly as Mikhail Isaakovitch Maly.

In mass trials involving dozens of people, Jewish names appear more frequently than others. For example, of 47 defendants in a trial in Frunze, the capital of the Kirghiz Soviet Socialist Republic, more than half were Jews or related to Jews — though Jews constitute less than one per cent of the population in the Kirghiz Republic. Nine named individuals "and others" were reported to have received death sentences; four of the nine bore Jewish names.[3] Analysts of the press reports believe the defendants' names were presented in a manner intended to stress the high proportion of Jews.

In another trial, at Dnepropetrovsk in the Ukraine, 24 defendants were accused of manipulating the price of apples. Though the majority were non-Jews, only the Jews were singled out for death sentences.[4]

Jewish defendants are depicted in the crudest anti-Semitic stereotypes as manipulators of gullible non-Jewish victims. Yet in reality most of the Jews executed for economic offenses occupied relatively minor posts, whereas non-Jews, who received light sentences, often held responsible positions. For example, at a trial in Leningrad, on charges of diverting goods from official trade channels, a Jew named Kraisman was sentenced to death, though he was only an agent employed by the several trade organizations involved; the top officials, factory directors and managers received short prison terms.[5]

In some cases the press and the prosecution stressed the Jewishness of the defendants by referring to their religious observances. Apropos of Mordekh Kakiashvili, who was shot for currency speculation in Tiflis, Georgia, the local paper wrote: "Even the religious books of the Torah have been used" to hide foreign currency. Later, the paper reported that the defendant had refused to sign a statement of his testimony on a Saturday because of his religious convictions, and that "speculation went on in full swing in the Lord's temple. While praying, they emptied each other's pockets."[6]

In Vilna, four Jews were sentenced to death for currency speculation, among them the first woman convicted in a case of this nature. Here the press and the prosecution involved the synagogue and the rabbi in the proceedings. The national trade-union daily, distributed throughout the Soviet Union, claimed that the defendants had gone to the local rabbi to settle their financial disputes, and concluded with an unmistakably anti-Semitic note: "These people stood apart from our life. They were not interested in how the Soviet people live."[7] The case was also used for an attack on religion in general. According to one report, witnesses testified about the complicity of "representatives of the clergy of different religions," specifically local Catholic priests, as well as the local synagogue.[8]

In singling out Jews for economic offenses, publicly identifying them as Jewish through emphasis on their affiliation with the synagogue (the only Jewish institution remaining in the Soviet Union), punishing them more harshly than non-Jews in more responsible positions, and shooting a disproportionate number of them, the Soviet Government practices Stalinist policies even while condemning them.

Soviet leaders consistently deny that the Government's policy toward economic offenders is in any sense anti-Semitic. Thus, Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev wrote to Bertrand Russell in February 1963:

> It is for the sake of justice that our people have to punish those who want to live at the expense of others, to rob our society. The attempts of reactionary propaganda to ascribe to our State pursuance and encouragement of the policy of anti-Semitism are not a new phenomenon.

Similar denials have accompanied the closing of synagogues, the arrest of congregation leaders and the ousting of congregation officials. But there can be little doubt that such acts are intended as attacks on the remnants of Jewish community structure.

The Campaign Against the Synagogue

Though all religions are subject to restrictions and hostility in the Soviet Union, Judaism is singled out for special disabilities which add up to a program of planned attrition.

Jewish congregations, unlike others, are isolated; they may not form national or regional associations by which they might help one another and maintain spiritual unity. Religious leaders are not permitted to leave the country for visits with Jewish officials or institutions elsewhere, while members of other faiths have visited co-religionists, attended conferences, gone on pilgrimages and even studied abroad.

For nearly 40 years, Jewish congregations have been forbidden to manufacture urgently needed religious articles such as prayer shawls and phylacteries, whereas other religious bodies have been authorized to acquire new vestments, ikons and the like. And Jews have not been free to print religious calendars, except that during the last two years a few synagogues received permission, late in the Jewish calendar year, to produce small quantities for their own use.

While the Russian Orthodox Church, the Roman Catholic Church, the Moslems and other creeds have been provided with facilities for training reasonable numbers of clergymen, there were no provisions for rabbinical training until recently, and there are hardly any now. In 1957, a rabbinic academy was opened in Moscow, but was never permitted to function properly. Its building needs were not met, and its enrollment, always limited to 20, has been whittled down to three or four through bureaucratic maneuvering.

Finally, a harsh discriminatory restriction is implicit in the Government's long-standing ban on the Hebrew language. Whereas most of the religions represented in the Soviet Union conduct their rituals in the congregants' languages, Judaism requires some knowledge of Hebrew for an understanding of services and prayer books; but none has been taught since 1917. During the same period, no Hebrew Bible and only one token edition (3,000 copies) of the Prayer Book have been printed. Therefore, most Jews who still attend synagogue cannot actively participate in the service. No comparable restrictions are imposed on the Moslems, who use Arabic as a special language for religious purposes; an Arabic Koran was issued in 1958.

The Ban on Matzah

In 1962, the Government discontinued its previous practice of providing flour, labor and facilities for baking matzah, the unleavened bread used during the Passover season. Householders were advised to prepare a supply at home (a method few could follow, because of technical and ritual difficulties), but at the same time the press featured semi-official attacks on private baking.

Since then, individuals who sell home-baked matzah have been imprisoned for conducting private businesses, violating health regulations, "illegal commercial activities" or "price speculation."

The ban on matzah production climaxed a policy of harassment dating back to 1957. Beginning in that year, the amounts produced by state bakeries were progressively curtailed. Synagogues were accused of making huge profits from the "illegal production" and sale of matzah; in 1960, the officers of the Riga congregation were charged 115,000 rubles in taxes on their alleged private profits, and elsewhere synagogue officials were forced to resign their positions.

Like other restrictions on Jewish religious practices, the campaign against matzah apparently is intended to separate Soviet Jews from their historical traditions. The press has virulently attacked the ancient feast of Passover, which commemorates the liberation of the Hebrews from slavery in Egypt and their emergence as a religious people. Such traditions, it is alleged, are chauvinistic; they "give rise to nationalist feelings, and poison the minds of Jews by diverting their thoughts to 'the land of their fathers' [while killing] love for the Soviet motherland.[9]

Jewish Culture Curtailed

Unlike other minority groups in the Soviet Union, Jews are not free to carry on a cultural life in their own language. Official quarters insist that Russian Jews are culturally assimilated and not interested in Yiddish — despite the fact that in the 1959 census 20 per cent of them did name it as their mother tongue.

In 1948, all of the country's Yiddish journals and publishing houses, cultural and literary research institutes, theaters and dramatic schools were abruptly closed, as was the large Yiddish school system. Since then, such cultural activities have been permitted to resume only on a severely limited scale. The Minister of Culture, Ekaterina Furtseva, has indicated that any Government moves in this field are merely gestures addressed to the Soviet Union's friends abroad.

Until the late 1950's, Yiddish song recitals and literary readings by old artists remained virtually the only cultural expressions permitted. The response was great; though not of a high standard, the performances attracted a total audience of 3,000,000 in 1957 alone. Today a handful of Yiddish theatrical and musical groups, all amateur, are active; they are in great demand in the major cities, but their schedules are sharply limited, and their achievements do not begin to compare with those of the Soviet Yiddish theater in the days of its professional glory.

Beginning in 1959, half a dozen Yiddish books, all by authors long dead, were reissued, but only in small editions (10,000 to 30,000), which were soon sold out. In 1961, after years of insistent pressure from abroad, the Government permitted publication of a Yiddish magazine, Sovietish Heimland.

Reference works and textbooks published in recent years treat Jews and their cultural achievement as virtually nonexistent. For example, a recent edition of the Great Soviet Encyclopedia devotes only two pages to Jews, as against 116 in an earlier edition.

Discrimination in Public Life and Education

Since World War II, Jews have been eliminated from the Soviet Union's political leadership to a striking degree. As far as is known, there are none in the upper echelons of the Communist Party or the Government, with the sole exception of V. E. Dimchitz, First Deputy Chairman of the Planning Office. Before the war, 4.1 per cent of the deputies to the Supreme Soviet of the USSR were Jewish; by 1958, the figure had dropped to .25 per cent. Jews are under-represented in the Supreme Soviets of most constituent republics, especially those three — Russia, Byelorussia and the Ukraine — where most of them live.

Careers of Jews, especially at the local level and that of the constituent republics, are markedly limited by discrimination. For the higher executive positions the rule seems to be "last hired, first fired." Jews have virtually disappeared from sensitive areas like the diplomatic service and the armed forces. Elsewhere, for example in cultural and scientific pursuits, especially able Jewish individuals may still be found in the middle ranks; but the Jewish share of employment in higher education, science and political life has not kept up with the nation's expanding opportunities.

Voices of Protest

As the Soviet Government's anti-Semitic policies have become increasingly plain, much indignation has stirred in the outside world. To name but one protest among many: in December 1962, a telegram to Premier Khrushchev, drafted by the American Jewish Committee and signed by American religious leaders of all faiths, scored discriminatory acts against Jewish religious and cultural institutions.

Inside the Soviet Union, too, certain intellectuals have been shocked to realize that anti-Semitism is once more being actively fostered. A protest, unusually explicit by Soviet standards, was voiced during 1961 by one of the country's most popular poets, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, in a poem entitled "Babi Yar."

Babi Yar is a ravine, just outside Kiev, where the Nazis murdered about 100,000 Ukrainian Jews in 1941. No monument marks this tragic place; the Government has remained coldly indifferent to all requests for one and, indeed, has generally remained silent about the holocaust of European Jewry under Hitler. In his poem, Yevtushenko, though not a Jew, identifies himself with suffering Jews from the days of Egyptian bondage to those of Hitler, and ringingly indicts those who would carry on the evil tradition of persecution in present-day Russia. He points up the existence of a historic Jewish people, which Soviet doctrine denies.

"Babi Yar" appeared in a journal published by the Soviet Writers Union and created a sensation.[10] A few days after its publication, the journal of the Writers Union of the Russian Federated Republic printed several attacks on Yevtushenko, in which his depiction of anti-Semitism in Russia was rejected.[11] In the ensuing conflict between "liberal" and party-line writers, anti-Semitism became an issue; the liberals deplored it, while the adherents of the party line denied it existed.

On December 18, 1962, the Thirteenth Symphony by Dmitri Shostakovich, Russia's best-known composer, had its premiere in Moscow. The symphony contains a choral section, set to words from "Babi Yar." The day before the first performance, Khrushchev and other top members of the Soviet Government met privately with several hundred prominent intellectuals and writers; at this meeting, complaints were made that the verses would be used by "enemies of the Soviet Union" to support charges of anti-Semitism. Yevtushenko subsequently changed the text for the second performance of the symphony, in February 1963, adding Russians and Ukrainians to the Jews who lie in Babi Yar and omitting a slogan ascribed to anti-Semites ("Thrash the kikes and save Russia!"). The music was not altered.

[11] Literatura i Zhizn, September 21, 1961.

"An Inextricable Vise"

The best and most recent survey of the condition of Russian Jews is "The Status of the Jews in the Soviet Union" by Moshe Decter.[12] The article concludes:

> In sum, Soviet policy places the Jews in an inextricable vise. They are allowed neither to assimilate, nor live a full Jewish life, nor to emigrate (as many would wish) to Israel or any other place where they might live freely as Jews. The policy stems, in turn, from doctrinal contradictions abetted by traditional anti-Jewish sentiments. On the one hand, the authorities want the Jews to assimilate; on the other hand, they irrationally fear the full penetration of Soviet life which assimilation implies. So the Jews are formally recognized as a nationality, as a religious group, as equal citizens — but are at the same time deprived of their national and religious rights as a group, and of full equality as individuals . . . .
> Soviet policy as a whole, then, amounts to spiritual strangulation — the deprivation of Soviet Jewry's natural right to know the Jewish past and to participate in the Jewish present. And without a past and a present, the future is precarious indeed.

[12] Foreign Affairs, January 1963.

CONCLUSION

Anti-Semitism has not yet been eradicated from the minds and hearts of all men. Behind the Iron Curtain, where hostility against Jews is tacitly sanctioned or encouraged by government, the outlook is dark. In the free world, the prospects are mixed, depending in large part on political and economic conditions.

Thus, in some crisis-ridden Latin American countries, neo-Nazis and neo-Fascists have gained an audience for their anti-Semitic ideas and have instigated numerous terrorist actions. In Western Europe, on the other hand, attempted revivals of nazism have usually been cold-shouldered by public opinion; sometimes, as in Great Britain, they have been emphatically rejected. Neo-Fascist and neo-Nazi groups have remained on the fringes of European society, despite all their frantic activity in recent months. Their appeal seems to be declining and, except in Italy, they have no political influence.

To help keep anti-Semitic and Nazi-minded elements from gaining or regaining strength in the countries of the free world, certain measures may be suggested.

First, there obviously is need for continued surveillance and study — careful day-to-day watch over the activities of anti-Semitic groups everywhere.

Second, anti-Semitic and neo-Nazi groups should be denied the mass publicity they crave. Lacking cohesion and numerical strength, such movements can survive only by keeping their names before the public. In the United States, quarantine methods for relegating hatemongers to obscurity have long proved useful. Similar techniques undoubtedly would help curb anti-Semites operating in other countries and at the international level.

Third, and perhaps most important, day-to-day measures of surveillance and quarantine should be supplemented with long-range programs of education concerning Jews and Judaism. Today may be the most auspicious moment in centuries for such an undertaking.

Attitudes toward Jews are undergoing a profound change, particularly in the Western European countries. The people of those nations feel a deep sense of shame over the fate of the six million Jews murdered during the Hitler era. At the same time, a quiet revolution is developing among Christians; some churches, recognizing that their own teachings have all too often served to perpetuate anti-Jewish prejudices, have now undertaken to re-examine their own practices and positions. Finally, a new image of the Jew is emerging — partly because the founding of Israel has demolished certain stereotypes, partly because the status of minority groups in general is changing all over the world.

In view of these developments, the time would seem to be ripe for a fundamental attack on long-standing anti-Jewish attitudes in the Western world. If democratically minded citizens everywhere resolve to overcome the ingrained prejudices to which the Mosleys and the Rockwells cater, the day may arrive when there will be no need to keep watch over the doings of halfpenny Hitlers and their hangers-on.

Re Portland teletype to Bureau and Chicago, 10/24/90.

On instant date, SA [redacted] Chicago Division, FBI, b6 b7C telephonically advised that neither the American Jewish Committee (AJC), Chicago or AJC member [redacted] had received any recent threatening telephone calls. The switchboard operator at AJC, Chicago, did receive several telephone calls from an unknown male individual during past few days. The switchboard operator answered the call, "American Jewish Committee, can I help you?" The caller would answer, "No you can't," and the operator would then hang up. SA [redacted] advised [redacted] was visiting Chicago en route to New York from Portland, Oregon. [redacted] did not receive any calls, however, had been in recent attendance at the civil trial of known white supremist, [redacted] Chicago will furnish teletype regarding this information.

The Portland Police Bureau (PPB) [redacted] notified of the above information. [redacted] will notify AJC [redacted] of above information.

[redacted] OFFICE AND BUILDING SERVICES, AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE (AJC), 165 E. 56th Street, New York, New York 10022-2746, after being advised of the identity of Special Agent (SA) [redacted] and after being advised of the purpose of the interview furnished the following information:

On or about October 23, 1990, at approximately 11:40 AM, it was [redacted] and not [redacted] who had received a telephone call from an unknown male (U/M), middle-aged, no accent, at the AJC headquarters in New York. The U/M had identified himself as a skinhead, and that he had, in his possession a list of names/addresses of AJC personnel. According to the U/M, the list had been forwarded to him and other skinheads by [redacted] a white supremacist, residing on the West Coast, who, on or about October 22, 1990, was found liable for a multi-million dollar damage award in Portland, Oregan as per the death of an Ethiopian male, who had been beaten to death by a group of skinheads, at the behest of [redacted]

Additionally, the U/M, during the course of the conversation with [redacted] began to describe a document called an "S" page, from which the U/M had referred to AJC's members' names and addresses. The accuracy of the contents of the list justified [redacted] putting the AJC, New York office, as well as other AJC offices, on alert. After having read the names and addresses of the AJC members, the U/M indicated that some of the AJC members would be targeted for assassination. No other specifics were provided, and no other telephone calls were made to the New York AJC by the U/M subsequent to the telephonic contact on October 23, 1990.

[redacted] Additionally, [redacted] in the presence of SA [redacted] telephonically contacted [redacted] of the AJC Chicago Office, to ascertain if either he [redacted] had been in receipt or aware of any additional harassing telephone calls/messages subsequent to October 23 - October 24, 1990. The responses from AJC Chicago were negative.

Captioned matter was predicated upon receipt of a telephonic complaint on February 5, 2001, from [redacted] representing the American Jewish Committee in the State of Connecticut. [redacted] disclosed that on January 20, 2001, a profane and threatening telephone message was left on the organization's answering machine. [redacted] had no further knowledge regarding the point of origin of this message.

Attempts at New Haven to identify the source of this telephone call through Southern New England Telephone Company met with negative results. Complainant [redacted] was recontacted and advised that since the initial message was left, no subsequent threatening calls have been received by the American Jewish Committee.

Since there were no subsequent calls received, and all investigative leads have been exhausted, New Haven will conduct no further investigation into this matter.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. NICHOLS

RE: AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

In accordance with your request the following information was obtained from the files concerning the American Jewish Committee:

The Committee was founded in 1906, and was incorporated in the year 1911. The main office is located at 386 Fourth Avenue, New York City. It is a relatively small organization having at the present time approximately 1159 members. The Committee is said to be dedicated to safeguarding the civil and religious rights of the Jews throughout the world and to combating discrimination and removing prejudice. The Committee has a propaganda bureau and employs several investigators.

Confidential informant [redacted] of the New York Office advised during June, 1937, that the American Jewish Committee was extremely conservative and was unequivocally opposed to radicalism in any form whatsoever.

Confidential informant [redacted] of the New York Office advised in October, 1936, that he had looked over several books distributed by Knight Publications and that nine out of ten of them were secretely sponsored by the Communist Party or the American Jewish Committee. He explained that there was no connection between the two organizations but that on the question of the persecution of the Jews their propaganda interests coincide. He pointed out that, however, the American Jewish Committee was regarded by the Communist Party as being arch-reactionary.

The files contain a letter from Edward S. Greenbaum, chairman, Survey Committee of the American Jewish Committee to the management of Madison Square Garden in New York City relative to the Bund meeting scheduled for the hall on February 20, 1939. Pertinent portions of the letter read as follows:

"The German-American Bund is in my opinion completely anti-American and anti-democratic. - - - We are confident that the citizens of the United States will reject all un-American propaganda without resorting to any such violation of civil liberties guaranteed to all by the Bill of Rights. - - - We of course assume that Madison Square Garden will do nothing to permit the Bund to deceive the public as to the true nature of the meeting."

According to the New York Sun on June 16, 1938, coordination of activities in defense of Jewish rights was agreed upon by representatives attending a meeting in New York City. The groups represented were the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress, B'nai B'rith and the Jewish Labor Committee.

The secretary of the American Jewish Committee is Morris D. Waldman. Other officials within recent years have been Irving Lehman, Justice of the New York Court of Appeals; Phillip Forman, United States District Judge, Trenton, New Jersey; Julius L. Meier, former governor of Oregon, Portland, Oregon; and Louis B. Mayer, Los Angeles, California. The president is Dr. Cyrus Adler of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Dr. Adler has been president of the Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning in Philadelphia since 1909. He was acting president of the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City from 1916 to 1924 and has been president since the latter year. In addition Dr. Adler is connected with numerous other civil and religious organizations. He is a member of the executive board of the Boy Scouts of America and has written several books.

The Committee is supported by voluntary contributions and has membership in 312 cities and represents twenty National Jewish organizations. On its Executive Committee appear the names of the most prominent Jewish business, professional, and industrial leaders in the United States. Many of the members of the American Jewish Committee are very wealthy.

The files reflect that in 1934 the New York Office considered the American Jewish Committee as one of the safest sources of information on the Silver Shirts and the Order of '76. The New York Office has contacted the Committee on several occasions for information and the organization has been cooperative.

Respectfully,

R. C. Hendon

SECRETARY OF AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE MEETS TOLEDANO
SEEKS MATERIAL FROM MEXICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

I. A. J. C. Secretary Comments on Meeting with Toledano

Writer states that after receiving addressee's letter of August 22 and telegram of August 25, he got [redacted] Toledano (B 635, 111, 577) with whom he lunched on Saturday. Writer was strongly impressed by Toledano's personality and loyalty to principles of democracy, as well as by his speech made in Mexico on Fifth Column activities.

II. Seeks Material from Mexican Jewish Congress

Writer states that he has sent a letter, similar to one sent to friends in various countries, to addressee's President. Writer adds that the material, promised by the addressee, has not yet arrived. He assumes that addressee has not met Minkoff, for whom writer would have waited in Mexico City if he had known of his coming.

Examiner's Note: Vicente Lombardo Toledano, a Communist leader of Mexico and President of Latin American Workers, lectured at a meeting, held August 2[illegible] in Fine Arts Palace, Mexico City, in honor of the Jewish people and against Nazi terrorism in Europe. Toledano left for Washington and New York on August 21, 1942.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Believing that the sanctity of the individual is a principle basic to future world order and peace, the American Jewish Committee plans to issue a Declaration of Human Rights, two copies of which are enclosed. We feel sure that the sentiments expressed are not only those of the Committee, but those held by thousands of distinguished and thoughtful Americans of all faiths. We, therefore, urge that you join with us in signing this Declaration.

On the eve of Liberation, we feel a particular urgency for all men of peace and good will to emphasize and reaffirm the godly concept of the dignity of the individual man.

We trust that you will join with us in presenting the Declaration of Human Rights to the American public. To this end, will you please sign and return one copy in the enclosed self-addressed envelope; the other copy we believe you will want to keep for your own records.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph M. Proskauer
President

Declaration of Human Rights

Submitted by THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE
386 Fourth Avenue, New York City

WITH the inevitable end of Hitler, the struggle begins, not of tank and plane, but of heart and soul and brain to forge a world in which humanity may live in peace.

This new world must be based on the recognition that the individual human being is the cornerstone of our culture and our civilization. All that we cherish must rest on the dignity and inviolability of the person, of his sacred right to live and to develop under God, in whose image he was created.

With this creed as our foundation, we declare:

1. That an International Bill of Human Rights must be promulgated to guarantee for every man, woman and child, of every race and creed and in every country, the fundamental rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

2. No plea of sovereignty shall ever again be allowed to permit any nation to deprive those within its borders of these fundamental rights on the claim that these are matters of internal concern.

3. Hitlerism has demonstrated that bigotry and persecution by a barbarous nation throws upon the peace-loving nations the burden of relief and redress. Therefore it is a matter of international concern to stamp out infractions of basic human rights.

4. To those who have suffered under the Hitler regime because of race or creed or national origin, there shall be given fair redress.

5. To those who have been driven from the land of their birth there shall be given the opportunity to return, unaffected in their rights by the Nazi despotism.

6. To those who wander the earth unable or unwilling to return to scenes of unforgettable horror shall be given aid and comfort to find new homes and begin new lives in other parts of the world. This must be made possible by international agreement.

Thus, anew, may we justify the ways of God to man. Thus we may take a vital step forward on the long road to which civilization seeks to create a world based upon the common fatherhood of God and the common brotherhood of man.

I approve the sentiments expressed in the Declaration of Human Rights submitted by the American Jewish Committee, and I am happy to add my name to those who will sign this Declaration.

PETITION

TO THE CONGRESS, SENATE AND PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

GREETINGS

We, the people, voter-citizens of the United States, hereby call upon you by means of this, our legal petition, to act upon our demands, proposals, and propositions, in this petition and that a national vote be held prior to 1948, on all demands, proposals, and propositions contained in this petition.

1. We demand that all persons of Jewish Birth, now living in the United States, be sent to Palestine or another country outside of the United States. The Jews are not wanted in the United States. A national vote on this proposition is demanded to take place prior to 1948. The Jews must leave by December 1948.

2. We demand that all Negroes be colonized in one, and not more than two, states and these states to be determined by a national vote to be held prior to 1948, and that the colonizing date be no later than December 1948.

3. We demand that a Federal Pension be established for all citizens that wish to retire at the age of 60 years. This to be an honorable pension, and not under the control of social agencies. The children of pensioners will not be responsible and will not contribute toward the support of pensioners. The amount will not be less than $60.00 per month.

4. We demand that all charity institutions in the United States be abolished, and that direct federal aid of money be given persons in need. This will eliminate the upkeep of institutions, and eliminate the parasites that operate these institutions. Under the present method, the funds must pass through slimy hands. In this manner the needy get very little aid.

5. ~~We demand that all laws based upon religious beliefs, be restrict individual~~ liberty and freedom, be abolished.

6. We demand that the standard working week in all businesses and industries be six hour day, thirty hour week, this to include department stores, chain stores and all other businesses and industries operated by Jews, and that a decent living wage be paid all workers.

7. We demand that gambling be legalized in all states, of cards, dice, games, devices, lotteries, race horse betting, etc. All gambling to be under license.

8. We demand that all monopolies and anti-trusts be abolished, including Jewish monopolies and anti-trusts.

9. We demand that compulsory medical association dictated laws be abolished.

10. We demand, in order to control birth, to stop crimes of rape, to stop sex crimes, to eliminate loveless marriages, to eliminate teen-age wedless-mothers, to reduce divorces, to halt social diseases, that houses for sexual relief be established in all states under license, and under the supervision, direction and inspection of the Board of Health.

11. We demand that dictation in the United States by the Pope and all other religions organizations be abolished, and that the Bible be excluded as a sacred book from all Public Schools, and that religion be kept out of government, out of politics, and out of Public Schools, and that religion be kept where it belongs---"In The Church." And that all parasites such as Ministers, Priests, Clergymen, etc. support themselves, instead of living on alms and off of the labors of others.

12. We demand that the Usury System be abolished, and that money be regulated according to Article I, Section 8, paragraph 5, of the Constitution. All money to be issued against the wealth of the nation, and the credit of the people. Money will not be borrowed from private bankers. The Federal Reserve System will become the property of the people, and be operated honestly by appointed government officials.

13. We demand that in the event that our government officials try to force war upon the nation again, that we, the people, will have a national vote to determine if we will or will not go to war, for the benefit of government officials, war-mongers, politicians and others that profit by war.

14. We demand that true historical facts be taught in all schools, and that fictitious history based on theology and religion be abolished.

15. We demand that all voting to be by mail. This will reduce the amount of crooked voting, and will reduce the power of politicans and organizations that control the votes of feeble-minded voters that vote the way they are instructed to vote.

16. We demand that military training not be compulsory.

17. We demand that "Third-Degree-Methods" be abolished by all law enforcement officers in all states.

18. We demand that the control of motion picture studios, and motion picture theatres be taken away from the Jews. 97 per cent of the studios and motion picture theatres are controlled by Jews. 97 per cent of all actors and actresses are Jews. It's bad enough for one to have to be an employee of a Jew. And come in contact with them every day in retail stores, wholesale houses, etc. and when one wants to relax in a movie, we find that 97 per cent of the cast are Jews. (The Jews are not wanted in the entertainment field). We further demand that standard admission prices be fixed on motion picture theatres, and that advance admission prices be prohibited for evenings, saturdays, sundays and holidays.

19. We demand that religion be eliminated from motion pictures. In recent years much "Pagan Catholicism" and "Jewish Godism" has been injected into motion pictures against the will and approval of millions of people. We demand that motion pictures be made for the entertainment and education of the public and free from fictitious religious lies.

20. We demand that the President, State Governors, City Mayors, City Managers, and other executive officers discontinue the practice of issuing religious proclamations. These officials are appointed by the people to act in behalf of the people. Since they were not appointed by any God, and since they are not representatives of any God, this practice must be halted at once.

21. We demand that no person, state, city, or government be permitted to make a profit or make any charge for persons that are married, that no license fee will be charged, and that no charge will be made by any official performing a marriage ceremony.

22. We, the people, demand that this mandate of the people be obeyed, and that all demands in this petition be placed on the next national ballot prior to the year 1948.

AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Address of Dr. Gaer, Chairman of the Administrative Committee, at a joint meeting, August 2, 1945 of the staff (professional and technical) on the question of union recognition.

I am glad to be here to meet with you this afternoon because I think you have a right to know - I think you have a right to hear at first-hand - the position of the American Jewish Committee, as expressed by its Administrative Committee, on a question of intimate interest to you - the question of union recognition. I want to say at the outset, and I want to say with all the sincerity at my command, that the American Jewish Committee believes in collective bargaining, the American Jewish Committee believes in unions, the American Jewish Committee believes in the labor movement. I say that not as a begrudging concession, I say it as a statement of fact and conviction - and as for myself, I say it with deep and genuine personal feeling.

I want to add that a publicly supported agency, such as the American Jewish Committee, is no exception to the propositions I have just stated. To the contrary, a publicly supported agency, such as the American Jewish Committee, has a social conscience and a social responsibility which makes it all the more important for it to recognize the basic validity of collective bargaining and of labor unions as a vital element in the whole democratic process. Even more than that, the American Jewish Committee in particular has a special responsibility in this connection. The American Jewish Committee looks upon the labor movement as the staunchest single ally in the fight against anti-Semitism, against group tension, against fascism and against all those forces which it is the very purpose of the American Jewish Committee to combat and which is its very reason for being alive.

On these issues no decent person can be on the fence. Incidentally, Harold Laski once remarked that Sir John Simon had been on the fence so long that the iron had gotten into his soul. These are propositions, I say, about which all people who really believe in and do not merely speak about the democratic process, can be on only one side.

The second preliminary point I wish to make is that the American Jewish Committee, and I as expressing its view here this afternoon, believes--with respect to its staff--in the highest standards, in the most adequate salaries and in the best possible working conditions. I deliberately pronounce that to be the fixed and inflexible policy of the American Jewish Committee. And here again I must remark that a publicly supported agency has a special responsibility. I have no sympathy and no patience with the suggestion sometimes made that because people work for a publicly supported agency they are entitled to less liberality with respect to salary, working conditions and standards. I declare that any publicly supported agency that pays an employee one cent less than he or she earns, or has a lower standard of employment than the employee deserves, is extorting a concealed contribution from that employee and is a pious fraud. I make these statements to you because I think they are a necessary preliminary to what I want to say now.

There is one factor, and one factor alone, which militates against recognition of one of the unions which at present seeks recognition and seeks your membership--the United Office and Professional Workers of America--and that factor is that that Union is demonstrably--and we shall go over the demonstration together--that Union is demonstrably Communist Party dominated and controlled. The point here is that this Union, being Communist Party dominated and controlled, is not a free agent. It follows a line, a line which is determined outside the Union and outside the United States. It is a line which has in the past and may well in the future come into collision with the aims and objectives of the American Jewish Committee. In this respect the problem confronting this Committee is different from the problem confronting a social or philanthropic agency, where such collisions might not be likely to occur.

In the period between September 1939 and June 1941, the American Jewish Committee was devoting itself--was straining every muscle--to discredit the Nazi movement, to awaken Americans to the danger of ultimate Nazi victory and of Nazi domination. This Union, following Communist Party control, was at the very same time apologizing for Germany, apologizing for the Nazis. It branded as "imperialist war" the efforts of the democratic nations to check the mad Nazi rush for world domination.

In February 1941, the UOPWA local Social Service Employees' Union News carried a resolution condemning the War Powers Bill as a menace to our freedom. The Union opposed lend-lease, which was supported by Democratic and Republican leaders alike.

But in September 1941, at the first meeting of the Union held after the invasion of Russia, the Union endorsed United States aid.

What do you think of human beings and, if you please, of Jews, taking the position in 1939 and 1940 and the early part of 1941 that the effort to prevent the Nazis from dominating the world and from slaughtering the Jews of Europe was a mere imperialist war? What do you think of that line crossing what the American Jewish Committee stands for and is trying to do? Can anyone overlook the deadly conflict between these two drives?

The President of the Office and Professional Workers' Union sponsored a New Masses rally on April 22, 1942 and was listed in the Daily Worker as a member of the board of contributing editors of the New Masses. He has followed the Communist Party line on foreign policy through its every twist and turn. He has made every zigzag of the last six years and he has spoken as President of the Union.

This Union was a sponsor of the American Peace Mobilization and as such it was sponsor of a group which picketed the White House - in that period from 1939 to 1941 - picketed the White House as a protest against the measures that Franklin Roosevelt was so desperately trying to make America understand were necessary for her very life.

We resent that as Americans, of course, and as Jews, how do we react to the picketing of the White House against efforts to halt Nazi aggression when thousands of Jews were being hurled into the ovens of the concentration camps of Europe? Here again, think of what the American Jewish Committee stands for and think of the policy followed by this Union.

The Office Workers' Union, which was the previous name of the Office and Professional Workers' Union, was started and in its early life was kept going by the Trade Union Unity League, which was a branch, a part, of the Communist Party of America. Attorney General Biddle on May 28, 1942 declared, "In 1929 the Trade Union Educational League became the Trade Union Unity League which began a new program of organizing directly its revolutionary industrial unions controlled directly by the Communist Party".

The United Office and Professional Workers of America, a few years ago, sponsored the Communist candidate for governor of New York, Mr. Amter. At a closed convention held by the Communist Party a few days ago and in which only official delegates of the Communist Party were allowed, one of the newspapers reported that the President of the Office and Professional Workers' Union was admitted to the session, and he was referred to as the President of that Union. This Union is used and exploited for Communist Party purposes.

We find here the typical Communist Party technique - a technique which I want you to consider with me as entirely separate from any social or economic ideology - a technique the insidious nature of which has been proved again and again. Eleanor Roosevelt is certainly no red-baiter. Some of you may remember what she wrote only a few weeks ago. "What I object to", she says, "in the American Communists is not their open membership, nor even their published objectives. For years in this country they taught the philosophy of the lie. They taught that allegiance to the Party and acceptance of orders from the Party heads whose interests were not just those of the United States, were paramount. Because I have experienced the deception of the American Communists I will not trust them."

The American Civil Liberties Union, which many would think goes so far as to make a fetish of the rights of individual conscience and of freedom of expression, the American Civil Liberties Union bars Communists from its Board. In my judgment the reason it bars them from its Board is because they are not free agents. They do not sit across the table discussing and considering matters according to their effect upon the Civil Liberties Union. They sit there as instruments to carry out a line that is determined outside the organization and, as I said, outside the United States. I do not have to remind you that the recent sharp deviation in the Communist Party line in this country was first suggested in a French publication by a French Communist who had just returned from Moscow.

The American Jewish Committee deals day after day with agencies of the government of the United States, with the FBI, with Army and Navy Intelligence, with a number of government agencies, all in the pursuit of its endeavor to protect the rights of Jews. The American Jewish Committee deals with foreign governments. The State Department sanctions the making of representations by the Committee to foreign governments. It may today be dealing with the Soviet government; it may tomorrow be dealing with the Polish government; it may the next day be dealing with governments that may be hostile to either or both of those governments. It deals with each government for only one reason--the reason for which it exists. It deals with governments to safeguard and protect the rights of Jews living in the domain of those governments.

Anything that would align the American Jewish Committee with any particular political line, and especially with one that operates as the Communist Party line operates, would conflict with and impair our efforts to protect the rights of Jews. That is what we are here for. That is what the Committee is organized for. That is what this organization survives for. That is what we must keep always before us. Anything which interferes with the attainment of that objective is something that renders less useful the work of the American Jewish Committee; that renders less effective the saving of lives. I think and I know you think that those lives have endured enough anguish and pushing around.

The American Jewish Committee just cannot have a Communist Party affiliation. The staff as an integral part of the American Jewish Committee just cannot, in the light of the facts, just cannot put the American Jewish Committee in that position. It would hurt the Committee and it would hurt the staff. More important than that, it would hurt the people the American Jewish Committee is trying to help. So I repeat and say again and again, this is the only reason the American Jewish Committee declines to recognize the United Office and Professional Workers of America. Any other Union, CIO, AF of L, or any other, which is free from this encumbrance, not only would be acceptable but so far as I may be concerned, will be encouraged. I began by saying that I not only believe in unions, but I feel deeply about that belief.

The Committee function is at stake and we would not be thinking, you and I, about the affairs of the American Jewish Committee as we should be thinking about them if we did not say what I am trying to say this afternoon.

I think the American Jewish Committee is finding itself. I think it has a magnificent role to play in protecting the rights of Jews and in building a decent democratic world. I think it is achieving something in that respect and I think it will continue to achieve more.

We are faced today in this country by a cunning, ruthless foe seeking to do to the Jews of the United States what that same type of foe did to the Jews of Europe. We are trying to meet that challenge; we are trying to meet it in America and we are trying to meet it all over the world. None of us, I know, wants to do anything that will interfere with the success of that effort.

BACK THE PALESTINE MOVEMENT!

All Citizens are urged to aid the Jewish people to return to Palestine.

The National Jewish Committee has issued a Call, that every Person of Jewish Birth now living in the United States, Be in Palestine no later than June 30, 1948.

It is agreed that the only way to eliminate sweat-shop conditions, low wage slavery and general unemployment, is for all Jewish people to have a Country of their own. This is a call to all Law Makers and Citizens to donate toward the Palestine Movement. Send in your vote and donation to—American Jewish Committee, 386 - 4th Ave., NewYork 16, NewYork.

In a recent National vote, 10 million American Negroes, has favored the Senator Bilbo Bill, to create a country in Africa for all Negroes, Or to establish one State in the United States seperate, for the Negroes Only.

STANDARD FORM NO. 64

Office Memorandum · UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation DATE: March 14, 1946

FROM : SAC, St. Paul

SUBJECT: THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE
386 4th Avenue, New York 16, New York

Reverend LOUIS A. GALES, a contact of this office who supervises the publication of several Catholic newspapers and magazines in this city, has questioned the reliability of the American Jewish Committee, 386 - 4th Avenue, New York 16, New York.

He advised that he published an article entitled, "We Waged War on Hatred" which was described as "The Story of FRANCES SWEENEY, A Martyr of Our Own Time." This was published in "Catholic Youth" for January, 1946.

Father GALES advised that he received this article which he published practically verbatim from the American Jewish Committee, with the article having been written by NATHAN SCHACHNER. In "Catholic Youth" the article was credited to TERRENCE FOLEY.

Father GALES stated that subsequent to publishing the article he received numerous letters from people in the vicinity of Boston, Massachusetts which stated that FRANCES SWEENEY was in reality possibly a Communist and at least a dupe of the Communists in the Boston area, and that she was not the fine Catholic woman which the article claimed.

Father GALES advised that he had contacted clergy in the Boston area and determined that FRANCES SWEENEY was probably a Communist or a fellow traveler.

Father GALES also made available for inspection a book of the comic variety entitled, "3 Pals." The material for this book was received from NATHAN SCHACHNER, this time under the letterhead Community Service using the same address. This material which was supposedly based on reliable information, reported that three pals, one Catholic, one Jewish, and one Protestant, were mainstays of a champion high school football team, and despite differences in religion had maintained closest possible friendship, and had subsequently gone into the Armed Forces of the United States where they died heroes' deaths.

Subsequent to the publication of this book, Father GALES received a letter from a student at Notre Dame in which it was stated that the youth referred to as Catholic actually was not a Catholic, as the student's mother had attended memorial services for him in a non-Catholic church in his home town.

In view of the above occurrences, Father GALES believes that the American Jewish Committee is probably a propaganda outlet, possibly for the Communist Party.

The letterhead for the American Jewish Committee gives the following names:

JOSEPH M. PROSKAUER, President
JACOB BLAUSTEIN, Chairman Executive Committee
DAVID SHER, Chairman Administrative Committee
NATHAN M. COHRBACH, Treasurer
VICTOR S. RIESENFELD, Secretary
MORRIS D. WALDMAN, Vice-Chair. Exec. Com.
JACOB J. KAPLAN, Boston, V. Pres.
EDWARD LAZANSKY, Brooklyn, V. Pres.
FRED LAZARUS, Jr., Columbus, V. Pres.

TRAGEDY OF JEWS UNDER NAZISM TO UNFOLD AT INTERNATIONAL WAR TRIAL IN NUREMBERG

First Time in History That Leaders of State Will Be Tried for Crimes Against Humanity

The trial of the twenty-four Nazi leaders which is scheduled to begin on November 20 at Nuremberg marks the first time in history that the heads of a state will be judged by an international tribunal for carrying out a program of relentless persecution of the civilian inhabitants of their own and other countries. The indictment states clearly that the foremost victims of the persecution were the Jews of Germany and other European nations.

The trial is as unprecedented as the crimes committed by the accused. Before the international military tribunal, consisting of the representatives of the United States, France, Great Britain and the Soviet Union, will unfold the great tragedy of European Jewry since the rise of Hitlerism, a tragedy which culminated in the annihilation of more than five million Jews.

The 30,000 word indictment drawn against the major Nazi criminals, as individuals and as members of the Reich cabinet and various state and party organizations, deals in all of its four counts with the endless torture and misery inflicted by the Nazi leaders on the Jewish population of Europe. The indictment states that "of the 9,600,000 Jews who lived in the parts of Europe under Nazi domination, it is conservatively estimated that 5,700,000 have disappeared, most of them deliberately put to death by Nazi conspirators. Only remnants of the Jewish population of Europe remain."

The first count of the indictment which charges the Nazi leaders with the formulation and execution of a common plan or conspiracy to commit crimes against peace, war crimes and crimes against humanity, states:

> "Implementing their 'master race' policy, the conspirators joined in a program of relentless persecution of the Jews, designed to exterminate them. Annihilation of the Jews became an official state policy, carried out both by official action and by incitements to mob and individual violence. The conspirators openly avowed their purpose . . . The program of action against the Jews included disfranchisement, stigmatization, denial of civil rights, subjecting their persons and property to violence, deportation, enslavement, enforced labor, starvation, murder and mass extermination."

Count three of the indictment, which covers the crimes committed by the Nazis against the laws and customs of war, lists among these crimes "deliberate and systematic genocide" (extermination of racial and national groups). The indictment estimates the mass murders by the Germans at 9,381,988. It states that about 1,500,000 persons were exterminated in Maidanek and about 4,000,000 persons in Auschwitz, both of which are in Poland. In the ghetto of Lwow, from September 7, 1941 to July 6, 1943, over 133,000 persons were tortured and shot. These three centers of mass slaughter are only a few of the places listed in the indictment, where the Nazis committeed their iniquitous crimes.

The full extent of the Nazi crimes against the Jews is summarized in count four entitled "Crimes Against Humanity." The indictment states: "Jews were systematically persecuted since 1933; they were deprived of their liberty, thrown into concentration camps, where they were murdered and ill-treated. Their property was confiscated. Hundreds of thousands of Jews were so treated before 1 Sept. 1939. Since 1 Sept. 1939 the persecution of the Jews was redoubled; mil-

Committee Urges Britain to Repudiate Winwood's Remark on Martyrs

Branding the remarks of the British defense counsel at the British military trial of war criminals in Lueneburg as "an unfeeling insult to the martyred dead and to their surviving tormented kin," the American Jewish Committee called upon the British Government to repudiate the statement made by Major Thomas C. Winwood, British defense attorney. In his attempts to mitigate the guilt of the Nazi war criminals, Major Winwood declared that the "concentration camps contained undesirable elements from the dregs of the ghettos of Europe."

Pointing out that Major Winwood's statement had impeded the reeducation of the German people, Jacob Blaustein, chairman of the Committee's executive committee, in a communication addressed to Lord Halifax, Britain's ambassador to the U. S., further asserted that the favorable reaction of world public opinion to the British prosecution of Kramer, former commandant of the Belsen camp, and his accomplices might suffer serious damage because of this statement. Governmental repudiation of this statement "in a conspicuous and exemplary fashion," Mr. Blaustein declared, will spare His Majesty's Government much embarrassment and remove an occasion of distrust among the Allied Powers.

AJC Requests Truman's Support For Opening Gates of Palestine

Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, and Jacob Blaustein, chairman of the Committee's executive committee, recently called upon President Truman and urged him to extend his support in securing substantial Jewish immigration into Palestine for many of the unfortunate survivors of Nazism.

Basing their demands on recent reports of the tragic situation of Europe's Jews, the Committee representatives emphasized to the President that the question of substantial immigration into Palestine is not a matter of political ideology, but of life or death for large numbers of uprooted Jews in Germany and other European countries.

The President informed the Committee representatives of his "deep interest in the program to save human life by the securing of prompt issuance of a substantial number of certificates for Jewish immigration into Palestine" and assured them that he "was using the good offices of this country to effectuate that result."

Judge Proskauer and Mr. Blaustein expressed their full recognition of the earnest efforts that the President had already put forth toward securing increased Jewish immigration into Palestine and pledged their continued support of his efforts in this direction.

This action is in line with the stand taken by the American Jewish Committee over a long period—in favor of the abrogation of the White Paper and the prompt admission of the Jews to Palestine. The purpose of the Committee's representation to the President was to emphasize that their demand to open the gates of Palestine to large numbers of European Jewry is supported by all Jewish groups, Zionist and non-Zionist.

Archbishop Spellman Warns Americans Against Bigotry in Post-War Period

On two occasions during the past month, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York has stressed the oneness of purpose which unites all Americans and has warned his fellow countrymen against racial and religious bigotry.

Speaking at a patriotic and religious service held in New York for the purpose of honoring the war dead and the returning soldiers, he declared: "We must guard America and ourselves against hatreds, falsehoods, bigotry and intolerance, for they are the seeds from which sprung the curse of this world's worst war and which, sown again, will toll the end of civilization.

"Every true American and true Catholic must be the unequivocal opponent of every species of bigotry, the octopian monster that can destroy our cherished American inheritance and institutions. We must be on our guard lest hysteria following this war give rise to despotic bigotry, political, racial, occupational or religious."

At the Al Smith memorial dinner, he told the story of a Jewish boy from New York who was suffering from burns in a Manila hospital. Although the soldier was on the verge of death, he asked the Archbishop to inform his mother that he was in good health. The message could not be delivered, for the soldier died that night. "Yet," Archbishop Spellman declared, "that boy was the spirit and strength of America that fired through our fighting forces; he wanted to protect his mother at home from worry and fear. I was to him a minister of God and though not of his faith, he had faith in me. This is the Spirit of America . . . the spirit of a fighting, praying army—but a generous tolerant one."

Col. Schreiber to Plan AJC's Veterans Program

LT. COL. JULIUS SCHREIBER

Lt. Colonel Julius Schreiber, former Chief of the Program Section of the Army Orientation Branch of the War Department, has recently joined the staff of the American Jewish Committee, announced Dr. John Slawson, AJC executive vice-president. His work will be to plan a special educational program for the returning soldier and to prepare special programs for the use of labor, youth, church, business and women's groups in the various communities throughout the country.

During his service with the War Department, Col. Schreiber was in close and frequent contact with the troops, both in the continental United States and overseas, and prepared orientation materials, including Army talks, for general use and for specialized purposes. In his letter of commendation to Col. Schreiber, Major General F. H. Osborn, Director of the Information and Education Division of the Army Service Forces, declared: "These materials have combined a sound factual presentation with a high order of patriotism, and have contributed to the sense of personal mission so necessary to the soldier in his training for combat. . . . The effectiveness of your work deserves the highest commendation."

Colonel Schreiber has long attributed many of our social ills to the discrepancy which exists between our professed democratic credo and its application to our daily lives. In the belief that the lack of factual information at the "grass roots" level, the community, accounts in large part for this discrepancy, the American Jewish Committee, through Col. Schreiber, will attempt to bring to the men and women of the community the factual information which they need, in order that they may better understand their responsibilities as functioning American citizens.

Colonel Schreiber's home is in California, where, prior to the war, he was chief of research and shock therapy of the Stockton State Hospital.

Colonel Schreiber attended the University of Cincinnati as an undergraduate and, in 1932, received his M.D. degree there. He has done post-graduate work in neurology and psychiatry in San Francisco and New York.

O'Donnell Forced to Retract Vicious Anti-Semitic Attack

Public Pressure on Daily News Results in Grudging Denial of Charges

John O'Donnell, columnist of the New York Daily News and the Washington Times-Herald, has publicly apologized for the vicious and unfounded attack which he made against prominent public leaders of Jewish faith recently and which has aroused widespread indignation in the Jewish community and liberal non-Jewish circles.

In his syndicated column, "Capitol Stuff," of October 3, O'Donnell stated that the removal of General George S. Patton, Jr. from his post as commander of the Third Army in Germany illustrates "the secret and astoundingly effective might of this republic's foreign-born political leaders — such as Justice of the Supreme Court Felix Frankfurter, of Vienna, White House administrative assistant Dave (Devious Dave) Niles alias Neyhus and the Latvian ex-rabbinical student now known as Sidney Hillman." Asserting that the campaign to oust Patton began when the General slapped a soldier of Jewish descent and associated the words "yellow bellied" or "yellow streaked" with his "racial background," O'Donnell stated that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Associate Justice Frankfurter raised vigorous objections in the White House to Patton's use of the word "Jew."

Jewish Leaders Protest

Shocked into action by the false and obviously anti-Semitic character of O'Donnell's remarks, the leaders of six national Jewish organizations, including Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, lost no time in registering their disapproval with Captain Joseph Patterson and his cousin, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publishers of the New York Daily News and the Washington Times-Herald, respectively. In a letter of protest addressed to Capt. and Mrs. Patterson, the Jewish leaders demanded that, by way of retraction, their letter be published in as prominent a space as the one occupied by O'Donnell's attack. (The Chester, Pa. Times, the Lauderdale, Fla. News and Sentinel, and the Richmond, Cal. Independent, all of which are members of the syndicate purchasing O'Donnell's column, also published his anti-Semitic attack.)

The subsequent burial of the letter in the "Voice of the People" column of the Daily News was considered entirely insufficient as a repudiation of O'Donnell's anti-Semitic diatribes.

Times-Herald Version

"Capitol Stuff," as it appeared in an early edition of the Times-Herald, contained a passage which was omitted from the Daily News. The passage reads: "An honest birth record, spelling out the names of the paternal grandfathers of this triumvirate [Hillman, Niles and Frankfurter] would be interesting, even if the educated Christian American couldn't read it."

Mrs. Patterson found no space for the letter of the Jewish organizational heads in her paper. Instead she sent a wire, urging them to "read verses 41 and 42 of the gospel according to St. Luke." This passage from the New Testament reads: "But why dost thou see the speck in thy brother's eye, and yet dost not consider the beam in thy own eye? And how canst thou say to thy brother, 'Brother, let me cast out the speck from thy eye,' while thou thyself dost not see the beam in thy own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam from thy own eye, and then thou wilt see clearly to cast out the speck from thy brother's eye."

In the meantime, all of the public leaders mentioned in O'Donnell's column, with the exception of Justice Frankfurter, who

O'DONNELL COLUMN DENIED

Manhattan: In the Daily News of Oct. 3 there appeared a column by John O'Donnell. The content of this column was as flagrantly anti-Semitic as anything which has ever appeared in a metropolitan newspaper.

Proceeding upon a totally false premise, Mr. O'Donnell attempts to trace a sinister pattern of events leading to the recent action on Gen. Patton by his superior, Gen. Eisenhower. Mr. O'Donnell attempts to demonstrate that this was the result of Jewish efforts provoked by the "slapping" by Gen. Patton of an American soldier in a hospital in Sicily. To lend plausibility to his fantastic conclusion, Mr. O'Donnell alleges that the victim of the slapping was of Jewish descent and that this was what prompted several prominent American Jews to work secretly toward the "disgracing" of Gen. Patton.

These are the facts:

CARL HERMAN KUHL, THE SLAPPED SOLDIER, IS NOT JEWISH.

HIS FAMILY BELONGS TO THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE IN MISHAWAKA, IND.

No other evidence of the irresponsibility of Mr. O'Donnell's statements should be required. You are undoubtedly aware that at the time of this writing Mr. Morgenthau and Mr. Niles, mentioned by Mr. O'Donnell, have already issued public statements characterizing his charges as "wholly untrue." The entire content of Mr. O'Donnell's column is reminiscent of the bigotry which marked the propaganda of Hitler's Reich, an enemy whom the United Nations defeated and against whom all Americans were aligned in common purpose, regardless of race, creed, or color.

As the publisher of a newspaper with a circulation of more than 2,000,000, you are undoubtedly aware of the grave responsibility that is yours in respect to the formation of public attitudes.

We are informing you of the facts, which obviously you did not previously ascertain, in order that the public may be correctly informed. The necessity for the avoidance of false or sinister propaganda in order to preserve the foundation and the traditions of our democracy must be apparent to you.

We therefore request that you print this letter in the same prominent position in your newspaper in which you featured Mr. O'Donnell's column.

WISE, President American Jewish Congress; HENRY MONSKY, President B'Nai B'rith; ADOLPH HELD, Chairman Jewish Labor Committee; ARCHIE GREENBERG, National Commander Jewish War Veterans of the U. S.; FRANK L. WEIL, President National Jewish Welfare Board.

The above is a reproduction of the letter written by the leaders of six Jewish organizations as it was published in the N. Y. Daily News.

Equality and Peace

Recent international developments indicate that the principles of human rights and equality for all proclaimed by and incorporated into the United Nations charter are entering the stage of implementation and application to concrete cases. The leading powers which sponsored the human rights provisions are evidently determined to give them a prominent place in all arrangements now being made for a permanent peace.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, reporting to the American public on the first session of the Council of Foreign Ministers in London, stated that there was agreement among the Big Five on certain provisions of the peace treaty with Italy. One of them is that Italy "should undertake to maintain a bill of rights which will secure the freedoms of speech, religious worship, political belief and public meeting envisaged for Italy in the Moscow Declaration of November 1943, and which will confirm the human rights and fundamental freedoms set forth in the charter of the United Nations."

John Foster Dulles, adviser to Byrnes at the meeting of the foreign ministers, in his report to the public, declared that one of the basic principles espoused by the American representative was that all peace treaties with former Axis and satellite countries "should realize the conception of an international bill of rights . . . We were determined that the treaties of peace should give reality to that goal and make a practical beginning in the great project of assuring to all the enjoyment of human rights and fundamental freedoms."

The fact that the principle of human equality is unanimously accepted by the great nations as a cornerstone of life in former Axis-dominated countries is most encouraging. No less heartening is the fact that our own government is taking the lead in insisting that every peace treaty include the human rights provisions of the United Nations charter.

According to reports from London, one of the items on the agenda of the executive committee of the United Nations Organizations is a proposal for the establishment of a commission to draw up an international bill of rights; this proposal will probably be considered at the first meeting of the executive committee early in December.

It is also assumed that at this meeting there will be established the commission on human rights, whose particular subjects of inquiry would include the prevention of discrimination because of race, sex, language or religion and the protection of minorities.

During and after the San Francisco conference, there were many skeptics who belittled the human rights provisions by saying that they were mere words which will have no effect on the actual course of events. These same skeptics will not change their views because of the above facts. They will still say that incorporation of the principles of equality in peace treaties and promulgation of an international bill of rights will not change tradition and habit. This brand of skepticism, however, is so defeatist and destructive that it undermines every hope of building a more stable society after World War II. Of course, words by themselves will not abolish persecution, discrimination, injustice. There is evidence, however, that the words which proclaim equality have such a force of world public opinion behind them that, sooner or later, they will become part of reality itself.

It is the task of Jews and all liberal-minded people to keep pressing for the concrete realization of these principles; to encourage the statesmen who advocate their implementation; and to work relentlessly that these principles should be backed by the entire strength, moral and physical, of the United Nations Organization.

ACROSS THE DESK

Commentary

Rabbi Nahman ben Simha, a unique religious and poetical figure who lived in the small Ukrainian town of Bratzlav at the end of the eighteenth century once said to his disciples, "Every author should weigh his work to determine whether it has any connection with the 'Book of Humanity,' namely, whether humanity will receive any benefit from it."

This saying, although in a somewhat different sense, came to my mind while reading the first issue of Commentary, new monthly magazine sponsored by the American Jewish Committee and edited by Elliot E. Cohen. The impression I received from the editor's statement and from the nineteen contributions distributed over a hundred pages, was that one of the main drives behind this new venture is a striving to connect the Jew with the "Book of Humanity"; the desire to let the Jew look at himself and his problems through a world perspective and let the non-Jew look at the Jew, as a human being, whose problems, for all their distinctiveness, are also to a great extent, his own.

I, for one, find this a constructive attitude. It is an attitude of self-acceptance, of considering the Jewish person as one organic whole—a man of our Western civilization, an American, a Jew.

Next to Professor Salo Baron, leading Jewish historian who takes stock of the Jewish situation in post-Nazi Europe, there comes Professor Percy E. Corbett of Yale University, who discusses the principle of and the machinery for realizing an international bill of rights. Mordecai Grossman, with his critique of reconstructionism, a trend within the Jewish community, is a neighbor, in this issue, of James Rorty who draws a picture of the native Fascist demagogue. Randall Jarrell, the poet and perhaps the most stimulating writer on poetry in America today, deals with the poems of A. M. Klein who is deeply steeped in Jewish lore. Jarrell makes demands to Klein; he asks for a deeper and more unique poetic expression of Jewish experience in our time.

Here we have a Jewish publication of dignity, maturity — in the spirit of contemporary writing, a magazine which strives toward integrated and advanced thought and expression.

Morris D. Waldman's Retirement Announced

"With deep regret at the necessity of his retirement," Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, and Jacob Blaustein, chairman of its executive committee, announced that Morris D. Waldman, vice-chairman of the Committee's executive committee, has, at his own request, been relieved of all professional duties and responsibilities. Mr. Waldman's retirement at the age of sixty-six marks the termination of seventeen years of service with the American Jewish Committee; he will, however, continue his association with the Committee as a lay member of its executive committee.

MORRIS D. WALDMAN

In making this announcement, Judge Proskauer and Mr. Blaustein declared: "Morris Waldman has made a great contribution to the cause of Jewry all over the world and to the success of the American Jewish Committee, first as its administrative head and, since 1944, as vice-chairman of its executive committee. We hope that we may have the benefit of his wisdom and counsel for many years to come."

When Mr. Waldman became the administrative head of the American Jewish Committee in 1928, the Committee was concerned mainly with safeguarding the civic and religious rights of Jews abroad. Under his administration, steps were taken to meet the threat of anti-Semitism in the United States and, in 1933, a comprehensive educational program was established aimed at familiarizing the American people with the situation in Germany and the plight of the Jews. At this time, a public relations department, originally called the "survey committee," was inaugurated by the Committee.

In the later years of Mr. Waldman's administration, the American Jewish Committee established a Research Institute for Peace and Post-War Problems. Mr. Waldman strongly advocated the promulgation of an international bill of rights to safeguard minorities throughout the world. A similar concept was subsequently incorporated into the charter of the United Nations Organization, through the stimulation and leadership of Judge Proskauer and Mr. Blaustein, American Jewish Committee consultants to the San Francisco conference.

Mr. Waldman resigned from the post of executive vice-president of the Committee in 1944 and became vice-chairman of the executive committee. He was succeeded by Dr. John Slawson.

Prior to assuming the position of administrative head of the American Jewish Committee in 1928, Mr. Waldman had spent over a quarter of a century in other fields of social work and community organization.

Increased Chapter Activity Forecast

Recent announcement of the programs to be pursued by many of the chapters of the American Jewish Committee during the coming year give indications of increased activity on the local level and considerable expansion of the chapters' former sphere of operations.

The New York chapter has adopted a heavy schedule of activities for the coming winter, declared Ralph E. Samuel, chairman of the chapter. Its recently-established business practices committee, which is under the chairmanship of Robert D. Steefel, is studying selected trades and expects to formulate a plan of action shortly, aimed at raising the ethics of business practices in local industry.

To work with the Mayor's Committee on Unity, the New York chapter has established a subcommittee under the direction of Dr. Sidney S. Tedesche. Concerned with the betterment of community inter-relations, this committee will shortly announce its plan for chapter activity.

Practical support for the Ives-Quinn anti-job discrimination law of New York State and the elimination of duplicate effort among organizations concerned with employment discrimination are the two major tasks of the committee on discrimination in employment, according to Irving Engel, committee chairman. A meeting called in September by the National Community Relations Advisory Council, at the suggestion of this N. Y. chapter committee, was the first step toward the realization of the latter aim.

Four open meetings on questions of current Jewish interest will be held this year, announced Robert J. Misch, chairman of the membership and program committee.

At a recent meeting, the Wilkes-Barre chapter elected the following permanent officers: Jacob Silverblatt, chairman; Reuben Levy, vice-chairman; Edwin Lichtig, secretary-treasurer.

The membership committee of the Philadelphia chapter, which is under the chairmanship of Justice Horace Stern, added almost 100 new members to this chapter during the summer. Mr. Julius Klein alone brought in over 40 of the new members.

Mr. Klein was recently appointed chairman of the chapter committee on program and special activities. Serving with him on that committee are Meyer Feinstein, Arthur A. Fleisher, Bernard Segal, Simon J. Shaltz, Maxwell Smolens and Philip Sterling.

On Tuesday evening, October 30, 1945, the Philadelphia chapter held its first meeting of the 1945-46 season. Mr. James G. McDonald, former League of Nations High Commissioner for German Refugees and chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on Political Refugees, addressed the meeting.

The Trenton chapter held its opening meeting of the current season at the Stacy Trent Hotel on Monday evening, October 29, 1945.

Commentary Begins Symposium

The December issue of Commentary, the new monthly magazine sponsored by the American Jewish Committee and edited by Elliot E. Cohen, inaugurates a series of articles on one of the basic problems of our time—"The Crisis of the Individual." The first contribution is by Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr and is entitled "Can Human Rights Survive Technics?" Future contributors to the series will include John Dewey, Martin Buber, Ralph Barton Perry, Pearl S. Buck and Sidney Hook.

The December issue also contains a critical analysis of the "exodus" philosophy by Zachariah Shuster in his article "Are the Jews Finished in Europe?" Other articles include "Nobel's Prizes and the Atom Bomb" by Hertha Pauli, "Encounter in Edinburgh" by Alfred Kazin, "The Moyne Case: A Tragic History" by Gerold Frank, "George Gershwin's Music" by Kurt List, "The Truth About Reconstructionism" by Mordecai M. Kaplan, "Pillar of Salt" a story by Louis Berg and "Portrait of a Labor Leader" by Ben B. Seligman.

lions of Jews from Germany and from occupied Western countries were sent to the Eastern countries for extermination."

The historic significance of the forthcoming trial at Nuremberg cannot be overestimated. It constitutes a novel departure in international law. The verdict will affect not only the fate of the twenty-four miserable individuals responsible for the agony and suffering of millions of human beings but will, it is hoped, represent the beginning of a new morality, which says that no state or power may commit crimes against its citizens and go unpunished, and that it is the duty of civilized society as a whole, to take action against criminals who wear the cloak of state authority.

GEORGE Z. MEDALIE

EDWARD S. GREENBAUM

LEWIS L. STRAUSS

Medalie Appointed to High Judicial Post

George Z. Medalie, chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the American Jewish Committee and prominent figure in New York philanthropic and communal affairs, has recently been appointed associate judge of the New York State Court of Appeals by Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

One of the outstanding leaders of American Jewry, Mr. Medalie, as chairman of the AJC's foreign affairs committee, has made an important contribution to the development of the Committee's program aimed at the rehabilitation and resettlement of the surviving Jews of Europe. As associate chairman of the AJC's committee on peace problems, he helped formulate the Committee's recommendations to the delegates at the San Francisco conference.

A well-known figure in Jewish philanthropic circles, George Z. Medalie was formerly president of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York, and, in 1940, acted as chairman of its annual fund-raising appeal. He is past president of the Jewish Board of Guardians, leading New York social service agency for the prevention and treatment of behavior difficulties among juveniles. Since February 1944, he has been a member of the Mayor's Committee on Unity.

Mr. Medalie's appointment to the Court of Appeals climaxes a long career in public service beginning in 1910, when he was an assistant District Attorney of New York County, and continuing through to his appointment in 1931 by former President Herbert Hoover, as United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York.

He will succeed Judge John T. Loughran, who was appointed chief judge to fill the post left vacant by the death of Judge Irving Lehman.

War Honors Conferred On Greenbaum, Strauss

Recognition of their distinguished service performed in the armed forces of the United States was afforded two prominent members of the American Jewish Committee by the War and Navy Departments. Brig. Gen. Edward S. Greenbaum was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for "exceptionally meritorious service" in the office of the Under Secretary of War, and Commodore Lewis L. Strauss, special assistant to Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, was nominated by President Truman to be a Rear Admiral in the Naval Reserve.

A lawyer in civilian life and former United States assistant attorney, General Greenbaum served in the office of the Under Secretary of War first as acting chief of the Tax Amortization Section, and subsequently as executive assistant and executive officer. In a citation which praised his legal and administrative abilities, it was stated: "Without the skill which he displayed in this assignment the progress of the defense program would have been seriously retarded and our national security might have been gravely endangered."

Prior to his service in the United States Army, General Greenbaum was active in Jewish philanthropic and communal affairs. Director of the Federation Settlement, he was also a member of the American Jewish Committee's survey committee.

Commodore Lewis L. Strauss served in the last war as secretary to Herbert Hoover, when the latter was food administrator for Europe, and was decorated by six nations for relief work in Belgium and other European countries. President of the Jewish Agricultural Society for fifteen years, Commodore Strauss is a member of the American Jewish Committee's executive committee.

Educational Consultant Joins Committee Staff

ISRAEL B. RAPPOPORT

Israel B. Rappoport has joined the staff of the American Jewish Committee as educational consultant, announced Dr. John Slawson, Committee's executive vice-president.

In making this announcement, Dr. Slawson declared: "The establishment of a Jewish educational service within the American Jewish Committee is, in part, a response to the growing desire on the part of Jews throughout the country for an intellectual, cultural and spiritual program within the Jewish community itself. By striking a balance between the expenditure of effort in combatting anti-Semitism and the positive strengthening of Jewish life, the American Jewish Committee will seek to achieve equilibrium between integration into American life and Jewish distinctiveness."

Since 1922, when he obtained his Ph.B. degree from the University of Chicago, Israel B. Rappoport has played an active role in Jewish education and community life. He was the Supervisor of Schools of the Chicago Board of Jewish Education and director of the Committee on New Studies of the Jewish Education Committee of New York. Last year, he conducted a survey of the Jewish community of Detroit.

Author of five textbooks in Hebrew, Mr. Rappoport has contributed many articles on Jewish education, youth problems, and community organization to such magazines as Jewish Education, Opinion, Reconstructionist and the Contemporary Jewish Record, among others.

has made no public utterance since joining the Supreme Court of the United States, have flatly denied any connection with the Patton incident. Conclusive proof of the falsity of O'Donnell's report was forthcoming from the soldier in question, Carl Herman Kuhl, whose family belongs to the Christian Church of the Nazarene of Mishawaka, Ind. He has stated that, when Patton slapped him, he did not call him a Jew or even imply that he was.

About ten days after the anti-Semitic column first appeared, the Daily News ran an editorial on "Newspapers and Columnists." Pointing out that "columnists are given wide leeway in expressing their own views," the editorial explains that freedom of the press would be jeopardized, if columnists submitted their copy to the home office before publication. (The fact that one obnoxious passage which appeared in an early edition of the Times-Herald was deleted from O'Donnell's attack as it was published in the News, contradicts the News's statement implying that copy submitted by columnists is not edited.)

Remarking that O'Donnell's column "was construed as anti-Semitic," the editorial continues with a statement of the Daily News's position on the subject of anti-Semitism, to wit:

"The News is neither anti-Semitic nor pro-Semitic; neither anti-Catholic nor pro-Catholic; neither anti-Protestant nor pro-Protestant. One of the foundation stones of this country is freedom of religion—that each American should be allowed to worship God in the way he believes best."

On October 19, after the News was deluged with letters of protest from many individuals and organizations, John O'Donnell stated in his column that "after careful investigation," he has determined that the soldier whom Patton slapped is not a Jew and that the statements made against the four public leaders of Jewish faith "were untrue. We regret having made them."

The same retraction appeared in the Washington Times-Herald.

Message to Labor

In commemoration of Labor Day, the National Labor Service issued a message to the American worker in the form of a full-page advertisement, which praised his contribution to the defeat of the Axis powers and warned him to beware the enemies of democracy at home who still seek to divide the various racial and religious groups of the United States. Complete with a cartoon by Eric Godal depicting the American worker using a fly-swatter on a group of flies labeled anti-Negro, anti-Catholic and anti-Jewish, among others, this advertisement was designed for use either by unions or businessmen who might wish to finance its printing in the special Labor Day edition of union newspapers as well as the general press. Entitled "Swat Them All!" the message declares: "No hate bug is going to bite Joe Worker . . . He knows that all Americans together, fighting and working side by side, brought the not-so-supermen to their knees. Only with all of us together, working and building side by side, can we make a peace that will last."

SWAT THEM ALL!

FEPC Conference Held

The National Council for a Permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission recently held a special meeting in Washington to determine the ways and means of securing the enactment of legislation which would create a permanent FEPC. The conference, which was attended by representatives of labor, religious and other organizations, among them the American Jewish Committee, decided to push for action in both houses of Congress in order to force the proposed legislation out of House and Senate committees.

The American Jewish Committee has previously gone on record in favor of a permanent Fair Employment Practice Commission and has actively supported the adoption of anti-discrimination laws in both national and state legislatures. At this conference, the Committee was represented by David Sigman, director of the National Labor Service, who outlined the most effective methods of approaching members of the Senate and the House to urge passage of the FEPC bill, in one of the many panel discussions held during the course of the meeting.

Lauterpacht Appointment

H. Lauterpacht, eminent professor of law at the University of Cambridge in England, has been appointed to the British War Crimes Executive. Professor Lauterpacht is the author of An International Bill of the Rights of Man, a treatise presenting the arguments in favor of an international bill of rights. The American Jewish Committee cooperated closely with Prof. Lauterpacht and facilitated the publication of this study.

Attempt to Revive Christian Front Meetings in N.Y. Fails

Agitators Maertz, Elmhurst and Mertig Land in Jail

The opening shot in the campaign to revive anti-Semitic street meetings in New York City turned out to be less successful than its initiators had anticipated. For several weeks circulars were distributed throughout Long Island announcing that an outdoor meeting of the Christian Front would be held in Queens Village on Saturday night, October 6. The announcement stated that former Senator Reynolds and other distinguished speakers would be present.

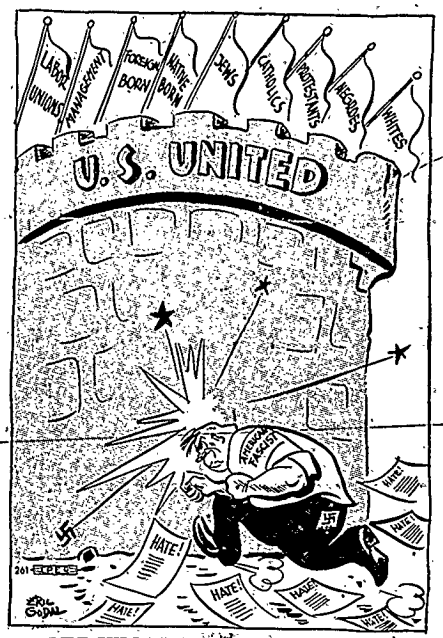

The meeting was called by a man who calls himself C. Daniel Kurtz but whose real name is Casimir Kudelsky. Senator Reynolds, it should be mentioned, discreetly remained away. Kurtz had been convicted on September 26, 1945 for disorderly conduct committed while addressing a similar meeting. At that time he was sent to Kings County Hospital for observation, and, after being pronounced sane, was sent back to court where he received a sentence of thirty days in the workhouse. Although the Christian Front had publicly announced that it was going out of existence, Kurtz now claims that it is functioning, and that he is Queens County leader of the organization.

The meeting began shortly after 8 o'clock. There were about 250 people in the audience, including many policemen in uniform, and a number of plainclothesmen who circulated in the audience. Of the others in the crowd, there were a number of Jews but the audience seemed to be predominantly non-Jewish. It has been estimated by observers of the meeting that Kurtz and his followers numbered less than fifty. The Gentiles in the audience, other than Kurtz and his gang, were outspoken in their disapproval of the meeting and the sentiments expressed by the speakers.

Servicemen Object

At the beginning of the meeting there were a number of oblique references to Jews, but the speakers apparently had been instructed to refrain from direct references. The first speaker of the evening was Fred Kister of Chicago, who calls himself the Commander of the Christian War Veterans. This organization is a Gerald Smith subsidiary, and Kister was imported from Chicago by Kurtz and his crowd for the express purpose of spreading the Smith line of bigotry in New York. Kister's claim to be a military leader is based upon obscure service in the army in this country.

The next speaker, and the star attraction of the evening, was Homer Maertz of Chicago who has a criminal record as well as a long history of vicious anti-Semitic activity. Maertz has been closely identified with Nazi organizations, and was one of the founders of the German-American National Alliance, an organization raided by the Dies Committee and declared by it to be subversive.

Maertz is a fairly effective speaker, and as he warmed up to his talk, he put aside the caution of the other speakers, and began to attack the Jews openly and by name. It was during his speech that two young marines wearing overseas ribbons raised their arms mockingly and exclaimed "Heil Hitler!" Another marine called out "What the hell do you think we have been fighting for!" They were calmed down by the police and Maertz went ahead with his attack on the Jews. Anti-Semitic literature was being distributed to the crowd.

AJC on Scene

At this point, representatives of the American Jewish Committee and the Jewish War Veterans who were present in the audience concluded that a violation of the law had been committed, and decided that Maertz should be arrested. Together with Isadore Ginsberg, State Commander of the Jewish War Veterans, they approached Police Inspector Corell and demanded that he arrest Maertz as soon as he concluded his speech. The Inspector said that he had heard or seen nothing to justify a complaint, whereupon Ginsberg declared that he would make the arrest himself and demanded that the police sustain him in the arrest. A representative of the American Jewish Committee convinced the Inspector that this was the proper legal procedure, so when Maertz descended from the platform he was led away and arrested by Mr. Ginsberg with the assistance of the police officers present. The arrest was handled quietly to prevent any possible disorder and most of the people in the audience were unaware that it had occurred.

Meeting a Fizzle

The other speakers were Ernest F. Elmhurst, one of the defendants in the Washington sedition trial, whose real name is Hermann Fleischkopf and who has been identified with a number of German organizations; Kurt Mertig who is known as an anti-Semitic agitator; and Mrs. Catherine Veronica Brown of Philadelphia, president of the Crusading Mothers of Pennsylvania and the National Blue Star Mothers, both of which are anti-Semitic organizations.

The meeting broke up at about 10:30 and the consensus was that it had been a complete fizzle. In the meantime Maertz was taken to the station house in Jamaica where he was held on $500 bail. Since he was unable to raise it that night, he remained in jail.

Held for Trial

The following morning he was arraigned before Magistrate D'Andrea who, after reading the inflammatory literature that was distributed at the meeting, directed that a complaint be drawn against Maertz, Elmhurst and Mertig, charging them with unlawful assembly, which is a misdemeanor.

Bail was thereupon fixed in the sum of $5,000 for Maertz and at $2,000 apiece for Mertig and Elmhurst. The defendants were held for trial in the Court of Special Sessions.

They remained in jail for several days until they were bailed out by their friends. They were represented in Court by William Barr who at one time was Assistant District Attorney in Queens County.

AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

This organization is described as being founded in 1906, and reportedly incorporated in the year 1911. Its fundamental purpose is said to be dedicated to safeguarding the civil and religious rights of Jewish people throughout the world and to combating discrimination and prejudice. The American Jewish Committee allegedly has a propaganda bureau in which it employs several investigators allegedly under the leadership of George J. Mintzer.

Reports received in 1943 and 1944 discussed the relationships between the American Jewish Committee and the American Jewish Conference, a pro-Zionist roof organization, organized in 1943, and composed of forty to fifty Jewish-American organizations. It was said that the American Jewish Committee was approached to join the Conference in February, 1943, but that the Committee objected initially on the basis that it did not agree with the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine, feeling that Jews in the Western World where they are legally regarded as a religious group, rather than as a separate nationality, as in Eastern Europe might find their citizenship status impaired by the existence of a Jewish national state. However, a compromise was reached under which the American Jewish Committee reportedly agreed to declare itself in favor of a Jewish government of Palestine when the Jewish population of that country became a majority. In exchange the Zionists were to renounce the portion of their program which pledged them "to foster Jewish nationalism in all countries throughout the world."

Although anti-Zionist members of the American Jewish Committee refused to endorse such an agreement, Judge Joseph M. Proskauer who succeeded Maurice Wertheim as president of the American Jewish Committee, stimulated the acceptance and made the desired public announcement.

The membership of the American Jewish Committee in the American Jewish Conference continued until the fall of 1944, at which time it withdrew from the Conference along with the Jewish Labor Committee in view of the admission to membership of the Jewish People's Fraternal Order, a Communist dominated group affiliated with the International Workers Order. At this time, the subject organization attacked the American Jewish Congress by stating that it was not a representative body of Jewish groups and that it was packed completely with "Zionists."

The following statement has been supplied by a confidential source as representing the attitude of the president of the American Jewish Committee, Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, with regard to his evaluation of the Committee's stand with respect to Palestine:

RECORDED - 18 10 & INDEXED F B I APR 2 1946

"The American Jewish Committee is pro-Palestine, - it wants to help in the ultimate objective of securing a real homeland in Palestine, as distinguished from securing a Commonwealth in Palestine. As you all know, there are very few Zionists who do not believe exactly what we believe, namely, that out of the present turmoil must come some form of trusteeship or protectorate for Palestine for the present. I spent an hour talking with Stephen Wise (of the World Jewish Congress and the American Jewish Congress) yesterday, and while he cannot commit himself publicly by reason of his inter-Zionist relationship, that is what he really believes and that is what he wants. Confidentially, his hope is that there will be an American British protectorate for Palestine. That, of course, is a project which we could unqualifiedly endorse as the American Jewish Committee. The one essential, as I see it, that the Steering Committee did not impose on my course of conduct that I cannot in good conscience follow, namely, to act as though I were not President of the American Jewish Committee; if the Steering Committee persists in this determination there will have to be found some other method of handling it. I will not personally embark on a project which puts me personally in what I regard as an impossible and assailable position, and incidentally one which I think means ruin in its public relations for the American Jewish Committee."

It is also to be observed that in recent months the American Jewish Committee has been attacked by the "Daily Worker," official East Coast Communist organ, for its anti-Communist assertions. An example of this was seen in the October 1, 1945 issue of the "Daily Worker," wherein an article appeared entitled "Hits A.J.C.'s Labor-Baiting." This article indicated that Judge Justine Wise Polier on the day previous condemned the refusal of the American Jewish Committee to recognize the CIO United Office and Professional Workers of America. The A.J.C., Judge Polier said, seeks "through a Red-baiting technique somewhat reminiscent of Mrs. Dilling to injure the leaders of the Union and it seeks despite disclaimer, to interfere, through threats and emotional appeals, with the rights of workers to act independently in the selection of the Union representatives." Judge Polier was further quoted as stating that she deeply regretted the position taken by the American Jewish Committee "because I believe it thus aligns itself with the Red-baiting anti-labor groups in this country who are now engaged in building or creating evidence to discredit the CIO as the first step in a general attack on organized labor." The article concluded by stating that Lewis Merrill, UOPWA president, had recently filed a libel suit against the Committee.

The views of the American Jewish Committee with regard to the United Office and Professional Workers of America as well as to Communism in general, were elucidated by an address made by David Shor, Chairman of the Administrative Committee, at a joint meeting of the American Jewish Committee on August 2, 1945. Photostatic copies of this address are attached hereto.

I have reviewed the invitations for the month of April which were declined by the Director on the grounds that he would be on the West Coast. The following are the ones on which some question might arise:

April 3, 1946 - The Director was invited to present Gold Medal of the Boys' Club of Madison Square to Davis Armstrong. The Director expressed his regret as he would be in a travel status.

Director's notation: "No. H."

April 5, 1946 - The Director several weeks ago agreed to appear on the FBI program, "This Is Your FBI," to make a statement on the Boy's Clubs. Jerry Devine was subsequently advised the Director would be in a travel status and could not do this, and arrangements were made for the narrator to deliver the Director's message.

Director's notation: "No. H."

The New York County Grand Jury Association wanted to present the Director a medal. LaGuardia called, and subsequently we wrote a letter stating the Director would be on the Coast and that this could not be done during the month of April.

Director's notation: "No. H."

April 14, 1946 - David K. Niles called the Director on the phone inviting him to attend the annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee in Pittsburgh on Sunday, April 14. The Director explained he would be on the West Coast.

Director's notation: "No. H."

April 25, 1946 - The Judge Baker Foundation is having a dinner meeting in Boston for the purpose of stimulating interest in the Judge Baker Foundation. The Director indicated he would like to do this for Dr. William Healy but could not make it. Accordingly, Mr. Clegg was designated.

These are the only commitments, as I have indicated, on which I see any possible question that might arise on the occasion of the Director's not going on his trip; other than the American Newspaper Editors Association dinner and the desire of the Michigan editors to see the Director, and the Gridiron Club Dinner, which have been covered in a separate memorandum.

Reference is made to your letter of March 14, 1946, requesting that information with regard to the captioned organization and its leading functionaries be submitted to your office, along with data with regard to the Community Service and Nathan Schachner.

For your information concerning the American Jewish Committee, there are attached summaries of the information contained in the Bureau's files with regard to this organization. You will observe that the American Jewish Committee is a non-Zionist organization and that it has been anti-Communist in its views. You will also note that the American Jewish Committee along with the Jewish Labor Committee, withdrew from membership in the American Jewish Conference in the fall of 1944, because the Conference admitted to membership the Jewish People's Fraternal Order, a Communist dominated group affiliated with the International Workers Order.

In view of the above and inasmuch as it appears that no useful purpose will be served by so doing, a check of the Bureau's files is not being made with regard to the several names which you submitted as being officials of the American Jewish Committee.

A search of the Bureau's files was made on the basis of the identifying data available with regard to the Community Service and Nathan Schachner and no information was disclosed.

Your office is to conduct no inquiry with regard to the American Jewish Committee or any of its members, but you are instructed to furnish the Bureau with any pertinent data which come to your attention relating to its activities and functions.

SECURITY MATTER

Reference is made to the letter to the Director from the St. Paul Field Division, dated March 14, 1946, a carbon copy of which was forwarded to the New York Field Division and in which a request was made of this office to conduct a name index check regarding the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE, the COMMUNITY SERVICE, NATHAN SCHACHNER and the listed members of the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE set forth in the referenced letter.

The referenced letter reflected that Rev. LOUIS A. GALES, a contact of the St. Paul Field Division, was of the belief that the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE might possibly be a propaganda outlet for the Communist Party.

The indices of the New York Field Division failed to reflect that an investigation has ever been made regarding the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE, the COMMUNITY SERVICE, NATHAN SCHACHNER or any of the members of the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE. However, a report was received by this office in October of 1944 from the Office of Strategic Services which reads, in part, as follows:

"NON-ZIONIST PUBLICATIONS"

"In sharp opposition to the American Jewish Congress stands the American Jewish Committee, whose leadership comprises the upper stratum of assimilated American Jews and is opposed to Jewish nationalism. The American Jewish Committee, whose headquarters are in New York, publishes a bi-monthly magazine, the 'Contemporary Jewish Record.' Present editorial board consists of Morris D. Waldman, John Slawson, Harry Schneiderman, and Julius B. Maller. Circulation is estimated to be about 6,000.

Although the 'Contemporary Jewish Record' reflects the assimilationist and non-Zionist flavor of the American Jewish Committee, which supports the Jewish settlement in Palestine as a haven of refuge but not as a nationalist political venture, the magazine attempts to present objectively all important events of Jewish life, opening its columns upon occasion to Zionists. Since withdrawing from the American Jewish Conference in October 1943 over the issue of a Jewish Commonwealth in Palestine, the American Jewish Committee has also been distributing to its members a monthly orga bulletin, 'The Committee Reporter', outlining the Committee's program activities."

April 11, 1946

In connection with the reported withdrawal of the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE from the AMERICAN JEWISH CONFERENCE, an article in the "Daily Mirror", dated October 25, 1943, reads as follows:

"Withdrawal from the American Jewish Conference, which is dedicated to the establishment of a Jewish homeland in Palestine, was voted yesterday by the executive committee of the American Jewish Committee.

"The Committee, asserting that the Conference is not wholly representative of American Jewry, resolved to continue its fight for abrogation of the British White Paper that halts Jewish immigration in Palestine, but declared its major activity to be combating anti-Semitism in the U. S. Framers of the resolution included former Justice Proskauer, Chief Justice Irving Lehman and Justice Horace Stern of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court."

Further information contained in the New York files reflected that one JACOB LANDAU, who was investigated by this office under the character INTERNAL SECURITY - R, in connection with the LYDIA ALTSHULER case, founded the JEWISH TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY in the Hague, Holland in 1917. The JEWISH TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY is stated to be supported largely by wealthy and influential Jews of the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE and the original purpose of this organization was to report, for the attention of American Jews and others here in the United States, the persecution and ill treatment of Jews in all parts of the world.

LANDAU was born in Sadagar, Austria, on July 2, 1892, his parents being reportedly Russian by birth. His newspaper career started with the founding of the JEWISH TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY in 1917 and in 1921 he came to the United States and started the JEWISH CORRESPONDENCE BUREAU, 480 Lexington Avenue, New York City, which was incorporated into the JEWISH TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY on March 7, 1921.

It is understood that LANDAU has often boasted of his connections with the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE and also of his high contacts in governmental circles, particularly of his contact with Mr. ADOLF A. BERLE.

A review of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICAN JEWRY, 1938 and 1939 edition, reflects that all of the following members of the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE have their names listed in this volume:

Letter to Director
NY 100-79301

1. JOSEPH M. PROSKAUER
2. JACOB BLAUSTEIN
3. NATHAN M. OHRBACH

6. FRED LAZARUS, JR.
7. M. C. SLASS
8. HORACE STERN
9. IRVING LEHMAN
10. HENRY WINEMAN
11. ABRAM I. ELKUS
12. JOHN SLAWSON

From the information set forth under the name of MORRIS D. WALDMAN, it was ascertained that he has been connected with the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE since 1928. However, from the information set forth above it appears that the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE must have been an organization since 1921 when the JEWISH TELEGRAPHIC AGENCY was first incorporated.

In view of the above information no further investigation is being conducted by this office regarding the AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE.

On August 13, 1946 Bob Bannerman, Security Officer, State Department, telephoned and advised that an ad under "International Affairs" had appeared in the "Evening Star" for August 12, 1946 for "a man who is familiar with State Department and foreign embassy operations, write to box 182-Z." Mr. Bannerman stated that this was not the exact wording of the ad but that it was to this effect.

Mr. Bannerman stated that the State Department inquired into this matter and ascertained that the ad was placed in the paper by the American Jewish Committee, 1420 New York Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. THE NATIONAL LABOR SERVICE

New York, N. Y.,

October 24, 1946.

No. 386 Fourth Avenue, New York City is a 19 story office building. The National Labor Service is in part of Room 1815. It was ascertained that the Natio[redacted] Labor Service is a branch organization of the American Jewish Committee. The Amer[redacted] Jewish Committee has been in being during the past 40 years, and its aims and activ[redacted] ties are generally well known.

The National Labor Service has been in being during the past two years. According to Mr. David Sigman, director of the National Labor Service, its ac[redacted] are intended to reduce racial and religious discrimination by preparing and di[redacted] buting printed matter. Distribution is for the most part made by contributing the printed matter to C.I.O. and A.F.L. union locals throughout the United States. Financing of the National Labor Service's activities is for the most part by contributions to the American Jewish Committee although in some cases unions pay an amount equivalent to the cost of preparing the printed matter they receive.

Mr. Sigman stated that the National Labor Service is a non-profit organization.

ANTI-SEMITISM IN HARLEM

The Universal African Nationalist Movement, a pan-African Negro organization, is presently conducting extensive anti-Semitic propaganda activities among the Negro population of New York City.

Presided over by Benjamin D. Gibbons, its president, a meeting was held at the quarters of the organization in Harlem on December 22, 1946, at which Gibbons, Carlos Cook, UANM organizer, and others made violently anti-Semitic speeches. The speeches dealt mainly with the "exploitation" of the Negroes by Jewish merchants in Harlem and other colored sections.

The headquarters of the Universal African Nationalist Movement are filled nightly with members and visitors. Hostesses are always on hand to distribute the organization's literature. The UANM has spread its activities to Brooklyn, where it holds a weekly meeting.

Coincidentally with this activity, anti-Semitic street meetings have been reported in Harlem, some of them using loud speakers.

Active in the UANM is the Rev. Charles Greene, who boasts that he was one of the charter members of Marcus Garvey's Pan-African movement, The Universal Negro Improvement Association, which flourished in the '20's.

The UANM bears a strong resemblance to the long defunct Garvey movement. Garvey, who propagandized a scheme to recolonize all the Negroes of the world in the "African homeland," and who proclaimed himself "Emperor of the Kingdom of Africa" or "Provisional President of the Republic of Africa," had organized the Black Star Steamship Line to provide transportation for the followers of his movement. In connection with his promotion of the steamship line, Garvey in 1925 was convicted of mail-fraud by the United States District Court, Southern District of New York, and sentenced to a term in Atlanta penitentiary. He died in 1940.

BROOKLYN MEETING OF WOMEN FOR U.S.A.

Largely attended by Christian Front and Coughlinite adherents, Women for U.S.A. held a "mass meeting" in Brooklyn's Academy of Music on the night of January 3rd. Approximately 350 persons were present in the auditorium, which seats 3,000.

In addition to Catherine P. Baldwin, president of the group, the principal speakers of the occasion were former Senator Rush Holt, Father Edward Lodge Curran and John Henihan, Christian Front orator.

To the obvious disappointment of the audience, Holt's address consisted of a listlessly delivered anti-New Deal diatribe, with the usual recitation of "alphabetical agencies."

Father Curran, after a standing ovation from the audience, launched into an impassioned defense of Franco, and attacked the United Nations.

Henihan went into a familiar "international banker" routine, interspersed with such expressions as "more gelt."

During the course of the meeting, Mrs. Baldwin's announcement that John Roy Carlson was present, brought forth boos and cat-calls from the audience. After the meeting, Carlson, while on his way to the subway station, was struck by hoodlums.

The literature distributed at the meeting included a leaflet advertising a pamphlet defending Tyler Kent.

JOHN HENIHAN

Now in his thirties, John Henihan (one of the speakers at the Brooklyn meeting) at one time was known as the "boy-orator of the Christian Front" in the New York City area. Always very active in that group, he ran his own Christian Front meetings.

In 1941, he left his job as a hotel employee to work as an assistant circulation manager and "trouble-shooter" for Father Coughlin's Social Justice in the Eastern area, under the direction of Bernard D'Arcy, official distributor of that publication.

Henihan has been a constant supporter and worker for meetings sponsored by Father Edward L. Curran. In May 1942, he made all arrangements for Father Curran's "I Am An American Day" rally at Knights of Columbus Hall in Brooklyn. On December 2, 1945, Henihan sold tickets and read resolutions passed at a meeting of the Save America Committee in Brooklyn, at which Father Curran was one of the principal speakers.

On November 10, 1945, under the auspices of the American Citizens' Committee, he spoke at a Father Coughlin birthday celebration, which was held in the auditorium of St. Joseph's Church, Brooklyn, of which Father Curran is the pastor. CHARLES E.

Henihan was the main speaker at a meeting held in New York City on July 12, 1942 by the Post-War Amity League, largely composed of Christian Front elements, where he exhorted for the election of an exclusively "Christian-American" Congress.

He shared the platform with former Congressman Hamilton Fish and Miss May A. Quinn at an "anti-Communist meeting" in Brooklyn on October 1, 1946. Miss Quinn in 1946 was involved in charges before the New York City Board of Education, arising out of her use of bigoted source-material in her class-work, receiving a fine and a reprimand.

Henihan has appeared with Mrs. Baldwin as far back as March 27, 1941, when both addressed a meeting at Philadelphia.

UPTON CLOSE

In his column which appeared in the New York Journal-American of January 9th, Upton Close attacks the President's appointment of Lewis E. Strauss to the Atomic Energy Board in the following language:

> Associated with Lilienthal...is Lewis E. Strauss, also a New Dealer and a member of Kuhn, Loeb & Company, international bankers.
> Americans traditionally distrust international bankers, remembering how many of them have figured in world power politics and exploitation.

Rear Admiral Strauss, USNR, a member of the American Jewish Committee, served with distinction in both World Wars.

SHORT NOTES

The United Sons of America, Klan-like Detroit Group, is planning more extensive activity for 1947. George Mathis and the Rev. E. Hicks were elected president and vice-president, respectively.

Larry Asman, Gerald L. K. Smith stooge and leader of the Christian Veterans' Intelligence Bureau, is now studying for the ministry in Florida.

Ken Weber, Detroit activist, is preparing to issue a new monthly paper in an effort to secure a religious youth following.

Gothic Ripples, scurrilous bulletin of Arnold Leese, British anti-Semite, which is widely circulated among bigots here, advises that "the strongest weapon you have against Bolshevik Russia is anti-Jewish propaganda."

Dear Dave:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 28, 1947, with which you attached a confidential memorandum on Communism which is to be used as a basis for discussion by the American Jewish Committee. I have read this memorandum with interest and your courtesy in directing it to my attention is appreciated. Along the line of this matter, I stated when I appeared before the Un-American Activities Committee of the House of Representatives, "I confess to a real apprehension so long as Communists are able to secure ministers of the gospel to promote their evil work and espouse a cause that is alien to the religion of Christ and Judaism."

In accordance with your request, the memorandum referred to is being returned herewith.

Sincerely yours,

RE: JEWISH OPPOSITION TO COMMUNISM

Original cannot be located and is not on record. When original is received in Files Division it will be filed either with this copy or may be given a new serial.

7/8/47 G.F.

A communication dated April 28, 1947 has been received from Mr. David K. Niles, Administrative Assistant to the President, transmitting a confidential memorandum on Communism, which is to be used as a basis for discussion by the American Jewish Committee at its Executive Board meeting to be held on the weekend of May 10, 1947. Generally speaking, this memorandum discusses the necessity for Jewish elements to combat this ideology and to openly refute the attempt of Communist forces to link anti-Semitism and anti-Communism, thus identifying Jews with the Communist movement.

The Bureau's files contain numerous reference with regard to the American Jewish Committee, which was founded in 1906 and incorporated in New York in 1911 as an organization dedicating itself to safeguarding the civil and religious rights of Jewish people throughout the world, and to combatting discrimination and prejudice.

This organization has continually been anti-Communist in expression and in the latter part of 1944 it withdrew from the American Jewish Conference, a Zionist roof organization, when the Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order, a Communist-dominated group, affiliated with the International Workers Order, was admitted to membership. Also, it is observed that the Daily Worker has on several occasions attacked the American Jewish Committee and labeled it a "Red-baiting" organization.

Communists, for their own sinister purposes, are also seeking to identify Jewish interests with Communist interests.....The spreading of these lies is a potent breeder of anti-semitism. It is urgent that we expose these lies and dissociate in the public mind the identification of Jews with Communism."

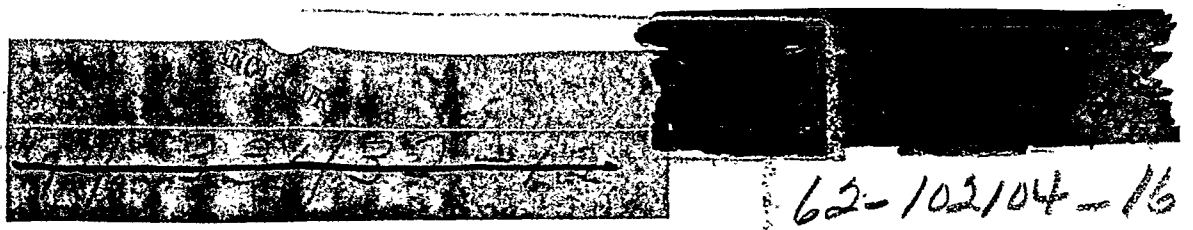

The memorandum then goes on to say that "We must expose Communism for what it is, a conspiratorial movement that is seeking to undermine and destory our Democracy." It states that the AJC has a twofold purpose for engaging in this fight: (1) Communism is a danger to Jewish security. "The fact is that it is constantly attacking us in a most insidious fashion, by exposing us to its unwanted embraces and giving widespread currency to the lie that there is any identity of interest..." (2) Jewish welfare is bound up with the preservation of democratic principles and ideals. "Jews have been traditionally in the forefront of every liberal movement. Communism is the negation of liberalism...."

The memorandum further points out that the American Jewish Committee must be careful to not only fight Communism and thereby acquire a number of unsavory allies, such as Father Coughlin, Gerald L. K. Smith, and others, who have waged war against Communism for years, but that it also must be hostile to all phases of Fascism. "We should unequivocally state that our fight is against both brands of totalitarianism."

It is further stated that it is possible to demonstrate conclusively that Communism is a conspiracy threatening the welfare of our country and in support of this contention statements of the Director, former Attorney General Francis Biddle and U. S. Supreme Court Judges in the Bridges and Schneiderman cases are set forth.

The memorandum also points out that it is undoubtedly true that there are Jews in the Communist movement just as there are Jews in almost every other sort of movement in the U. S. and that it is equally true that the top leadership in the Communist Party is non-Jewish.

The concluding section of the memorandum deals with illustrations of the previous anti-Communist position of the American Jewish Committee, wherein it is stated, "The proposal now under consideration contemplates giving wider publicity to our position and augmenting it by additional activities. Our experience has convinced us that lies such as the Jewish-Communist lie cannot be overcome merely by contradiction or by presentation of the facts. It will not be enough, therefore, for us to refute the charge that Communism is a Jewish movement. Our program, to be effective, will require that we take an aggressive, affirmative position.

Background Memorandum on Communism

Introduction

For many years the charges have been repeatedly made that most Jews are Communists, that Communism is a Jewish movement, and that the Communist Party is dominated by Jews. These lies are growing in intensity and are being more widely believed. In the past the accusations were made, for the most part, by anti-semites. To-day the Communists, for their own sinister purposes, are also seeking to identify Jewish interests with Communist interests.

The spreading of these lies is a potent breeder of anti-semitism. It is urgent that we expose these lies and dissociate in the public mind the identification of Jews with Communism.

To do this we must expose Communism for what it is, a conspiratorial movement that is seeking to undermine and destroy our democracy. To those liberals who express fear that such a campaign might endanger liberalism we must make it completely clear that Communism is liberalism's greatest enemy.

This should be the keynote of our campaign. Democracy means free speech, a free press, religious liberty, trial by jury, and the right of citizens to choose their representatives in a free election. It means the dignity of the individual. Communism means the antithesis of all these things. Moreover the Communist party in the United States has been proven to be a conspiratorial movement in which its members hide under aliases, forge passports and other public documents, and give their primary allegiance to a foreign power. A casual reading of the Daily Worker will convince the most skeptical that the Communist line in this country shifts with every fluctuation of policy in Moscow.

We have a twofold purpose for engaging in this fight. The first is that Communism is a danger to Jewish security. It has been suggested that we should not attack it because it does not attack us. The fact is that it is constantly attacking us in a most insidious fashion, by exposing us to its unwanted embraces and giving widespread currency to the lie that there is any identity of interest. Communism is attacking us by increasing anti-semitism.

But we have a broader and more cogent purpose. Jewish welfare is bound up with the preservation of democratic principles and ideals. Jews have been traditionally in the forefront of every liberal movement. Communism is the negation of liberalism. We should fight it because it imperils those values that we deem essential to a good life.

One of the devices used by the Communists in this country has been to infiltrate into liberal movements and organizations, and frequently they have succeeded in achieving domination. They have thus cast discredit upon many worthwhile causes. This has created confusion in the minds of a number of well-meaning persons to whom the description "red-baiter" has become a term of opprobrium. It must be made clear that we are not abating one iota our devotion to liberalism and the defence of civil liberties. We must sharply differentiate between the realistic and the neurotic aspects of anti-Communism.

We will find that we have acquired a number of unsavory allies in this fight. Father Coughlin, Gerald Smith and others have waged war against Communism for years. We are not joining forces with them. Our hostility to fascism, which they represent, is undiminished. We should unequivocally state that our fight is against both brands of totalitarianism.

Communism is a Subversive Conspiratorial Movement

It is possible to demonstrate conclusively that Communism is a conspiracy that threatens the welfare of our country, but this would require a treatise that would exceed the limits of this memorandum. We will, for the present, content ourselves with the considered statements of responsible public officials, based upon accumulated evidence, and upon the judicial declarations of the highest court in the land.

Former Attorney General Francis Biddle, well-known as a liberal, and certainly no red-baiter, declared while he was Attorney General that "Communism is a criminal conspiracy." J. Edgar Hoover testified before a Congressional committee that "the American Communist Party is a fifth column if ever there was one." Hoover has repeatedly branded the Communist movement in this country as subversive.

An even more impressive authority, none other than the Supreme Court of the United States, has declared that Communism is subversive. In the Harry Bridges Case (Bridges v. Wixon, 326 U.S. 135) proceedings were instituted to deport Bridges on the ground that he was a member of or affiliated with the Communist Party of the United States. This proceeding was instituted under a statute which authorized the deportation of any alien who is a member of or affiliated with an organization that believes in, advises, advocates or teaches "the overthrow by force or violence of the government of the United States."

In the deportation proceedings hearings were held before the Honorable Charles B. Sears, former Judge of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York. Judge Sears held lengthy hearings; the record in the case is more than 7500 pages. He found that the Communist Party was an organization of the character described in the statute, and that the Marine Workers Industrial Union, a Communist front union, was an organization of the same character, and that Harry Bridges had been affiliated with these organizations and had been a member of the Communist Party. He therefore recommended that Bridges be deported.

A Writ of Habeas Corpus was obtained, and the case eventually reached the Supreme Court which reversed the deportation order, not because the Communist Party was not the type of organization proscribed by the statute, but because Bridges' membership and affiliation had not been proven.

It is significant that the judges who voted to reverse the deportation order and the three judges who voted for its affirmance appeared to agree that the Communist Party is the type of organization described in the statute, namely that it advocates the overthrow of the government by force and violence. Judge Douglas who wrote the majority opinion, in speaking of the Marine Workers Industrial Union which was proven to be Communistic said - page 147:

> It must be remembered that the Marine Workers Industrial Union was not a sham or pretense. It was a genuine union. It was found to have, and we assume it did have, the illegitimate objective of overthrowing the government by force.

Chief Justice Stone who wrote the minority opinion in which Justice Roberts and Justice Frankfurter concurred, said:

> At the conclusion of the hearings, Judge Sears made his memorandum decision, in which he found that the Communist Party of the United States and the Marine Workers' Industrial Union were, at all relevant times, each an organization which believed in and advocated the overthrow by force > and violence of the Government of the United States, and that the Communist Party also wrote, circulated, distributed, printed, published and displayed printed matter advising, advocating or teaching the overthrow by force and violence of the Government of the United States. These findings are not challenged.

In the case of Schneiderman v. The United States (320 U.S. 118), decided in 1942, proceedings were brought to revoke the citizenship of William Schneiderman on the ground that he was a Communist at the time he was naturalized. The Court refused to revoke the naturalization on the ground that the proof was insufficient to warrant such a drastic penalty against one who had been a citizen for many years.

However, Mr. Justice Murphy, writing the prevailing opinion said, p. 153:

> We do not say that a reasonable man could not possibly have found, as the district court did, that the Communist Party in 1927 actively urged the overthrow of the Government by force and violence. But that is not the issue here.

The Court considered a vast amount of evidence including writings and speeches of Communist leaders, and official publications and documents of the Communists here and abroad. From this evidence Chief Justice Stone, in a minority opinion which was concurred in by Justices Roberts and Frankfurter, distilled the essential facts and presented a picture of Communism as a subversive, criminal conspiracy designed to bring about the dictatorship of the proletariat. We quote from the Chief Justice's opinion at p. 187:

Attachment to such dictatorship can hardly be thought to indicate attachment to the principles of an instrument of government which forbids dictatorship and precludes the rule of the minority or the suppression of minority rights by dictatorial government. Methods repeatedly and systematically advocated, in the Communist Party literature to which I have referred, include first a softening up process by which the breakdown and disintegration of capitalistic governments was to be achieved by systematic and general resort to violation of the laws, and second, the overthrow of capitalistic governments by force and violence.

It was proclaimed that the period has arrived, when it has become absolutely necessary for every Communist party to join systematically lawful and unlawful work, lawful and unlawful organization....The class struggle in almost every country of Europe and America is entering the phase of civil war. Under such conditions the Communists can have no confidence in bourgeois laws. They should create everywhere a parallel illegal apparatus, which at the decisive moment should do its duty by the party, and in every way possible assist the revolution. "Opposition in principle to underground (illegal) work and an unwillingness to understand the absolute necessity for a Communist Party of combining legal with illegal work" was in fact one ground for expulsion from the Party of a minority faction. The Party was instructed to arouse workers to "mass violation of an injunction 'whenever and wherever an injunction is issued by courts against strikers.'" In the literature of the period now in question unlawful tactics were particularly to be directed toward government armed forces. In addition to "systematic unlawful work", "it is especially necessary to carry on unlawful work in the army, navy, and police." Refusal to participate in "persistent and systematic propaganda and agitation" in the army was "equal to treason to the revolutionary cause, and incompatible with affiliation with the Third International," and this because "it is necessary above all things, to undermine and destroy the army in order to overcome the bourgeoisie."

> There is abundant documentary evidence of the character already described to support the court's finding that the Communist Party organizations, of which petitioner was a member, diligently circulated printed matter which advocated the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force and violence. From the beginning, and during all times relevant the Communist Party organizations advocated the overthrow of capitalistic governments by revolution to be accomplished, if need be, by force of arms.

The President of the United States recently officially acknowledged the existence of a Communist threat. In an executive order dated March 22, 1947, President Truman directed that disloyal persons should be eliminated from government employment. Part 5 subdivision F of the Executive Order declares that among other standards to determine disloyalty are "membership, any affiliation with or sympathetic association with any foreign or domestic organization, association, group or combination of persons designated by the Attorney General as totalitarian, fascist, Communist or subversive..."

Anti-Semites and Communists are Identifying Jews with Communism

For many years anti-semitic organizations and individuals have been charging that most Communists are Jews, and that Communism is a Jewish dominated movement. This, it will be recalled, was the spearhead of Hitler's drive for power. Up to the end of the war anti-semitic propaganda included other accusations, but many of these charges have lost their potency, and at the present time the main reliance of the anti-semites as to establish this identification of Jews with Communism.

We all remember that Father Coughlin was the most active disseminator of this lie, and that one of his principal alleged authorities was Father Fahey of Dublin. Recently a pamphlet was published by Upton Close which started out as an attack upon the Anti-Defamation League, but which was devoted principally to an attempt to establish this identification of Jews with Communism. In it Close relies upon the discredited Father Fahey as one of his principal "authorities". An anti-semitic propagandist of Salt Lake City, Jeremiah Stokes, is distributing an eighty page pamphlet entitled "Judaic Communism versus Christian Americanism." Nearly every issue of Gerald Smith's Cross and the Flag has some reference to Jewish Communists. It hardly seems necessary to multiply examples.

At the same time the current line of the Communists is also attempting to identify Jews with Communism. In their speeches and publications they repeatedly declare that an attack upon Communism is an attack upon Jews, and that anti-Communism and anti-semitism are identical. Instead of listing numerous examples we will quote from a Yiddish Communist newspaper, Freiheit. This publication has an English language supplement, and our quotation is from an article which appeared in February of this year:

> A principle that needs to be finally impressed upon the people and especially upon Jews-- is that anti-Communism is merely the reverse side of anti-semitism; that the two go together inevitably and that they are deliberately made interchangeable. This is no accident, or chance occurrence. It is part of a plan, a gigantic plan in which both Jew and Communist are branded as a cancer in the life-stream of the country--and therefore to be eliminated. Jew, and communist, and Jewish communist--Big business has found the perfect scapegoat upon which it can place all the blame for the entire social misery. Upheaval and conflict for which Big Business alone is responsible. By the miracle of reactionary hocus-pocus, the Jew who is the "International banker" responsible for the plight of the impoverished worker, is also the "International Communist" responsible for the woes of the declassed middle class. Big Business, by constantly interchanging Jew and Communist, has found the common symbol upon which he can try to divert the wrath of the entire people from itself. That is the great plan that will save Big Business and maintain its exploitation of the people--Jews and non-Jews.
> Certainly it is not necessary to pay once again with six million Jews and with countless millions of other people to learn this lesson once more -- that anti-communism and anti-semitism lead only to the disaster of all people. Jews must not only not indulge in red-baiting, which can only inevitably lead to anti-semitism. They must positively reject anti-communism. They must fight sharply against it wherever attempts are made to inject it. They must precisely offset the efforts of reactionary Jews who by peddling anti-communism seek to win "safe passage" by playing fascism's game.

It is quite apparent that Jews in America are caught between the upper and nether mill-stones of Communism and anti-semitism. Belief in these charges is increasing, and it constitutes a growing menace to our security. It is undoubtedly true that there are Jews in the Communist movement just as there are Jews in almost every other sort of movement in the United States. It is equally true that the top leadership in the Communist Party is non-Jewish. If there should be a crusade resulting in arrests and prosecutions, and the present temper of Congress and the public makes this likely, it is inevitable that some Jewish names will appear. We know from past experience how this can be distorted and exaggerated to feed the flames of anti-semitism.

The American Jewish Committee Has Been Traditionally Opposed to Communism

The opposition of the American Jewish Committee to Communism is nothing new. In engaging in this campaign we will merely be reaffirming the traditional position that we have adhered to for more than a quarter of a century. In February 1919 testimony was given before a sub-committee of the Senate Judiciary Committee by Dr. George S. Simons who stated that the Jews were active in the Russian Bolshevist movement. On February 15, 1919 the New York Times printed a lengthy statement by Louis Marshal, President of the American Jewish Committee in which he repudiated Dr. Simons' statement. We quote one paragraph:

> Everything that real Bolshevism stands for is to the Jew detestable. His traditions wed him to law and order, make of him a legalist. The Bolshevists are the enemies of law and order. The Jew makes the very centre of his life and of > his existence the home and the family. The Bolshevists decry marriage and morality. The Jew is justly noted for being thrifty and economical, and with recognizing as necessary the institution of property. The Bolshevist is seeking the destruction of the very concept of property. The great mass of the Jews are faithful to their ancient religion, and are ever ready to help their brethren in distress. The club of the Bolshevist knows no brother and he despises religion.

In a speech delivered on Armistice Day, 1936, Judge Joseph M. Proskauer said:

> ...A more tragically false statement has never been uttered in the whole history of religious intolerance...
> ...Any man, be he Jew or Christian, that seeks to impinge upon this American form of Government is traitor not only to his country but to the finest flower of civilization itself. I care not whether the headstrong intruder preaches the blasphemous creed of dictatorship, where man becomes the puppet of the State; or Nazism, where man becomes the slave of the State; or Communism, where man is stripped of the very attributes of humanity itself; if he preaches any one of these things, he is foe to Judaism...

Judge Proskauer at that time was not speaking for the American Jewish Committee but the statement undoubtedly represents his views today and those of the membership of the Committee.

On the 2nd day of August 1945, David Sher, Chairman of the Administrative Committee spoke before the Professional Staff of the American Jewish Committee. Mr. Sher said:

> We find here the typical Communist Party technique- a technique which I want you to consider with me as entirely separate from any social or economic ideology - a technique the insidious nature of which has been proved again and again. Eleanor Roosevelt is certainly no red-baiter. Some of you may remember what she wrote only a few weeks ago. "What I object to", she says, "in the American Communists is not their open membership, nor even their published objectives. For years in this country they taught the philosophy of the lie. They taught that allegiance to the Party and acceptance of orders from the Party heads whose interests were not just those of the United States, were paramount. Because I have experienced the deception of the American Communists I will not trust them."

The American Civil Liberties Union, which many would think goes so far as to make a fetish of the rights of individual conscience and of freedom of expression, the American Civil Liberties Union bars Communists from its Board. In my judgment the reason it bars them from its Board is because they are not free agents. They do not sit across the table discussing and considering matters according to their effect upon the Civil Liberties Union. They sit there as instruments to carry out a line that is determined outside the organization and, as I said, outside the United States. I do not have to remind you that the recent sharp deviation in the Communist Party line in this country was first suggested in a French publication by a French Communist who had just returned from Moscow.

These quotations indicate that our opposition to Communism has been unequivocal and undeviating over a long period of time. The proposal now under consideration contemplates giving wider publicity to our position and augmenting it by additional activities. Our experience has convinced us that lies such as the Jewish-Communist lie cannot be overcome merely by contradiction or by presentation of the facts. It will not be enough, therefore, for us to refute the charge that Communism is a Jewish movement. Our program, to be effective, will require that we take an aggressive, affirmative position.

Dear Mr. Cohn:

Your letter dated November 28, 1949, has been received and I appreciate your generosity in making available to me the books "Rehearsal for Destruction" by Paul Hassing and "Prophets of Deceit" by Leo Lowenthal and Norbert Guterman.

While I am grateful for the invitation which you extended on behalf of the American Jewish Committee to join in a series of discussions of the two volumes, the pressure of my official schedule for the coming months is such that I frankly do not see how it will be possible for me to indicate an acceptance. For the same reason it will not be possible for me to make a guest appearance on the two radio programs which you mentioned.

I know that you will understand my reluctance to accept these invitations, even tentatively, and then find that intervening matters of an urgent nature will not permit me to fill the engagements.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

Honorable John Edgar Hoover
Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation
Department of Justice
9th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hoover

Several years ago the American Jewish Committee called a conference of the leading psychiatrists, sociologists and political scientists in America to discuss the problem of anti-Semitism. As an outgrowth of that conference, the Committee sponsored a series of investigations and studies. These studies have now terminated in the publication by Harper and Brothers of five volumes entitled, "Studies in Prejudice Series." Two of these -- "Rehearsal for Destruction" and "Prophets of Deceit" -- have now been published. The latter is a study of the techniques used by American agitators. I am enclosing herewith copies of both volumes.

DEFERRED IN ORDER

The Committee is arranging for a series of discussions of these volumes and would very much like to have you participate.

Betty Crocker, who has a morning program on the American Broadcasting Company network, and Martha Deana, who has a morning program on WOR, New York City, have both indicated an extreme desire to have you make a guest appearance on their programs and be interviewed in connection with "Prophets of Deceit." They will arrange the day of your appearance in order to meet your convenience. In the case of Miss Deana, she will be happy to make a recording of an interview with you at any time which will meet your convenience, and then play the recording on a subsequent program.

After you have read this letter and had a chance to glance through the books I would appreciate it greatly if I had an opportunity of talking to you further about this matter. I will be in town and available any time this week.

Reports About Mass Deportations of Jews in the USSR

In the summer and fall of 1949, the Jewish and general press outside the Soviet Union published a number of reports about mass deportations of the Jewish population from the Western border regions of the USSR, especially from White Russia, the Ukraine, Eastern Galicia, Bukovina, and Bessarabia. According to a report quoted by the JTA on September 8th, the deportations affected mainly those Jewish citizens who had relatives in America or Western Europe; other sources maintained that the entire Jewish population of some territories were being deported. Many of these reports give detailed accounts of secret police rounding up Jews and forcibly moving them to deportation trains on which they are dispatched to unknown destinations, presumably Siberia or the Arctic regions of European Russia.

A report published in the Jewish Morning Journal on October 6th, asserted that 30,000 Jews had been deported from Lwow (Lemberg) and other cities of former Polish Eastern Galicia, and that the whole region was now free of Jews. Similarly, a dispatch alleges that all Jews have been ejected from an Ukrainian city. Some journalists have cited, as evidence of the authenticity of these reports, the fact that Polish Jews, who had maintained correspondence with their relatives in the Ukraine and White Russia, had their letters returned, stamped: "Return to sender, addressee has left." According to JTA release, the American embassy in Moscow has received reports of deportations but has not been able to check them since the movement of foreign dipolomats in Russia is severely restricted.

Mass deportations were not limited to Jews. Reports published throughout Europe and America indicate that mass deportations were conducted of Estonians, Lettonians, and Lithuanians from the Baltic countries, and Greeks, Turks, and Armenians from the Black Sea Coast. The deportation of Greeks, among them Greek citizens as well as Soviet citizens of Greek ancestry was protested by the Greek government. The US State Department declared officially that it had received confirming reports of the deportation of 17,000 persons from the Black Sea Coast to Kazakhstan in Central Asia. The deportation took place "in circumstances of extreme hardship" in June 1949.

These reports were categorically denied by the Communist press in countries outside Russia but the Soviet government has not issued any official denial.

Soviet Scientists Attack the Idea of a Jewish Nation.

On April 4-6, the Learned Council of the Pacific Institute and the Moscow group of the Oriental Institute of the USSR Academy of Sciences held a joint meeting in Moscow, for the purpose of combatting "manifestations of bourgeois cosmopolitanism in scientific Oriental studies." A report on this meeting is contained in the journal Voprosy istorii, no. 3, March 1949, published in June in Moscow. Many orientalists were castigated because of their "cosmopolitan deviations." One of these deviations was an alleged conciliatory attitude towards Zionism. This is what the meeting had to say about the struggle against Zionism (the English translation quoted from the Current Digest of the Soviet Press, vol. I, no. 39, October 25, 1949, p. 14):

> V. B. Lutsky devoted part of his report to the tasks of the Eastern research front in the struggle against Zionism - the reactionary ideology of Jewish bourgeois nationalism. The speaker pointed out that the tasks of this struggle always existed but that now they have become especially urgent insofar as Zionism is one of the active weapons of American and English imperialist policy in the Near East. Besides, at the present time, Anglo-American war-mongers are utilizing Zionism as a disruptive weapon in other countries of the world. The immediate task of Soviet orientalists studying the Near East consists in exposing and smashing the cosmopolitan ideology of the "united Jewish nation" - an ideology subjected to devastating criticism by both Lenin and Stalin.

New Laws About Church and State in Czechoslovakia.

Two new laws about church-state relations were adopted by the Czechoslovak parliament and went into effect on November 1, 1949.

The major provisions of these bills are:

The state will pay clergymen their basic salaries, higher than those received before; the state will also grant bonuses for meritorious work, educational grants for further study, and pensions. The state will assume the financial administration of all churches, charities, institutions, and other properties of religious communities. Only clergymen who have sworn allegiance to the Communist state will be allowed to perform their duties. All churches and religious communities must submit an inventory of their property within three months. They also must submit budget estimates to get appropriations. The state will operate all seminaries. Violations of the law will be punished by fines and prison terms up to six months.

These laws were adopted only after a long and sharp struggle between the Communist regime and the Catholic Church. The Catholics attacked the proposed laws as a means of effectually ending the autonomy of the church. They protested that under such laws they were utterly dependent on Communist-dominated state authorities, they charged that the inventories were designed for the purpose of ultimately expropriating religious properties, and that the operation by the state of seminaries could only mean an introduction of anti-religious ideologies into religious education. In sum, the Catholics held that the new laws constituted an attempt to dominate, control, and level all ideological and organizational aspects of religious life. Catholic priests declared that they were ready to reaffirm their oath of allegiance to the Czechoslovak Republic but that they could not swear allegiance to the specific regime in power. Finally, they declared that they would rather renounce the promised increase in salaries than surrender their spiritual independence from the state authority.

During the controversy which lasted several months, the Prague Archbishop Josef Beran was confined to his palace and his offices were taken over by the police. The dissemination of pastoral letters was prohibited and many priests were arrested. In some places, especially in Slovakia, riots broke out when Catholics defended their priests against the state police. The Communists founded a pro-government Catholic organization for which they used the name of Catholic Action but only a small minority of priests and laymen joined it.

Finally, when the parliament passed the laws, the Catholic bishops decided to submit. They allowed the priests to accept the increased salaries (although they still refused them for themselves) and to take the oath of allegiance, with the reservation that the government "will never ask anything which would be contrary to the laws of God or to human rights." The government in turn granted a "little amnesty," releasing from prison Catholics sentenced for or accused of minor offenses committed during the church-state struggle.

However, this situation did not continue for long. The executive orders issued to enforce the new laws placed all religious publications, religious education and all financial and charitable activities of religious communities under the full control of the New Ministry of Church Affairs. The Ministry now decides what can be taught in seminaries, what textbooks can be used and how much can be spent for churches and religious institutions. The Minister of Interior declared that the state will not tolerate any amendments to the churchmen's loyalty oath. If some priests should dare to put the authority of the Vatican above state authority, they will be severely punished.

On November 17th, Catholic bishops issued a new declaration, which stated that they had tried to meet the government half-way by issuing conciliatory directives but that the government had replied with new decrees which "endangered religious life in the country." They complained of state interference in religious teaching, of state appointments to church offices without regard to the rights of bishops and of government commissars in church offices. They warned that a religious struggle would arise, if the government continues this policy. Premier Zapotocky bluntly rejected this declaration and threatened legal reprisals.

On December 7th, the parliament adopted a law, according to which church weddings would not be recognized after January 1st, and only marriages, concluded before civil officials would be considered valid. Priests will be prosecuted if they perform church weddings before civil ceremonies. In the debate, Minister Čepička strongly attacked three bishops because they refused to sign birthday greetings to Premier Stalin.

The opposition against the new church laws was by no means confined to the Catholic Church. As a matter of fact, only the Czechoslovak State Catholic Church, a very small Unitarian group, and a Polish Lutheran group in Silesia approved the laws before their enactment, and one Jewish community was quoted as sending a letter of thanks to President Gottwald after their adoption. On the other hand, the Evangelical Church of Czech Brethren, the Lutheran Church of Slovakia, the Reformed Protestant Church of Slovakia, and several Jewish religious communities raised objections. (See Neue Zuericher Zeitung, 11/15 49.)

The Law on Freedom of Religion In Poland.

The Polish Council of Ministers adopted, on August 5, 1949, a decree "safeguarding freedom of conscience and religion." The decree makes it a criminal offense to infringe on the rights of a citizen because of his creed or absence of religious affiliations; to force a person to participate in religious worship or to prevent a person from participating in such worship; to refuse to let a person participate in a religious ceremony because of his political, social, or scientific activities; to outrage religious feelings by publicly desecrating religious objects or places of worship; to foment religious conflicts or to sanction them; to insult or humiliate a group or an individual because of his religious affiliations or convictions or because of their absence; to commit physical violance against a person because of his religious convictions or their absence.

The penalty for violation of the quoted provisions is imprisonment up to five years. However, if the offense results in either death, serious injury, disturbance of peace and order, or jeopardy to public safety, imprisonment up to a life term or even the death penalty may be imposed.

The paragraphs protecting religious freedom are followed by provisions against the "misuse" of religious freedom. Imprisonment for not less than three years (nothing is said about the maximum penalty) is provided for those who "misuse religious freedom and freedom of conscience to pursue aims hostile to the form of government of the Polish Republic" or who "misuse religious freedom for personal gains, take advantage of human credulity by spreading false rumors, or by misleading others through deception or overt acts." Thus the sections protecting religious freedom are offset by provisions against its "misuse"; such terms as "aims hostile to the form of government", "taking advantage of human credulity", and "misleading others through deception" are so broad and elastic that the degree of actual religious freedom that will be obtained will depend on their interpretation by the Communist-dominated regime.

Zionism One of the Charges Against the Defendants in the Rajk Treason Trial in Hungary.

In September 1949, a spectacular treason trial took place in Budapest. The former Minister of the Interior, and later Minister of Foreign Affairs, Laszlo Rajk, was accused of having conspired to overthrow the Hungarian government and to assassinate its leaders, and of having spied for America, England, and Yugoslavia. He was alleged to have acted on instructions from Marshall Tito's Belgrade government and the American and British intelligence services. Seven other persons were indicted with him on similar charges. All the defendants were held incommunicado for several weeks before the trial, and then confessed their guilt. The Yugoslav government and the American and British citizens implicated in the accusations and confessions, indignantly denied all these charges. The entire democratic press as well as the Communist press of Yugoslavia denounced the trial as a monstrous frame-up.

All defendants were found guilty. Three of them, Laszlo Rajk, Dr. Tibor Szoeńyi, and Andras Szalai were sentenced to death by the civil court; two others, Lieutenant-General Gyoergyi Palffy and Police Major Bela Korondy received the same sentence from a military court to which they were transferred. All five were executed when their appeals were rejected by the Supreme Court. Of the three remaining defendants, Pal Justus and Lazar Brankov were sentenced to prison for life, Milan Ognienovics to nine years in jail.

Before the trial, it was expected that Rajk would also be charged with anti-Semitism. It was well known in Hungary that several brothers of Rajk had been connected with the fascist and anti-Semitic Arrow Cross movement, and that their Communist brother had protected them when he came to power. It was also known that Rajk as Minister of the Interior, had been instrumental in delaying and obstructing the proceedings against the instigators of the postwar pogroms in Miskolcz and Kun-St. Madaras. There is ample evidence to the effect that these pogroms had been encouraged primarily by Communist propaganda conducted against "black marketeering usurers," meaning the whole of private commerce.

This propaganda which had served as a prelude to the program of wholesale nationalizations, had an unmistakable and consistent anti-Semitic tinge, and the active support of the entire Communist leadership and press. There can be no doubt that Rajk, as Minister of the Interior (meaning police minister), had been acting in accordance with the tactics and objectives of official Communist policy.

Nevertheless, it was believed that he might yet be prosecuted on these charges. At the eve of the trial, a "highly placed Yugoslav source" informed the New York Times correspondent in Belgrade: "Mr. Rajk had lived in Hungary during the occupation and had worked against the Germans despite the allegations in the indictment. He...had a strong following...and it is possible that he might have succumbed to the anti-Semitic atmosphere that successive prewar reactionary governments and then the Germans had succeeded in intensifying."

But contrary to such expectations, the charge of anti-Semitism was not employed either in the indictment or trial. Instead of that, Zionism figured in the trials. It was denounced as one of the counter-revolutionary forces in the services of imperialism, and the alleged Zionist pasts of some of the defendants were held against them.

There were three Jews among the defendants: Dr. Tibor Szoenyi, the former head of the Communist Party cadre section, Andras Szalai, his deputy, and Pal Justus, a former member of the Parliament and a leader of the pro-Communist wing of the Social Democrats before their merger with the Communist Party.

All three Jewish defendants were asked by the court whether they were or had been Zionists. Pal Justus answered that he had never been one; Dr. Tibor Szoenyi testified that he had not been a Zionist himself but that two other members of the war-time "spy-ring" in Switzerland organized by the American intelligence service, had been Zionists; he added that the Zionist groups in Switzerland were all in "close contact" with American spies. Andras Szallai confessed that he had been, before 1933, a member of a "Trotskyite Zionist movement." Both these defendants maintained that world Zionism was plotting against the Communist regimes all over the world. Rajk himself was accused of having helped to smuggle "Zionist imperialist agents" out of Hungary to Israel.

After the trial, the Communist-controlled Hungarian radio launched vitriolic attacks against "reactionary, chauvinistic" Zionism, maintaining that the defendants in Rajk's trial were Zionist agents in the service of world imperialism.

Unirea, the only officially allowed Rumanian-Jewish periodical, in a front-page editorial, characterized the testimony of the two ex-Zionist defendants as "highly significant", and added that the Budapest trial proved "Zionism to be one of the main points of support of international reaction." "The Budapest trial", it also observed, "unmasked the poisoned character of Zionism as a branch of war-mongering big finance. The trial teaches the Jewish working people to continue their fight against Zionism as a condition of insuring a lasting peace."

A significant change in attitude was marked by these denunciations of Zionism. Heretofore, Zionism in itself was not treated, at least overtly, as evidence of criminal guilt.

The seven Hungarian Zionist leaders who had been sentenced to prison terms for aiding illegal emigration to Israel, were still in jail pending their appeal to a higher court. So were also the three defendants of this trial who had been acquitted by the lower court. At their trial in June 1949, it was implied that they were tried only for specific illegal actions, and not for their Zionist convictions or for their membership in Zionist organizations. (See our Bulletin of July 1, pp. 13-14.) During the Rajk trial and in the subsequent press and radio campaign against Zionism, the mere membership in a Zionist organization was already considered as a prima facie evidence of "counter-revolutionary", i.e. treasonable activities.

A Typical Communist Comment on the Rajk Trial and the Zionist Role

The following is a condensation of an article "The Budapest Trial and the Zionist Movement" in the Evreiski Vesti, Sofia, Bulgaria, vol. 5, no. 251, October 1, 1949. Evreiski Vesti, published by the Minority Commission at the National Council of the Fatherland Front, is the only Jewish periodical permitted in Bulgaria. The article comments:

"In the Budapest trial the spies Tibor Szoenyi and Andras Szallai revealed that the world Zionist movement has close ties with the American intelligence service. This can be a sensational revelation only for people who do not know the history of the Zionist movement. Striving for an alliance with the imperialists characterized the Zionist movement from its very birth. The founder of Zionism, Theodor Herzl, enjoyed the benevolent support of the bloodthirsty Sultan Abdul Hamid II, of the British Minister of Colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, of the German emperor Wilhelm II, and of the Czarist Minister von Plehve, the organizer of anti-Jewish pogroms. Wherever, in the past, Jewish workers in Europe and America took an active part in the fight of the working class for democracy and socialism, the Zionist movement fought them.....

"After the Balfour Declaration in 1917, the ties between Zionism and imperialism became still closer. The leaders of Zionism consciously conducted a policy of alliance with imperialist England which made it possible to use the Zionist movement as an instrument against the striving of the Arabs for national independence. For decades, England...administered Palestine as a colony, using the Zionist movement against the Arab national movement.... For decades, Zionism worked to deepen the abyss between the Jews and Arabs in Palestine, and used its "labor union" Histadruth for this purpose. Histadruth followed a policy of denying Arabs work in Jewish enterprises, and worked so against an alliance of anti-imperialistically-minded Arab and Jewish workers.. Thus it was allied, through the bourgeois Zionist leadership, with the imperialists.

"During the period of World War II, Zionism became politically bankrupt. It capitulated to Hitlerism. Only individual groups of the working-class wing of Zionism took part in some countries in the resistance movement. After the war, Zionism began a new orientation towards American imperialism; it was forced by the masses in Palestine, to fight for the abolition of the British mandate. The founding of Israel was the fruit of the support given by the Soviet Union, the countries of people's democracy, and all progressive people of the world to the masses in Palestine.

"Today the Zionist movement continues to work against the anti-imperialist camp, hiding behind the pretext of neutrality...This mask of neutrality is used to hold the Jewish masses back from the fight for peace in which they have a vital interest...The main leaders of Zionism use the Zionist movement to support the plans for a war against the Soviet Union and the countries of people's democracy.

"At first glance, it is, of course, terrible that a Jew can work against the savior of European Jewry, the Soviet Union. But in fact, the real leaders of the Zionist movement, the monopolistic Jewish bourgeois in London and in the United States do not care for the life or future of the Jews.... Therefore, the fact that two Zionists took part in the plot of Anglo-American imperialists against the Soviet Union and the people's democracy, is no revelation to us, the Jews of the countries of people's democracy..... The Jewish working people in the people's democracies will learn from the Budapest trial that they have to increase their revolutionary vigilance, and that they have to beat the enemy under whichever mask he hides, and also under the mask of Zionism."

Poland Permits Mass Emigration to Israel.

Since the early months of 1949, the emigration of Polish Jews had been extremely limited. An average of only 200 persons has been permitted to leave monthly since January. This policy has now been radically changed.

In August, the Minister of Public Administration, Wladislaw Wolski, announced that all Polish Jews who wished to settle in Israel, would be allowed to leave Poland on condition that they renounce their Polish citizenship before leaving the country. Wolski gave two reasons for this provision: first, that some emigrants, possessing Polish passports, kept returning to Poland on business trips and requested extensions of their Polish papers; the other, that some emigrants applied to Polish consulates in Israel for return to Poland at government expense. Now, prospective emigrants will have to renounce Polish citizenship, and will receive instead of a Polish passport, a special identification card. To obtain this card, the emigrant will have to submit, in addition to all other papers required for a passport, a certificate by the Central Committee of Jews in Poland, confirming the fact that he is a Jew.

The emigrants will be transported either directly from Polish ports or travel overland to Italy where they will board Israel-bound ships. They will be allowed to take with them their personal properties provided they prove their ownership of each item. The Polish Central Exchange Office is already receiving applications for transfer of Polish money to Israel. Each application is being considered individually, and a maximum of $1000 is permitted for applicants who can produce valid exit permits. The amounts obtained will not be transferred to Israel in money, but in the form of export goods; upon the arrival in Israel, the emigrant will receive the equivalent minus 25 percent which will go into Israeli treasury.

These special emigration regulations are supposed to be in force for a year. The number of prospective emigrants is not limited. It was promised that practically every Jew would be allowed to leave and that applications would be processed quickly. Exceptions will be made only in cases where Jewish doctors, engineers, factory managers, etc. have to be replaced by persons with similar skills. Thus far, only two exit permits have been refused; one case involved a prominent engineer, in the other, a Polish Jew was accused of having collaborated with the Nazis during the occupation.

According to reports from Warsaw, at the end of September, 60 Jews were receiving exit identification cards daily. Eliahu Dobkin, the Jewish Agency immigration chief, estimated that 15,000 - 20,000 Jews will leave Poland under these regulations. Private reports maintain that the Israeli consulate is being flooded with applications for visas; at the end of October, 32,000 applicants have already registered and private sources estimated the number of prospective emigrants at 45,000. Among the thousands of applicants, there are even many nominal Jewish Communists. A delegation of the Jewish Workers' Party, the Polish counterpart of the Mapam, which went to thank Premier Cyrankiewicz for the new emigration policy, declared that the members of that organization would take advantage of its benefits.

The leaders of the Jewish Communist groups still oppose emigration and have sent special agents to Lower Silesia to convince the members of this large Jewish community, not to become "deserters" from socialist Poland. They publicized widely the case of forty Jewish families which have recently returned from Israel, allegedly because of the growing unemployment in that country. They also violently attacked Zionist organizations, especially Mapam, as well as individual Jews who decided to emigrate, as "traitors" and "deserters". But this propaganda seems to have met with little success.

The motivation for the change in the Polish government's attitude toward emigration has been given in several dispatches by correspondents of the New York Times, the London Times, and other newspapers in virtually identical terms. To summarize these conclusions:

The government circles in Warsaw have felt that a policy of preventing Jews from leaving the country would be unwise. Most of the Polish Jews have suffered terribly, their nerves are shattered, they have a most demonstrative sense of grievance, and with their pronounced middle-class background they continue to serve as an additional source of dissatisfaction and ferment. By refusing to yield to assimilation, the Jews with Orthodox and nationalistic tendencies are exercising a strong and detrimental influence on Jews who are anxious to be assimilated. Their speedy departure would hasten the assimilation of those thousands of Polish Jews, chiefly Communists, who decided to remain in Poland. The expected mass emigration and the assimilation of the rest of the community will result in a complete disappearance of Polish Jewry. This will relieve the government of a bothersome minority problem and of difficulties, connected with the existence of latent, but still strong anti-Semitism.

The AJDC Ordered to Stop Relief Activities in Poland.

The American Jewish Distribution Committee was ordered to cease its relief and rehabilitation activities in Poland. The order was issued by Wladislaw Wolski, the Minister of Public Administration. Mr. Wolski informed the head of the Warsaw office of the agency that the time for emergency aid has passed, and that Polish Jews enjoyed the same rights and benefits as other Polish citizens from schools, hospitals and welfare institutions. Consequently, the government ordered the AJDC to submit a plan for winding up its affairs. It is expected that the liquidation will be accomplished by the end of the year. At the same time, it was announced that the HIAS would soon end its work in Poland.

The AJDC had worked in Poland for thirty years. Since the end of the war, it has spent about $20,000,000 for aid in that country. The organization has just made its preparations for aiding the exodus of Polish Jews to Israel under the recently adopted liberalized emigration policy of the government.

The AJDC has already wound up its activities in Bulgaria and Yugoslavia where a large majority of Jews had left the countries. It was ousted from Rumania in the spring of this year. Of the Iron Curtain countries, only Czechoslovakia and Hungary retain branches of the AJDC.

THE COMMUNIST APPROACH TO JEWS
(July-October, 1950)

The most important task in which the Communist Parties throughout the world are now involved is the so-called "peace" campaign. In this undertaking, the Communist Party of the United States of America plays its role. Intensively involved in the "peace" campaign for the last six months and longer, spokesmen for the Communist Party have constantly and continuously emphasized the importance of this activity. Gus Hall, chairman of the Communist Party in Ohio and one of the eleven communist leaders indicted for conspiracy, speaking at a meeting of the National Committee of the Communist Party (May 17, 1950), declared:

> The peace forces of America today face one, common central task that is to mobilize for the campaign around the world peace appeal initiated at Stockholm by the Permanent Committee of the World Peace Congress to ban the atom bomb. This is one worldwide campaign. . . . This is one central campaign. . . . This must become the central task of the Party. There will be no exception to this. (Gus Hall, "Raise the Struggle for Peace to New Heights," Political Affairs, July 1950)

The directive as applied to work among Jews was expressed in similar form by John Williamson, national labor secretary of the Communist Party and one of the indicted communist leaders, in behalf of the National Committee of the party at a conference engaged in activity among the Jews:

> The building of . . . a united peace movement among the Jewish masses, and the involving of the Jewish workers and the people's organizations in the general peace camp, remain the central tasks of our Party in the Jewish field. Regardless of the specific forms of organization of the Jewish people in the struggle for peace, . . .it is clear that the prohibition of the atom bomb must be the central issue. (John Williamson, "For a United-Front Policy Among the Jewish People," Political Affairs, July 1950)

It is our intention to examine the various appeals made by the communists to Jews in order to enlist their support for the "peace" campaign.

1. The cardinal appeal is that the Jews as a group have an especial desire for peace beyond the natural interest of all people. The reasoning is that, as World War II showed, the Jews are the first victims in any war. To this basic premise, there are several corollary arguments that are further elaborated upon in appealing to Jews for support of the "peace" campaign. These may be summarized as follows:

2. The Soviet Union has, in the past and present, revealed its "positive" attitude towards Jews and the "Jewish question."

3. Anti-Semitism and discrimination in the United States (and elsewhere) are the pattern of "fascist reaction" which can lead only to war and the destruction of the Jews.

4. Western Germany, Nazi-controlled, follows a policy of anti-Semitism, in which the American, British, and French occupying powers cooperate, thus endangering the peace and the security of Jews throughout the world.

5. The State of Israel needs peace and the people of Israel desire peace, but the Ben-Gurion government, in serving the Anglo-American business interests, is making Israel a potential Anglo-American military base in a war against the Soviet Union, the result of which can mean only the ruin of Israel.

It is obvious that these appeals addressed to Jews are designed, as are all the communist appeals to any and all groups, to influence Jews to support the Soviet Union. This, of course, is the underlying motivation of all communist activity throughout the world. Each of the points listed above strive to strengthen various Soviet positions throughout the world, particularly by undermining support of the United States and other governments that adhere to the Western anti-communist bloc. This will be more readily discernible following individual discussion of each of these appeals to Jews and how they are presented in the communist press.

1. Jews Need Peace

The constant reiteration in the communist press that Jews must ally themselves with the "pro-peace" forces to avoid annihilation as Jews gives the appearance of a continuous threat against Jews. An editorial in Jewish Life, published monthly by the Morning Freiheit Association, writes:

> . . .wherever people are fighting for liberation, wherever people are struggling against fascism, there is the side that the Jewish people must support. This is obviously no light matter for the Jewish people. If we have learned anything in the past 20 years, it has been that the Jewish people are doomed unless the anti-imperialist, anti-fascist, pro-peace forces defeat the policy of saving the fascist, colonial remnants of the old, pre-World War II world. ("New Year Thoughts," Jewish Life, September 1950)

Another editorial declares:

> The impact of the last few decades has left its mark on the Jewish masses. They cannot easily forget what war and fascism mean to the Jewish people. Even the most confused do not relish the thought of an atomic war and fascism. ("The Truth about Korea," Jewish Life, August 1950)

The Morning Freiheit writes even more directly. An editorial commenting on the resolution passed at the last Hadassah convention which condemned North Korean agression and pledged support to the U.N. action in Korea asserts that a great many Hadassah members have participated in the "struggle for peace" for both personal reasons (as mothers of sons and wives of husbands) and for "national" reasons,

> . . .because they know that such a war as is taking place in Korea can start a world conflagration which can place the Jewish people on the threshhold of ultimate extinction. ("Hadassah and the War in Korea," Morning Freiheit, August 24, 1950)

The communist reaction to the NCRAC condemnation of the Stockholm Peace Petition has largely consisted of "disclosing" that these organizations do not truly represent the interests of the Jews.

> The statement of the council of Jewish organizations /NCRAC/ does not express the desires or the sentiments of the Jewish masses. Jews know what war is, and for the Jewish people, more than for any other peoples, it is a question of life and death to combat the danger of a new world war.

> Here, too, in our country, Jews are terrified by the very thought of an atomic war. The leaders of the above-mentioned Jewish organizations /members of NCRAC/ know this and still they try, by their misleading propaganda and arguments borrowed from the camp of anti-Semitism and racism, to demoralize the Jewish masses and harness them to the war-program of Washington and Wall Street, which can bring only misfortune upon the Jewish people. Such campaigns are welcomed by the enemies of peace and of the Jewish people, and the Jewish organizations have, through their unfortunate statement, played into the hands of those elements. ("Jews and the Stockholm Appeal," Morning Freiheit, August 19, 1950)

A Freiheit writer, discussing editorials in the three Yiddish dailies which supported U.N. action in Korea, says the position taken there is "not only meaningless, but also criminal, and actually jeopardizes the interests of the Jewish people." He goes on to state:

> Is it in the interests of Jewish survival to tie its fate with the pirates of Wall Street, who helped bring Hitler to power and who will be ready at any time to set up new Hitlers in order to maintain control over the masses?
> It is not necessary to be a communist to perceive that the policy of supporting the imperialist invaders /in Korea/ is catastrophic and jeopardizes the future of the Jewish people. (Abraham Yudin, "What Does It Mean for Jews?" Morning Freiheit, August 2, 1950)

Abraham Bick, official rabbinic spokesman for the Freiheit, writes in the same vein:

> The recent actions of the war-mongering camp are tragic evidence of the aims and ambitions of the anti-Semites regarding Jews. Wherever the power of the war-setters extends, there the Nazis regain control. Wherever the influence of imperialism reaches, there pours human blood and there are woven the meanest intrigues against the Jewish people everywhere, including the young State of Israel.
> The only weapon of the Jewish people, as of all oppressed peoples, is the fight for peace, against the ruling powers who threaten to set fire to the world from all four sides! (Abraham Bick, "The People That Were Left of the Sword," Morning Freiheit, September 11, 1950)

Another editorial in the Freiheit threatens Jews with annihilation unless they participate in the "peace" campaign:

> . . .always and almost everywhere, where the security and the peace in the world are threatened, Jews are very frequently the first victims of the catastrophe.
> The conclusion can and must be only the one -- the Jews must stand at the head of the determined struggles against the war-mongers. Only in complete unity with those forces in the world which fight for peace, for the prohibition of the atom bomb, and for American-Soviet friendship -- only in this struggle lies the possibility of rescuing the Jews from the terror of the Maidaneks, Buchenwalds, and Oswiecims, which were the fearful price Jews paid in the second world war. ("'Jews--The First Victims,'" Morning Freiheit, July 24, 1950)

(The quotation in the title of the editorial and mention thereafter in the text refer to a press statement issued July 20, 1950 by Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the American section of the World Jewish Congress, in which he declared: "The Jewish people know from bitter experience that whenever and wherever world stability and peace are shattered. Jews are often the first victims of catastrophe.")

The Freiheit has even coined a Yiddish slogan to drive home this point that Jews must be in the forefront in the "struggle for peace." In a call for "peace" greetings to the November 7 issue of the Freiheit, to be devoted to the 33rd anniversary of the Soviet Union, it is declared that "atomchik rhymes with pogromchik."

> Jews well know the meaning of pogromchiks /those who incite to or make pogroms/. But now a new word has been added to the Yiddish language. Supporters of an atomic war are called atomchiks. The supporters of war, the war-mongers are usually, like all imperialists and fascists, also anti-Semites. Atomchik, therefore, rhymes with pogromchik.
> That is why Jews must be the first to fight against the war-mongers, against the crusaders for a war against the Soviet Union. They have paid with six million sacrifices in the second world war, and the lives of all remaining Jews are in jeopardy in case of a third world war. (Morning Freiheit, October 10, 1950)

In order to dramatize the role of the Jews in the "peace" campaign and to stimulate American Jewry which has apparently not rallied with enthusiasm to the "peace" call, the communists time and again emphasize the part some Jewish groups have played in behalf of "peace." On the American scene, the pickings have been quite slim. Besides the Jewish communist and communist-front groups, there has been no organized Jewish activity in the United States on behalf of the Stockholm peace appeal. On the contrary, most major Jewish organizations have publicly condemned the appeal. In rebuttal, Jewish Life published a series of "vignettes" entitled "Pictures of Peace Petitioners," in which the reporter covered the lower East Side, Brownsville, Washington Heights, and the fur district. These are all predominantly Jewish areas, and though there is a smattering of interviews with Negroes, Irish, and some unidentified non-Jews, the general impression is given that most of the signers were Jews, (Jay Verty, "Pictures of Peace Petitioners," Jewish Life, August 1950. - This article was later reprinted in the Daily Worker; there is a general policy of reprinting the same items in the various communist organs). This is about the most the communists have been able to do on the American scene to identify Jews as supporters of the "peace" campaign.

There is more exploitable material about Jews overseas. This material is limited to two areas - France and Israel, since the news about Jews in the Soviet Satellite countries is quite scarce. In France, the chief nub is that the "Rabbis of France" and some eighteen prominent French Jews signed the petition. The item about the statement issued by the French rabbis is most frequently reprinted in all the communist publications and the quotation cited concerns a convention of French rabbis who declared that the Stockholm Peace Appeal "constitutes a most courageous initiative in behalf of peace" (Daily Worker, July 30, 1950; also, Jewish Life, September 1950). As far as Israel is concerned, it is emphasized that 300,000 Israelis have signed the Stockholm Peace Appeal. In order to underline the importance of the support of the French Jews and the Israelis, the argument generally presented is that these Jews, with the personal experience of the last war, know better than American Jews the present dangers to peace.

> The rabbis of France have signed the Stockholm appeal. Also many of the rabbis in Israel. Jews in Europe, in Israel, know what war is, and among them -- those who speak in the name of religious Jews. And though American Jews have not had the same experience with war, it is nevertheless clear that religious Jews here in this country, and also many rabbis, will take as an example the actions of the religious leaders in Europe and Israel and not the example of those who execute the order of Washington -- the order of those who accept Franco as a partner and press Jew-murderers to their bosoms. ("In Whose Name," Morning Freiheit, August 4, 1950)

2. Jews and the Soviet Union

Since the communists must identify the Soviet Union with the cause of "peace," a subsidiary part of the "peace" campaign among Jews has consisted of identifying the Soviet Union as a protector of Jews and Jewish life. The argument most frequently used is that the Soviet Union and its Red Army liberated the Jews from the Nazis and, therefore, surviving Jews have the Soviet Union to thank for their existence.

An editorial in the Freiheit declares:

> The Jewish people swore with joy never to forget Stalingrad, and the heroes and sacrifices of the Soviet army and people, who saved the world and our Jewish people from Nazi enslavement and annihilation.
> Now the reaction is conducting a terrible campaign against the Soviet Union and is seeking to drive America into war against our great partner in the anti-Hitler war. ("5711 -- A Year of Decision," Morning Freiheit, September 11, 1950)

An article by Abraham Yudin, quoted above, develops this point in considerable detail, mentioning prayers in synagogues on behalf of Stalin and the Red Army, tributes by Jewish writers and artists to the fighters of Stalingrad. The reasoning is that present leaders of American Jews have forgotten the role the Soviet Union played in destroying Nazism. This article also underscores the "stubborn struggles" by Gromyko and Tsarapkin in the United Nations in the interests of the Jewish state.

3. Anti-Semitism and Discrimination --Weapons of War-Mongers

Apart from the "peace" campaign, the communists have always exploited any and every manifestation of discrimination or anti-Semitism. This is part of communist strategy in seeking to undermine the security of individuals or groups in question, of raising doubts about the hospitality of America, and inculcating fear and hysteria among various religious or ethic groups. The communist appeal to these groups on issues of discrimination has generally hinted at some appalling catastrophe that may befall these groups. Now with the "peace" crusade at its high pitch of intensity, any expressions of discrimination and anti-Semitism are linked to the fight against "peace," even though these may seem to the reader to have been arbitrarily related.

An editorial in the Freiheit on the report of the alumni of City College on the cases of William E. Knickerbocker and William C. Davis, accused the publishers of the report of "appeasing" the anti-Semites and Negro-haters. The editorial concludes:

> Every deferment to anti-Semitism and race hatred is especially dangerous at this very moment, when the reaction is pushing this country into a new world war. Public opinion in New York must decisively condemn the whitewashing of anti-Semites and Negro-haters in educational institutions, because the poisonous seeds which they sow among the youth can quite soon develop into a crop of such actions against Jews, Negroes, and other minorities, about which it is horrible to think. ("Anti-Semites and Race-Haters Must Not Be Appeased," Morning Freiheit, July 23, 1950)

An article by P. Novik, one of the Freiheit's chief editorial writers, declares, after some original thinking, that the Jew who is anti-communist increases anti-Semitism, because he shows the non-Jews that he is interested in fomenting a war against the Soviet Union. Novik goes on to write:

> And just now the Anti-Nazi League in New York has announced that the various anti-Semitic organizations and newspapers in America have stepped up their pogrom-crusades. This very same league seeks to conceal its desire /sic/ with a shout of hurrah for the war in Korea and with an anti-communist statement, -- while the rise of anti-Semitism is linked with this very war, with the anti-communist hysteria, and with the entire policy which frees Jew-murderers. ("Jews: In America and Israel," Morning Freiheit, August 18, 1950)

Jewish Life published an article about the Walter Trohan column in the Chicago Tribune and the resultant Jewish "appeasement," which declares:

> The Col. McCormick papers are the heartbeat of fascist reaction in America. . . . They believe that red-baiting has so weakened American democracy, so divided American Jewry and its friends, that Jew-baiting can go unchallenged.
> And once this position is established, the pogrom might then be institutionalized.

Elsewhere in the same article, the author warns of more terrors to come:

> How much longer can treachery like this /the action of the Jewish agencies/ continue in the camp of a people whose heads have already been bloodied by fascist resurgence?
> There are deep stirrings in the Jewish community of Chicago. . . . There is conviction that only disaster can result from any failure to bring into operative leadership among the Jewish people those who stand for a militant and unified defense.
> The Tribune has flung a warning and a challenge to the Jewish masses of Chicago. The wind across the city carries the stench of Dachau and the ashes of six million Jews. It carries their anguished cry, "Remember -- and act before it is too late!" (Carl Hirsch, "Racist Menace in Chicago," Jewish Life, August 1950)

In this connection it is important to point out that communists have consistently identified the cause of religious, ethnic, and racial groups as their cause. By the logic of inversion, then, the cause of the communists becomes the cause of any given group. Thus, any criticism of communists or any action taken against communists is identified by them as criticism or attack against a minority. We may examine some types of this reasoning in connection with Jews.

In this approach, too, the same warnings about the security, even the physical security, of the Jews in America are expressed.

According to the communists, the arrest of Eugene Dennis for contempt of Congress, is of particular significance to the Jewish people.

> If you are a Jew, no matter whether you endorse or dispute the political opinions of Eugene Dennis, the enforced denial of his right to voice these opinions, endangers you. The silencing of opposition is a prelude to fascism.
> Have we Jews forgotten our losses of the last two decades? Has the Warsaw ghetto become part of the unremembered past? And shall we now countenance with our silence a repition of the events which led to that immeasurable havoc and agony?
> I have three sons. It is for them and other children like them that I appeal to every Jew my words can reach. For the sake of all that you hold dear in life, and in memory of our murdered dead, do not at this crucial instant sit idly by or hold your tongue! Take action now -- before it is too late! . . .
> The fight to secure Dennis' freedom is a fight to protect our children's lives. (Albert E. Kahn, "What the Jailing of Eugene Dennis Means to the Jewish People," Jewish Life, July 1950 -- The entire "guest editorial" is published in bold-face type, italics in the original)

The most recent identification made by the communists of Jewish and communist interests has revolved upon the hearings of the eight New York city public school teachers suspected of being communists. The Daily Worker and the Morning Freiheit have, in almost every news story covering the hearings and in every editorial, emphasized that these teachers are being "persecuted" only because they are all Jewish. The defense of the teachers argued this point quite vociferously upon many occasions. Thus, it was reported when the appointment of Theodore W. Kiendl as trial examiner was made, Abraham Lederman, president of the Teachers Union and one of the eight teachers, raised the question of anti-Semitism, pointing out that all of the eight teachers were Jewish, adding:

> We cannot have confidence in an objective evaluation of our case by the member of the firm which throughout its long history, is reputed to have excluded Jews as partners. (New York Times, Harold Faber, June 13, 1950)

On several other occasions during these hearings, Mrs. Rose Russell, legislative representative of the Teachers Union, accused the Board of Education of employing a "double standard" based on religion in determining disciplinary cases among the teachers, declaring that the charges against these eight teachers, all of whom were Jewish, was motivated by "anti-Semitism." (Murray Illson, New York Times, May 5, 1950)

The Morning Freiheit, in an editorial "The 'Trial'" of the Teacher Friedman, stated:

> The reaction has attacked eight teachers in New York and is trying to oust them from the public schools. It is necessary to emphasize that the victims selected were eight Jewish teachers. The anti-Semitic wrinkle is quite obvious here. Through these teachers, an attempt is being made to scare all progressive teachers and give their union a death-blow.

In attempting to identify more clearly the communist cause here with the Jewish, the editorial continues:

> Only in the atmosphere of war-hysteria is possible such cynicism which affects not only the eight teachers, but everyone. These trials are in step with the police-state laws which have been passed in a number of cities to force communists to register. . . . A mighty protest against the reaction. . .is the only way to stop this harmful farce of "trials," which is being conducted, -- and again recall, that it is only against Jews -- and the crime which is being committed in an attempt to transform teachers into robots who will not dare to think and who will repeat in the classroom . . .that war is inevitable and that there must be poverty and that no one can ask any questions. (October 16, 1950)

The Daily Worker has several times declared that

> The campaign against the teachers, all of whom are Jewish, is part of a drive by the Catholic hierarchy against academic freedom and the Teachers Union. (September 21, 1950)

In this anti-Catholic campaign, the May Quinn case is usually brought in to prove the alleged Catholic bias in the Board of Education.

The Daily Compass, too, takes the same position. A lengthy editorial by Ted O. Thackrey has as its title "Sinister School Pogrom," and begins:

That's right: pogrom, not program.

That's what has happened already to eight public school teachers, all of them with long and faultless records in the school system.

There are indications that this is just the beginning; if superintendent Jansen gets away with the suspension of these eight teachers without adequate public protest, anti-Semitism will have been established as a guiding rule for the tax-paid educational system of the community which includes the largest number of Jews in the world. (May 7, 1950)

Some Jewish communists, trying to point up Jewish identification with the communist teachers, organized a committee which came into life only to protest publicly to the Board of Education on this issue. These people, calling themselves the Council of Jewish Organizations in Brownsville (there is no such bona-fide group, according to Dr. Arthur Rosenbaum, director of the Brooklyn Jewish Community Council), told the Board of Education that the suspension of these teachers was "a manifestation of anti-Semitism," and that "instead of persecuting teachers for their opinions, the Board should take action against proven anti-Semites and bigots like May Quinn." (Daily Compass, June 7, 1950)

As to representative Jewish groups, the communists seek to discredit them in the eyes of the Jewish community if these groups have taken a stand against communism. As an example, we may quote from the Freiheit about an editorial in the Jewish Daily Forward which praised the American Jewish Committee for its statement against communism issued at the last executive committee meeting.

Let these Jewish bankers and their Forward lackeys remember: they once tried these methods in Hitler-Germany. And what was the result? They helped in the annihilation of six million Jews and the destruction of Germany, and many of them were themselves murdered.

If these misleaders cannot learn from history, the Jewish masses must do so themselves. It is the duty of every honest, thinking, progressive person to clarify this for the broadest masses of the people. ("Jewish Bureaucrats Try to Frighten the Jewish Masses," Morning Freiheit, October 18, 1950)

4. West Germany -- Home of Nazis; East Germany -- Free from Anti-Semitism

The American communist position on Germany has been to discredit completely the efforts made by the American government to help effect a return of democracy to Germany. There are two motivations. The first, obviously, is to compare Western Germany unfavorably with Eastern Germany, so that it should be ultimately concluded that only the Soviet Union has known how to handle the Germans. The second is part of the general pattern of undermining confidence in the American government.

The specific appeal to Jews on Germany is based on the abhorrence many Jews feel for Germany and Germans since the annihilation of six million European Jews. By seeking to identify American occupation authorities specifically with Nazis and dissociated from "progressive" Germans, the communists try to create the impression that the American government is supporting a completely dominated Nazi state in Western Germany. Any incident of anti-Semitism, neo-Nazism, vandalism is blown up far beyond its true proportion. Since the communists fan Jewish hatred for Germans, they become embarrassed about the Eastern Germans and so the communist Jewish press infrequently writes about Eastern Germany. But when such articles do appear, it is pointed out that anti-Semitism in Eastern Germany is of no consequence and that former Nazis have been dealt with energetically.

An editorial in the Freiheit compares trials of Rumanian war criminals with paroles of German war criminals:

> Why are the war criminals being freed? Is it because they have promised to be good boys in the future?
> Of course not. The contrary may be said: They have been freed from their punishment just because they have remained what they were: conscienceless, brutal militarists who will not stop at any crime in the war service of imperialism. . . .
> In Rumania even "petty" war criminals are given stiff prison sentences -- In Japan and West Germany the worst war criminals are freed for "good behavior." The comparison and the conclusion speak for themselves. ("Where They Are Punished -- And Where They Are Freed," Morning Freiheit, October 17, 1950)

Regarding Eastern Germany, the Freiheit says:

> In Eastern Germany there is no such danger /revival of neo-nationalism/, because only there where there is a policy of imperialism, as is the policy of the Western countries,--only there could it happen that the Nazis should again lift their heads, because their help is needed in the war preparations, because there they have trodden with their feet all agreements about building a democratic order in Germany and the responsibility to guarantee that Germany will never again be a threat to the peace of the world. ("'Jews -- The First Victims,'" Morning Freiheit, July 24, 1950)

An article in Jewish Life, written as a "Letter from Abroad," discusses Jews in Eastern Germany. On the question of anti-Semitism, the writer relates:

> I asked about anti-Semitism in the Democratic Republic. "Out of the question," "It would not be allowed," were the replies I received.
> Such outreges as the Hedler case, instances of public persons guilty of anti-Semitic incitement being acquitted, retaining their party and parliamentary posts, etc., familiar from the West zones of Germany, are utterly impossible. One of the leading people's judges in Eastern Berlin is Jewish and actually the chairman of the Gemeinde.
> But surely, I asked, after the years of indoctrination, anti-Semitic feelings must remain widespread, however strongly they may be discouraged officially? What is the general attitude of neighbors in the Republic to those few Jews who now survive? The whole atmosphere is entirely different, I was told firmly. There is nothing one cannot take in one's stride. (Ivor Montagu, "Jews in Eastern Germany," Jewish Life, August 1950)

The attacks against "renazification" of Western Germany fit tidily in the "peace" campaign. For example:

> . . .renazification is itself a product of the cold war. For the Truman administration has been working to convert Western Germany into a war base against the Soviet Union and this can be accomplished only by promoting anti-democratic elements in Germany. For democratic /read communist/ Germans, like men of good will of varying political convictions all over the world, are demanding the breaking up of cartels and an end of the hysterical, impoverishing, war-inciting preparations for an anti-Soviet war. Denazification and the cold war policies are therefore in position to each other. (Louis Harap, "Renazification versus the People," Jewish Life, July 1950)

5. Israel Needs Peace

The interest in and concern for the welfare of Israel manifested by most American Jews during the past two-and-a-half years penetrated also into the Jewish section of the communist party. One reason was that the Jewish communists were themselves apparently infected with the enthusiasm among Jews generally. Another reason and one that is probably more significant is that during 1948 and perhaps even the early part of 1949, the Soviet Union followed a policy in the United Nations favorable to the new state. Since 1949, however, until the present writing, the position of the Soviet Union with regard to Israel and some of its problems as they affect the international scene has changed several times as, for example, concerning the internationalization of Jerusalem. In fact, the situation has been so unclear that John Williamson, in his address quoted earlier, said:

> We must warn against all of these tendencies to interpret events according to one's own fancy. Let us stick to the facts. The Soviet Union said it was withdrawing support of the U.N. resolution for the internationalization of Jerusalem because "it does not satisfy the Arab or Jewish population of either Jerusalem or Palestine as a whole." What is clear is that the old proposals for solving this problem are out and that new ones can be expected. (Our italics -- L.S.D.)

As a result, instead of having a clear position with regard to Israel, the communists must resort to strategical approaches not well-established in theory. Williamson continues:

> Instead of speculation as to how to interpret the Soviet Union's moves in the U.N., let us popularize the basic policies of the Soviet Union in behalf of the national independence of Israel and for the maintenance of world peace, both of which are threatened by U.S. imperialism. The tasks on which we should concentrate are:
> 1. exposing the machinations of U.S.-British imperialism to use Israel, Jerusalem, Transjordan as war bases;
> 2. exposing the Ben Gurion government's policies of surrender to U.S. imperialism, which can only mean aiding Wall Street's drive to unleash a Third World War;
> 3. developing a broad movement for peace among the Jewish people in the United States that will link up with the promotion of their interests, while learning how to connect such a peace movement among the Jewish masses with defense of the national interests of the people of Israel. . . . (Our italics -- L.S.D.)

The difficulty expressed in the last paragraph arises from the "Soviet Union's Leninist policy on the national question," which:

> . . .runs counter to the widespread bourgeois nationalist ideas of a "world Jewish nation," of the "oneness" of Jews internationally irrespective of the country of which they are a part, of a distinct 'world Jewish culture.'"

Because the communists realize that American Jews are concerned with Israel, they are forced, if they desire to succeed in their propaganda efforts, to include questions concerning Israel in their campaign for Jewish support. But obviously the communists find themselves in a dilemma because American Jewish interest in Israel does bespeak some form of what communists call "bourgeois nationalism."

In practice, the treatment accorded to Israel by the communists is not much different from that given the United States. The communists seek in both countries to undermine confidence in both the domestic and foreign policies of the governments, declaring that it is either the "fascist" or "social-democratic" forces that are operating against the interests of the "masses." The communists rejoice in any disturbance or catastrophe that may occur in either country. An example of this approach may be found in a Freiheit editorial regarding Israel's plans for a billion dollar bond drive:

> Ben-Gurion is seeking to solve the /economic/ question by increasing the contributions from Jews abroad -- a billion dollars in three years. . . .it does not occur to him that the Jewish masses abroad who want to help Israel -- and want a truly independent, truly democratic Israel -- cannot wax enthusiastic over a regime which is tied to Washington's wagon and conducts a policy which is dangerous to Israel. . . .
> Ben-Gurion's speech indicates that neither the masses in Israel nor the Jewish masses abroad can have any confidence in his government. They cannot consider it the instrument to strengthen Israel. On the contrary! ("Ben-Gurion's Speech," Morning Freiheit, August 21, 1950)

Specifically on the question of peace, the communists write:

> . . .this outright alignment of Israel with the imperialistic bloc /endorsement of the U.N. action in Korea/ is a profound disservice to Israel and the Jews. For this is the camp of the warmongers which imperils the peace of the whole world. The people of Israel and Jews all over the world are in the greatest danger from the atomic war which has been brought so close by intervention in Korea. A new world war would place Israel in danger of annihilation not only because it is a prospective front line of that war, but also because the fascist accompaniments of that war would mean the threat of new Maidaneks and Buchenwalds for the Jewish people. ("Israel and Korea," Jewish Life, August 1950)

~~94~~ 33432-46

In this editorial we find the same appeal that has been made to Jews in America, the same threats that unless they align themselves with the Soviet bloc, Jews everywhere throughout the world are doomed to extinction.

Another communist editorial, commenting on Henry Morgenthau's presence in Israel, declares:

> The Wall Street banker Henry Morgenthau, who is now dictating Ben-Gurion's reactionary policies in the country and abroad, is really interested not in the security of Israel, but in exploiting Israel as an Anglo-American base for a future war against the Soviet Union. Such a perspective would mean terrible destruction for the young Israel state, and must arouse the strongest protests. ("Shall Israel Become a 'Korea'?" Morning Freiheit, October 13, 1950

Conclusion

We have endeavored to show how the communists try to win support among Jews for their views which are now concentrated under the generally admirable concept of "peace." As the words "democracy" and "progressive" have long been subverted by the communists, so, too, the word "peace" has become part of their jargon. "Peace," as we have seen, when applied to Jews, means:

1. Jews must support the Soviet Union, otherwise there will be no "peace";

2. The United States (its leaders, not its "masses") fosters a policy of anti-Semitism and war, which can culminate only in the extermination of the Jews, unless this policy is opposed;

3. The United States is building up a Nazi Germany to fight against the Soviet Union in a war in which the Jews will be the first to suffer;

4. Israel is conducting an imperialist war policy against the interest of its people and in behalf of the United States; such a war will spell destruction for the Israelis.

Even this summary may be further concentrated: only if Jews anywhere in the world fight against the policies of the United States and support those of the Soviet Union, will they be rescued from the horrible fate of mass annihilation.

Mr. Joseph J. Woolfson, Director of Veterans Affairs of the American-Jewish Committee, 386 4th Avenue, New York 16, New York, telephone Murray Hill 5-0181, stopped in my office, advising Mr. McGuire, during my absence, that he had been discussing with Jerry Cahill (Mr. Gerard M. Cahill) of the Motion Picture Association of America, Incorporated, 1600 I Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C., an idea he had in mind of having the Director read a script before the newsreel cameras so that a message could be given to movie audiences and television audiences alike, admonishing Americans not to engage in the Communist technique of name-calling.

By way of explanation, Mr. Woolfson advised that what he had in mind is to prevent any of our citizens from being tricked into attacking each other by smearing people just because they are friends of civil liberties, and calling persons Communists when there is no evidence of Communist connection, as he felt that our people ought to be united in defending our basic freedom and not be tricked into doing just what the Communists want.

Woolfson drew up a one-page outline of his idea and left it together with his correspondence with Mr. Cahill for our perusal and it is attached hereto.

Enclosure returned

Woolfson stated that he had not reached any definite decision with the Motion Picture Association representative and did not know whether it would be best to have the Director do this type of project for the movie people or as a project of the All-American Conference. He asked that we think over the idea and at our convenience let him know what we thought of it. He indicated that if the Director could not do it it might be something that the Attorney General would be interested in doing; however, he preferred the Director because of the universal respect had for Mr. Hoover.

Woolfson formerly was with Stuart Symington and War Assets and I met him at the All-American Conference meeting in Philadelphia earlier this year.

It would be my suggestion that we advise Woolfson his idea is good but that the Director just cannot work this into his already overcrowded schedule at the present time.

Mr. Edwin J. Lukas
Director
The American Jewish Committee
386 Fourth Avenue
New York 16, New York

Dear Mr. Lukas:

I am appreciative of the concern which prompted your letter of September 23, 1953.

As you are aware, inquiries which we conduct are specifically limited in scope to determine the suitability of an individual for government employment. We must ascertain his character, reliability and general reputation. It is our primary responsibility to find out if the applicant or employee is loyal to the United States. Obviously, the question as to whether an individual is a Zionist does not enter into these considerations.

If you have received any specific information indicating that one of our representatives has pursued such a line of inquiry, I would like to receive the complete details immediately in order that corrective action can be taken. If no basis for such allegations can be found, I, of course, want the record set straight.

Sincerely yours,
J. Edgar Hoover

In April, 1946, he was critical of the Director and said the Director's position in calling for severity in punishment as a crime detriment was an archaic stand. In 1946, his name appeared on a "Win The Peace" committee which outfit was described as Communist inspired.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Our attention has several times been drawn, in the past year or so, to the fact that some of your agents--in the course of their investigations concerning the loyalty or other suitability of individuals for government posts--on occasion ask whether the job candidates, if Jewish, are "Zionists".

We are curious about the significance of this question because, though the American Jewish Committee is a non-Zionist group, we fail to perceive its relevance to the nature and object of the investigation.

Could you enlighten us further on this subject?

Sincerely,

Edwin J. Lukas

Dear Sir:

Since receipt of your letter dated October 2, 1953, I have inquired into the applicant-type investigation which was conducted pertaining to Mr. Jerome Rothstein.

The Special Agent who conducted the investigation in New York City has assured me that he did not inquire of Mr. Himmelfarb as to whether Mr. Rothstein was a Zionist. According to the Agent, the inquiry directed to Mr. Himmelfarb pertained to Mr. Rothstein's loyalty to the United States. During this interview Mr. Himmelfarb volunteered information as to Mr. Rothstein's activities and included the mention of Mr. Rothstein's interest in the study of physics and in Zionism.

A review of the detailed reports which were submitted in connection with the investigation confirms the statement of the Special Agent who conducted the investigation. The reports do not indicate that a line of questioning was pursued among the persons interviewed as to whether Mr. Rothstein was a Zionist.

As I have previously advised you, such investigations as the one pertaining to Mr. Rothstein are conducted primarily to determine whether the applicant or employee is loyal to the United States and such questions as whether a person is a Zionist do not enter into these considerations. Our Special Agents are instructed to that effect.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I am grateful to you for your letter of September 28 and for the promptness and understanding nature of your response to my inquiry of September 23.

You asked for specific information, and I will try to be helpful. During the late Spring or early Summer of this year one of your agents visited Mr. Milton Himmelfarb of this organization in the course of an investigation of the suitability of one Jerome Rothstein, a physicist, who was then being considered for a scientific post in government employment. (Mr. Himmelfarb does not remember the name of the agent, but it is my hope that this identification will suffice to aid you, in turn, identify the agent who conducted that investigation). It was in the course of the interview of Mr. Himmelfarb concerning Mr. Rothstein that the question was asked as to whether he (Rothstein) was a Zionist. We have no desire that that agent be in any way disciplined on account of this episode, for I am sure he was motivated in all good faith, however misguidedly.

During the past year I have heard from a few other sources -- unfortunately I cannot now recall them -- of similar questions having been asked in the course of other investigations of suitability for government employment. I dismissed them from my mind at that time as perhaps isolated instances, not necessarily revealing any design or pattern; and, therefore, I did not retain in my recollection the identity of the people who revealed those circumstances to me. But when my attention was drawn to the Rothstein episode, above described, I felt that I owed you the obligation of making this inquiry, to which your most satisfactory response was made.

Again my thanks, and my warm personal regards.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I am indebted to you for your letter of October 12, and for the promptness and effectiveness of your attention to the matter I referred to you.

Apparently there seems to be some disagreement between your special agent and Mr. Himmelfarb as to who introduced the subject of "Zionism" into the interview. Mr. Himmelfarb, with whom I have discussed the matter since receipt of your letter, still seems to insist that your agent--not he--did so.

However, at the moment, that fact becomes relatively unimportant. We are heartened by your reassurance that "whether a person is a Zionist /does/ not enter into these considerations", and that your agents are instructed to that effect.

So far as we are concerned, your reassurance closes the incident, and I am grateful to you for your efforts in the matter.

Sincerely,

Edwin J. Lukas

Dear Mr. Burstein:

Your letter dated April 15, 1954, has been received, and I deeply appreciate your offer to be of assistance in the future.

In accordance with your request, it is a real pleasure to send to Mr. Philip Jacobson some information which I hope will be of interest to him. I am writing him to enclose several items on religious training and juvenile delinquency.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

PERSONAL

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Shortly before leaving the Washington scene, I attempted to contact you and advise you that I had voluntarily resigned my position with the Department of State. However, you were busy and in order to avoid becoming a nuisance, I made no further attempts in that direction. To date I have not succeeded in relocating, but there are some matters under consideration. Once I have established myself I shall take the liberty of advising you so that, should the circumstances permit, you may know to what extent I may be able to assist the Bureau in its efforts.

At the present time I am in Boston, and since my arrival I have become rather interested in the activities of the American Jewish Committee, an organization with which you are familiar, I am sure.

The other evening we attended a meeting at which time the question of religion and education was discussed by Mr. Philip Jacobson, the National American Jewish Committee Staff Specialist in that field. As was to be expected, the discussion ultimately got around to the point of religious training and juvenile delinquency.

After the meeting, Mr. Jacobson and I went into a more detailed discussion of this and he expressed an interest in obtaining some information on this subject from the Bureau, if possible. Our discussion related to the statistics on juvenile delinquency which are set forth in the Uniform Crime Reports, and to information contained in statements by yourself on the relationship between religious training and delinquency.

Consequently, I would appreciate it if the Bureau could possibly furnish Mr. Jacobson with some data along this line. His address is as follows: c/o The American Jewish Committee, 386 Fourth Avenue, New York 16.

May I again restate my standing offer to be of assistance to you or the Bureau at any time that I can, or in any manner.

With kindest personal regards, and with every good wish for the Easter season, I remain,

Very truly yours,

Harvey Burstein

Dear Mr. Krakauer:

It was most thoughtful of you to write me on May 13, 1954, commending the FBI for its work in solving the recent extortion case in Dallas, Texas.

Your generous comments are indeed a source of encouragement, and I very much hope that our efforts will justify your future confidence.

In the event you desire a film regarding this Bureau's work, you should feel free to get in touch with Mr. J. C. Ellsworth, Special Agent in Charge of our Kansas City Office. He will consider it a pleasure, I know, to be of service to you.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I would like to take this opportunity to commend you, and your entire organization, for the job you have done in capturing the Dallas extortionists.

It is gratifying to know that the F.B.I. can be relied upon to move swiftly and effectively in such cases. Please rest assured that you will always have the support of thoughtful citizens of all groups in your protection of American citizens from subversion, extortion, and all other illegal acts. You may be confident that your thirty years with the Bureau has earned you the respect of all Americans.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Riesel called. He stated that for some time he has been talking to George Kellam of the American Jewish Committee, who formerly was an assistant to George Mintzner, a prominent Jewish leader. Riesel stated the American Jewish Committee was in many respects similar to the Anti-Defamation League, but is a very wealthy and influential group. He stated he has been seeking to stir the American Jewish Committee up to take a vigorous stand against renegades with Jewish backgrounds who have joined the Communist Party; that he has talked to Kellam on several occasions about the Bureau and Kellam is very favorably disposed toward the Bureau and sometime wants to come to the Bureau. I told Riesel we, of course, would be glad to see him.

Riesel then stated that Kellam had asked if he could find out how many of the seven Communist Party leaders who were arrested in Connecticut and New York on Saturday were Jews. He pointed out they had reasoned that five out of the seven were Jews but just wanted to be certain. I told Riesel he was asking a very difficult question as to single out an individual because of race or religion was something that was repulsive and I would appreciate his not even asking this. He stated he thoroughly understood.

As a matter of fact, out of the seven arrested, one was a Negro, one was married to a Jewish girl, although he had turned away from the Christian faith, and five were Jews.

SUBJECT: AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Mr. James Marlow of Associated Press called at 10:05 PM, 12/15/54, and inquired whether the American Jewish Committee has been cited or whether it is on any list. He stated that this Committee had just issued a pamphlet concerning the progress made in civil rights in the past seven years. It is noted that the American Jewish Committee has not been cited by the Attorney General under Executive Order 10450 nor is it listed in the "Guide to Subversive Organizations" prepared by the House Committee on Un-American Activities nor has a thumbnail sketch on it been prepared by the Bureau. It was ascertained, however, that there is a main file (94-33432) and a number of other references to this organization. Since Mr. Marlow desired an immediate reply, no further check was made.

ACTION:

Pursuant to Mr. Nichols' instructions, Mr. Marlow was requested to call Mr. Nichols at his home.

ADDENDUM:

Bureau files reflect the American Jewish Committee was founded in 1906 and is dedicated to safeguarding civil and religious rights of Jewish people. It has been continually anti-Communist and in 1944 withdrew from the American Jewish Conference, a Zionist organization, when the Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order, a Communist-dominated group, was admitted to membership. The "Daily Worker" has attacked the American Jewish Committee (94-33432-12).

Dear Mr. Hoover: PAMPHLET

Enclosed is the new edition of THE PEOPLE TAKE THE LEAD, a record of nationwide civil rights progress published annually by the American Jewish Committee to commemorate Bill of Rights Day (December 15).

The current report is a survey of advances in education, employment, housing, public accommodations and other important areas of American life, from October 1947, when the President's Committee on Civil Rights issued its historic report on the condition of American freedom, to the present day. It is a heartwarming record of progress in every field, and one of which all Americans can be proud.

I hope you will find this pamphlet interesting and useful.

Sincerely yours,

Nathaniel H. Goodrich

THE PEOPLE TAKE THE LEAD

A RECORD OF PROGRESS IN CIVIL RIGHTS, 1948 to 1955

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
DATE HUSTON BY

THE PEOPLE TAKE THE LEAD

This edition of THE PEOPLE TAKE THE LEAD marks seven years of nation-wide civil rights progress. Since 1947, when the President's Committee on Civil Rights issued its historic report, new gains have repeatedly overshadowed events regarded as epochal when they occurred.

Five years ago, the first edition of this report listed few fair practice laws. Today, twelve states and thirty-two cities have fair employment laws. Three states have fair education laws. Five states have public accommodation laws with administrative enforcement.

Five years ago, this report listed the first Negro college professor appointed; the first Negro office-holder in the South; the first Negro doctor on the staff of a general hospital. Today, such "firsts" could probably fill this entire book.

Five years ago, the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital scored widespread discrimination in Washington. Today, segregation in public facilities in the Capital is the exception, rather than the rule.

Five years ago, Negro students were rarely admitted to Southern State universities. Today, some 2,000 Negro students attend integrated college classrooms in the South.

And the most far-reaching advance of all — the U. S. Supreme Court's historic decision on May 17, 1954, banning segregation in the nation's public schools — was only a far-off dream, five years ago.

In every area of American life, the gap between ideals and practices is closing — slowly, to be sure, but steadily. Our courts, our state and municipal legislatures, our civic leaders are continuing the forward march towards equal justice and opportunity for all.

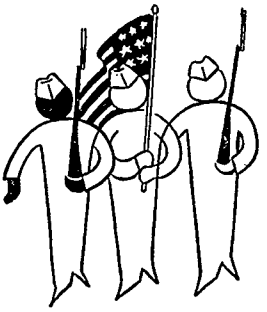

There are still set-backs, of course; and much progress remains to be made. But those who look to this country for proof that democracy can fulfill its promise have reason to be heartened by the advances highlighted in these pages.

January 1955.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE
386 Fourth Avenue
New York 16, N. Y.

FOUR ESSENTIAL RIGHTS

The Report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights sets forth four basic rights essential to the well-being of the individual.

I. THE RIGHT TO SAFETY AND SECURITY OF PERSON

Freedom exists only where everyone is secure against bondage, lawless violence, and arbitrary arrest and punishment. Where individuals or mobs take the law in their own hands, where justice is unequal, no man is safe.

II. THE RIGHT TO CITIZENSHIP AND ITS PRIVILEGES

In a democracy, every citizen must have an equal voice in government. Citizenship must not be withheld because of color, creed or national origin. All able-bodied citizens must enjoy the right to serve their country in times of war.

III. THE RIGHT TO FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE AND EXPRESSION

A free society is based on the ability of the people to make sound judgments. But such judgments are possible only where there is access to all viewpoints. Freedom of expression may be curbed only where there is clear and present danger to the well-being of society.

Our forefathers fought for the right to worship God according to the varied dictates of conscience. Complete religious liberty has been accepted as an essential freedom ever since our Bill of Rights was adopted.

IV. THE RIGHT TO EQUALITY OF OPPORTUNITY

Full citizenship entitles all Americans, regardless of race, creed or national origin, to equality of opportunity—in securing useful employment, in enjoying equal access to education, housing, health and recreation services, transportation and other public and semi-public facilities.

SUBJECT: AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

SYNOPSIS:

You will recall that James Marlow of the Associated Press called and advised that the American Jewish Committee had published a pamphlet concerning the progress made in civil rights in the past seven years. You instructed that Crime Records Section obtain a copy of this pamphlet. A copy of the pamphlet was obtained. Also, by letter of December 21, 1954, Nathaniel H. Goodrich, Washington, D. C. Counsel of the American Jewish Committee, forwarded a copy of this pamphlet to the Bureau.

This pamphlet is entitled "The People Take the Lead" and reports the accomplishments made in civil rights since 1947, when the President's Committee on Civil Rights issued its report. This pamphlet lists the dates of important administrative measures, legislative action, court action, and voluntary action affecting civil rights in various fields. These fields are broken down into the following categories: Armed Services, Athletics, Citizenship, Education, Employment, Housing, Professional, Business, Religious and Fraternal Societies, Public Accommodation and Miscellaneous.

This pamphlet is strictly factual and in no place does it mention the FBI as such. The pamphlet on page 6 under the heading Administrative Measures in the category Citizenship states, however, that in Mobile, Alabama, in November, 1948, Federal officers invoked rarely-used civil rights statutes and arrested a sheriff and a deputy for inflicting physical punishment on Negro prisoners. Believed to be case of J. A. Hill and W. R. Harrell arrested by U. S. Marshal 11-19-48. Jury verdict, Not guilty. (44-1985)

RECOMMENDATIONS: (1) It is recommended that the attached letter be sent to Mr. Goodrich acknowledging receipt of the copy of the pamphlet which he submitted to the Bureau.

DETAILS:

You will recall that James Marlow of the Associated Press called and advised that the American Jewish Committee has published a pamphlet concerning the progress made in civil rights in the past seven years. You instructed that Crime Records Section obtain a copy of this pamphlet. A copy of the pamphlet was obtained. Also, by letter of December 21, 1954, Nathaniel H. Goodrich, Washington Counsel of the American Jewish Committee, forwarded a copy of this pamphlet to the Bureau.

This pamphlet is entitled "The People Take the Lead" and reports the accomplishments made in civil rights since 1947 when the President's Committee on Civil Rights issued its report. In the introduction, the pamphlet states that five years ago there were few fair practice laws but today twelve states and thirty-two cities have fair practice laws. Five years ago, according to the report, the first Negro college professor was appointed and Negro students were rarely admitted to Southern state universities. The report states that now such "firsts" concerning Negro college professors could probably fill the pamphlet and that today some two thousand Negro students attend integrated college classrooms in the South. The introduction concludes by stating that those who look to this country for proof that democracy can fulfill its promises have reason to be heartened by the advances highlighted in these pages.

The pamphlet goes on to list the dates of important administrative measures, legislative action, court action and voluntary action affecting civil rights in various categories. Following are highlights of such action in the various categories.

Armed Services: Under the category Armed Services, the report states that the President's Executive Order #9981 forbids discrimination in the armed forces and that in 1954 the Army promised to end segregation at West Point and the Veterans Administration announced the end of segregation in all VA hospitals. From 1947 to 1949 eight states passed legislation forbidding discrimination in the National Guard.

Athletics: In regard to athletics, the report states that the City Commission of Birmingham, Alabama, in January, 1954, lifted a ban on Negro-white football games and that the Court of Civil Appeals in Austin, Texas, in October, 1954, ruled that state ban on Negro-white prize fights was unconstitutional. It goes on to list other types of sports in which Negro players were permitted to participate.

Citizenship: The report states that in Mobile, Alabama, in November, 1948, Federal officers invoked rarely-used civil rights statutes and arrested a sheriff and a deputy for inflicting physical punishment on Negro prisoners. This case is believed to be that of J. A. Hill and W. R. Harrell arrested by U. S. Marshall November 19, 1948. The jury verdict was not guilty. (44-1985)

From the period 1949 to 1951 Texas and South Carolina adopted anti-lynch laws; from 1949 to 1953, six states passed legislation forbidding the wearing of masks and burning of crosses, and in August, 1953, the U. S. Congress repealed Federal prohibition against the sale of liquor and firearms to Indians. Also, in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1949 the State Supreme Court ruled that counties with substantial Negro populations must add Negroes to grand and petty jury lists, and that in Atlanta, Georgia, in September, 1949, Negroes voted in primary election for mayor for the first time.

EDUCATION: The report states that in July, 1948, the report of the President's Committee on Higher Education condemned segregation and discrimination in colleges and professional schools and that in February, 1954, the Secretary of Defense ordered an end to segregated military post schools by 1955. This section goes on to quote various states which adopted legislation on segregation in public schools and cites court action and voluntary action which permitted Negro students to attend public schools.

Employment: The report states that in July, 1948, Executive Order #9980 was issued by the President ordering Federal agencies to ban discrimination in employment and that in Washington in September, 1954, district commissioners ordered the desegregation of Negro firemen. It listed the various cities which from 1948 to 1954 adopted ordinances barring discrimination in public and private employment and that in November, 1949, in Washington the U. S. Supreme Court sustained an injunction against the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers because of discrimination against Negro railroad employees. It also cites various instances in which Negroes have been admitted to various fields such as medicine and baseball.

Housing: According to the report, the Federal Housing Administration in December, 1949, refused to insure loans on any new housing covered by recorded restrictive covenants, and that from 1950 to 1954 several city housing authorities were listed as eliminating racial segregation in city housing projects. The report listed adoption of legislation in various states forbidding discrimination and segregation in public housing and mentioned that court action had been obtained in such places to the effect that racial zoning laws were unconstitutional.

Professional, Business, Religious and Fraternal Societies: According to the report, the American Nurses' Association has voted to give direct membership to Negro nurses refused district membership and that Negroes have been admitted to membership in several state medical associations.

Public Accommodation: The Interstate Commerce Commission in November, 1951, barred racial discrimination in sale of tickets on Washington-Mount Vernont excursion boat, and in October, 1954, according to the report, the Justice Department asked the Interstate Commerce Commission to ban segregation on interstate railroads. Also in January, 1954, the Attorney General ruled that restaurants may not segregate patrons. The report goes on to list various other legislative, court and voluntary action against segregation in various public establishments and in transportation facilities.

Miscellaneous: The report states that legislatures in three states repealed bans on inter-marriage between whites and non-whites and that in Spring of 1953 legislatures in Washington and Iowa banned cemeteries from refusing burial because of race or color.

It has been noted that no mention has been made of the FBI as such in this pamphlet.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Report from Israel

OCTOBER 1954

Note: The following report is sent regularly to the American Jewish Committee by an Israeli observer of affairs in that country. His comments do not necessarily reflect the views of the AJC.

Part I - Recent Events in Israel

As the pace of development and the influx of immigrants slow down, events follow a more even course from month to month, at a pace more suitable to a normalized people living under gradually normalizing circumstances. Things can no longer always be said to go any particular way. They happen in a normal set of conditions, and often lack social or political significance.

Nevertheless, some general tendencies could be observed. In Arab relations the wave of cautious optimism as to the possibility of peace, which had been noticeable some weeks ago, gave way again to the old reality of armed hostility continuing indefinitely. At home, the partners in the coalition government once again showed signs of straining at the leash, apparently unable to resist the temptation to break away long before next year's elections. In economics, the treasury showed signs of determined action to keep things calm and stop new price spurts.

In August and September there had been talk here of a better chance of making peace of some sort with the Arabs. The cause of this hope had been certain encouraging remarks made by British officials, coupled with a period of silence from Washington, a break in a heretofore one-sided pro-Arab series of actions and pronouncements. This silence was of course due to pre-election tactics. Israelis and their friends abroad took this as a good omen, and perhaps a good opportunity to approach Secretary Dulles on the matter of arms for Israel and other burning problems. It was once again unpleasant, though not unexpected, for Israelis to learn that Mr. Dulles had clearly refused to commit himself in any way before the elections on an easier line towards Israel.

On the other hand, the British government are holding on well to the political initiative which they took in Middle Eastern politics in the wake of their surrender of the Suez Canal. A veritable flood of words of encouragement for Israel has been pouring out of London these last eight weeks, and this has not failed to make a deep impression in this country. Sir Anthony Eden and Sir Winston Churchill seem to be vying with opposition leaders like Morrison in orally patting Israel on the back. If it is not of much practical use, it does good all the same. It raises morale, and restores political self-confidence, which had been waning this last year because of the U.S. stand. But it is not only a matter of words. There has also been a veritable host of British visitors of importance to this country. Parliamentarians, lords, businessmen, officials, follow each other in quick succession, and go all out to make a good impression while they are here. More than that. Many of them also go across to Jordan, which is ruled by Britain, to get the other viewpoint and see what they can do in the way of bridging the gap and lessening the tension. If nothing spectacular has come from all this, it can certainly not be denied that these visits do a lot of good, in one way and another.

It is understood here that Israel is not the only land so visited and attended to by British leaders. The entire area is now coming under closer attention from Whitehall. Indeed Eden said not long ago that the Israel-Arab problem is the last of the trouble spots in this area, and that a solution must be found.

Recent British activity represents an effort to regain the diplomatic initiative in the Middle East. The U.S. has moved into this area in the last few years, to the detriment of British influence, on matter of defense and security vis-a-vis Russia. Britain does not like to see the initiative wrested from her in lands such as Iraq, Egypt, and Pakistan, and therefore is making a great effort to come back before it is too late. In Israel Britain sees a better ground than anywhere else for staging a comeback, in spite of past differences. For Israel is in need of a helping hand, in her present political isolation; and she welcomes any sincere approach.

How does this affect U.S. policy? Observers here believe that if the U.S. does not quickly do something good, Britain will take all political initiative in this area away from the State Department. It is believed here that the State Department has been paralyzed recently by political developments in Washington. According to competent observers, there can be little doubt that both the one-sided policy of Mr. Dulles and such paralyzing home developments as a change in the McCarthy atmosphere and mid-term elections, are making it difficult for State Department officials to move with courage and foresight. Obviously these people in Washington are gagged or inhibted. The result is that they are fast losing out to Britain, which is coming back everywhere.

This does not of course presage any change in Israel's political association with the U.S. In the last analysis the U.S. is a main pillar of Israel's foreign policy. But there are a thousand and one lesser things in which other powers can gain political advantage. All this is true, not only of Israel but of the whole area. The left-handed manner of courting the Arabs is obviously failing to make the desired impression. The much more deft diplomacy, exhibted by Sir Anthony Eden recently in Geneva and London, is also good for this area and its problems. If anyting is likely to be successful at all, - and that is still a question, - it is surely the diplomatic and elastic manner of solving problems, rather than the rigid, inflexible, and narrow outlook from across the ocean.

As far as practical politics in Israel are concerned, there has so far been little gain from the new initiative. The British, however, are promising to go ahead to bigger issues. They proclaim their intention of resolving the tension between Israel and the Arabs. How far Israel still is from that goal can be seen from the incident of the ship"Bat Galim," which was prevented by Egyptians from passing the Suez Canal. Israelis had always disbelieved Egyptian protestations that shipping through the Canal would be free for all after the British left it. To prove how false this was, or rather to test its truthfulness, the Israeli ship entered the Canal. Her arrest and the charges against her crew are well known by now. Egypt has been proved to be unwilling to give free passage to shipping through this international waterway. Subsequent proceedings drag on in the U.N., in the usual way. But that is unimportant now. The Israeli adventure has proved the obvious. It needed no proof, and was hardly worth proving. The making of peace was not brought nearer. The evacuation of the British was not held up.

At home there is at present an atmosphere half way between normal government and the start of the election campaign. From the national point of view all those responsible try to keep their tempers cool as long as possible, and to carry on their normal administrative duties. From the party point of view, however - and that is often inordinately strong here - they are getting ready for the great campaign. Thus at present there is a kind of ambivalence among the politicans: they want to carry on, and also to start electioneering. Within the parties there is a certain struggle for key positions in the third Knesset. Among the parties it seems to be difficult for the politicians to keep cool at all times. The temptation to charge each other with past faults is too great. And so about once every two weeks there is an outburst of mutual antagonism between the two main parties, a kind of pre-campaign burst of machine gun fire. When the Knesset reassembled last week for the winter session, speaker Sprinzak was mindful of the danger to national efficiency inherent in too early and too long an election campaign, and so admonished members to keep their minds on business. For every piece of legislation started but not finished by this Knesset will fail, and will have to be introduced anew in the new House, a time-wasting prospect.

The Prime Minister has a hard time trying to keep left and right together. His own personality, though respected, does not tower high enough above his colleagues to keep the partnership together. It therefore becomes a question of what issue and what time are considered right by this party or that to break up the coalition. There is such a crisis just at present. The General Zionists feel they have been overriden all through the coalition, and no longer want to share responsibility for government action on major unpalatable issues. They are, on the other hand, loath to break up the government, both because they do not want to appear to be deserters, and because they are afraid Ben Gurion would come back that way. So they have come out with a formula whereby they stay in the government, but reject the idea of collective responsibility for all government action, which is the constitutional basis for any government. Needless to say Mapai rejects such a disingenuous formula outright. Sharett has put a number of practical proposals to the General Zionists, and asked them to state at once whether or not these are acceptable as a basis for further cooperation.

One of the issues, a s I have pointed out previously, is the manner of the next election: direct proportionate representation or constituency representation. Since Ben Gurion has persuaded Mapai to adopt his proposal for elections on the Anglo-American pattern, the General Zionists are now faced with the dilemma of accepting or rejecting the proposal. If they accept it, they give Mapai a clear chance of getting an absolute majority, a result they do not wish to permit. If they reject it, they reject the best chance of eliminating the harmful system of small party representation. The debate continues within the party offices of the General Zionists, and any decision arrived at will be a hard and difficult one. On it, however, will depend the system adopted at the forthcoming elections. If the constituency system is agreed on now, it will serve as basis for these elections. If not, Mapai will make it a platform plank.

What, then, has been the record of the various parties and ministers forming the present cabinet? The great success has been Finance Minister Levi Eshkol. In spite of continuing some bad past practices, he has shown wise determination in keeping the economy even and balanced. He fought inflation as best he could, in the face of many partisan demands for a relaxation of controls on credits. If after only six and a half years of impossible conditions there is normalcy in Israel today, it is due to him. Not so successful was his economic counterpart, Commerce Minister P. Bernstein. It was he who failed to stop the inflationary rise in food prices this summer in Eshkol's absence. Also some food supplies, notably fats, are again in disorder; and meat too has not been supplied in even the diminutive amount of 100 grams (3.5 ounces) per month! In industry he has done nothing to counter the new phenomenon of cartels (on an Israeli scale). Other failures have been Dr. Joseph, now Minister of Development, who indulged in promises about mining and Negev exploitation which in practice were never fulfilled. Behor Shitreet, nominally in charge of police but actually without portfolio, is a relic from past days. He just has no record at all. Serlin, General Zionist Minister of Health, is a clever tactician who has the attention of his party in day-to-day moves. He is bound to improve in position, if he stays in office. His office can take credit for achieving for the first time a situation in which there are sufficient hospital beds for all the needs of the population. The doctors are still extremely discontented over bad pay in state medical and health services. But that is not the minister's fault; it is government wage policy. Mapai's P. Naphtali in agriculture can take credit for the vastly improved supply of local produce. Farmers too can thank him for a good farm price policy.

Rokach, General Zionist's strong and experienced Minister of Interior, has tried to bring order into the inexperienced affairs of many a town and village administration. He has done good work which, though unspectacular, has been of great educational value to all who engage in local affairs, the first step to national politics. He is now the virtual leader of the party. Mizrahi's Shapira and Dr. Burg have been insignificant ministers of Religions and Posts respectively. Shapira has also been Minister of Social Services. The post office is today less efficient than before, in spite of an inevitable expansion of its services. Sapir is highly respected as a party leader and cabinet member. He thinks clearly and sincerely. His job as Minister of Transport has also involved inevitable expansion, but there has been nothing spectacular in his administration. Pinhas Rosen, the Progressive Party Minister of Justice, is a central figure in the cabinet. His legislative record was not spectacular, since the Knesset worked slowly; and fundamentally controversial subjects (such as church-state, etc.) had to be kept out. His ministry is well respected, since through the courts it provides the citizen with a guarantee against state excesses.

The courts in recent weeks handed down two decisions which are well worth noting. The first concerns the freedom of opinion of a soldier in service. When a group of Roumanian Jews went back to Roumania, attempts were made in Haifa harbor by Agency emissaries to persuade them not to go. A military police sergeant on duty, who overheard the ensuing heated debates, said that if these Jews were unhappy in Israel, as obviously they seemed to be, they might as well be allowed to go back to Communist Roumania. This expression of opinion infuriated a female Agency emissary in the harbor. She reported the case to a newspaper, which splashed it about as a scandal. The sergeant was brought before a military court and sentenced to nine months in prison for expressing this opinion in public while on duty. The sentence was ordered to be posted in all units, as an example. The Commander reduced it to six months. A wave of public indignation swept the entire country over this outrageous sentence involving the question of freedom of speech. A specially convened military court of appeal later reviewed the case, found the sergeant guilty of conduct detrimental to good order, but merely reduced him to the ranks with no other punishment. The principle of freedom of speech was clearly upheld, even in the army. But some circumspection was shown to be required of soldiers on duty among the general public under circumstances as delicate as the emigration of people to communist countries.

The Israeli Supreme Court dealt with quite another matter: the right of Israeli Moslems to marry more than one wife. Under Moslem law men may have up to four wives at any one time; divorce is easy, and at the option of the husband alone. Naturally Israel frowns upon bigamy, although the criminal law does not punish for bigamy those whose religion allows the practice. When Moslems applied to be married by a Moslem Kadi, after they already had one or more wives, the Kadi refused, on the ground that he would get into trouble with the authorities and have his marrying authority withdrawn. The impatient lover-husbands thereupon sought an order against the Kadi to marry them polygamously. They claimed that refusal to do so amounted to religious discrimination. The court rejected this argument, and found that polygamy is not commanded by the Moslem religion, but merely permitted. Since this permission runs counter to the prevailing opinion of the state, and also offends "the public policy of the law," the refusal was upheld. Moslems henceforth can no longer marry polygamously in Israel. Existing marriages (as also in the case of oriental Jews) of course remain in force and are recognized. A group of Negev Bedouins have since petitioned the President to permit the old practice, but the authorities remain unconvinced.

Finance Minister Levi Eshkol is at present engaged in doing all he can to save Israeli currency from further devaluation, as the result of sharp rises in food prices this summer. It is by now commonplace that hardly any price rises here can ever be brought down again. So all that can now be done is to stop further rises. As already reported, credit controls are stiff again. Other measures are also being resorted to. But there are two opponents, both within the Mapai camp. The big Histadruth combines see their chance of paying their vast debts (resulting from excessive overhead) in an expansionist economy where money is free and contracts are easily got. The trade union wing of the Histadruth is opposed to a policy of wage freezes for another year, which is a necessary aspect of the anti-inflationary policy. Especially in an election year they must satisfy their electorate by wage increases, all the more so since recent food price increases have jumped far ahead of wage increases. The debate is taking place primarily within the ranks of Mapai leadership, where Eshkol is an important figure. Even top trade union leaders, with the welfare of the nation at heart, have recommended wage freezes. As against this there has been a noticeable tendency on the part of local secretaries to independent action, especially in the form of wildcat strikes, to show the national leaders that they are fighting for next year's votes.

Strikes in general have become a daily feature in Israel, in the most unusual places. Indoctrinated by labor practices, all sorts of groups fight for their rights by means of strikes. Students at the University and Technical High School call strikes against high tuition fees, and even against too high a standard of examination! Doctors struck some months ago for better salaries. Secretaries of labor bureaus, charged with finding work for the unemployed, called a sit-in strike in the Tel Aviv mayor's office to force him to employ a certain number of men on municipal work relief. In another township, the major and his friends went on strike and held a demonstration outside the gates of a plant about to be removed to another city. And shopkeepers called a strike shutting their shops to protest against allegedly high internal revenue assessments. Strikes seem to have ceased being the legitimate weapon of labor, and have become the weapon of anyone trying to browbeat someone else, especially authority.

Part II - What Israelis, Old and New, Are Reading

Israel is the country with the highest readership per capita in the world. The two national pastimes are the movies (because of absence of drinking and less sport or other pastimes than elsewhere), and reading. About a quarter of a million newspapers are read in Israel every day, half of them in Hebrew and half in foreign languages. About 60- 75,000 weekly papers are read in addition. These facts are well known. But how about books? Jews are often called the People of the Book, meaning the Bible. What do they read in Israel today? There has certainly been a great change in what they read, in the last decade. The world's classics are today hardly read at all. Classic novels are seldom in demand, although there are excellent translations of many of them into Hebrew. Taste has changed considerably. Today it is the current best seller of the world markets for which people clamor, whether it be The Caine Mutiny, the latest Maugham, or the expensive edition of the Kinsey Reports. All are translated into Hebrew, to satisfy an avid market. Desirée, Moulin Rouge, the latest Vicky Baum, are snapped off the presses. The young, if they can read a foreign language, pick up a lot of professional literature which is not available in Hebrew. Young readers, and they are perhaps more numerous than middle-aged ones, - for reading is instilled in most youngsters as a habit at the age of seven, - reach for the most popular in current literature.

Political books, once the lifeblood of everyone in this country, today have been reduced to a small market among the traditionally left, in the Kibbutzim, etc. They have no wide appeal, unless they are also important in other respects.

The Hebrew book is definitely on the ascendant. Today, about one thousand books are published in Israel every year, almost all of them in Hebrew. They are usually more expensive than foreign books because of the necessarily small number of copies. The vast majority of Hebrew books published here are translations. Original Hebrew works are not as a rule popular. For one thing, Hebrew prose writing today cannot boast any great writers. Poetry has better sources, but is of course of very limited appeal. The young and the middle-aged find original Hebrew books hard to understand, for as a rule they tend to be philosophical rather than light. Sabras say local writing bores them.

A sadly neglected field is Hebrew children's books. This must come as a surprise to all those who know how much devotion is heaped upon the Israeli child and his education. The sad fact is that local writers and educators have not kept pace with modern writing for children. Children's books are primitive in text, picture, and get-up, and are shown up badly by the recent influx of children's books from the West. Here publishers will have to do some urgent readjustment. Actually, many parents buy foreign language books and read the stories to their children, translating freely as they go along. The pictures are worth the effort.

The state of the libraries is almost catastrophic. There is only a handful of public libraries in the whole country. The University Library in Jerusalem is cut off on Mount Scopus. City libraries are poor and lag behind. They satisfy only very limited demands. Replacements are almost unheard of, as funds are always short for current purchases. There are, however, about 400 private libraries (lending libraries) in the country, about half of them for Hebrew books, the other half for foreign books. There is an association of foreign language libraries. This does not necessarily mean that Hebrew and foreign language reading are equally prevalent among the population. It is difficult to state precise figures. The division of newspapers (half and half) suggests, however, that the reading public is evenly divided. Foreign language readers are mostly between 40 and 60 years old, while Hebrew readers include chiefly the young and adolescent, as well as all ages from the earlier immigration waves. Among foreign language readers, German is undoubtedly read most widely. This is the traditional language for most central Europeans. As books in East European languages, except Russian, are hard to come by under the present Eastern regimes, German finds a ready market. Of course, the U.S. Media of Information Agreement some years ago opened new vistas to Israeli readers, local and immigrant, who read English. The market was flooded with inexpensive books, good and bad. Of late, however, English reading has fallen off by 10 percent, as Hebrew translations are more readily available.

Immigrants concentrated in housing projects according to national origin, show a new phenomenon, the library which is exclusively in the language prevailing in that housing area, whether it be Bulgarian, Yugoslav, or Hungarian. One Turkish immigrant brought with him his private collection, and now makes a living by lending from a "Turkish Library."

Among the new immigrants, the "second Israel," literature fills at best a partial need. In many sectors it is not in demand at all. That is regarded as a great pity, for much could be done to help immigrants in their assimilation to the country, if they would do some reading. In the immigrant camps there are no libraries at all, and reading is not a habit there. Reading is the monopoly of old inhabitants and their offspring, and of immigrants from central Europe.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Report from Israel

AUGUST - SEPTEMBER 1954

Note: The following report is sent regularly to the American Jewish Committee by an Israeli observer of affairs in that country. His comments do not necessarily reflect the views of the AJC.

Israeli foreign policy is still in a state of complete flux. The previous course steered by the Israeli foreign ministry has required substantial alteration as a result of the execution of the new U.S. strategic policy in the Middle East.

All through the summer there was considerable anxiety in Israel lest the U.S. arm and strengthen the hostile Arab states to such an extent as to threaten the very existence of Israel and make it only a matter of time before the Arabs might be encouraged by their own unexpected new power to wipe out Israel and drive the Jews into the sea. As the result of this fear, which was inspired from above but readily taken up by the man in the street, the government concentrated on seeking ways of persuading the Western Powers to slow the intended supplies of arms to the Arab states and to provide safeguards for Israel.

The Israeli ambassador in Washington, Mr. Eban, played an important role in these affairs. Before returning to Israel on his annual visit, he tried to persuade Secretary Dulles of the need for safeguards for Israel. And it seemed that he succeeded. For he brought proposals from Mr. Dulles to Israel which were designed to soften the blow of arming the Arabs. It has not been made public here what these proposals involved.

Two developments have, however, occurred which to some extent tend to calm the temper and anxieties of Israelis over Arab arming. It appears that there is some considerable delay in the shipment of U.S. arms to Egypt: The Egyptians are said to be unwilling to admit a U.S. military mission as a channel for supplying and administering U.S. arms to that country. Egypt is of course free to buy arms elsewhere, even in Eastern Europe, if she wants to show her independence from America. It all depends whether she has the money to buy these arms. For aside from the U.S., nobody will give away arms free. And Egypt is unlikely to make a military pact with the communists. This then means that for the moment there will be no major arming of Egypt by the U.S. Extremists in Egypt also object to U.S. arms.

Great Britain, whose unconditional withdrawal from the Suez Canal is directly responsible for laying bare Israel's southern flank, has responded to Arab demarches in London concerning border violations, by offering her good offices in bringing the parties together. It is not quite clear here what this suggestion was meant to convey. It has been impossible to get details at the Foreign Office of any plans to get the parties to a conference table. So it seems that Britain intended primarily to please Israeli feeling by kind words. This in itself is not to be despised. But she also put the Arabs on the defensive. At a time when the political arena is full of peace-making over open and hidden quarrels - from Korea via Indo-China to the London Pact on Germany- it is striking that the Israeli-Arab quarrel should be one of the few still completely uncomposed. If Israel insists on making peace - whatever her terms may be- the Arabs will be hard put to it to justify their refusal to talk peace.

On the whole, the first stage in Israeli disappointment over U.S. foreign policy has passed, and a more realistic attitude has been adopted. Ambassador Eban was very instrumental in telling the people in Israel, what they should have known all along, namely that they must understand that the U.S. is bent on fortifying the Middle East against communist attack as much as it has fortified other areas, at whatever cost. He has made it plain that the U.S. will not be deflected from this plan, and that it would be as well to accommodate oneself within the framework of these circumstances.

In my previous report I indicated that Israel might break away from its completely Western orientation and seek new friends elsewhere. The cabinet, on the advice of the ambassadors in Washington and London, has now decided to stay firmly in the Western camp, and to maintain the closest relations with the U.S., as heretofore. The Israeli government have decided to deal with the U.S. government as friends, and not otherwise in its efforts to avert the worst dangers from U.S. anti-communist policies in this area.

This is having one apparent effect at this moment. At this fall season before mid-term elections, the U.S. government are somewhat more sensitive to Jewish opinion on Israel, it appears. They therefore hold back to some extent at this time in their execution of their pro-Arab policy in the Middle East. And, so some observers report, they have for the moment shifted the main weight of political activity in these matters to London, which is not exposed to Jewish election pressure.

It is difficult to sum up the situation at this moment. The reshaping of U.S.-Israel relations is still very much in process. It will probably be some months before something clear and definite emerges from the plans and proposals.

The eve of Rosh Hashonah served as an occasion for Israel to take the initiative once again in her relations with the Arabs. In a broadcast in the Arabic service, the Israeli government indicated specific elements of a peace settlement offer: Vastly increased compensation to refugees for their chattels, unfreezing of additional blocked funds of Arab refugees in Israeli banks, passage for Arabs between the Gaza coastal strip and the Jordanian hinterland, one of the worst stretches for infiltration. If Israel were ever to sit down at a conference table, she might have more to offer. As a feeler of good will this was to suffice. Of course there has been no official Arab response to this offer, if only because it did not come from an official Israeli source, or through diplomatic channels. Press reaction has however been as negative and hostile as always: Only the complete annihilation of Israel will create peace, they say.

The border situation continued to be a source of troubles. It is by now almost accepted that infiltration and marauding from across the borders form part of Israel's life. In the border areas - and these are almost everywhere because of the proximity of the borders - the population once again live in a state of tension. Nightly attacks have again become normal. The Israel army is doing all it can to combat infiltration, and takes the sternest measures. Observers abroad as well as some people here think that these measures are sometimes too stern. It is now accepted policy in Israel that every serious attack by Arabs will be repaid immediately, through acts of retaliation. I shall speak of this in more detail in my review of the year.

I should however point out briefly that many people on either side of the borders are puzzled by the incidence of infiltration. The authorities, especially in Jordan, continually assert that they do all in their power to stop infiltration from their side. It is also known that acts of Israeli retaliation cause serious fear among Arabs. And yet marauding, and even simple ambushing, continue all the time. The explanation has been put forward that this is actually the work of small bands of Arab fanatics who belong to the Moslem Brotherhood. This militant fanatical movement wishes to produce extreme reactions, and also tries to upset the present regimes, especially in Egypt. According to this view these Brotherhood fighters cause provocative incidents in order to create flare-ups on the border.

Israelis do not know the truth of this explanation. In any case they cannot take notice of it. Their attitude is that infiltration must be stopped, and since peaceful means and restraint have failed, retaliation is the only remaining weapon.

Until recently it was only the Arabs and the Jews who were factors in the border situation. During Gen. Bennike's term of office, the U.N. observer corps started actively to intervene and to take sides. It all started when Bennike overstepped the limits of his job, which was to guard the truce and prevent outbreaks of new fighting, and tried his hand at politics between Israel and her neighbors, to wit, peace-making in his own way. He involved himself and his corps through adjudicating between the two sides in every incident, and in the end even asked for powers to take the initiative in border matters and their adjudication. Israel objected to this enlargement of U.N. authority in this area, and especially in the field of politics.

Major General Burns of Canada, who succeeded Bennike, took up a delicate heritage. In order to make a new start in the barbed affairs of cross border shooting, Burns made proposals of his own. These proposals were not designed, or likely, to branch off into politics and adjudication of wrongs, but to prevent outbreaks or nip them in the bud: He started sending out independent U.N. patrols on either side of the border, to watch out for any trouble which might be brewing and stop it right away. These patrols are in contact with each other across the borders, and keep a close check on each side.

Israel at once objected to these independent patrols moving about on Israeli territory, claiming that the movement of such "troops" infringes on Israeli domestic sovereignty. Gen. Burns, however, answered at once that he who stops open control appears to have something to hide, and lays himself open to suspicion. The Israeli army was loath to give in, and objected to patrols except when these were accompanied by Israeli officers. But the army did not want to provide officers for close patrols along the border. In the end it was the section of opinion, and of cabinet power which is closer to foreign affairs than to the army, which forced a decision not to bring matters to a head with Gen. Burns. The whole issue was settled by compromise, and a sharp clash between Israel and the new chief observer was avoided at the last moment.

During the last few days the eyes of Israel have been fixed not so much on her own borders, as on politics in Europe. Israelis see a direct connection between the Brussels and London conferences on German sovereignty, and their own affairs. This has two aspects.

Israelis see in the conclusion of the allied agreement on German sovereignty and rearmament the last link in the political chain of Western consolidation all around the globe. After fortifying Western positions against Russian aggression in Korea and Indo-China, the German problem remained the last-but-one. Its settlement seems to have secured Western defenses in Europe. There now remains only the Middle East, this vast territory, which can so easily become a soft spot for Russian aggression. Israelis believe that insofar as the West has not yet begun settling the defenses of this area, it will now concentrate to do so. If this means bringing peace to Israel, all the better. But if it only means arming the Arabs and filling the vast area with some form of defense, then Israel will have to accommodate herself. Whatever it is, Israelis are preparing themselves for a major political offensive in this area.

The second result is the impact which the new sovereignty of West Germany will have on the state of Israel. Will Israel now have to set up diplomatic relations with Germany? Israel will undoubtedly have to fact this problem in the coming weeks. It is known that the Germans are very eager for such relations, although since the decline in unqualified U.S. support for Israel they see a little less need for them. But they give Israel a very important part of her supplies and services, through the material claims agreement. These supplies and services are both for immediate consumption and for long term investment. Israel is virtually acquiring a new merchant marine from German dockyards, as well as a new railroad system. She is also getting much of her raw materials for industry from Germany, as well as dollar credits for buying fuel oil overseas.

The question which will face Israelis is, however, not this. It is what Israeli interests dictate in the field of politics, vis-a-vis Germany. Germany is fast becoming a major factor again. Shall she be allowed to throw her weight behind Arab aspirations against Israel, or behind Israel? This will be the logical question. However, it is to be feared that other factors will enter strongly into the situation. It will not be easy to arrive at a decision to set up relations with Germany. Sentiment here still runs very high against Germany, and has not been at all allayed by occasional reports of renewed German Nazi manifestations. In the long run Israel will not be able to ignore the existence of Western Germany, any more than the Arabs can forever ignore the existence of Israel. Such attitudes run counter to fact, and fact is what counts in politics.

A new development in Israel is the successful acquisition of Hebrew by most immigrants, and the complete dominance which Hebrew holds today in all parts of Israeli life. It can be said that today almost everybody speaks Hebrew when required. The government, however, is not satisfied. It believes, and experience proves, that there is no stronger tie between an immigrant and this country than a command of Hebrew. He may do well in business, he may like the way of life, the climate, but nothing so links him with his new country of adoption as the language. And nothing brings the different groups of Jews closer together than a common tongue.

The government has now embarked on a scheme to teach Hebrew to all those who do not yet know it sufficiently. Courses are free, are given by professional teachers or volunteers, and are arranged to suit the convenience of most people, both men and women. The government seek in this way to get at several hundred thousand immigrants whose Hebrew is below par. The courses teach a limited vocabulary, something like Basic Hebrew. The grammar continues of course to be substantial and structurally difficult. It cannot be reduced to basic elements. And it is this which gives most difficulty.

As the Holy Land, Israel has problems of holiness peculiar to itself. As is known, most of the actual Holy Places of Christians, Jews, and Moslems, are not on Israeli territory. The Mosque of Al Aqzar, the Wailing Wall, the place of Christ's birth, and others are in Arab held territory. There are a few minor places in the North, in Nazareth, near Tiberias, near Safed, etc. All these are places of worship for the various religions, and attractions for tourists.

Lately some new "Holy Places" have been established in various spots. The den of Elijah on Mount Carmel has become a place to which oriental Jews, mainly Persian, go in pilgimage. And just very recently, someone unearthed a den in Jerusalem, some hundreds of yards away from the Old City Wall, and sought to attach to it a tendentious story with a view to making it a place of worship. The Ministry of Religions took up the spot, had it cleaned and made accessible, and now offers it to the believing public as something with a religious significance.

Protest has sprung up against such practices of "creating new holy places" where there is no historical or other proven justification for assigning such significance. In particular, the Ministry of Religions has been charged with playing on the gullibility of the oriental groups by offering them new places of pilgrimage and prayer. It is said that superstitution is fostered, not religion.

This is indeed a problem new to Israel. But it is interesting. It breaks the monotony of everyday problems, such as infiltrating Arabs and economic problems.

As Israel had been the Holy Land, economic matters such as taxation had never played a major part, at least not until two years ago. The government, and its British predecessor, collected taxes as best they could, from whomever they could most easily lay their hands on. As a result employes paid over half of all taxes, though their total incomes are only a fraction of the country's overall income. All this has changed since the treasurer decided to balance the budget, instead of living off debts. Taxation has got into its stride, and has been extended both in breadth and depth. It today embraces almost all earners, and almost their entire incomes. It has become efficient, often too efficient. For instance, tax officials have grown weary of arguing with businessmen about their declared incomes. Instead they just assess them for tax. Needless to say, this "over-efficient" practice causes quite a lot of hardship, especially among people who had never been used to paying taxes under the old lax system.

It would not matter that tax collection has suddenly become over-efficient, were it not for the fact that stiff rates of taxation start at very low levels of income. This is an unfortunate heritage from former days. When income tax was first introduced here, some thirteen years ago, a person who earned £ 20 a month could live as well as one who earns £ 250 today. In those days incomes of £ 20 were below the minimum level for taxation. The highest incomes here were about £ 250. Since then the value of money has changed completely, but the revision of taxable incomes has not kept pace at all. As a result most people are taxed today as if they were in the highest income group. This cuts deep into most incomes, and is a heavy burden on all the population. Israelis are today among the most heavily taxed people in the world; this means that their own contribution to getting the country out of economic straits is not inconsiderable.

These matters came to mind in a rather dramatic way some days ago when a small merchant in Jerusalem committed suicide because of his tax assessment. The public was stirred by his act and his declaration of motives. At least one group of businessmen has set out to get the treasury to put the brake on tax enforcement. There is, however, little chance of getting relief: So long as the state services are topheavy with redundant staffs employed to satisfy potential voters, the citizen will have to foot the bill.

It has been the government's policy for two and a half years to stop inflationary trends by credit controls on the banks. Control had been so strict, indeed, that many sections of business were choking for lack of working credits, and rates of interest went as high as 30 per cent. Needless to say the economy could not long support so high a rate.

On the recommendation of the chambers of commerce, credit control was eased a little last July. This was immediately felt in the country. Toward the High Holy Days a buying spree started. Its main effect was on food, where prices soared to new heights.

The buying spree has now stopped. But it is once again uncertain whether this is the beginning of a new inflationary spiral, or merely a temporary phenomenon. Your correspondent believes that it opens a new inflationary upsurge, for quite a lot of cash is again being put into circulation through government work relief schemes. These work relief schemes were stopped two years ago, in order to push redundant labor into primary production. Today work relief has been resumed - in order to keep the unemployed sections in trim for next year's elections. But it will mean unproductive money in circulation, causing new demands for goods, and hence a new inflation.

Turning to the arts, we find the Israeli stage getting a new lease on life through the works of young Israeli playwrights. For years producers had called for local works dealing with local problems. The public had grown tired of translated productions, however well done (and they were not always well done), except if they were proven classical material. Tennessee Williams and other contemporaries were performed here as much as in New York and London. But the public want to see themselves reflected, not others. They want their own problems dealt with.

Two young authors have shot up from the crowd, with promising material, Nathan Shaham and Yigal Mossinson. The latter is a man of great promise. His new play "Casablan," depicting the immigrant youth from North Africa during the fighting days, is a great success.

Review of the Year 5714 (September 1953-September 1954)

The year 5714 has been another year of tremendous progress in Israel. The outstanding feature of this progress has been the closer relation between what Israelis hoped to achieve and what they actually did achieve. In earlier years Israelis had set themselves goals which were unattainable by any normal standards and had of course been unable to reach them. Failure to reach the targets which they had set led to much disappointment and despondency, and a cooling off in enthusiasm. The result was a lowering of morale. All this has now been happily changed. Morale is again very high, as Israelis have come to look at themselves, and at their surroundings and their abilities, through more realistic glasses. They have adjusted their aims accordingly. And in doing so, they have not lowered their achievements. On the contrary, they have become more efficient.

What made Israelis adjust themselves more closely to reality, was a cooling off in their belief that they alone had defeated the Arabs in the war of 1948, and that as victors they could dictate terms and force submission. That was the first psychological factor in the field of Israeli foreign policy. The other was the feeling of being surrounded and continually threatened by enemies ready to drive them into the sea. This claustrophobia has not as yet altered in any way. Indeed it cannot alter so long as there is no peace between the Arabs and Israel, and so long as Israel has to maintain defenses far in excess of its normal ability. Arab infiltration and murders from across the borders have indeed perpetuated the feeling of claustrophobia.

In integrating immigrants and welding the new and old populations into one people, there was substantial progress. This too stemmed from a closer realization of what could be done, instead of an impatient insistence on what had to be done. Much, however, remains to be done in this field. Economically, there was much more tranquility and a comparative absence of the financial difficulties which had been the bane of Israel in the inflationary years 1949-1952. The average income earner, whether in business or employed, could look more clearly ahead to his economic future, and could find a more permanent place in the economic system. Business was harder, and salaries remained low. But there was no need to watch the daily economic weather forecasts for storm or danger signals.

In foreign affairs this has been a year of retrenchment. The Anglo-American policy of organizing the Moslem Middle East for defense brought in its wake several untoward, though by no means, unexpected developments. The United States made a pact with Iraq to supply her $100m. worth of arms. Britain finally had to leave her base at the Suez Canal; and the entire political atmosphere in this area was favorable to the Arabs. Although it was never doubted that the U.S. had no intention of abandoning Israel, yet the dangers created for Israel by actual moves, as distinct from motives, instilled grave fears in the heart of all Israelis. People outside of Israel may maintain that this fear was largely unfounded, inasmuch as the Arabs could not attack Israel, nor were they ready to do so except with speeches, for the satisfaction of their constituents at home. Israelis, however, were not content to see it this way. They took every Arab pronouncement of hostility at its face value. The more unreal and extreme such pronouncements were, the more seriously were they taken here.

Israel is of course surrounded on all sides by enemies, and therefore has to be constantly prepared against attack, even if only minor skirmishes or infiltration of marauding bandits. Yet what instilled misgivings in Israeli hearts was the general atmosphere which the new U.S. policy sought to create in this area. Had the Arabs been willing to accept western arms and agree to defend the area for the West in time of emergency, this might in itself have been bad enough for the military balance here. But the Arabs showed no eagerness to enter Western armaments agreements or to get arms on U.S. terms. So the U.S. had to lean over backwards, and by word - perhaps even more than by actual deed - to create an atmosphere of favoring the Arabs. It was this atmosphere, coming on top of the prevailing mood of claustrophobia, which did so much harm to the climate of opinion among Israelis and made them rethink their entire relation with the U.S.

At the end of the year, however, Israelis are a little more happy. The reason for this is not very obvious. Perhaps they found that they exaggerated their misgivings. In any event, the U.S. and Britain have so far done nothing actually to appease the Israelis or disabuse their minds on the question of the military balance. All that is known here at this stage is that the State Department has made vague suggestions to Israel in the matter of some safeguards. But what is certain is that negotiations over these suggestions have not reached the point of actual proposals which might lead to direct agreement. Observers believe that the whole matter will merely be dragged out until after the elections. Yet, Israelis are no longer as fearful as before. Maybe they have got used to the deterioration of the political atmosphere. If so, this shows lack of vigilance. Maybe they are a little tired of it all. And again, maybe they see that the Arabs can never be as dangerous as their fiery speeches sound - or as strong as the U.S. would want them to be for the purposes of Western defense. Yet Israelis have no illusions left over the difficulties ahead of them in the matter of Middle Eastern defense and the hostility of the Arabs.

The government, as distinct from the man in the street, is far more fearful of future developments, and keeps on urging the public to greater watchfulness, etc. Yet the government has altered its course of conduct to a considerable extent. In the fall of 1953 a new policy was adopted towards the Arabs, a policy of retaliation for major acts of violence and border infiltration. At first this was rather spontaneous and unplanned. The world, notably the U.S. and the U.N., reacted badly to the policy of retaliation, and strongly disapproved of it. Yet the government pursued it undaunted and irrespective of the damage which it caused Israel abroad. In the course of this policy, relations with the Arabs did not improve in the least by the show of force. On the contrary, there was if anything more border violation. Relations with the U.N. observer personnel on the spot reached a critical stage, culminating in Israel's boycott of the Jordan armistice commission for the last six months, and the resignation of Gen. Bennike. It threatend to continue even when the new observer chief, Gen. Burns of Canada took over. This was avoided only at the very last minute when respected voices inside Israel spoke up against the folly of retaliation. In the last two weeks the situation has taken a turn for the better. Israel has returned to the Jordan armistice commission. Relations with the U.N. observers here are better. Israel has even signed a local truce enforcement agreement with the Arab Legion in the Jerusalem area. True, infiltration continues. But Israelis are restraining themselves from retaliation, in the face of provocation and against pressure from border area inhabitants to do something drastic. If this helps to improve relations and maintain Israel's good name abroad, it may be worth doing.

The core of the problem is of course Arab hostility. This has by no means decreased or abated during the year. There can be no doubt that the Arab mood is one of hostility toward Israel, instilled by propaganda as well as nationalistic feeling. It stretches from Iraq to Egypt and to Pakistan. Some people have expressed the belief that much of the tension between Arabs and Israel stems from mutual fear, Arabs fearing Israeli expansionism under pressure of immigration, and Israeli claustrophobia stemming from Arab refusal to come to terms. This mutual distrust no doubt aggravates the tension a great deal, and makes a rapprochement all the more difficult. But it certainly does not lie at the root of the problem. The root is Arab bad feeling over the defeat of 1948, and the refugee displacement problem, which whatever may be the immediate reason for their running away, is a perpetuated problem of homelessness. The Arab way of perpetuating the problem for their own ends by sabotaging cooperation with U.N. relief and resettlement schemes may be morally bad. Politically it is a card in the Arab hand.

How then can this problem be solved? To start with, the causes of friction must be removed. That means solving the refugee problem and restoring to the Arabs the feeling that they were not beaten. The refugee problem is one of dimension rather than one of principle. It can certainly be solved under auspicious circumstances. The psychological problem of feeling beaten cannot be solved by making Arabs victorious over Israel. At best one can give the Arabs the feeling that Israel is prepared to make concessions to them, as if she were beaten and not victorious. This means two things: First, what can Israel offer in return for Arab peace? Second, where will the Arabs take their stand?

On the Arab side, there has been some change of position. Until very recently the Arabs consistently advocated the extermination of the state of Israel. As recently as July, King Saud called for a Holy War to "wipe out the Jews in Palestine." Now however, the Arabs put their emphasis on Israel's fulfilling the U.N. resolutions of 1948-50, especially those on the territorial limits of partition, the return of refugees, etc. This is a change for the better. It means that the Arabs are talking terms rather than extermination. Israelis do not quite know what to make of this change of position. They are rather suspicious that it is not a change of attitude, but merely a change of tone to one more suitable to international discussion. Israelis fear that by demanding territorial delimitations in keeping with the original partition scheme the Arabs demand merely the first step toward cutting up Israel. Observers here believe, however, that the change is certainly worth taking up, since it represents an improvement of Arab conditions.

Israelis, on the other hand, maintain that what the Arabs need most is economic and social improvement, and they are willing to help, in money, in compensation, in technical assistance. The trouble is that, aside from the new regime in Egypt, no Arab ruler is really interested in improving the economic or social position of his countrymen. Such suggestions therefore fall on utterly deaf ears. What these Arab politicians demand are concessions which tend to satisfy the awakening nationalist feelings of the Moslem world. Needless to say, Israel can do little in this field, if it is at the expense of Israeli territory or sovereignty. For Israeli nationalism is at least as strong as Moslem nationalism. It is a pity that there has been so little thinking in Israel on these matters. All the clamor is for making peace. But little is said about the actual terms. On New Year's Eve Mr. Sharett broadcast to the Arabs some terms which were in the nature of peace offerings: Larger unfreezing of blocked funds of Arab bank account holders, compensation for abandoned chattels, etc. Needless to say, all these are at best signs of good will, but not peace terms, since they are only palliatives, and not real solutions which would make it worth while for the Arabs to make peace.

And yet the New Year starts on a hopeful note. Reports have it that Iraqi prime minister Nuri es Said is in London preparing the ground for a settlement between the Arabs and Israel, as part of a general defense plan for this area. Also, voices from Cairo sound less hostile, after the successful conclusion of the treaty with Britain.

Turning to home affairs, one can sum up the atmosphere in one phrase: This was a year without Ben Gurion. It is now a year since the true leader of Israel voluntarily forsook power and responsibility, and went into the desert, to be a farmer-philosopher. He has ceased holding the daily affairs of state in his hand. But he has by no means given up his post as teacher of the present generation, nor as counselor in fundamental or urgent matters. He wields tremendous influence today. He writes weekly in the press, here and abroad. He addresses youth, teachers' and soldiers' meetings, receives visitors in the Negev, plans Negev settlement, lives as an example of pioneerdom, advises ministers on fundamental political problems both internal and external. He carries on correspondence with all who write to him, on personal or political or philosophical problems. It is said that he now wants to come back to daily political life. It is to be expected that some time before the Knesset elections, next August, there will be a cabinet crisis which will see the replacement of Sharett by Ben Gurion, since this is a necessity for a Mapai victory.

Everybody is surprised how the state could be run for so long without B.G. The truth is, it was not run quite without him. He was always available for advice and guidance. How then was it run without him at the helm? On the whole everything went fairly smoothly, considering some of the objective difficulties which appeared during the year. Mr. Sharett held the prime ministership and the foreign ministry in his hands. True, his influence as prime minister was by no means as great as that of his predecessor. He made a pedestrian job of it. If things were rough at times, that was not always his fault. Two factors militated against him: His foreign policy of paying more attention to world opinion was opposed, and largely overriden by military opinions, backed by the defense minister and the counselor in Sdeh BOKER. The result of this was the policy of retaliation. The other difficulty for Sharett was that he took over an inheritance before he was ready for it and before it was ready for him. It was a difficult thing to take over after Ben Gurion. It was all the more difficult to do so in his lifetime, and while he had not given up one bit of his great influence. Sharett was not yet quite ready for these tremendous difficulties. And he was constantly overshadowed by Ben Gurion and his advisers looking on from the Negev. While Sharett took responsibility, he did not take power. That always remained with Ben Gurion. Thus, when a cabinet crisis occurred between Mapai and the General Zionists, one could not quite make out whether the General Zionists produced it in order to oust Sharett, or whether certain Mapai elements did so in order to bring Ben Gruion back to office.

One thing, however, is clear - Ben Gurion is bound to be back in office before long. It is said that he is not really at peace with himself in the role of farmer-philosopher teaching his generation, without immediate means of forcing some of his ideas on the community. He is too active and impatient to be content with teaching and philosophy, without the power that goes to make his ideas successful. His going into the Negev was therefore an admirable but not a successful step.

Ben Gurion's present teaching can be summed up in three points: Welding the various immigrant groups into one people, building a strong army to defend Israel against all enemies, and developing the country, especially the Negev. How far has Israel proceeded on the road to fulfilling these aims? I will pass by the defense of the country. Suffice it to say that there is a strong army, the strongest in this area. Its strength does not rest on superior arms, which Israel cannot get from the West, nor on superior numbers, although the entire population is always in reserve. It rests on an excellent army spirit, the secret of which is an excellent cadre of sergeants and sergeant-majors. These cadres assure good discipline among the ranks, and give the needed support to officers.

Welding the various immigrant groups together is a much more difficult task. It takes several generations. Israel is trying to do it within half a generation. The fact that there has been no substantial immigration these last two years has made it easier to absorb the new masses. But the job is far from completed. Quite a lot still live in transit camps. The majority, however, have been housed. But too many of them live in quarters inhabited exclusively by new immigrants, and have the feeling that they are being kept separate, in fact if not in theory. It is no untrue to speak here today of "the second Israel," meaning the masses of newcomers who still live apart, even more spiritually than geographically. These masses remain a serious problem. True, the young are being well integrated in schools and in the army. But those over twenty-five, though they may become economically rooted, still remain spiritually apart. This is true not only of the oriental immigrants, though they are the principal problem. It also applies to newcomers from Roumania and Bulgaria.

The most fundamental way of integrating immigrants is by instilling the country's language in them. Without the language they remain minorities. Hence the tremendous new drive to teach Hebrew to all immigrants, old and young. Almost all can make themselves understood in Hebrew now, though with a very limited vocabulary. But few can read a newspaper, and very few a book, in that tongue. And how many can listen to a Hebrew drama, or a speech? So long as they lack entree to these media, they cannot partake of the life of the country.

The development of the country has been a real success. The economy is better today than ever. Most basic foods, except sugar and soybeans and wheat, are produced here. Exports have increased enormously, and there is commendable industrial production. Even unemployment has been reduced of late, although it gave cause for concern earlier in the year.

During the year much of the investigation of Israel's natural resources was completed and their development was begun. What are the results?

Slowly, the exploitation of the Dead Sea minerals is getting under way. The nationalization of the plant at first proved harmful rather than beneficial. Development minister Joseph continued making large promises and predicitions of output, but were disappointed with the results. Production has not yet reached a significant level. And, it is a major political source of earned dollars. Slowly, too, the exploitation of phosphates in the Negev got into its stride. There too, big promises had to give way to small results. But a steady improvement leaves room for hope. There had at one time been talk of iron and copper ore deposits in the Negev. These were indeed discovered. But on analysis they proved too poor to warrant industrial exploitation through mining. There remains the great hope of Israelis of 1954: Oil. Under government encouragement and regulation various oil groups have come in and started operating experimentally. So far nothing has been found. But experts keep on saying that the prospects are good. Israelis, of course, take up the hopeful tidings and look eagerly for any sign of oil. The hope that the finding of oil here can ease the state's currency and defence problems. Dependence on foreign oil imports makes the functioning of the economy precarious in time of war and costly in time of peace.

The financial development of the country was marked by determination to maintain stability. Finance minister Eshkol stood firm in the face of pressures from all sides to ease the control of bank credit. He did so in the conviction that any relaxation in credit control would lead to a new inflationary spiral. Yet the treasury itself which made inroads in the credit system, being unable to meet obligations on time, the state borrowed from the banks in utter disregard of the credit control policy. This weakened Eshkol's stand against the relaxers somewhat, and in July there was a slight easing. The immediate result was a considerable rise in prices, the first definite sign of new inlationary tendencies. At year's end Eshkol and the president of the new Israel Bank have decided to put the screws on again, and to cut credits and spending to the bone. But who knows whether it is not already too late?

One unpleasant aspect of Eshkol's stand against price rises was the prevention of wage increases by manipulation of the cost-of-living index, to which wages are attached. The treasury consistently opposed the raising of prices on all those goods which figure prominently in the cost-of-living index. Since the index was set up some years ago, under conditions of rationing and price controls, it fails to represent the true spending pattern of Israelis today. Eshkol exploited this by not bothering about rises which did not affect the index, but subsidizing or lowering those prices which did affect the index. The result was that the average wage-earner has to spend much more on basic commodities than a year ago, but his wages have not risen proportionately. This means suffering for the small man; but the suffering is intended by the treasury, whose aim is to curtail all spending and so save import dollars.

The Knesset labored along uninspiringly at a number of routine laws (mostly amendments of existing laws and certain law reforms). The coalition of the two major parties removed most work and debate from the Knesset to the cabinet and cabinet committees. All major difficulties between Mapai and the General Zionists, between labor and business, were fought out behind closed doors. Only the press carried the news; the Knesset served as an echo, not as the actual forum of debates.

There were some changes among the leftist parties: Mapam split still further with some of its former members landing right in the Communist Party, where they belong, while others veered back to Mapai. The religious parties continued using favorable situations to get improvements in the religious situation, as they saw it. But the biggest development came, not from the parties, but from Ben Gurion in the Negev. He put across his suggestion that Israel abandon the multi-party system for the two party system, the system of blocs of interests. This was not easy to achieve, and has not yet been completely achieved. But the major hurdle has been cleared.

Politicians with European traditions approve of the multi-party system with direct proportional representation, in order to give a voice to the greatest number of interests. Ben Gurion said that this meant incessant instability of government, as the recent past has shown. So he managed to persuade his party earlier in the year to approve a system denying representation in parliament, to any party with less than ten percent of the total vote. This principle was whittled down in order not to wipe out the small but respected Progressive Party (the center party here). The result was that the proposal became meaningless. Now he went to the logical end, and advocated elections by single-member electoral districts as in the U.S. and England. As his party, Mapai, is out to get a majority in the next parliament, it could be persuaded to adopt this plan. And the Mapai voted for it. It is now suggesting it to the General Zionists too. Should the latter reject it (and all smaller parties of course reject it outright) Mapai will make this proposal a plank in next year's platform. If the General Zionists accept it, a law will be passed to make it applicable beginning with next year's elections. It is with these elections in mind that Israeli politicians face the coming year. There is little doubt that after February all maneuvers will be keyed to the elections.

The year saw new difficulties in maintaining the many and outsized administrative bodies which are ubiquitous in Israel. The central government maintains over 30,000 officials; every city hall has a host of officials. The Jewish Agency and its archaic funds maintain independent administrative systems; so do all the political parties, trade unions, and their funds, housing associations, and other patronage institutions. As is well known there are far too many officials in this country, and of course budgets are insufficient to keep them all at decent wages. Meager wages spread over a maximum number of officials have caused hardship to individuals, and a number of cases of graft have been the result. Apologists argue that these are by no means representative of the vast majority of loyal and honest public servants. But that is not the point. So long as there are more than isolated instances of graft, there is a malaise in evidence which has to be combatted. The cure is, of course, to reduce these administrative bodies, and give the remaining officials better wages for more efficient service. The public, however, is uneasy about the symptoms of official unreliability, which militate against good government almost as much, if not even more, than an unstable cabinet or an inefficient Knesset.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Report from Israel

JULY 1954

Note: The following report is sent regularly to the American-Jewish-Committee by an Israeli observer of affairs in that country. His comments do not necessarily reflect the views of the AJC.

The last six weeks have seen many new and difficult problems raised for Israel, at home, on its borders, and abroad. At home there has been a regrouping and maneuvering for position in preparation for the Knesset and municipal elections next summer. (1955). There has been the delicate question of relations with the United Nations border observers. There has been the question of relations with Federal Germany. And of course there are economic problems as always.

Elections

The country is slowly awaking to the realization that there will be new elections next year. By a law passed several years ago, Knesset elections, are to be held simultaneously with local elections once every four years. This innovation was introduced to eliminate the expense and tension of what would be the Israel equivalent of mid-term elections. In a way this is a pity, because Israel, still an infant insofar as democratic practices are concerned, could benefit from minor mid-term elections, which show the government and the country the electorate's state of mind. The system of elections only once every four years allows the party, or coalition, in power to go ahead for at least three years without troubling over much with the wishes of the country at large, or of important minorities.

The present government is a coalition of the strongest party, Mapai (Labor), the next strongest party, the General Zionists (business) and some religious factions. No single party has an absolute majority. Hence the need for a coalition. As a result of the present national coalition of center left (Mapai) with center right (General Zionists), the opposition consists only of extreme, fringe, parties viz. the small Communist faction; left-labor Mapam, which is slightly larger but much divided and constantly explosive; the chauvinistic Herut; and the ultra-Orthodox Aguda. There are thus three different oppositions, which means, in fact, that there is virtually none. By reason of their extreme partisanship of special causes, these parties have little or no value as critics of the government. Hence, they fail in their chief function as opposition parties. In a two-party system, the party in power is constantly checked by the opposition party which is out-of-power, but which has a chance of getting into power and then making its own mistakes. No such situation obtains in Israel. None of the fringe factions in opposition has any chance of getting into power. Hence their criticism is generally irresponsible, and mainly addressed to the galleries of their followings and their press. This does not mean that they do not fulfil any function at all. Even the discredited Communists may on occasion champion a righteous cause. But the opposition as such does not fulfil its main parliamentary function.

The present coalition government was created two years ago to bring the principal elements of the country into productive cooperation for the tasks of reconstruction and economic recovery. The coalition has borne fruit. The mutual interaction of labor and business interests has led to a considerable degree of national recovery. But the parliamentary system has suffered no end. Sharing power and responsibility, labor and business often both erred in the same direction; there was no powerful group outside the government able to secure effective redress.

Voices have now been raised that call for a change, in view of the new state's parliamentary weakness. Some observers have pointed to the fact that parliamentary debates are barren and all important matters are debated not in the Knesset but in the privacy of the cabinet. Thus, whenever an issue arises on which the Mapai and General Zionists are divided, the issue is not fought out in the Knesset, as it should be, but in the cabinet and in cabinet subcommittees. The public is not made party to the debate, but is at best an eavesdropper on what seems to be a domestic quarrel.

Furthermore, the coalition of the two largest parties leaves the country without any prospective alternate governments. The Mapai and the General Zionists will have been in power for three years by the time of the election in the summer of 1955; both will be held accountable for the mistakes of recent years. The electorate cannot expect a completely new government; the most they can hope for is that either of these two large parties will run the country for the next four years.

The elections will probably be dull, unless someone dreams up some demagogic issues. The real issues have long been overshadowed by the coalition of the two major parties. There will be little left to fight about, except matters of emphasis. Hardly any differences of principle remain.

That is the price which has been paid for the rallying of all available forces to the cause of national recovery. Now that the economy is doing fairly well, it may well be that the time has come for one or the other of the two parties to withdraw into opposition, to restore the fundamental balance of power between government and opposition.

Ben Gurion has been working hard this past year from his home in the Negev to bring about the formation of a two-party system. Mapai and the General Zionists would be agreeable to a two-party system. The trouble is with the smaller parties. The frequently visiting Nahum Goldmann of the Jewish Agency has been on Ben Gurion's side in this effort, since he is impressed by the long experience with two parties in the West. Goldmann is a leading member of the small Progressive Party, which is the real center party, standing between Mapai and the General Zionists. At a recent Progressive Party convention, Goldmann proposed the two-party system and was supported by important people. In the end the proposal was turned down, mainly by those who fear that a merger with the General Zionists would endanger their position of leadership, however minor: In a small party they have some chance at leadership, in a big party they would have none at all.

The left is constantly splitting and dissolving. Mapam came out of the last elections as the third strongest party in Israel. Since then its ranks have been reduced time and again by internal strife and ideological dissent. First, two Mapam leaders set up their own faction, and later went over to Mapai. Then the group led by the able Moshe Sneh split off on the far left over the issue of anti-Semitism in the Soviet bloc and the sentencing of Mapam leader Oren in Czechoslovakia. Now more splitting is imminent: The group led by Y. Alon is aiming at independence, and is being strongly encouraged by certain Mapai leaders to split from Mapam. This would leave Mapam with nothing but the Hashomer Hatsair movement. Meanwhile Sneh's group has decided to dissolve, and to recommend to their members that they join the Communist Party as individuals. This may increase the Communist Party a little, but it means the end of the schizophrenic Mapam movement: half-Israeli, half-Communist.

Herut, on the right, has lost any content it ever possessed. Herut has no domestic program, and nothing to contribute there. It has lost whatever foreign program it had. Herut's constituency, once bound by the ties of old brotherhood-in-arms from the War of Independence, now is moribund and cannot be counted on for the next elections. But of course it is not unlikely that other chauvinist splinter parties will spring up at the elections. A certain amount of chauvinist feeling is now being generated among the new generation, fifteen-to-twenty-three-year olds, which may express itself in the elections. But everything depends on the next election law.

The religious parties are certain to form a united front. True, the Aguda Workers Party was absent from the recent Agudas Israel convention and other religious parties refused to be represented. But the result of the convention makes a rapprochement between all religious groups more likely now.

What are the chances of a two-party system being adopted? They are not great at the moment because of entrenched small party interests. But the government has taken the initiative. They have before them a law whereby no party could be seated in the Knesset, unless it polled a minimum proportion of the vote. At first the proportion was set at 10 per cent to eliminate all troublesome splinter factions. This proposal broke on the Progressive opposition. The proportion was then lowered to 5 per cent. The Progressives objected to that figure, too. Both Mapai and the General Zionists have deferred to the Progressive party because of the personal standing of several of its leaders.

However, the one electoral reform which would go far to introduce real parliamentarism, and real popular representation, is not being discussed at the moment. There is no talk of introducing representation by electoral districts. That is a pity. The parties continue setting up national party lists, on which candidates represent not the wish of the electorate, but the balance of bargaining power within the party secretariats. Frequently candidates who are quite unknown and unfit are named merely because they can successfully stake a moral or financial claim to a safe seat on the list. The country does not know them, nor if it did, would it care to elect them. There have been scandals in both parliaments which illustrate this point.

The election campaign has of course not yet begun. But, a few weeks ago Histadrut Secretary Manir fired the opening shot, by trying to provoke the General Zionists into leaving the government. The latter replied that they were prepared to step out any day, but have not. Indeed, they have no intentions of quitting the government. Their last convention affirmed partnership in the administration, rather than opposition. On the other hand, an early election campaign among the Arabs is beginning; every party is making a strong bid to get this uncommitted floating vote into its own camp. The first task is to win the Arab voters away from Communist influence. The elections to the townhall of Nazareth, an all-Arab town, some six months ago, gave the Communists six out of fifteen seats. It took over three months, and some unpleasant dealings, to stop the Communists from forming a coalition administration in Nazareth. It would have been intolerable if the largest Arab town in Israel, and one full of holy places, were to have been administered by Communists.

What has become of the coalition program of the present government? How far has it been fulfilled? I will not here attempt a complete survey of the program and its implementation, but a few of the major points deserve comment.

The Orthodox groups agreed to join the government on certain conditions. One was that the law of national service for girls might be passed, if laws were also passed giving the rabbinical courts exclusive jurisdiction over Jews in matters of personal status.

The law of national service for girls was duly passed. But what has happened to it? It is not being implemented. Neither religious girls, nor even Yeshivah students, are being called into national service. After all the excitement, the law has remained a dead letter. (On the other hand, the government is now calling up the Arab youth of Israel, an act that required no special legislation, since Arabs had never been excluded from the draft. In practice, only the loyal Druzes had been drafted. The drafting of other Arabs has caused something of a commotion. Many Arabs are glad to be drafted, seeing a chance for a good life and equal treatment. But many others are afraid, and in many places there is something like a panic. The idea of putting Arabs into military service is, basically, a good one. Let us hope that it will succeed.)

To return to the Orthodox conditions for joining the government coalition: The government kept its word. At first a law was passed giving the Orthodox rabbinical courts exclusive jurisdiction in matters of divorce over all Jews in Israel. This law was universally decried as a reactionary step, since it excluded civil divorce as well as civil marriage, and put women at medieval disadvantages. Next came a new bill that would make rabbinical judges state judges, to administer only rabbinical and not state law. The bill came under heavy fire from all parties. Women members of the Knesset demanded that women judges be appointed to these courts, which is unthinkable to rabbinical authorities. If the bill passes into law, it will enlarge considerably the field of legal authority of the rabbis in state matters.

Last month Agudas Israel held their Fourth World Convention, in Jerusalem. The convention started under a cloud of disagreement, being boycotted by the Mizrachi and Aguda workers as well as by Chief Rabbi Herzog. Premier Moshe Sharett attended on behalf of the government, and told a slightly hostile audience of zealots that Orthodox Jewish life could nowhere be lived better and more literally than in Israel. The convention was really a tussle between two groups. The group led by Rabbi I.M. Levin, former cabinet minister, demanded that Israel be the center of the Aguda, and that the Israel section be free to decide its stand vis-a-vis the government and the rest of the country, without dictation from abroad. H.A. Goodman, of London, who had been running Aguda from London, and had, among other things, ordered Aguda's Israeli members some time ago to leave the government, took the contrary position. Even at this late date, Goodman had the effrontery to make a public statement to the local press to the effect that he does not recognize Israel de jure, since she is an irreligious state. Goodman was defeated by the rest of the convention, and his office of political secretary was abolished. This shows that Aguda members living in Israel, though critical of the government's non-religious character and actions, have a stronger loyalty to Israel than they do to the organization abroad.

Another, less stormy meeting, was the recent session of the Zionist General Council, the leadership of the Jewish Agency and the World Zionist Organization. The Council met to discuss routine business, like the budget, etc. One of the session's high lights was the signing of a convention with the Israel government whereby the Jewish Agency was put in sole charge of settling and integrating immigrants. The agreement was the result of a law passed last year, under whose terms the Jewish Agency was given special status in Israel.

The local press commented on the uneventful character of the Council meeting, and its dreariness. No one raised any points of interest. Agron of the Jerusalem Post was the only one who tried to enliven the proceedings, by demanding more immigration from the free countries of the world. Locker supported him half-heartedly. Goldmann and the United States delegates, however, made a spirited reply, saying that Zionism abroad could exist without having to have Zionists physically move to Israel. The debate was a sorry exposition of the barren state of thinking among leaders of Zionist Jewry today. The Israelis have their gaze fixed solely on immigration to Israel, and deny that there are any positive aspects in Jewish life abroad. Rejecting this thesis, Zionists abroad are content to support Israel, and to continue living where they are.

Immigration however is a theme that continues troubling the Israel conscience. It stopped three years ago, because the immediate need dried up, and only people who are social liabilities would come. Israel could no longer carry the burden of such an immigration. But some people at the Jewish Agency's immigration department are uneasy at the prospect of their functions' disappearance. Thus, Z. Shragai, the present head of the Jewish Agency immigration department, came forward with a new plan, one to bring in immigrants from Oriental countries. This would not mean the voluntary immigration of able bodied pioneers, but the immigration of social cases, along with their large families. Observers were quick to retort that this would not be immigration but the transfer of helpless Jews from the slums of Tunis or Morocco to the immigrant camps of Israel. The plan has little merit, and less support.

Nahum Goldmann, who occupies a peculiar position in Jewish and Israel politics, has been something of moderator in Israel lately. He has taken on the task of guardian of the Israel conscience and rectifier of mistakes. First he negotiated the reparations agreement with Germany, and brought it completed to Israel. This was a task of educating Israelis to dealing with Germany. Goldmann is now trying to carry his work in this field a stage further by advocating the setting up of diplomatic relations with Federal Germany. There is widespread opposition to such a proposal in Israel, but a growing body of opinion sees the need for some type of official relations in the future. Sharett has told the Knesset that no plan to establish relations with Germany is under consideration. But Goldmann reminds Israel that it must overcome its antagonism to Germany, and decide whether it is to be Israel or the Arab states which will have associations with the new German power.

Goldmann is also acting as a moderator of Israel opinion as regards the Arabs. He has told the Israelis that they must prepare to offer the Arabs something substantial in the way of concessions, if Israel ever intends to get the Arabs to a peace conference table. Mere insistence on such a conference is not enough. What would Israel offer if and when conference talks were initiated? It must be ready to accept some disadvantageous frontier adjustments; to accept some Arab refugees back; to pay handsome compensation; and to give the Arab states, especially Transjordan, maritime facilities and access. All these suggestions reflect a certain body of Western opinion. They come somewhat as a damper to certain arrogant Israelis, who even at this late date think only in terms of exploiting the military victory over the Arabs but not in terms of a real and mutually satisfactory settlement.

On the other hand, certain chauvinist elements are raising their voices, to clamor for a policy that is exactly the opposite of Goldmann's. The famous Dr. Shaib, teacher and writer and one-time underground leader, has been telling the younger generation in his journal, Soolam, that now is the time to show the world Israel's strength, by reconquering the Old City of Jerusalem, and extending Israel's borders to include all of Palestine. He is also putting up wall-posters to this effect. The government is trying to ignore Shaib, in the belief that this is the most effective method of undermining his influence.

Unfortunately, some senior statesmen have been expressing sentiments similar to Shaib's. The eighty-year-old Rabbi Maimon recently published an article in which he said he regretted very much his moderation when he was Minister of Religions six and four years ago. He had done then his utmost to protect Christian and Moslem holy places and cemeteries. He says he believes he was too generous. The Moslems are desecrating the famous, age-old Jewish cemetery on the Mount of Olives, and the Christian world is doing nothing to stop the vandalism. It is reliably reported that this famous cemetery is being desecrated, with the connivance of Jordan government. Efforts to have the desecration stopped have been of no avail. Yet it is a far cry from this barbarism to the considered statement of a religious leader in Israel, that he regrets his former attitude of civilized responsibility. He talks as if barbarism can only be met with barbarism.

United Nations

The relations between United Nations' truce observers and Israel have again worsened. For years now these relations have been deteriorating, as I briefly pointed out in my recent survey. A further example of this deterioration followed the shooting across the Old City Wall of Jerusalem some weeks ago. It was clear from the first that this had been a well-prepared Jordan attack. Jewish guards were quite unprepared. In fact, many had been sent out of Jerusalem, on training, and the posts along the border were poorly manned. Beside, all the first victims were Israelis. Since this incident was much more serious than other recent ones, Gen. Bennike tried to break the political deadlock over the armistice commissions by convening a special meeting, under his own chairmanship, to stop the fighting. Out of personal respect for him, the Israelis attended this meeting. However, great was their disappointment when Bennike assumed the same attitude previously taken by his assistants, and refused to put the blame for this shooting on the Jordanians, as the evidence clearly testified. This last action of Bennike's completely destroyed any Israel faith in him.

Shortly before this, the three Western powers had made a series of technical suggestions to both Israel and Jordan with a view, as they expressed it, to reinforcing security at the borders. The purpose of these proposals was to strengthen the prestige and power of the United Nations observer corps, which had sunk very low after so many dismal failures to keep the peace. Israel flatly turned down all suggestions that would increase the competence and activities of the United Nations observers since Israel has long come to realize that the observers were no effective substitute for full border security. There were other suggestions, however, which Israel did accept, such as a limited permission to let Arabs from the Gaza strip (held by Egypt), pass into Jordan territory via the Negev. Now that a new chief observer, Gen. E.L.M. Burns of Canada, is to replace Bennike, there may be a turn for the better. Israelis are only very moderately hopeful. In essence they believe that the days of both the armistice and the armistice observers are passed. Something more substantial must take their place.

Israel fortunes at United Nations headquarters in New York have also been going badly for some time. This is regarded in Israel as due partly to the present constellation of power at United Nations, partly to the pro-Arab policy of the United States, and partly to the ineptness of the Israel delegation. It is now reported that Israel has decided to make some changes in its representation at the United Nations: Walter Eytan, director general of the Israel foreign ministry, will be head of the Israel delegation, this relieving Abba Eban for duty at Washington. It is felt that Eytan will have to take at the United Nations a line more independent of the United States, one closer to that of the other powers.

Economic situation

The brightest spot in the Israel picture remains the economic situation. Years of concentrated attention on economic recovery are paying off handsomely and visibly. The present economic policy of the government has been a success, though far from a total one, Exports in particular have soared, compared with preceding years. But Israel is still far from the goal of an export-import balance of trade. This balance has not yet been reached, but it is well in sight.

Much of the credit for the economic recovery goes to American money, both that received from the government, in the form of grants-in-aid, and that raised in fund-raising appeals. Israelis have learned that this fact was mentioned in evidence in Congress in the discussion of grants for the coming year. Of course, Israel should not be cut off from further allocations so long as such allocations are being made to other countries. But Israelis are preparing for the date-line, two years hence, at which American foreign economic aid will cease for all countries. The aid finds administrator in Israel, Bruce MacDaniel, was responsible for much of the success in using American funds. He has now been replaced by Dr. Lincoln Hale, who will try to boost private enterprise in Israel by dealing directly with business, and not via the government, as MacDaniel did. This will dilplease the Israeli government immensely, since it will lose control over dollar allocations of this kind.

Agriculture

An interesting new development can be discerned in agriculture. Large farmsteads are springing up instead of the smallholders settlements previously favored as the immigrant agricultural unit, or the collective kibbutzim. These large farms are administered by a public company, Yitsur U'Pituah, on government-owned land. Trained farmers and farming engineers are put in charge of the farms, and they employ immigrant labor from the vicinity on a permanent basis. They train these immigrants to do unskilled farming works and those immigrants who show skill or interest can learn how to farm properly. The company retains management and economic responsibility but local workers are assured steady jobs on the land.

This new form of farming has advantages which both the small farmstead and kibbutzim failed to offer. The kibbutzim refused some years ago to employ any outside labor, on the principle that socialist laborers do not exploit others. They thus refused to meet the most urgent needs of both immigrants and the economy. On the other hand, most of the immigrants were not suited to becoming members of kibbutzim, and were thus left out. As for small farmsteads, experience has shown that it is hard to simultaneously train a man to be a farmer and throw him upon his own devices when it comes to making a living off his small farm. There have been wholesale desertions of such farms, as the new settlers who could not make good became disheartened.

The large farm where agricultural labor is employed can obviate many of these difficulties. There will be no question of kibbutz ideology, nor any qualms about laborers exploiting labor. And an expert will be responsible for the success of the farm, assuring the immigrants a steady income. It may well be that in due time this form of farming will replace the kibbutzim. It is too early to say. In any case, economically the large farms are a success, and will be copied all over the country.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Report from Israel

JUNE 1954

Note: The following report is sent regularly to the American Jewish Committee by an Israeli observer of affairs in that country. His comments do not necessarily reflect the views of the AJC.

Washington and Jerusalem, a Friendship at the Crossroads

Relations between Israel and the West, particularly the United States, have entered a critical stage, after having gradually deteriorated over the past two years. The United States State Department had been cool to Zionist nationalist aspirations before Israel was created. But as soon as the state came into being, the State Department and the President were the first to give it full and unequivocal support. But that was in 1948, at an early stage of the cold war. Since then relations between the East and the West have rapidly worsened: Korea in 1950, then the Berlin blockade, and latterly the conflict over Indochina. The Middle East, where Israel is surrounded on every side, has been gradually moving closer to the center of attention of the great powers in their global struggle for position.

Israel has now been hopelessly caught up in this world struggle; and she has been placed at a disadvantage by the world power which at first supported and sustained it. Today, six years after its establishment, Israel has been exposed, weakened, outflanked, by the moving for position and by the strategic considerations of the United States in the American drive into the Middle East.

What has actually taken place? Impelled by a policy of making the Middle East safe against penetration and attack from Russia, the United States has been quickly and determinedly doing two things: 1) appeasing the Arab states in order to attract them into the western camp, and 2) arming Arab states in an attempt to defend the Middle East against a Russian attack. By this course of action the United States has caused immediate harm to Israel and her most vital interests: 1) by appeasing the Arabs, the United States has been going out of its way to prove that Israel has been relegated to the status of, to coin a phrase, a "least-favored nation." The United States has at times even needlessly offended Israel's sensibilities. A blatant example of this has been the coolness displayed to the Israel chief-of-staff, M. Dayan, in the United States, shortly after the cordial reception to his Iraqi counterpart. The details of Dayan's treatment in the United States are known by now, and its consequences have been very harmful to Israel. The impression in Israel is that this was intended as a deliberate affront. 2) For the last two years the United States has consistently withheld arms from Israel, and advised Britain to do likewise. At the same time the United States has made it clear to all Arab states that if they would agree to accept arms, and enter into a military alliance, they could have as much military equipment as they wanted. The Arabs were naturally cautious of such gifts, but in the end found it difficult to resist the combination of United States pressure and persuasion. That is how Iraq came to agree to a military alliance and to accept excellent arms from the United States. The case of Egypt was so striking as to border on the ludicrous. The United States repeatedly offered Egypt arms and economic aid, and Egypt repeatedly refused on the ground that no commitment could be entertained until the British had left Suez. The British, however, refused to leave this costly and very vital base. It took President Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles to persuade Churchill on his recent visit to Washington to agree to evacuate Suez within twenty months, and to give up the base.

But the United States could not wait in its impatience to supply arms to Egypt. No sooner had the agreement in principle been signed, than negotiations were reopened. Not only is Egypt to receive a gratis gift of a British base worth many hundreds of millions, complete with all its installations; but in addition Egypt will receive the latest American weapons. It is reported that the United States had made preparations for the event that the British still refused to evacuate Suez: it had planned to convey arms to Egypt via Spain.

What people in Israel cannot quite understand is how all these arms and bases are to be used, so long as the Arabs have not the manpower in sufficient quantity and quality to handle them. What is the use of pouring arms into Egypt when Egypt has no military manpower? The same is true of Iraq. That however is no worry of Israel's. But it is clear to Israel that the United States is going to unreasonable lengths in attempting to fortify an area which lacks the most elementary requirement -- military manpower.

So long as the United States had agreed to arm only Iraq, Israel had a perfect moral right to demand that it too get more arms from the West. For not only is Israel a far superior bulwark in this area, but its own security requires that some sort of balance of armaments be maintained. Iraq is not an immediate neighbor of Israel's. Arming both Israel and Iraq would constitute a threat to neither country, and still satisfy the professed United States aim of making the entire area as strong as possible.

However, the agreement to evacuate Egypt, clearly not British-inspired or British-desired but rather forced by the United States, has changed Israel's position fundamentally. Israel and Egypt are not engaged in a mere arms race. Handing over the base at Suez to Egypt means simply that Israel has been exposed to the direct possibility of attack in the south, along a vast, arid, and uninhabited border reaching from Gaza to the Red Sea. This is no mere speculation. The Egyptian leaders have made it clear that they still regard Israel as their chief enemy. Both the premier, Abdel Nasser, a very cool, able, and therefore extremely dangerous man, as well as his propaganda minister, have stated that they will have no truck with the Jews in Israel, and that Israel had better watch out. Israel has understood the implication of that warning.

All this however was to be foreseen. For years the Egyptians have been trying to get Britain out of Egypt, and for several years United States policy has been to move into this area and to arm it, even in the face of Israel opposition. But what really causes extreme bitterness in Israel is the United States' complete failure in its defensive preparations of the Middle East to safeguard Israel against attack. Neither the agreement with Iraq, nor that with Egypt, stipulated that the arms, or the base, were not to be used against neighboring countries. Israelis are convinced that the United States was derelict in its duty by not writing such a safeguard into either of the agreements.

At this point, I must explain two things: 1) Of course it was Britain and not the United States that concluded the agreement to withdraw from Suez. Israelis, however, accuse the United States of having neglected to see to it that a safeguard was inserted; for if the United States, that forced the evacuation, had insisted on such a safeguard for Israel, it would have been forthcoming. Sir Winston Churchill was quick to grasp the dangers for Israel of British evacuation from Suez, and he went out of his way to placate Israel fears orally. Had the United States asked Churchill to insist on a clause safeguarding Israel, Israel observers believe it would have been forthcoming. 2) Israelis know that paper safeguards have little value in times of emergency. However, they have great moral and public value, first at the time of their creation, and then for some time afterward. Of course, there is nothing like self-defence. Israel is certainly looking after her arms and soldiers, to see to it that its borders remain intact. But a small nation needs guarantees to safeguard its borders, and even a paper guarantee at this stage would have been very important. There has been talk of enlarging the three-power declaration of May 1950 into a four-power declaration, bringing in Turkey. This would be quite useful, providing Turkey would agree to enter such an undertaking. But more is needed. An actual written promise from the Arab states receiving United States arms to the effect that these arms will be used only in defense of the region against aggressors from outside, and not in strife with neighbors is vital. Israel of course is itself ready to make such an undertaking as a condition for receiving modern weapons from the West.

It is often argued that no such paper safeguards are necessary since the United States is vitally interested in keeping peace and eliminating friction in the Middle East. Since the United States has been increasing its strength in and control over this area, it has the direct power to guarantee peace. Past experience has shown the Israelis that they can rely for their security on no one but themselves. Beside their own strength they also require some manner of real safeguard against willful or malicious attack.

In view of all these circumstances the Israelis are very bitter about American politics in the Middle East, and very worried. They blame America, rightly or wrongly, for Israel's worsened position vis-a-vis the Arabs. Friends overseas will understand that this is the lot of anyone who assumes political responsibility. So long as Britain was primarily responsible for this area, it was the universal scapegoat. Now that America has taken over the leading role, it must prepare to face the name-calling and even mud slinging.

Furthermore, friends overseas must understand that Israelis, when they attack America's new Middle Eastern policy, are not at all implying that nothing should be done about the Russian danger. Israelis realize very well the size of that danger. No one knows better than the average Israeli what Russian occupation means, and what Russian terror and the Russian police can do to people. Many Israelis have had direct experience of this. All are agreed on the need for defending this area against Russian penetration. In other words, most Israelis agree on the fundamental American strategy for this area. But, Israelis are even more worried for their own safety. They know that a Russian regime in the Middle East would be terrible. But they do not believe that the Russians would drive the state of Israel into the sea. On the other hand, the Arabs have avowed time and time again their intention of obliterating Israel, completely destroying the state, expelling the new immigrants, and resettling the Arab refugees from Palestine. The Israeli has to choose between the danger of a possible Russian penetration into the Middle East on the one hand and the danger of the burning hatred of the Arab world on the other. They regard the second as a far more perilous threat, since it is much more immediate and much more permanent. The Russians may come or may not. They may or may not exterminate Israel. But the Arabs from Iraq, Syria, or Egypt will certainly try to overrun Israel, if given the ghost of a chance. By arming the Arabs and not Israel, America is giving the Arabs that very chance.

The United States State Department believes that its policy of favoring the Arabs may bring them to accept the existence of Israel. Arab fears of Israel's "expansionist tendencies" may be alleviated, and Israel may be pressured to submit to a number of concessions and limitations. Maybe the American policy is right. Israelis however cannot share the American view, since that would involve taking unwarranted chances with Israel security.

There is a large body of opinion in Israel that believes that the State Department's new line was initiated and pushed through by the able Assistant Secretary of State for the Near East, Henry Byroade. Israelis like to believe that as soon as Byroade vacates his post and moves on to Cairo, a modification in policy may begin. Jewish politicians like Nahum Goldmann have been at pains to explain that nothing is farther from the truth, and that the new American line is neither Democratic nor Republican, nor the copyright of any one statesman or official.

So much for the American role in Middle Eastern developments. What does the Israeli think of the part his own government has played? There is a growing body of criticism in this country of the way the Israel foreign office under Moshe Sharett has been handling foreign affairs. Three charges are being made: 1) that the recent developments were not anticipated; 2) that no preparations were made in time to avert or forestall them; and 3) that Israel has simultaneously cut itself off from any number of alternative avenues, other associations or alliances.

Russian policy vis-a-vis the Middle East became clear soon after Yalta and Potsdam, when spheres of influence were divided between Russia and the United States. By 1950, when the Korean war began, the principles of United States planning for Middle East defence were clear. Since 1950, Israel statesmen should have known that the State Department was going to play the Arab side, and should have been on their guard. But they did very little, nothing visible, at any rate, and nothing which has borne fruit. Israel policy in this respect has been a failure. If Congressional hearings on foreign affairs were the practice in Israel, there would certainly be some important heads rolling. But Israel's Knesset is no such Congress and holds no such hearings.

Only now that the great impact of the evacuation of Egypt is being felt is the Israel Foreign Ministry beginning to think of alternative policies. This seems pretty late.

But the grant of arms to Iraq and evacuation of Suez would not border on the tragically dangerous for Israel had not Israel in the course of its brief political life neglected so many ways of creating alternative associations. Today Israel is completely isolated politically, and exposed militarily. And its military exposure might not have been so serious, had Israel political allies in the Middle East or elsewhere.

Since 1951 Israel has leaned solely on America. In 1952 Israel broke with Russia and the Soviet satellites, over Soviet anti-Semitism. The breach has never quite healed. True, this last six months have seen several moves to create new ties with Eastern Europe. Several new commercial treaties have been concluded and cultural links established. The legations of Russia and Israel have even been elevated to the rank of embassies. But there the matter has ended. Likewise, Israel fell out early with the Vatican, and thereby with most of the states particularly in South America that are dominated by Vatican opinion. In Asia Israel has made no headway at all politically, and has no allies.

Britain and the Commonwealth remain, with whom relations are correct but not cordial. Israel has only Arab enemies at home, and cool friends abroad.

In leaning so heavily on America, Israel has staked all on one card. Israel is now beginning to realize that this was a dangerous gamble, and is now beginning to cast around for other friends. There is Turkey. But Turkey has troubles of its own, and will not at this moment engage in a pact with Israel which would offend Turkey's newly made ally, Pakistan.

The trouble is that there has so far been no solid body of opinion in Israel capable of directing foreign policy. Israelis have been too busy with economics and with problems of home defence. They have believed that Israel could become politically strong only if it became economically strong and self-sufficient. This proposition is only half-true. Economic dependence surely makes for political dependence, as Israel's relations with the United States have proven. But a concentration on economics to the neglect of all political associations certainly does not lead to political strength.

The problems of home defence and Arab infiltration have preoccupied Israelis all these years. Instead of thinking in terms of global policy, Israelis have thought in terms of their own borders, and their security from nightly attacks by marauders. The nuisance value of these Arab raids is now paying off handsomely. Israel politicians have fallen into a trap. They have paid too much attention to border incidents, and to the United Nations truce commission, and too little to the broader issues, the trend of world events. They have thought in provincial terms.

The exaggerated attention given to border security and to the United Nations truce machinery has resulted in bitterness rather than any improvement of the situation. It is questionable whether the borders have been made safe. But in trying to secure its borders, Israel has fallen out with the United Nations itself, with the international authority representing all the nations combined. That is a great pity, particularly since Israel is isolated on every other front.

The difficulty with the United Nations truce observers dates back a long time, to the murder of Count Bernadotte. Since 1951 there have been poor personal relations between the Israelis and the personnel of the truce staff, whose headquarters and living quarters were moved out of Israel, into the Old City of Jerusalem (Arab) and into Arab Beiruth. Under constant Arab influence, the truce observers have ceased to understand or sympathize with the Israel point of view or with Israel problems. It is said in Israel today that many observers are anti-Semites; but that is utterly irrelevant. Theirs was a technical, professional job. And they have slipped through Israel fingers.

The appearance of General Vagn Bennike of Denmark last year as the new chief observer, was intended to repair this state of affairs, but in fact matters only took a turn for the worse. General Bennike had a history of having rendered assistance to Jews during the days of Nazi occupation. He tried to make up for this background by leaning over backwards and favoring the Arabs. In addition he relied on an Arab-influenced staff. And finally, by assuming the role of a military man who tolerates no political nonsense, Bennike failed in the political aspects of his job.

It is a great pity that relations between Israel and the United Nations observers have taken so bad a turn. Perhaps the situation would have been better if Israel had shown more elasticity in matters of border security, and less pettiness. It is to be hoped that the replacement of Bennike by Gen. Burns of Canada will improve the situation. But local feeling remains strong.

The deterioration of Israel relations with the local truce observers might not be so important if Israel's relations with the United Nations Security Council were closer than they are. Israel has frequently tried to go over the heads of the observers to the Council; but Israel has consistently been rejected in the Security Council, either by a Russian veto, or by the stalling of the Western powers, fearful of antagonizing the Arabs. Here again, in the eyes of Israelis, the United States, the prime mover in Western strategy, must bear the onus of the guilt for Israel's failure in the Security Council.

What, then, is going to be Israel's next step? The answer to this question depends on several factors. First, there is the question of who will gain the upper hand in guiding politics and making policy. There are today two opposite points of view within the cabinet, and a third viewpoint in government circles outside but close to the cabinet. In the cabinet proper, Defense Minister Lavon opposes Prime Minister Sharett on a fundamental approach. Lavon demands that the government rely fully on the Israel army, and all outsiders be shown a strong arm. Lavon does not believe in foreign alliances, or in paper safeguards against Arab aggression. He puts his faith in the strength of the army and its weapons, and in its fighting spirit. Lavon's chief supporter is Ben Gurion who has retired to a Negev settlement, and has no responsibility for the affairs of state. Of course Lavon is also supported by the group of young army commanders who lead the army.

Sharett, on the other hand, opposes taking retaliatory measures whenever there is a border violation or an attack by infiltrating Arabs. Sharett stresses the need for diplomatic connections, and is keenly aware of the adverse effects which military countermeasures produce among the foreign powers, and at the United Nations.

The government circles outside the cabinet proper include Ambassador Abba Eban, who advocates a policy of adherence to America, and of finding a place for Israel insofar as is possible within the framework of American policy in the Middle East. However, Sharett prefers a freer line; let it be known that he will not go along with the United States at any cost to Israel interests.

The parties on the left of the government carry on a consistent flirtation with the Soviet Union and are always hurt by Russian refusals to reciprocate. Herut, on the right, has had nothing to contribute to contemporary political thinking since its fight against Britain many years ago. Now that the United States has been playing the Arab card, Herut has foresaken its anti-British line, without however, offering any other suggestions for a new policy.

These divergent views, or lack of views, have had unfortunate repercussions on Israel's foreign policy. The Israel public is now being pulled in two differing directions by the press. The foreign office instructs and informs the corps of diplomatic correspondents; at the same time the army informs and instructs the corps of military correspondents. Two different atmospheres are being generated simultaneously; the result is a general bewilderment. The clash within the government leads to two different methods of procedure. Sharett communicates with foreign diplomats in Israel one way, while the army acts in a completely different way.

Moreover, the Knesset has become not so much a forum for airing party views as a testing ground for trial balloons. Opposition members rise to question the prime minister about rumors of specific political negotiations or feelers; he feels constrained to make a full, public denial of such rumors. In this way he is drawn out on delicate subjects, and is forced by the malicious questioning to leave himself no exit from political dilemmas. This policy of pinning ministers against the wall by premature questions and replies ties down the hands of the government in many delicate matters, and curtails the government's freedom of movement and activity on issues where they are most essential.

After all this has been said, it must be admitted that there is at this moment little clear agreement on what the next course should be. A growing section of the public is becoming very restive over Israel's political isolation and lack of allies. There is the feeling that reliance on the army alone is far from sufficient. The army is large in relation to Israel. But it operates in a small territory, and has had few modern arms in recent years. Besides, in the modern world, no one small army can rely on itself alone. It must have allies and brothers-in-arms beyond its borders.

A leading Mapai member has sent off a trial balloon, suggesting an association with the British Commonwealth of Nations in an attempt to find some sort of political alliance for Israel. It is very doubtful whether this suggestion is practical. Others have suggested that Israel seek admittance to the Balkan Pact of Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey. Still another group suggests Israel's breaking away from any western alliance, and drawing closer to the Russian bloc. These people are not necessarily Communists or fellow-travelers.

The most persistent rumor has of course been that Israel has been asked to grant the West military bases on Israel territory. The first question is of the kind of bases involved: complete territorial facilities, such as Britain had in the Suez zone, and the allies have in Germany; or mere harbor facilities at Haifa, some airfields and a few barrack installations? The second question is who is to get such bases -- England, which has been pushed out of Egypt, or America, which is primarily responsible for Middle East defence? The allies would have to agree on this among themselves.

The third question is how the Israel public would react to this. If Israel becomes very anxious about its military exposure north and south, it may agree to offer bases to the West. However, there is considerable aversion to such bases both in government circles and among the public. In the first place, the presence of foreign troops would soon lead to domestic friction, as it does everywhere. In the second place, young Israel nationalism is still too fresh for Israelis to acquiesce readily in giving away sovereign rights over hard-won Israel territory in exchange for foreign troops. In the third place, the grant of military bases to the West might place Israel under the influence of Western powers, who have sold Israel out before and might well do so again.

There are few people who realize that in present day global politics military bases are indispensable. If the government is forced or prepares to agree to military bases, it will have to educate the public. This education will not be easy. Public education when it came to accepting German reparations goods was not easy. The government succeeded in the end by the use of tact, and because the goods were actually badly needed. Only if the Israelis can be brought to realize that Israel actually needs those bases for its own security will they be persuaded. For the moment, however, Sharett has blocked his exit from such negotiations by flatly denying any intention of giving away Israel territory or sovereignty.

To sum up: Israeli foreign policy is at the crossroads. Israel may break away from the United States perhaps to join a British line, or even further afield. Or Israel may accommodate itself to the new American State Department policy. The next few weeks will show what course Israel will steer.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Report from Israel

MAY 1954

Note: The following report is sent regularly to the American Jewish Committee by an Israeli observer of affairs in that country. His comments do not necessarily reflect the views of the AJC.

Foreign Affairs

In recent weeks Israel has again been passing through difficulties in her foreign affairs which have been giving the public much ground for concern. Isolated on the shores of the Eastern Mediterranean, circled about by hostile states, Israel senses that she is becoming more and more a pawn in the great power game of Realpolitik in the Middle East. The inevitable effect on Israel's morale is far from salutary. As a result, Israel's foreign policy has been on the defensive for some time; Israel conjures up threats of new difficulties and complications in her relations with her friends and enemies, far and near.

On the other hand, the position at home continues to show remarkable improvement, both economically and socially. Production, both for the home market and for export, the crying need of this country ever since 1948, has been showing visible progress from month to month. And the adjustment of the older population and the new immigrants to each other has been making good progress under circumstances which must necessarily be difficult and slow. It is becoming ever more evident that there is a very close connection between the difficulties abroad and consolidation at home, both economic and social. For Israel's strength abroad will be measured by her inner strength, her moral and economic fibre. In an age when two fundamental ideologies and ways of life are acrimoniously defended by two world giants, the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R., the status of the small nations will depend not on their size but on their inner strength. This is evident from the poor position of big, but weak countries like France or the Eastern satellites, as compared with the strong position of small countries like the Scandinavian. All are pawns in the global game; but the varying strength of their internal positions in this game makes all the difference in their ability to affect their destiny.

These fundamental considerations of mid-twentieth century political life have a direct bearing upon Israel. Israel is and will always be a small, a very small, country. Yet her standing in the world will always be measured, not by her population or territory, but by her inner strength, and her ability truly to represent the things she stands for.

In 1948 Israel found herself both newly born and unexpectedly powerful and popular. She had gained more territory than was ever anticipated, either by her people, or by her friends or her foes.

Her standing all over the world was very high. Since then it has been Israel's unenviable task to realize extraordinary expectations. The task has been difficult. At home, she has had to satisfy the extravagant hopes of residents and immigrants. She has had to consolidate the territorial gains of 1948. Abroad, Israel has had to consolidate her new position among the nations of the world, and to find her place among friends and foes.

On balance Israel has made a good job of all this. She has consolidated her territory, or much of it. She has gained a place in the world. She has satisfied her people at home. And, it should never be forgotten that all this was done in the stormy years of the Cold War with all its ugly and unpredictable implications and complications. After striking this balance, however, one may be permitted to narrow one's sights from the over-all, historical view, to the day-to-day view of special problems. One must point out those matters on which Israel has failed to make good, for reasons sometimes beyond her control.

Since about 1950 there has been a deterioration in Israel's foreign policy position. That position has now reached a new low, due to what has been described as America's New Look at the Middle East. Considering all the circumstances, this development was probably inevitable. But Israel is fighting hard against it.

The prime factor responsible for Israel's difficulties in foreign affairs is, of course, Arab hostility. This hostility is as old as political Zionism and Arab political consciousness. It is by no means the result of the displacement of Arab refugees or the creation of the state of Israel. These two events may have exacerbated Arab hostility, but essentially, it is much older. Furthermore, the Jews were politically rather unfortunate in Israel; they found themselves building their state among people who were always given to political and personal intrigues and quarrels. If there were no Jews in Israel today, the Arabs of this area would be fighting with one another just as they are now fighting with Israel. In fact, they are fighting among one another all the time, notwithstanding the fact that they are to some extent united by their opposition to Israel. At this very writing, for instance, the various Arab governments and politicians of this area are forming new coalitions, defensive and offensive. There is no unity among them, except vis-a-vis Israel. Iraq upset the applecart of Arab politics by accepting military aid from the U.S. and entering the Turkish-Pakistani alliance. This brought Egypt into active opposition to all forms of foreign aid to this area. And Egypt is mustering other Arab governments against Iraq, which, she fears, will grow too strong by virtue of American arms. Thus the happy game of inter-Arab intrigue and maneuvers goes on as it has been going on ever since pashas and effendis became emirs, kings, and ministers.

All this is, of course, little consolation for Israel, which still finds herself the main enemy of the Arabs, from Libya to Pakistan. But strategy for the Middle East can never by built on the assumption that if Israel were not there, or could be reduced in strength Middle East unification might be easier. On the contrary. One is tempted to think that if the Israel irritant were reduced, so many other irritants of inter-Arab rivalry would emerge that the great powers could never cope with them all. So, in the long run, it may even prove more practical for the great powers that are seeking consolidation of the Arab East to leave the Israeli irritant as it is, and to keep a semblance of Arab unity through their common hostility to Israel as a basis for military arrangements.

However, it now appears that the U.S. has seriously made up its mind to "clear the obstacles to military consolidation out of the road." The principal American concern seems to be with the problem of Israel. The Israelis welcome any sincere attempt to relax the tension and resolve the hostility. However, they have their reservations as to how this can be done, and how far one can go in this. In addition to supplying arms to such Arab nations as join the Turkish-Iraqi-Pakistani alliance, the U.S. State Department is now known to have worked out a plan for buying the goodwill of the Arabs by proving American determination to clip the wings of Israel. In May Arthur Gardiner, an adviser to the State Department, is known to have put before a Congressional committee a six-point plan which would demand that Israel make concessions as a first step to relaxing tension in this area. These six points include the repatriation of some Arab refugees, compensation to refugees for lost property, agreement through the UN on Jordan water distribution, Israeli acts to disabuse Arabs of her aggressive intentions, and more "understanding and consideration of the Arabs." Most of these points would be acceptable to Israel. The trouble however is that Israel, like the Arabs, is beset by the fears that by even goodwill concessions, will snowball into demands for more concessions. Both Israel and Arabs suffer from fears and the need to save face, induced by the rigid positions into which the two sides have maneuvered one another. However, fundamentally these proposals are in the right direction; the fact that they are addressed to Israel alone may not be to Israel's liking, but does not alter their character. Israeli commentators, however, object that no similar demand for a goodwill gesture has been addressed to the Arabs. The objection is proper. Yet Israelis would be wise to be gracious and to take the first step toward relaxing the tension along the lines indicated. After all, Israel wants peace more than the Arabs. So Israel will have to make the opening gambit, even if this move should then be unanswered.

The U.S. New Look at the Middle East does not stop there. As a second step the State Department has addressed to the other western powers, and to both Israel and Jordan, a series of proposals designed to relax tension along the common borders. Viewed superficially, there is much to welcome in these proposals: Much of the cause for Arab infiltration has been the lack of overland contact between Egypt and Jordan. A right of way between Hebron and Gaza, through the Northern Negev, would technically solve this problem. Also, technically, a peace of sorts could best be kept by both sides "cooperating" with the UN observers. And again, agreement on the Jordan water distribution might be good for peace. However, there is one poisonous sting in all this: Israel wants an over-all peaceful arrangement, and not patchwork appeasement. For this reason, she has found the UN observer team unsatisfactory, and Arab infiltration a terrible scourge. Yet the new U.S. proposals fly in the face of Israel's desires, and are a complete sop to the Arabs. The proposals are quite obviously designed to prove to the Arabs that Israel can be forced to make concessions without receiving any in return.

These U.S. proposals may not have been quite so unacceptable to Israelis, had they not come after Jordan's blatant refusal to submit to a decision of the Security Council in her border disputes with Israel. This refusal was so frank a denial of any readiness to come to terms with Israel that Israelis are now by no means prepared to grant rights of way through the Negev or even to cooperate with the observer teams. As far as these observers are concerned, Israel has refused to go along with some of them ever since certain decisions proved inequitable to Israel. This may have been a rash and questionable move, and one which Israelis are now trying to justify by the even more questionable argument that some of these observers are anti-Semitic and anti-Israeli.

It seems therefore unlikely that Israel will agree to the latest State Department proposals for relaxing tension. It remains to be seen whether Washington will force Israel's acceptance of these proposals, perhaps by a threat to cut Israel off from grants-in-aid for the coming fiscal year. Such threats are clearly anticipated and expected here in Israel, after recent consultations in Washington. Should they be made openly or semi-secretely, they will be blow to Israeli pride and face. It cannot be foreseen how the Israel government and the public will react to them.

It is clear here, however, that the U.S. is now seriously attempting solving, as far as possible, the tensions in this area, and that the attempt is a sincere and determined one. The Middle East is fast becoming an immediate danger area in the East-West conflict. True, this danger has been imminent for years, but now it seems closer than ever. The Russians are displaying considerable activity in this area, including Israel. Among other things, they are raising their legation in Tel Aviv to the status of an Embassy, and playing up to Israeli feelings by presenting their diplomatic credentials in Jerusalem, the much disputed seat of government. Other Communist legations and missions are displaying similar interest in Israel and are very active, especially in foreign trade. No doubt parallel moves are taking place in the Arab countries.

In other words, the Russians are laying the ground for moving into the Middle East in one way or another.

There can, of course, never be any question as to where Israel stands. She is plainly with the West. And she will stand with the West even if her self-esteem should be damaged or hurt by American proposals forcibly thrust on to this young state.

The new situation gives openings to other Western powers. There is great significance in a series of visits to Israel by English politicians. First came Herbert Morrison, Labor's foreign minister and leader of the Labor party. Little about the purpose of his visit has been publicly admitted. Yet, it is an open secret that Morrison came to propose that the British army of the Suez Canal zone be lodged somewhere in southern Israel. This is now an important problem for Britain, since the army is going to be moved from Suez at the end of 1954. For lack of a better alternative, it is being planned to move it to Cyprus, an unsatisfactory arrangement, as political agitation in that island undermines its stability. It is believed that Israel has not been willing to have the British army headquarters on her territory, for the obvious reason that her sovereignty over that territory is still too recent to permit its being "traded away" for military bases.

Israeli foreign policy is thus on the defensive, and in a dangerous position. This is a pity. For with more imagination and sweep, Israel could have cashed in on her strength of 1950 and led her neighbors and her friends overseas in a peaceful and yet gracious settlement of her problems. By being on the defensive, the government of Israel will have to accept some of the proposals made by the great powers. On the other hand, the government is also on the defensive at home. For there will always be one section or another of the population, vocal enough to make trouble, that will make it difficult if not impossible for the government to accept proposals involving concessions.

So much for proposals to reduce the tension. But what would happen if Israel were to sit down to negotiate a peace settlement with the Arabs? Israelis know perfectly well what the Arabs will demand. But they are very unclear about what they can give. The Arabs are certain to demand territorial concessions, as well as a stop to immigration. It is however most unlikely that Israel will ever agree to either of these propositions. If so, what can she concede? Very little indeed. People here console themselves with the thought that Israel was the victor in the war. That is not the full truth. But even if Israel was the victor, that status no longer entitles her to demand a victor's peace. If it did, the vanquished would long ago have sued for terms.

To sum up, if the U.S. is bent on pacifying this area preparatory to arming it, it will probably have to do so forcibly. Peace by agreement seems out of sight. Peace by decree, however, requires strength of mind and the determination not to be deflected. It also means readiness to meet the most unpleasant incidents. And it requires preparedness to be unpopular with all sides, until the matter is settled.

Domestic Front

There have been three main developments at home: alignments for next year's Knesset elections; major economic changes; and some incidents involving questions of infringement of the law by highly placed men in the country.

Contrary to earlier doubts, there is now no longer any doubt that elections will take place next year, as planned. In preparation for this the parties are making first moves. Generally speaking, Ben Gurion is again taking part in public discussion by putting forward proposals for a two-party system. He believes that what the country needs politically is a two-party system, like that in the U.S. and England. Only on such a system can stable government be founded. Most people here are not used to such a system. Nor do they favor a system of two blocs. But the two big parties are in support of Ben Gurion. The smaller parties of course are strongly against it, since this system threatens their political existence.

Ben Gurion's plan is, roughly, to strengthen the Mapai and the General Zionists, as the workers' and the middle class parties, and to eliminate all the others. Ben Gurion has actually opened negotiations with party leaders with a view to liquidating the smaller parties. The religious parties are the most opposed. To them Ben Gurion suggested that they split: the workers groups in the religious parties to join Mapai, and the middle class groups to join the General Zionists, thus safeguarding the religious interests in each party. The trouble with this idea is that the two major parties are not too keen on such safeguards. Nor do the religious parties wish to give up their prior claims to serving as the protectors of religion. Yet Ben Gurion may have some chance of persuading them that there is no need for special political parties to safeguard religious interests. Ben Gurion is supported in his stand by Nahum Goldmann, who is negotiating with the General Zionists and the Progressives for a fusion of the two parties. Goldmann has more chance of success, for there is little that divides the two parties today, barring some personal ambitions and dislikes. Meantime the Progressives, who are small but influential, are putting up a stiff fight to prevent any agreement between the big parties that would require any party to secure a minimum number of votes before it can be represented in the Knesset, or any other deal to eliminate the small groups.

As to the parties themselves, Mapai is none too sure of victory at the polls. It will undoubtedly re-emerge as the biggest single party, but it may lose votes. Mapai knows that unless Ben Gurion comes back to routine politics, it cannot win. Ben Gurion is now showing signs of coming back. In spite of his illness, he is as active and outstanding as ever. However, he will have to prove to the electorate that he will stay at his job after the elections. If he does not prove this, the people may lose confidence in him.

The General Zionists claim to be stronger than ever, on the basis of party membership. Apparently, there is some truth in this claim. Today they represent not only middle class interests, but also the only reasonable alternative to a Mapai government. For these two reasons they manage to attract a good many people who for one reason or another are dissatisfied with the present regime. It is a sign of healthy democracy that people can show dissatisfaction with a regime which has been in power for too long.

The Mapam party is today hopelessly split from within. Entangled in an outdated ideology, Mapam members often lose their way, and turn upon one another in debate. The split is now quite deep, and may soon lead to the end of the party.

The religious parties have been unified under the impact of the threat that they may be eliminated implicit in the Ben Gurion proposals. It is a moot point how these parties will fare in the next election. Probably they will gain.

Closely linked with elections are economic problems. Mapai is looking ahead to providing work for the unemployed and underemployed, in an effort to get their votes next year. They propose to do this by work relief, providing public monies for projects that are more or less unnecessary.

The government has stated that, since the inauguration of the present economic plan, and owing to the mass immigration from backward countries, a considerable section of the population is in need of assistance in some form or another. Statistics put this figure at 20 per cent. In other words, every fifth person in Israel today gets assistance from some charitable or similar institution, governmental, local, or voluntary. This is indeed a shocking state of affairs. On the basis of this situation, Labor minister Golda Meyerson has told the government she needs funds to pay the underemployed for the equivalent of 14 million working days during the current fiscal year. To do this she wants large sums from the Knesset, for appropriation under the development budget.

There is no doubt that many people in Israel are in dire need, and there is much suffering among the unskilled laborers and in the maabarot camps. These people must be helped along. Pressure and inducements to send them on the land will not do, since many of them are unfit, mentally or physically, for agriculture. So work has to be found for them. The government proposes to put them on work relief. But manufacturers have suggested that they be put in the factories, so that exports of manufactured articles may be boosted. The government is cold to this suggestion, fearing to boost unduly certain enterprises.

Instead the government is now going to do the very thing that was banned by the new economic plan two years ago, when work relief was stopped on the theory that workers ought to be employed where they were needed, not when they needed a job. As to financing this scheme, the present proposal is to impose a new tax on the public, while at the same time relieving the government of the large expense of the food subsidies and making this money available for employment schemes. These latest plans of Levi Eshkol have been called acrobatics, and have met with wide criticism in all parties. After a heavy attack from the General Zionists (for propaganda purposes alone), and after heartsearching in the ranks of Mapai, it has now been decided to finance the work relief schemes out of a new graduated levy, to be imposed on all but the lowest paid employes.

Linked closely with the plan to provide work for unemployed is the government scheme to save public money by abolishing food and fuel subsidies. These subsidies took two forms, that of a guarantee of prices for local produce, and of permission for the import of food stuffs and fuel at a rate of exchange much cheaper than the effective value of the Israel pound. In other words, the government has been selling dollars to importers at an artificially cheap rate, and the difference between the official and the artificial prices has represented the subsidy for vital imports. As a first step, the subsidy of fuel has now been abolished. Subsidies of other imports are to follow suit.

The abolition of subsidies will however drive up prices of basic commodities, and this in turn will drive up the cost of living index, thus setting in motion again the spiral of inflation. Fear of this is causing the parties to hesitate to go ahead with the abolition of subsidies. For Eshkol is still determined to stop inflation at all costs. There is now renewed speculation as to how long Eshkol can or will stop this danger. He may not be able to stop it for very long, since there is pressure from many sides to ease inflationary restrictions: business is urging the expansion of credit; the Mapai and Golda Meyerson press for work relief. The Histadrut enterprises are pressing for a new devaluation, in order to meet their obligations to their creditors. Only Eshkol and the theoreticians oppose these demands. It is to be feared that they will not be able to withstand them much longer.

How determined the government can be not to open the gates to inflation in the wrong place, can be seen from the Doctors' Affaire. Of the 3,000 physicians in Israel, about 2,000 are employed, by the state, the municipalities, and above all by the Sick Fund of the Histadrut. The doctors came out with a strong plea for salary increases. Their salaries today are little better than those of unskilled officials. Their claim was rejected on the ground that the government would not sponsor any step which tended to set in motion the wage increase trend during the present fiscal year. In other words the government were afraid of setting a precedent for other officials and for the workers. The doctors called a warning strike, which lasted three days. They have now called a strike without a cut-off date to begin July 1, if their claims are not met by then. The government's mistake lies in refusing to acknowledge the need and right of physicians to earn more than officials. The refusal to do so stems from the fact that by some party standards 2,000 dissatisfied doctors represent less of a loss in votes than say 30,000 workers certain to be dissatisfied if their subsequent claims for wage increases are not met. It is simply a question of political arithmetic, democratic politics at its worst.

The doctors' strike has had an unpleasant effect on the country. It laid bare a moral and economic deficiency: For doctors to strike was an unheard of thing.

This period has witnessed the investigation of law breakers and the discovery of moral deficiency among men in public positions. There were three major scandals during the past few weeks, those associated with the cases of Livneh, Dr. Rosenberg, and Rabbi Lorincz. The investigations spring from the general uneasiness over the way some institutions and some officials had been handling public funds, or availing themselves of their public positions, for their own benefit. In the cases of Rabbi Lorincz and Dr. Rosenberg, the Attorney General tried to get at two Knesset members of the religious parties whom he accused of violating Israeli currency regulations. He demanded the suspension of Lorincz's parliamentary immunity in order to bring legal charges, and arranged for searches and proceeded to bring charges against Rosenberg, when the religious parties stepped in to support their friends. The religious parties charged outright that the Attorney General was picking out religious politicians, for political and partisan purposes. They further threatened that if these two deputies were to be prosecuted, the religious parties would bring up cases of malfeasance among members of other parties. In the behind-the-scenes bargaining which ensued, the Knesset Committee refused to suspend the immunity of Rabbi Lorincz, and the Attorney General stopped pressing his charges against Rosenberg.

Quite another case was the affaire Livneh. Livneh is a member of Mapai, and a Knesset deputy, but an outsider within its ranks. A man of independent mind, he finds it hard to follow every turn of the party line. He is a forthright thinker, an advocate of a lowering of the standard of living, and one who often accuses his own party of mistakes in running the state. Recently Livneh built himself a house in Jerusalem; and this was the cue for his opponents within Mapai to charge him before an enquiry committee with living in a manner unbecoming a socialist. Livneh was ordered to state the source from which he had received the money to build the house; when this source was proved to be exceptionable, he was charged with the crime of living in luxury. Thereupon the party committee decided that he might not live in his new house. But Livneh refused to accept this verdict, and brought the matter before the public. He retaliated by charging other Mapai leaders with abusing their office for their own benefit, and demanded wholesale enquiries into the means of the leaders of all the parties. The whole matter was then dropped, and Livneh is now living in his new house.

Each of these cases has shed a little more light on an undesirable state of affairs in public life. There are always rumors of improper enrichment and of corruption. Little evidence ever comes to light, except as it involves minor officials. Undoubtedly, some politicians have used their position to achieve private means and undue influence. Yet for some reason their malfeasance has been hushed up by the parties to which they belong, from the misguided motive of wishing to avoid political scandal. Such shortsightedness is affecting the public morale, and creates an attitude of suspicion, even of honest public servants.

After decades of Zionist idealism, Israel is obviously now in the midst of a materialistic era. Such a materialism is inevitable in times like these, when every muscle strains to increase the productivity and to consolidate the territorial and economic gains of the young country.

Israel remains a bright spot for cultural activities of all sorts. Next to reading, music is the principal pastime of the educated sections. In this field two events are worth recording. The Festival of Contemporary Music took place at Haifa a few weeks ago, and was a success. It served to acquaint wider sections of the public with the works of modern Israeli composers. On the other hand, one musical enterprise has had to fold up. The Israel Opera, created and led by Mme. Edis de Phillipe, had existed for seven years, but had never risen above mediocrity. For lack of a better company the Israeli public had put up with it. But a crisis was brought about when Mme. de Phillipe instituted a libel action against a local critic of repute for an article he wrote in Commentary concerning her and the opera. This brought into court a number of other critics and connoisseurs, who exposed Mme. de Phillipe's activities and expressed disapproval of her musical standards, calling them positively harmful to the country which has nothing else to compare them with. Although the case was settled and the defendant paid costs, the opera was finished, and soon stopped performances. It left a debt of over IL 100,000. The question is whether so small a country can maintain the opera company it deserves.

Bufiles reflect that correspondent may be identical with one Irving Engel who was a contributor to the National Citizens Political Action Committee or the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions (ICCASP) according to a list received from a representative of the New York "World Telegram" in 1947. The ICCASP was cited as a communist front by the Committee on Un-American Activities, U. S. House of Representatives, in its report of April 26, 1950. Information in Bureau files reflects that Engel was secretary of a publication known as "The Leader" which was chartered on 4-7-39. One Maxwell Lehman was executive editor of "The Leader" and he reportedly associated with members of the Communist Party in 1941. (62-60527-26932)

The American Jewish Committee was founded in 1906 and is reportedly dedicated to safeguarding civil and religious rights of the Jewish people. It has been continually anticommunist and in 1944 withdrew from the American Jewish Conference, a Zionist organization, when the Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order, a communist dominated group, was admitted to membership.

March 19, 1956

Dear Mr. Hoover:

The recent Twentieth Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union has raised an important question in the free world: Are the Soviet policies changing under the new "collective leadership?"

The answer, of course, must come from a careful study of Communist deeds, not words. One important yardstick is the treatment Stalin's successors accord their own ethnic and religious minorities.

The American Jewish Committee has closely observed the position of Jews under Communist rule for many years. Our researches have been documented in two major studies, "The Jews in the Soviet Union" (Solomon M. Schwarz, Syracuse Press, 1951) and "The Jews in the Soviet Satellites" (Peter Meyer and others, Syracuse Press, 1953). Two fact sheets, "What is Behind the Kremlin's latest March of Crime?" (1953) and "Anti-Semitism Continues in the Soviet Satellites" (1954) summarized the findings contained in these books.

The enclosed fact sheet covers the developments since Stalin's death. It includes information drawn from official Soviet documents, first hand reports of former prisoners and observations of visitors to Iron Curtain countries.

We hope this material will prove helpful to you.

Very truly yours,

Irving M. Engel

A FACT SHEET from THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

THE JEWS UNDER STALIN'S SUCCESSORS

In judging the sincerity of the Kremlin's professed concern for the rights of nations and groups outside the Soviet orbit, one valid yardstick is the treatment accorded to minorities in Communist countries.

The death of Stalin, the proclamation of "collective leadership," and the Geneva Conference raised hopes that the new Soviet leaders would show more respect for the human rights of Soviet citizens. It was also hoped that Stalin's successors would abandon the anti-Semitic policies which had reached a climax during his last years, and try to repair the damage done to the Jewish minority by discrimination and persecution.

These hopes have not been fulfilled. Although the Presidium of the Communist Party now governs collectively, the Soviet Union remains a one-party dictatorship, with brutal suppression of independent views, secret trials and slave labor camps.

The Kremlin's foreign policy likewise remains substantially unchanged. Its drive for world domination now includes inciting the Arab nations against the Western powers as well as against Israel.* Thus, Stalin's successors are ready to exploit anti-Jewish prejudices for the purposes of domestic oppression and foreign expansion.

During the past three years, there have been signs of leniency toward Russia's ethnic, religious and cultural groups; but this easing has not been extended equally to Jews. There have been a few concessions — the release of the Moscow doctors; the cessation of open anti-Semitic attacks in the press; relaxation of the ban on Jewish emigration; and permission to conduct some public recitations in Yiddish. But these moves must be viewed against the full background of conditions prevailing for Jews today behind the Iron Curtain.

This fact sheet seeks to present that background as completely as it may be drawn from all available sources.

* A forthcoming fact sheet will deal with the Soviet role in the Middle East.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM STRICTLY LIMITED

Those Jewish communities which have survived Stalin's reign are allowed to conduct religious services and participate in Soviet "peace" campaigns. On March 18, 1955, a peace manifesto signed by eight rabbis was published in Izvestia and widely publicized in the West. In July 1955, the Soviet delegation to the United Nations distributed an article asserting that Jews now had full religious freedom. Some synagogues were reopened. In January 1956, Jewish prayerbooks were reported to be in print — the first since 1917.

But these encouraging signs are overshadowed by the fact that the main provisions of the 1929 decree on religious associations still remain in full force. These regulations determine the true measure of religious freedom in the Soviet Union:

1. Religious communities must register with local authorities and submit membership rosters. Only persons over eighteen years of age may join. Registration may be refused, but no grounds are specified in the law. No unregistered community may function. Official data on the number of communities and their members has never been published. The number of Jewish communities is estimated at about one hundred. The number of members is unknown.

2. Religious communities do not enjoy the rights of corporate bodies. They do not own their places of worship but can rent them from local authorities. The members are individually and collectively responsible for maintenance.

3. Community boards are elected by open vote. Authorities have the right to eliminate board members without giving reason.

4. Communities of the same denomination may elect regional and central representative bodies only with special permission of the authorities. The Russian Orthodox Church and some other denominations have such bodies. The Jews have not.

5. Activities are strictly limited to matters of worship. Among other restrictions, groups are expressly forbidden to assist members by charity or any kind of material aid; to organize meetings of children, youth or women for the purposes of prayer, religious instruction, or Biblical or cultural education; to maintain libraries or reading rooms. In buildings used for worship, no books other than those directly required for worship may be kept.

6. Young people may receive private religious instruction only in groups of no more than three. No religious instruction is allowed in any schools. Violations are punishable by forced labor up to twelve months, unless they fall under heavier penalties for "counter-revolutionary" activities.

7. Theological instruction for prospective clergymen must be sanctioned by the Ministry of the Interior. The Russian Orthodox Church and some other denominations now have seminaries, strictly supervised by the secret police. Although all surviving rabbis are very old and there are no successors in view, the Jews have not yet been permitted to organize a rabbinical seminary.

8. Religious services and prayers are severely restricted. They may not be conducted without special permission except in regular places of worship, at cemeteries, and in hospitals, where last rites may be given only in private rooms.

Further limitations are imposed by the policies and practices of the Communist Party. The official Communist attitude toward the Jewish religion is best summarized by the authoritative Short Philosophical Dictionary. The latest edition, issued in 1954, characterizes Judaism as follows:

> Like any other religion, Judaism is uncompromisingly hostile to science, and preaches anti-scientific views on nature and society.
> The rabbis were always enemies of enlightenment and secular education, and persecutors of progressive thought. Judaism sanctifies social inequality and private ownership; it deifies the rule of kings and exploiters...
> The rabbinical doctrine of Messianism — the coming of a heavenly savior — serves as a means of dulling the class consciousness of the workers and of reconciling them to the domination of the exploiters. These traits of Judaism are extensively used by the Jewish bourgeois Zionist nationalists to stupefy the Jewish toilers with nationalism, in order to cut them off from the common front of the class struggle waged by all toilers against capitalism.

The Party and organizations under its control — such as the Communist Youth Movement, the labor unions and the cooperatives — systematically campaign against religion in ways that expose devout citizens to public denunciation and discrimination. Despite a Party resolution of November 11, 1954, condemning administrative interference with the activities of duly registered religious groups, pressure against religious believers remains strong. They are denied advancement and subjected to ostracism. They may be expelled from organizations and even lose their jobs. Moreover, absence from work on religious holidays may be punished by fines and prison sentences.

CULTURAL LIFE THROTTLED

According to the official formula, culture in the Soviet Union must be "national in form, socialist in content." Within this framework, most ethnic groups maintain schools, theaters, periodicals and cultural institutions in their own language, even though strictly regulated to conform to the Party line. Soviet Jews, however, are not allowed even this limited freedom.*

1. The Yiddish press is barred throughout the Soviet Union, with the exception of one small journal in Biro-Bidjan. Nor are there any Jewish newspapers or magazines in Russian or any other language — the last were silenced by Government order in 1948.

2. Yiddish book publishing ceased in 1948 when the only Jewish publishing house was closed. All known Yiddish writers were arrested and deported. Two of them, Peretz Markish and David Hofstein, are known to have been executed. Others like David Bergelson, Itzik Feffer, Leib Kvitko were either killed or died in jail and penal camps. A few survivors were recently released.

*In Poland and Rumania, a few Yiddish schools, theaters and cultural associations are retained to indoctrinate the Yiddish-speaking population in Communist theory. Working under strict Communist supervision, these institutions are violently anti-Zionist, anti-Israel and anti-Judaic in spirit.

3. Yiddish theaters were closed in 1949 on the official pretext that "Soviet Jews are not interested in Yiddish." A few Yiddish performances were permitted during the summer of 1955 — recitals of poems, stories and songs in Moscow and other cities. The attendance and reaction of the Jewish public indicated that, contrary to official dictum, Soviet Jews would enthusiastically support Yiddish cultural activities if given the opportunity.

JUSTICE STILL OVERDUE

The highwater mark of Soviet anti-Semitism was reached in February 1953, with the trumped-up charges against fifteen Moscow doctors. On April 3, 1953, Pravda and Izvestia published a communique of the Ministry of the Interior, then headed by Lavrenti P. Beria, declaring that the fifteen doctors accused of assassinating Soviet leaders Andrei A. Zhdanov and Alexander S. Shcherbakov and of plotting to kill several Soviet marshals were innocent, and that their "confessions" had been extorted by the secret police. Thirteen doctors were released; two are still missing.

In line with this reversal it was expected that the other Jews unjustly detained would be freed, and that anti-Semitism would be abandoned as an instrument of Government policy. But developments over the past three years have not fulfilled these expectations.

1. Victims of persecution still suffer: During 1955, a few Jewish prisoners were released. But tens of thousands are still confined, according to reports of former slave labor camp inmates who have returned to Germany, Austria and other countries.

Similarly, of all the Jewish victims of the Slansky trial and subsequent purges in Czechoslovakia, only one man — Israel citizen Simon Ohrenstein — was released. His cousin, Mordechai Oren, left-wing Mapam deputy to the Israel Knesset, remains in jail.

In Rumania, sentences imposed on some of the Zionist leaders arrested in 1948-49 were reduced and the prisoners were released. However, they are still adjudged guilty of organizing the Zionist movement and promoting emigration to Israel — activities which were legal at the time they were conducted.

Since the Zionist movement has been outlawed in the Soviet Union for three decades, there can hardly be any genuine Zionists in that country today. Nevertheless, many Jews stand convicted of "counter-revolutionary activity" allegedly motivated by "Zionism." Others are charged with "Jewish bourgeois nationalism," "cosmopolitanism," or "reactionary religious ideology." Descriptions of individual cases appear in such recently published books as Joseph Scholmer's Vorkuta, Antoni Ekart's Vanished Without Trace, Brigitte Gerland's Die Hoelle Ist Ganz Anders and Wilhelm Starlinger's Limits of Soviet Power.

Typical of the "Zionist plots" fabricated by the secret police is the case of one group of Odessa Jews, whose offense consisted of having met a foreign rabbi visiting Odessa during the war. Many Jews were deported for having taught religion to young people or for having participated in Yiddish cultural activities back in the days when they were still legal. Often, the fact that a Jew had survived German captivity or German occupation was considered sufficient proof of his treasonable activities. And finally, many others are serving time for "economic offenses" of which they were convicted in an atmosphere of anti-Semitic hysteria that followed the arrest of the fifteen doctors.

Within the prison camps, authorities often do not protect Jews from verbal and physical attack by co-prisoners who are either common criminals or former collaborators with the Nazis.

2. Amnesty for Nazi collaborators but not for Jews: On September 18, 1955, the Soviet Government granted a broad amnesty to Soviet citizens who had collaborated with the Nazis during the war, including those who had served in the German army, police and special extermination squads. Their criminal record was wiped out. Yet no amnesty has been granted to the Jews, who remain imprisoned while their persecutors are free.

3. Real culprits escape blame: Though some of Stalin's successors were parties to his anti-Semitic campaign, only a few former officials of the Ministry of State Security were punished for the false accusations against the Moscow doctors. One, Mikhail D. Ryumin, was shot after secret trial on July 7, 1954. His boss, Semyon D. Ignatiev, former Minister of State Security, got off with a temporary demotion in April 1953. Soon he reappeared — as Secretary of the Communist Party in Bashkiria; in March 1954 he was elected to the Supreme Soviet; in February 1956, the 20th Congress of the Communist Party re-elected him to the Central Committee.

4. Straw in the wind: In the summer of 1955, an anti-Semitic journalistic device, widely exploited in 1953, again cropped up in Soviet provincial press reports of "economic crimes." In this series of reports, unusual emphasis was given to cases involving Jews by printing their names — such as Selik-Lev Davidovich or Josef Pinkasovich — in full, and repeating them frequently. At the same time, the number of Jews prosecuted for economic offenses suddenly increased.

5. Discrimination still official policy: With the admission in Pravda and Izvestia that the frame-up of the doctors had been motivated by "national enmity" and "racial hatred," open anti-Semitic attacks ceased in the press. However, anti-Jewish feeling is wide-spread and there has been no attempt to re-educate the population which is still infected by Government-sponsored anti-Semitic campaigns of the recent past.

Since 1953, silence on this subject has been broken only once. In July 1955, the magazine Party Life carried a long article on the "nationality question." While one short paragraph quoted Lenin's condemnation of anti-Semitism, there was lengthy reiteration of his and Stalin's violent attacks against the "bourgeois nationalist" ideas of the Jewish Socialist Bund, which has stood for the right of Jews to develop their cultural institutions.

In the armed forces, the diplomatic service and some institutions of higher learning, discriminatory policies introduced by secret Communist Party instructions in the late '40s and early '50s are still observed.

Although a few persons, mostly elderly, have been allowed to join their families in Israel, the official ban on Jewish emigration continues in force.

A FACT SHEET from THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

THE MIDDLE EAST FERMENT

No international issue in recent months has so consistently captured the headlines as the ever-mounting crisis in the Middle East. There is a growing conviction that United States action with regard to issues in that pivotal sector of the globe may well determine whether there will be peace or war in the immediate future.

In an atmosphere charged with heated argument, it is difficult for thoughtful citizens to keep before them the essential facts which must be considered in arriving at decisions affecting America's vital interests. The purpose of this fact sheet is to present such data as fully as possible in brief summary form. Additional information on developments as they occur will be made available.

The American Jewish Committee, founded in 1906, is a national, non-partisan organization which seeks to combat bigotry, protect the civil and religious rights of Jews here and abroad, and advance those rights for all people of all religions and races.

The American Jewish Committee is a non-Zionist organization. It supported the establishment of the State of Israel as a home for those Jews who needed or wished to settle there. Within the framework of American interests, it has sought to help Israel become a bulwark of democracy in the Middle East.

NEW WAR CLOUDS

Beneath the present ferment in the Middle East lie forces more deep-seated than the Arab-Israel conflict. These forces, variously characterized as anti-Westernism, anti-imperialism, anti-colonialism or nationalism, were stirring on all continents as far back as the nineteenth century, long before the State of Israel came into being.

Gathering momentum through two world wars, the uprising of subject peoples has come to be recognized as one of the great historic movements of modern times. Most recently, its impetus has been seen in French North Africa and British-held Cyprus, as it was earlier in India and Indonesia.

In the world-wide rebellion against Western dominance — economic and political alike — leaders of Arab lands in the Middle East are now also joined. These lands are bridges to Europe, Asia and Africa. They encircle the Suez Canal. They contain oil fields and air bases vital to Western industry and defense.

Disaffection from the West in a region where America and her European allies hold such heavy stakes would pose problems calling for the utmost wisdom and statesmanship, even if there were no Arab-Israel conflict hanging fire and no Soviet incitement to inflame it.

Today, under the impact of Russian intrusion, all the war-making potentials in the Middle East are on the verge of combustion. United States interests, says President Eisenhower, "are being gravely jeopardized."

An appraisal of this situation must take into account at least five elements:

1. Long-ingrained hostility to the former colonial powers of Western Europe, as already noted.
2. Alignments and rivalries among the rulers of the nine Arab League states.
3. Long-standing Arab-Israel tensions.
4. Soviet penetration and provocation.
5. Actions and reactions in the United States to date.

ARAB ALIGNMENTS AND RIVALRIES

The nine states of the Arab League — Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, Jordan, Saudi Arabia, Yemen, Egypt, Sudan and Libya — are far from united. Their rulers are jockeying for power and aligning themselves into contending groups.

— The Middle East Treaty Organization or "Baghdad Pact," sponsored by Great Britain and the United States, unites one Arab League state, Iraq, with Great Britain and the "northern tier" countries of Turkey, Iran, Pakistan. All are pro-Western and anti-Soviet. Iraq is also anti-Israel. The United States, although supporting the Baghdad Pact and joining its Economic Committee, is not a signatory.

— The "southern tier" or "Cairo bloc" comprises Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Yemen. "Neutralist," anti-Western and anti-Israel in orientation, it is led by Egypt's Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser. This bloc has been drawn towards the Soviet orbit by lures of trade and arms.

At the Cairo Conference in March 1956, Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Syria announced "an all-conclusive plan for enduring Arab Security, preserving the safe structure of the Arab Nation and defending it against the dangers of Zionist aggression and foreign domination...."

Jordan has thus far resisted Egyptian-Saudi Arabian pressures to join the Cairo bloc. Libya and Sudan lean towards Egypt. Lebanon stands aloof from both camps.

Within these groupings, the Arab governments are competing among themselves, while reaching out for all they can get from their suitors, both East and West.

— Egypt, most modern and wealthiest of the Arab countries, has a population of over 22 million, more than double that of any other Arab League state. Organizer of the Arab League in 1945 and its leader ever since, she is now seeking to extend her influence to French North Africa and the Sudan. Proclaiming the new Egyptian Constitution on January 14, 1956, Premier Nasser said:

> From the Atlantic to the Persian Gulf there is but one Arab nation which no one will succeed in dividing again.

—Syria, although a member of Egypt's Cairo bloc, still mistrusts her Moslem neighbors. Their territorial ambitions have been manifested in the controversial "Fertile Crescent" plan, promoted for many years by Iraq, and the "Greater Syria" scheme favored by the late King Abdullah of Jordan to unite Syria with Iraq and Jordan.

—Saudi Arabia, long-time foe of Jordan and Iraq, is now making "friendly" overtures to Jordan and, at the same time, plays Egypt's game of forging an anti-Western front. Waxing rich on oil royalties of more than $250 million yearly, Saudi Arabia is attracting world-wide attention by a vast campaign of intrigue and bribery. Thus, Life comments editorially (March 19, 1956):

> ...it is the oil-rich Saudi Arabians who pass out the bribes to set Jordanians in the streets against the Baghdad Pact....

Similar accusations were made by Iraqi Premier Nouri el Said in an interview with the London Daily Telegraph (March 31, 1956):

> ...Saudi Arabia does its best to undermine us by pouring in large sums of money to buy the support of individuals....

—Yemen, the latest Arab League country to join the Cairo bloc, signed mutual defense pacts in April 1956 with Saudi Arabia and Egypt, placing its armed forces under the supreme command of Egypt's Maj. Gen. Abelel Hakim Amer.

—Jordan, fearful of Saudi Arabia's power drive and Egypt's dominance, has withstood Cairo bloc offers to replace Great Britain as subsidizer of her military establishment and guarantor of her independence. However, she yielded to Egyptian pressure by refusing to join the Baghdad Pact and by dismissing Sir John Bagot Glubb and other British officers training her Arab Legion.

—Iraq, by joining the Baghdad Pact, steeled her northern borders against the Soviet threat and at the same time defied her ancient dynastic rival, Saudi Arabia. Egypt thereupon rallied Saudi Arabia and Syria, put pressure on Jordan and Yemen, and all but isolated Iraq. Animosity toward Egypt's present leadership is openly expressed by the Iraqi Premier in the interview quoted above.

> The trouble about Nasser is that he wants to shine as the leader of all the Arabs. His opposition to the Baghdad Pact dates only from the moment when he thought it might interfere with his personal ambition.

—Lebanon, the only Arab League state with a sizable Christian population, has avoided both the Baghdad powers and the Cairo bloc. Strategically located on the Mediterranean, she is strictly neutral, although Iraqi and Saudi Arabian oil pipelines run through her territory.

—Sudan, racked by internal disorders, recently emerged from British-Egyptian rule, declaring herself independent in January 1956. She is dickering with the Communists for arms and for technical and economic assistance.

—Libya, an independent state since 1951, is mostly desert, with a fertile strip on the Mediterranean coast. Despite a British subsidy of more than $10 million annually, the major foreign influence comes from neighboring Egypt.

War or Peaceful Growth?

The Arab League countries are faced with a choice. They can continue their industrial development and improve the lot of their people, or they can start an aggressive war that will prevent progress for many years to come.

They can emulate Iraq, whose government has committed 70 per cent of oil revenues to a program of long-term public works and improvement. Or they can follow the path of Saudi Arabia, a feudal monarchy without laws, courts or constitution, which uses American oil royalties to subvert neighboring states and for palace excesses instead of meeting human needs.

Influential forces in the Arab leadership believe that the increasing pressure of their peoples to improve living standards can be diverted by a "holy war" against Israel. Thus, the Cairo Radio's Home Service and the Voice of the Arabs, the two most powerful radio stations which are controlled by the Egyptian government, arouse the largely illiterate Arab people against Israel and the West, while broadcasting friendly messages from the Soviet states.

Quoting the magazine, Al-Musawwar, Cairo Radio's Home Service declares (October 20, 1955):

> The 22 million Egyptians could, if they wanted to fight, trample the small state of Israel under foot in a second. As Abd Al-Nasir has declared, however, Egypt is not facing Israel alone, but the international power of Zionism which controls treasuries, armies and governments in America, Britain, France and other western nations.

The same Egyptian radio tells the Arabs that their real friends are the Communists (December 31, 1955):

> It was the voice of Khrushchev which avowed to the West that the Soviet Union sympathizes with the Arabs.... It was the voice of Bulganin which attacked the Iraqi-British (Baghdad) Pact and all military alliances, describing them as imperialistic acts in new forms, with only aggressive aims.... It is no wonder, therefore, that this dual voice finds an appreciative reaction in the hearts of the Arabs.... There is also no doubt that with such support for obvious rights, the cause of peace in the Middle East, or rather the cause of world peace, will be served.

Cairo Arabic-language broadcasts, "in the name of African unity, Arab nationalism and anti-imperialism," are inciting other North African states against Israel. Retaliating against France's sale of jets and other arms to Israel, the Cairo bloc powers are increasing their support of anti-French extremists in Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco, seeking to divert legitimate nationalist movements to support of aggression against Israel.

Communism's strategy looks to misery and strife as a means of unseating whatever regimes are in power and installing puppet governments. Thus, in accepting advances from the Kremlin, Arab leaders are endangering the most fundamental Arab interest — freedom from foreign domination. In turning from the "imperialist West" to the Communist East, they risk falling prey to the most insatiable and ruthless imperialism of our time.

REVIEW OF ARAB-ISRAEL TENSIONS

Palestine, cradle of three great religions and the focus of present-day Middle East tensions, was settled by the ancient Hebrews in 2000 B. C. Site of the Biblical kingdoms of David and Solomon and, later, of the divided Hebrew kingdoms of Israel and Judah, the land was conquered by the Assyrians (721 B. C.), the Babylonians (585 B. C.), the Romans (63 B. C. and A.D. 70), and a number of Moslem rulers in the seventh century A. D. During the Crusades it was again embroiled in warfare, with the Christians ruling over some sections while the Moslems held the rest. In 1517, it fell to the Turks and remained part of the Ottoman Empire for the next 400 years.

After Turkey's defeat in World War I, Great Britain took control of Palestine. It became an official British mandate in 1920.

Seeds of the Arab-Israel Struggle

Over the past half-century, both Arabs and Jews have claimed Palestine as their traditional home — the Arabs by virtue of having lived there for generations, the Jews because of their ancient ties to this land. The Zionist movement for a Jewish state in Palestine began in the 1880's; by 1914, when World War I broke out, there were some 80,000 Jewish settlers living alongside 800,000 Arab natives.

The seeds of the present Arab-Israel struggle were planted, in part, by Britain's conflicting promises to Arabs and Jews during and immediately after World War I. In 1915, British leaders promised to support an independent Arab empire, to include part, if not all, of Palestine. In 1917, the British Government issued the famous Balfour Declaration, declaring:

> His Majesty's Government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people....

During the period between the two world wars — particularly after the Nazi terror began — there was increasing pressure for Jewish immigration to Palestine. It was vehemently opposed by the Arabs, who repeatedly urged the British to prevent it.

Role of the United Nations

In 1947, Great Britain decided to give up its mandate and turned the Palestine issue over to the United Nations. Mindful of the uprooted survivors of the Nazi holocaust which had all but wiped out the Jewish population of Europe, the UN in November 1947 voted to create, in one section of Palestine, a new Jewish state.

In May 1948, just before the British withdrew from Palestine, a Declaration of Independence was issued by the new State of Israel, establishing itself within the boundaries set by the UN. Immediately thereafter, seven Arab states attacked with the declared intention of driving the new democracy "into the sea."

After several months of fighting, during which the Israelis decisively repulsed the Arab armies, UN Mediator Ralph Bunche of the United States negotiated a cease-fire. In 1948-49, armistice agreements were concluded between Israel and Egypt, Syria, Lebanon and Jordan. To date, no further progress has been made toward permanent treaties of peace.

Meanwhile, the disputes between Israel and the Arab states have continued unabated. The major points of friction are as follows:

1. Failure to Negotiate

For a number of years after the Arabs failed to destroy Israel by armed force, they categorically refused to translate the uneasy armistice into a permanent peace.

— Kamil Chaumoun, President of Lebanon (March 1952):[1]

> It is impossible to discuss the possibility of peace with Israel, even in principle.

— Mohammed Naguib, President of Egypt (June 1953):[2]

> The only solution is Israel's disappearance.

— Fawzi Mulki, Prime Minister of Jordan (November 1953):[3]

> Jordan's policy will continue to be "no peace with Israel."

— King Saud of Saudi Arabia (January 1954):[4]

> Israel is like a cancer to the human body, and the only way of remedy is to uproot it....

— Dr. Mohammad Fadhil Jamali, Former Prime Minister of Iraq (April 1955):[5]

> We sincerely hope that...all fair-minded peoples in the world, will continue to brand Israel as an illegitimate state....

— Editorial in "Al Gomhouria," Egyptian Government-controlled newspaper (April 11, 1956):[6]

> The only reasonable proposal which Mr. Hammarskjold can make is the obliteration of Israel from the face of the earth.

In recent months, some Arab spokesmen have stopped calling for Israel's destruction. Instead, they demand a return to the 1947 boundaries and the repatriation of all the Arab refugees who want to return to Israel, as prerequisites to peace negotiations.

2. Boundaries

The nine Arab states in the Middle East occupy a total of 2,987,750 square miles.[7]

7 Egypt: 386,000 sq. mi.; Iraq: 171,000; Jordan: 37,500; Lebanon: 3,900; Libya: 679,000; Saudi Arabia: 597,000; Sudan: 967,950; Syria: 70,500; Yemen: 75,000.

Israel's territory presently comprises 8,050 square miles — or less than half of 1 per cent of the total Arab land mass.

Under the UN Partition Palestine was to be divided into two new states with economic union:. Israel was allotted 5,500 square miles; a new Arab state, which was to occupy 4,500 square miles, never materialized. Instead, this territory became a battleground when the Arab armies assaulted Israel. The armistice agreements of July 1949 maintained, pending a peace settlement, the territorial changes resulting when Israel drove the invading armies back beyond the original Partition boundaries.

Consequently, the land originally set aside for the new Arab state is now occupied by Israel (2,200 sq. mi.), Jordan (2,222 sq. mi.) and Egypt, which holds the tiny Gaza strip.

The Arabs refuse to negotiate peace until Israel withdraws to the Partition boundaries which they themselves violated.

While Israel has expressed willingness to discuss minor boundary adjustments at the peace table, she insists that land gained by citizens who died to save their country from destruction must not be relinquished.

The Tripartite Declaration, issued in May 1950 and reaffirmed in February and April 1956, pledges the United States, France and the United Kingdom to prevent forcible alteration of the armistice lines.

A seven-point peace plan, drawn up by the Government of Israel at the urging of the United States, was announced on December 19, 1955. According to this proposal, Israel would agree to:

1. Open natural lines of communication between Egypt and Lebanon to all Arab traffic.
2. Give Jordan travel rights across Israel and a free port at Haifa.
3. Arrange some communications liaison across the Negev between Jordan and Egypt.
4. Permit Arab planes to fly over Israel.
5. Compensate Arab refugees for property abandoned during the Arab-Israel fighting.
6. Cooperate in joint Arab-Israel development of the Jordan and Yarmuk valleys.
7. Consider minor frontier adjustments.

Secretary of State Dulles' statement on the Middle East, August 26, 1955, cited the lack of fixed boundaries as one of three problems requiring solution, and contained the following proposal:

> President Eisenhower has authorized me to say that, given a solution of the other related problems, he would recommend that the United States join in formal treaty engagements to prevent or thwart any effort by either side to alter by force the boundaries between Israel and its Arab neighbors. I hope that other countries would be willing to join in such a security guarantee, and that it would be sponsored by the United Nations.

Israel takes exception to Mr. Dulles' suggestion that U.S. guarantee of borders would come after Israel and the Arab states had agreed on the boundaries. Abba Eban, Israel's ambassador to Washington, characterized this stipulation as a "built-in deadlock with somber potentialities of anticlimax and disillusionment."

3. Internationalization of Jerusalem

Because of Jerusalem's historic importance to three of the world's religions, the UN Partition called for internationalization of the city, to insure protection of all Holy Places and free access to them.

Jerusalem is divided into two sectors — the New City, now part of Israel, and Old Jerusalem, now part of Jordan. Israel's New City contains three Holy Places — one Christian, one Jewish and one Moslem. All other shrines — fifteen Christian, three Moslem and five Jewish — are in Old Jerusalem, under Jordan rule.

The Israelis consider Jerusalem their traditional capital. While opposing internationalization of the city, Israel has agreed to internationalization of the Holy Places. Israel's Ministry of Religious Affairs, charged with protecting religious shrines of all faiths, is repairing Holy Places damaged in the 1948 fighting.

Jordan, which holds the Old City of Jerusalem, likewise opposes internationalization, though she is willing to permit UN inspection of Holy Places.

In 1950, the UN General Assembly discussed two draft resolutions on internationalization. The first, proposing "to settle the question in accordance with principles already adopted by the Assembly," was opposed by the United States and other countries as "a process which had proved fruitless." The second, providing for a UN commissioner to supervise the Holy Places and allow free access to them, was hailed by the United States delegation as "a valuable contribution to the solution of the problem." However, it was never submitted to a vote, and there have been no further UN moves to settle the question.

4. Arab Refugees

With the onset of bitter fighting in 1948, thousands of Palestine Arabs left their homes and fled to neighboring Arab lands. There were many reasons for their flight: British withdrawal from Palestine, the uncertainties of living under a new regime, and especially the dangers of war. The Arabs maintain that many were terrorized or driven out when Israeli extremists destroyed several Arab villages. The Israelis contend that Arab leaders incited panic and spread propaganda, promising the refugees a triumphant return after Israel's defeat.

As early as April 3, 1948, the Near East Arabic Broadcasting Station, maintained by the British in Cyprus, charged:

> It must not be forgotten that the Arab Higher Committee encouraged the refugees' flight from their homes in Jaffa, Haifa and Jerusalem...

When the Arab states failed to "push Israel into the sea," an estimated 550,000-750,000 Palestine Arabs were left stranded in UN refugee camps. While deaths have cut into this original group, the total has been swelled by some 25,000 births per year and by indigents from the Arab countries.

Today, some 900,000 refugees are living under makeshift, squalid conditions in Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Egypt-held Gaza. As of June 1955, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine had spent $185 million for their relief, with no real progress toward settlement.

The plight of these innocent victims weighs heavily on the conscience of the entire world — Arabs and Israelis, East and West. It will continue to do so until some equitable solution is found.

Arab leaders demand that Israel repatriate all refugees wishing to return and compensate the rest for their property.

Israel maintains she cannot risk the presence of a hostile population over half the size of her own citizenry. No nation, she points out, would invite such a potential fifth column within its borders. She has, however, permitted the return of some 30,000 Arabs and is continuing to admit refugees in order to reunite families separated in the war. She has also agreed to the principle of reasonable compensation to aid refugee resettlement.

The United Nations view, which originally called for repatriation, has changed markedly since 1948.

— Supplementary Report of the Palestine Conciliation Commission (October 24, 1950):

> Concentration [should be laid] on resettlement in the Arab countries, with both the technical and financial assistance of the United Nations and coupled with payment of compensation for their property.

The United States likewise urges resettlement in Arab countries.

— Secretary of State John Foster Dulles (June 1, 1953):

> Some of these [Arab] refugees could be resettled in the area presently controlled by Israel. Most, however, could more readily be integrated into the lives of the neighboring Arab communities.

— Recommendations of the Special Study Mission to the Near East, House Committee on Foreign Affairs (February 1954):1

> The Arab refugees should be encouraged to help work out permanent solutions of their problem.
> The refugees should become citizens of the Arab states.
> Responsibility for the refugee program should be transferred to the Arab states.
> The United States should refuse further aid to refugees not conforming to the program.
> The United States should consider cutting off financial aid to nations not complying with UN decisions.
> The United States should serve notice it would not support return of Arab refugees to Palestine under existing conditions.
> The United States should press for compensation by Israel to Arab refugees for homes and other property lost through seizure.

— Secretary of State Dulles (August 1955):

> To end the plight of the 900,000 refugees requires that these uprooted people should, through resettlement and — to such an extent as may be feasible — repatriation, be enabled to resume a life of dignity and > self-respect. To this end there is need to create more arable land where refugees can find permanent homes and gain their own livelihood through their own work. Fortunately there are practical projects for water development which can make this possible.

1. The Arab Refugees and Other Problems in the Near East, House Report No. 1250, U.S. Government Printing Office, 1954.

> All this requires money.... There might be an international loan to enable Israel to pay the compensation which is due and which would enable the refugees to find for themselves a better way of life. President Eisenhower would recommend substantial participation by the United States in such a loan for such a purpose. Also he would recommend that the United States contribute to the realization of water development and irrigation projects which would, directly or indirectly, facilitate the resettlement of the refugees.

5. Water Supply

Efficient utilization of water is a "must" if the Middle East is to become productive and self-sufficient. Since many rivers flow through more than one country, proper development depends on mutual agreement.

In 1953, Israel began construction of a dam on the Jordan River. Work was suspended by order of the UN Armistice Commission when Syria complained that her water rights were threatened. In January 1954, a Security Council resolution permitting Israel to continue the dam if UN investigators found no violation of Syrian rights was vetoed by the Soviet Union.

To avoid clashing with Syria and Jordan, Israel has not yet resumed construction. She has stated, however, that she will soon move ahead unilaterally unless mutual agreement is reached.

American and United Nations experts feel that irrigation and electricity can be most effectively secured by harnessing the waters of the Jordan River. Between 1953 and 1955, Eric Johnston, acting for President Eisenhower, made four trips to the Middle East to urge upon the Arab states and Israel a project outlined by the Tennessee Valley Authority at the request of the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees.

In his initial contacts, Mr. Johnston met considerable resistance. Israel, while endorsing the general intent, questioned several proposals in the plan. The Arab states were reluctant to consider any project which would commit them, indirectly at least, to recognize Israel's existence by working with her — even through an intermediary and for their mutual benefit.

By October 1955, however, Mr. Johnston was able to report progress:

> Israel and her Arab neighbors — Lebanon, Syria and Jordan — now recognize the Jordan Valley Plan as the only logical and equitable approach to the problem of developing a river system which belongs, in some part, to all of them.

But despite this recognition of the need, there is little likelihood of joint action until the underlying Arab-Israel tensions are eased.

6. Boycott and Blockade

Because of a strict Arab boycott, Israel must import grain and other foodstuffs from Europe, oil from distant Venezuela. At the same time, business interests in the Arab states cannot avail themselves of new markets opened up by Israel's developing industries.

Since 1951, Egypt has imposed a blockade of shipping through the Suez Canal and through the Gulf of Aqaba, a branch of the Red Sea which touches the coasts of Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. The only navigable entrance to the Gulf is through a strait dominated by Egyptian guns.

In 1951, on Israel's complaint, the UN Security Council ordered Egypt's blockade of the Suez ended, but Egypt has refused to abide by this order on the grounds that she is "at war" with Israel and is justified in preventing "contraband materials" from reaching her enemies.

In September 1954, Egypt seized an Israel ship, Bat Galim, on its way through the Suez, and imprisoned its crew. During the Security Council discussion in January 1955, the United States, France and England backed Israel's demand for the Bat Galim's release and for free access to all nations through the Suez Canal. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., United States delegate, declared that Egyptian restrictions on ships passing through the Canal, whether trading with Israel or flying the Israel flag, were inconsistent with the "spirit and intent" of the armistice agreements and the 1951 Council resolution.

While reiterating her determination to bar Israel shipping from the Canal, Egypt agreed to release the Bat Galim, but only through a "neutral" nation — a condition which Israel refuses to accept. As of April 1956, the ship still remained in Egyptian hands.

* * * * *

In the absence of peace, both sides have mounted border raids, forays, retaliatory attacks, and provocative military maneuvers. Innocent Arab and Israeli lives will no doubt continue to be lost until a permanent settlement is reached.

The Propaganda Battle in the United States

For many years, both sides in the Arab-Israel dispute have been waging a propaganda battle in the United States to win over American public opinion. Israel's most vocal American protagonists are Zionist groups. Another active organization is the American Christian Palestine Committee. The principal American pleader for the Arab cause is the American Friends of the Middle East. The Arab Information Center and some 3,000 Arab students enrolled in American colleges are also advancing Arab positions.

Competitive alignment in behalf of other nations' causes is a familiar feature of American life. Time and again, the American public has applied to foreign affairs the traditional process of arriving at judgments by airing conflicting views. These arguments often have been charged with emotion; but they have rarely violated the unwritten American code which bars appeals to religious bigotry or race hatred as inimical to national unity and well-being.

The most recent example of purposeful incitement to bigotry was the Nazi-inspired propaganda drive before Pearl Harbor, directed by German diplomatic emissaries and spread around the country with the help of anti-Semites in the United States.

The activities of some Arab representatives in the United States today have come to bear ominous resemblance to the Nazi campaign.

From official Arab sources, such as the Egyptian and Syrian embassies and official UN delegations of Arab nations, there has flowed a tide of hostility against American Jews. To befog American thinking on the whole Middle East problem and prevent aid to Israel, Arab publicists have been charging American Jews with "dual loyalty" and "Zionist manipulation" of Government policy.

—Syrian Ambassador Farid Zeineddine, in a television interview carried over the Dumont network from Washington, D. C. (November 2, 1953):

> ...the United States public is misled, and it is misled by Zionist special groups, because when an individual becomes a Zionist, he acquires a double loyalty; his allegiance is divided. If he is a strong > Zionist, his allegiance will certainly go to Israel, even against his very country, be it the United States or Syria or any other country....

— Newsletter published by the Press Attaché of the Embassy of Iraq at Washington, D. C. (June 1, 1954):

> Zionist pretension to being the Representative of the Jewish Faith and Israel's to being the capital of the world Jewry serve to indoctrinate Jews everywhere with Zionism, hence creating for them a sense of double loyalty and endangering their future condition....

During 1955, the Egyptian Embassy distributed two viciously anti-Semitic pamphlets — Jewish Atrocities in the Holy Land and The Story of Zionist Espionage in Egypt. Both were circulated through the mail in the United States. The latter also was made available in bulk to the National Renaissance Party, a neo-Nazi group in New York City.[1] Abdul Hassan, an official of the Egyptian Delegation to the United Nations, spoke before this group on June 3, 1955. Both pamphlets are widely used by the most notorious instigators of anti-Semitism in the U. S. A. — among them Conde McGinley, Gerald L. K. Smith and Frank L. Britton.

Likewise replete with incendiary anti-Jewish attacks is Tension, Terror and Blood in the Holy Land. Printed in Damascus, this 250-page handbook for Arab propagandists in the United States bears the official seal and imprint of the Palestine Arab Refugee Institution.[2]

Thus, the Arab-Israel controversy in the U. S. A. has been pushed beyond the bounds of honest argumentation into the danger zone of demagoguery and incitement to religious hatred.

SOVIET PENETRATION IN THE MIDDLE EAST

Soviet penetration has been aimed at the Middle East since 1940, when Secret Protocol No. 1 of the agreement between Germany, Italy and Japan on the one hand, and the Soviet Union on the other, stated:

> The Soviet Union declares that its territorial aspirations center south of the national territory of the Soviet Union in the direction of the Indian Ocean.[1]

The actual pursuit of these aims was stayed by World War II. In mid-1955 the Kremlin set out actively to:

1. Secure control of one of the world's most strategic areas

Two-thirds of the world's oil reserves are in the Middle East. In 1955, Britain and the Western powers used 162 million tons, 75 per cent of the area's total output. Gas and mineral resources are largely untapped, awaiting hydroelectric power from new dams to drive machinery which could multiply the productivity of the whole area.

Gateway to Asia and Africa, the Suez Canal is a strategic target for Soviet domination. Each year more than 13,000 ships go through the Canal, carrying over 102,000,000 net tons. Oil tankers take up over 60 per cent of the traffic.

Declares the U. S. News and World Report (March 16, 1956):

> If Russia succeeds in provoking an Arab-Israel war, a big area of strategic importance to the West is thrown into chaos. Western defense systems are broken or imperiled... Even if war is averted, Russia still stands to gain the regard of Arab countries as the only big power that gave them military aid... Armies equipped with Soviet weapons become dependent on Soviet repairs, spare parts and ammunition. Russia thus sees a chance to infiltrate some of the very armies on which the West is relying for military support in event of war with Russia.

2. Consolidate alliances through military and economic aid

In March 1956, Egypt completed its first army maneuvers along the Israel frontier with weapons bought from Communist Czechoslovakia six months earlier. Meanwhile the Czechs, becoming the largest importers of Egyptian cotton, had arranged to sell Egypt machinery, generators and other industrial items.

While trade delegations from Communist Hungary, Bulgaria and China were crowding Cairo, Czechoslovakia completed a deal with Syria for the erection of an international airport in Damascus and a new oil refinery. The Soviets also signed a trade agreement with Yemen on March 8, 1956.

3. Inflame the East against the West

Capitalizing on the nationalist fervor mounting among the Arab peoples and their fanatical hatred of Israel, the Soviet Union sees unparalleled opportunities to win over the Arab world.

— Nikita S. Khrushchev, in an address to the Supreme Soviet (December 29, 1955):

> [Israel has been] threatening her neighbors and pursuing a policy hostile to them... from the beginning of her existence.

— Vyacheslav M. Molotov, speaking to the Supreme Soviet (February 8, 1955):

> ...in the Soviet state they [the Arab states] had and will continue to have a reliable bulwark in the cause of defense of their sovereignty and national independence.

Although the Soviets voted for the creation of Israel in 1947, they now echo the line of the Arab League. "The Russians are very clever. They know what I want to say and they please me by saying what I want to say," explained Egypt's Premier Nasser to The New York Times correspondent Osgood Caruthers (April 1, 1956).

ACTIONS AND REACTIONS IN THE UNITED STATES

One of America's most basic interests in the Middle East is the prevention of a shooting war which might well engulf the whole world. In line with this aim, the United States has consistently given its full support to UN actions in the region.

—In May 1948, our Government was the first to recognize the UN-created nation.

—During 1948 and 1949 we wholeheartedly backed the UN's efforts to halt the war waged by the Arabs to wipe out the new state.

—Since the 1949 armistice, the United States has insisted that the temporary armistice lines must not be forcibly violated. The principal instrument of this policy is the Tripartite Agreement of May 1950 on the part of the United States, the United Kingdom and France, reaffirmed in November 1955 and again in February 1956.

—On August 26, 1955, Secretary of State Dulles proposed "further steps toward stability, tranquillity, and progress in the Middle East." To these ends, the U.S. offered its services and a considerable amount of loan money. (See pages 12-13.)

—On January 19, 1956, the UN Security Council unanimously passed a Western-sponsored resolution severely censuring Israel for its retaliatory raid on Syrian military posts near the Sea of Galilee. U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., pointing out that this was Israel's fourth large-scale retaliatory attack in two years, stated: "No Government has the right to take the law in its own hands."

As tensions mounted steadily between Egypt and Israel, the U.S. called for UN action to forestall open war. In April 1956, UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold set off on a peace mission to the Middle East.

Although U.S. policy has been aimed consistently at preserving peace, recent U.S. actions have failed to put the necessary teeth in this policy.

1. Our fear of starting an arms race has tipped the balance of power and increased the likelihood of war.

Egypt's $80 million deal with the Czechs in September 1955 bought arms at one-fifth the price Western countries would charge. The exact terms are closely guarded, but The New York Times military analyst Hanson W. Baldwin was able to make the following assessment (February 26, 1956):

> Soviet tanks and some Soviet field artillery have been incorporated into the Egyptian army. This equipment — particularly the tanks — is strengthening the Egyptian Army and is giving it a limited offensive capability which it did not possess.... The most dramatic change, however, has been in the skies. The Egyptians showed off nine MIG-15 Soviet-built jets a week ago; about a hundred are supposed to be delivered by the Communists. Possibly most of them already are in Egypt, but there is as yet no verification of the reports that Egypt was to receive about twenty to thirty I1-28 light bombers.... The MIG-15 is a better fighter than Israel's Meteor and Vampire jets, and the Israelis have nothing to match the jet-powered I1-28 in the bomber field....

Free arms also have been going to Iraq under the Mutual Security Act. Israel, on the other hand, has received no arms under Mutual Security since 1951.

Since November 1955, to counterbalance this situation, Israel has been asking to buy $63 million worth of Western defensive arms, of a quality equal to those the Egyptians have secured.

According to a UN survey published in January 1956, ten Western nations have shipped $22 million worth of arms to the Middle East since 1951: $8,986,000 worth to Israel; $13,029,000 worth to five Arab states — Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon, Syria and Saudi Arabia.

Israel has been permitted only intermittent purchases from the United States and these have been subject to uncertainty and delays. The last Israel order — for spare parts — was held up from September 1953 until February 1955. During the same period, Saudi Arabia's controversial order for tanks was shipped despite protest.

While declaring that the possibility of U.S. arms for Israel is not "foreclosed," the Administration has continued to mark time.

— President Dwight D. Eisenhower, March 7, 1956:

> The United States is trying to avoid... the initiation of an arms race in that region.... We do not believe that it is possible to assure peace in that area merely by rushing some arms to a nation that, at the most can absorb only that amount that 1,700,000 people can absorb; whereas, on the other side, there are some 40,000,000 people.

This statement produced a round of rejoinders.

— Republican Senator William A. Purtell of Connecticut (March 9, 1956):

> An unbalanced military build-up such as is taking place in the region cannot help but increase tension and contribute to the sense of insecurity and uncertainty on the part of involved nations.

— Editorial in "The Boston Globe" (March 13, 1956):

> If relativity of size and population to the rights of survival of a free, independent democratic state is really the criterion underlying sound policy, some interesting revisions of history would seem in order. The Greeks at Marathon should have been directed by their rulers to disperse, because Persia was a huge country and Xerxes' armies numbered two million. The Continental Congress should never have assembled, because of the size and power of the British Empire.

2. Our failure to remember Arab alignments in the past has caused us to woo questionable "allies."

In World War II, some Arab leaders collaborated with Nazi Germany against Britain and France. In Iraq, a full pro-German military rebellion broke out. The Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, until his apprehension in 1945, was working for Hitler and Ribbentrop — broadcasting anti-British propaganda over the Rome radio to the Middle East; counseling Nazi saboteurs, spies and provocateurs assigned to Arab countries; and helping to recruit Moslem units of the Nazi army. More recently, on December 21, 1955, one of the Grand Mufti's associates, Sheik Mohammed el Ashmar, won the 1955 Stalin peace prize; the award was given to this former Nazi collaborator for his work during the past seven years as a Soviet agent in Syria.

3. We have succumbed to a series of brazen assaults on the rights of American citizens and American business interests.

Many Americans, including members of Congress, have warned that the United States is jeopardizing its prestige as a great sovereign nation by giving way to excessive demands and pressures from Arab governments. These concessions have been made to demonstrate friendship with the Arab world. Yet experience has proved that capitulation to blackmail is futile. Munich-like tactics of appeasement do not win admiration or respect; they only incur contempt for weakness.

— U.S. servicemen, Government personnel and civilians of the Jewish faith are barred by Saudi Arabia: A 1951 agreement with Saudi Arabia, granting us the use of the Dhahran air field, includes the following:

> It is provided that there must not be among members of the mission or among the other employees any individual who is objectionable to the Saudi Arabian Government, and that the Government of the United States will submit a detailed list of the names and identity of these personnel and employees.

> If the Saudi Arabian Government requests the mission to send out or replace any of its personnel or employees whom the Saudi Arabian Government does not desire to remain in the country, the mission will carry out such request promptly.

According to former President Harry S. Truman's interpretation of the agreement, concluded during his administration, the U.S. was merely acknowledging Saudi Arabia's natural right to object to individuals stationed in its territory. But, says Mr. Truman, that right "is on an individual, and not on a race or creed, basis."

The five-year agreement expires in June 1956 and is subject to renewal by mutual consent. Questioned on its discriminatory aspects, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles stated to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on February 24, 1956: "We don't have to acquiesce, but we have to recognize that Saudi Arabia is an ally.... That doesn't mean, however, that we approve of its practices."

The anti-Jewish ban also extends to employees of the Arabian American Oil Company, composed of United States oil companies that have vast concessions in Saudi Arabia.

American Jews are refused entry and travel visas. Airlines have been compelled to drop Jewish personnel if their routes cross this nation, and American Jewish air passengers are forbidden to land.

The Government's capitulation on this discriminatory policy is markedly at variance with United States stands on similar occasions in the past.

In 1879, when Czarist Russia refused to honor passports of American Jews, the House of Representatives passed a resolution declaring:

> ...Rights of citizens of the United States should not be impaired, at home or abroad, because of religious beliefs; and that if the existing treaties between the United States and Russia be found, as is alleged, to discriminate in this or in any other particular, as to any classes of our citizens, the President be requested to take immediate action to have the treaty so amended as to remove the grievance.

In 1885, Secretary of State Thomas F. Bayard declared that the United States was entitled to "ask and expect that no race or class distinction shall be made as regards American citizens abroad."

In 1911, when Czarist Russia was still discriminating against American Jews, Secretary of State Philander Knox announced that the United States was abrogating the treaty of 1832 between the two countries.

—The U.S. Air Force bows to Saudi Arabian prejudices against Christians too: According to official Air Force sources, U.S. chaplains at the Dhahran air base in Saudi Arabia follow special restrictions in order to avoid trouble with the Moslem populace. U.S. chaplains may not wear the crosses which signify their rank; they conduct Christian services behind locked doors, to insure that no Moslems are present. Dr. Marion J. Creeger, director of the General Commission on Chaplains, an interdenominational Protestant agency, has reported that on a recent visit to Dhahran, two Catholic priests who were with him "donned open-necked shirts and civilian clothes."

As a further concession, the Air Force has arranged not to fly the American flag over the base; Saudi Arabians look upon it as an infidel symbol.

—Egypt refuses to accept surplus U.S. wheat delivered in blacklisted ships: In January 1956, the Egyptian Wheat Purchase Committee invited bids for the supply of some 55,000 tons of American wheat worth more than $4 million, on condition that delivery would not be made on (a) vessels blacklisted by the Egyptian Government; (b) any vessel passing through Israel's territorial waters or ports.

The wheat in question would be supplied under the Mutual Security Act. U.S. law provides that one-half of such foodstuffs be shipped in U.S.-flag vessels; the cost of shipping in U.S. bottoms is borne by the U.S. Government, and hence by American taxpayers. All American citizens are entitled to an equal chance to bid for their own government's business. But Egypt's provisos force discrimination against any American who does business with Israel.

—Boycott of U.S. firms extended by Saudi Arabia: In January 1954, Foreign Commerce Weekly published the first report of the Arab League blacklist of 1953. Trade was ruled out with U.S. firms having branches, general agents or regional offices in Israel. Likewise barred were U.S. companies holding shares in Israel companies. A third ruling kept out of Arab ports any ships which anchor in Israel, except world tourist ships.

In addition, the Saudi Arabian Government has signified that it will not do business with American firms if "Arab research" should find that a member of the firm is (a) an Israeli citizen or (b) a contributor to the United Jewish Appeal.

Furthermore, American businessmen have reported to the Foreign Credit Interchange Bureau that prospective exporters to Saudi Arabia are required to certify whether they are "Jewish" or "Christian" before a sale can be completed.

In directing the attention of the Senate to these affronts, Senator Hubert Humphrey declared (February 17, 1956):

> If we permit this kind of violation of American privileges and rights as citizens to take place in any country, the next thing to happen will be that they will select some other national group which is no longer permitted to enter... no foreign government has the right to discriminate between one American passport and another.

PROPOSALS

"Stability, tranquillity and progress in the Middle East" — these are the United States goals, as expressed by Secretary of State Dulles. Long-range economic aid is one of the surest means of achieving these aims and equipping the people who are plagued by disease, starvation and other sub-standard conditions to resist Communist blandishment. Meanwhile, top priority must be given to preserving the peace. Decisive action now from the Western powers is essential if war is to be averted in the coming months. Many Americans, cognizant of the influential role the U.S. can play, have recognized this need:

— February 10, 1956: Edward R. Murrow, broadcasting after his trip to Israel:

> The Jews in Israel have a fierce sense of belonging to their tiny state. There is a quiet but fervent determination to survive, fully equal to that in Britain during the year when Britain stood alone. Two things at least appear to be certain: The Israelis are not going to sit there forever watching the Arab cliff that surrounds them grow higher and more menacing. If fighting comes it will be necessary to go back to Biblical terms to describe its ferocity.
> And if the United States has a policy for this area it should be stated and soon. If we have a policy no one in Israel knows what it is. There is surface calm in the country but there is also a degree of desperation and a sense that time is running out.

— February 26, 1956: 151 Congressmen, more than one third of the House of Representatives, favor "prompt and decisive measures" by our Government toward security guarantees and the sale of defensive arms to Israel.

50 Republicans urge:

> ...positive steps toward the protection of free nations such as Israel and toward the dissolution of dangers which, in threatening the peace of Israel, threaten also the peace of the Free World.

101 Democrats suggest:

> ...that our Government permit Israel to purchase the fifty million dollars of defensive arms which she seeks in the country.

— March 19, 1956: Life magazine, in its editorial, "Israel is Here To Stay," sets forth a prerequisite for solving Middle East tensions:

> ...when America recognized Israel it was not merely because, de facto, it had made itself a state. It was because of our debt to their > religious traditions, as well as a moral sentiment of their right to a homeland as compensation, if any there could be, for the unspeakable horrors inflicted upon them in other lands. Americans will support their right to live in peace in this homeland. Until Arabs do the same, giving up their unjust desire to obliterate the Israelis as a state and as a people, there can be no genuine settlement of the just claims the Arabs do possess. They are playing dice with the peace of the whole world by refusing to accept the fact of Israel in their hearts.

A Vigorous Program Is Needed

The consensus is that the United States, in cooperation with other Western powers and the United Nations, should press with all its weight for immediate settlement and peace between Israel and its neighbors. A firm U.S. stand should insure --

1. No change in the status quo by either side through force of arms.

2. Cessation of any and every aggressive act on the part of any nation.

3. Economic and technical aid to all the people of the Middle East, to help overcome poverty, disease, illiteracy and other social ills which have plagued the peoples of this area for centuries.

4. Sale of defensive arms to Israel, so that she may protect herself against the threat of aggression.

It claims that the State Department has been remiss for not making stronger protests about such denials. Recommendations are set out urging that Government agencies refuse to consider a person's race or religion when assigning personnel in an Arab country, that international agreements between agencies of the Government and Arab nations should not be honored if religious or racial discrimination is involved and that the Government advise business organizations to refuse to cooperate with nations that practice racial and religious discrimination.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Few people are aware that in our Government's relations with certain Arab countries we are seriously compromising the citizenship rights of Americans.

The attached analysis indicates how the status of American citizenship is being impaired and our national prestige damaged -- a situation to which, I am confident, you will want to give your prompt and earnest attention.

Any comment you wish to make after studying this document will be most appreciatively received.

The Assault on American Citizenship

Discriminatory Measures by Arab Governments Against American Citizens of the Jewish Faith

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE
386 Fourth Avenue New York 16, N. Y.

HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED

The American Jewish Committee, founded in 1906, is a national, non-partisan organization which seeks to combat bigotry, protect the civil and religious rights of Jews here and abroad, and advance those rights for all people of all religions and races.

THE FACTS . . .

For some years past a variety of harsh, discriminatory measures have been imposed by a number of Arab countries against American citizens of the Jewish faith. In the opinion of the American Jewish Committee, these practices — especially to the extent that they are tolerated by our own Government — must be opposed for three reasons:

1. They violate the civil rights of Americans.
2. They are not sanctioned by international law.
3. They are morally indefensible.

The following is a review of these discriminatory acts:

1. American citizens of the Jewish faith are denied the right of travel or transit through Arab countries.

With the single exception of Egypt, which has only recently discontinued its ban on Jewish travelers, all the Arab countries prohibit travel through their territories by American citizens of the Jewish faith, including American Government officials and military personnel. The visa applications issued by Arab countries require the applicant to specify his religion; with a few exceptions, American citizens of the Jewish faith have been refused visas.

These restrictions have, at times, been carried to humiliating extremes. For example, on October 6, 1952, a member of a U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce delegation making a round-the-world goodwill tour was removed from a plane in Iraq, separated from the rest of his party and expelled from the country under guard. During emergency flight landings on Arab soil, when all other passengers, as a matter of convenience and courtesy, are permitted to disembark, American passengers of the Jewish faith must remain on the plane.

Americans in Government and in commercial transportation have acknowledged the existence of such discrimination and have failed to protest and resist effectively. On the contrary, the Government has readily accommodated to it:

— The following notification, signed by Director Frances G. Knight of the U. S. Passport Office, is now included with every passport issued to American citizens who indicate that they intend to travel in the Middle East:

> It is understood that Jordan and Iraq now require Americans applying for visas to show evidence that they are Christians. A copy of a baptismal certificate or a letter from a pastor seem to be acceptable. Other Arab countries may at any time require such evidence.[1]

— Passengers aboard American ships entering Arab ports are advised that persons of "Jewish faith or Jewish name" are denied the landing privileges enjoyed by their fellow passengers. American airlines also notify their passengers that Jews are not permitted to disembark at Arab airports.

2. American citizens of Jewish faith are excluded from Government and military posts and from private employment in Arab lands.

A 1951 agreement with Saudi Arabia, granting the U. S. use of the Dhahran airfield, includes the following clauses:

> It is provided that there must not be among members of the mission or among the other employees any individual who is objectionable to the Saudi Arabian Government, and that the Government of the United States will submit a detailed list of the names and identity of these personnel and employees.
> If the Saudi Arabian Government requests the mission to send out or replace any of its personnel or employees whom the Saudi Arabian Government does not desire to remain in the country, the mission will carry out such request promptly.[2]

Similar language is contained in many treaties with other countries. Essentially, the current problem is one of interpretation — by Saudi Arabia on the one hand and, more particularly, by the United States.

According to former President Harry S. Truman, the agreement, concluded during his administration, merely acknowledged the right of Saudi Arabia to object to specific individuals stationed in its territory. Mr. Truman emphasized that this right "is on an individual, and not on a race or creed, basis."

From the outset, however, Saudi Arabia has interpreted the agreement as sanctioning the exclusion of all Americans of the Jewish faith. Since 1951, our State Department, by its failure to place any other interpretation on these clauses, has acquiesced to Saudi Arabia's position, thus making the United States a party to discrimination against Americans for reasons of religion.

Employees of the Arabian-American Oil Company (ARAMCO), a combination of United States oil companies with vast concessions in Saudi Arabia, are also covered by the anti-Jewish ban. In 1950, the New York State Commission Against Discrimination (SCAD) was advised by ARAMCO that the company "had an understanding with the Arabian government to screen all prospective employees for work in Arabia before they applied for Arabian visas, for the purpose of excluding persons of the Jewish faith, to whom visas will not be granted." ARAMCO urged SCAD to avoid any actions which might jeopardize this agreement, in view of considerations regarded as important to the international interests and security of the United States.[1]

The State Department also "stressed the importance of not having anything interfere with the existing relationship between the Arabian government and the Arabian-American Oil Company," reported SCAD. Reluctantly, therefore, New York's Commission Against Discrimination has complied with the request, finding the discriminatory employment practices of ARAMCO "not violative of State law."

Similar practice prevails in the recruitment of American construction workers for our defense installations in Arab countries. If these installations were located in Iowa or Alabama, religious discrimination in recruitment by our Government, or in its behalf, would be prohibited and readily open to redress. But the discriminatory recruitment of American labor for defense construction in Saudi Arabia, the cost of which is defrayed by U.S. taxpayers, is deemed beyond our reach. Thus, in 1952, when New York's SCAD questioned the U.S. Army concerning these employment practices, the Army replied that "Jewish workers are unable to obtain the required visas" from Arab countries. This ban remains in force today.

3. The U.S. Government has viewed these restrictions as legitimate expressions of Arab sovereignty.

While the American Jewish Committee has been given repeated assurances of the State Department's concern and displeasure over these oppressive measures, no official steps have been taken to counter them, other than unrewarding and largely futile "friendly discussions" with the Arab countries. The United States Government appears to have accepted the view that discrimination against American citizens of the Jewish faith is within the authority of the Arab states. The American Jewish Committee considers this an intolerable position for our Government.

At a public session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in February 1956, Secretary of State Dulles was questioned on the discriminatory aspects of the Mutual Security Agreement of 1951 with Saudi Arabia. Following is an exchange between the Secretary and Minnesota's Senator Hubert Humphrey:

Senator Humphrey: Is it true . . . that certain American personnel are not permitted to be stationed in Saudi Arabia, American personnel of the Jewish faith?

Secretary Dulles: It may be. I think that for many years, not just in recent years . . . there has been a prohibition on Jews in Saudi Arabia.

Senator Humphrey: I mean Americans; I am talking about citizens of the United States of America.

Secretary Dulles: I am talking about persons of Jewish faith.

Senator Humphrey: Yes, but Americans.

Secretary Dulles: Yes, of any nationality.

Senator Humphrey: Is it true that American businessmen who may be of the Jewish faith are not permitted to engage in commercial enterprise in Saudia Arabia with our agreement and our recognition of that discrimination?

Secretary Dulles: No, not with our agreement or recognition of it. The King of Saudi Arabia regards himself as the primary custodian of the sacred places of Moslem faith, and they have for a long time been extremely rigorous in the practice of the Moslem law . . . .

The Secretary's rather ambiguous statement is apt to create the impression that Saudi Arabian discrimination against Jews finds its justification in the Moslem religious sanctions which, it might be supposed, prohibit access for Jews alone to the holy cities of Mecca and Medina.

In fact, however, all unbelievers — Christians, Buddhists and followers of any other non-Moslem religion — are barred, without exception, from the shrines in these cities and from the "inviolable territory" of the Haram which surrounds them. Were exclusion from Saudi Arabian territory as a whole intended — to prevent "desecration" of holy places by the presence of "infidels" — then all Americans except those of the Moslem faith would be barred from the country. Actually, non-Moslems have been freely admitted in modern times to all but a few circumscribed areas which, of course, do not include our air base. Some 6,000 Americans presently serve or work in Saudi Arabia; the startling fact is that the religious ban is applied solely to Americans of Jewish faith.

During further questioning, Secretary Dulles elaborated on the reasons for respecting Saudi Arabia's discriminatory demands:

> . . . you are dealing with a kingdom and with a dynasty which more than any other in the world . . . practices very rigorously certain religious doctrines, and they have felt for a long time — it goes back centuries — a very particular animosity toward the Jews, because they credited the assassination of Mohammed to a Jew.
> Now my advisers tell me I am wrong, but I am not sure; at any rate, I will ask leave to correct the record in that respect on it if it proves I made a mistake.
> Now we do not like or approve or acquiesce, except perforce in any such practices, such as that, but we do have to recognize the fact that Saudi Arabia is an ally . . . . That does not mean we approve of all its practices at all. It does mean we get along together in a way which is of mutual advantage.
> We, perforce, accommodate ourselves to certain practices they have which we do not like; they, perhaps, accommodate themselves to certain of our idiosyncrasies which they do not like, but on the whole, they have a pretty arbitrary rule, largely dictated by the strict tenets of the Moslem faith.

Mr. Dulles later withdrew his erroneous statement that Saudi Arabian animosity against Jews stemmed from their belief that Mohammed was assassinated by a Jew. No such charge has ever been made, even by Saudi Arabia; Mohammed died a natural death.

Other departments of our Government also bow to the anti-Jewish bias of the Arab lands. The following official instructions appear in a U. S. Air Force Manual:[1]

> Section XXVII, Paragraph No. 3: Individuals of Jewish faith or descent are strictly barred entrance or transit of Saudi Arabia. Further, any passport containing an Israeli visa will not be honored.
> Section XII, Paragraph No. 30: Individuals of the Hebrew race will not be issued visas or admitted to Jordan.

[1] U.S.A.E.F. Manual 30-1, Clearance and Documentations for Leave and Duty Travel, June 20, 1953.

In reply to complaints on this score registered by New York's Senator Herbert H. Lehman, the State Department replied:

> According to international law and practice, it is . . . the fundamental right of any sovereign state to determine whether and under what conditions aliens may enter its territory . . . It is the Department's belief that, with a gradual improvement in Israel-Arab relations, there will be further relaxation of the travel restrictions by the Arab states.

In a discussion with State Department officials on March 6, 1956, a representative of the American Jewish Committee encountered the following arguments in support of the U. S. position on the exclusion of American Jewish military and civilian personnel:

1. Other international agreements also give contracting parties the right to bar "undesirable" individuals. Thus, in July 1953, the U. S. Senate ratified the NATO Status of Forces Agreement, containing the reservation that the United States has "the right to safeguard its own security by excluding or removing persons whose presence in the United States is deemed prejudicial to its safety or security."

This argument has no relevance to the Saudi Arabian situation. The issue here is not the obvious right of a nation to exclude undesirable individuals on grounds of security, but the assumed right to impose arbitrary discrimination against an entire group of Americans because of their religion.

2. Saudi Arabian tradition as custodian of the Moslem holy places sanctions the exclusion of unbelievers. As noted above, if the exclusion really involved sanctity of holy places, all non-Moslems would have been barred from Saudi Arabia.

3. Saudi Arabia excludes or limits the admission of others, such as Italians, as well. The fact that Italians or any other nationality group are excluded by Saudi Arabia has no pertinence to the issue of discrimination against Americans of a given religious faith. Furthermore, Italy may view the exclusion of its nationals as equally offensive. But regardless how other nations react, the United States must not remain in the position of accepting such affronts against its citizens.

U. S. PRECEDENTS

In the past, the United States Government has, on many occasions, taken forthright action in behalf of its citizens abroad.

Perhaps the most pertinent precedent was our position in 1911, when Czarist Russia refused to remove its ban against Americans of Jewish faith. Armed with unimpeachable United States passports, they nevertheless could not enter Russia, or reside or conduct business there, except at the whim of the Russian authorities.

The implications of United States acquiescence to such discriminatory treatment were spelled out in January 1911, in a memorable address by AJC founder Louis Marshall:

> The painfully slow methods of diplomacy have failed . . . We, a nation of 100,000,000 Americans, stand at the door of Russia, hat in hand, pleading with it that it shall recognize and perform its contract. With a sardonic smile Russia answers: "Not yet" . . . But it may be argued that the suspension of commercial relations between the two countries may hurt our trade. I have a higher opinion of the American people than to believe that they are so destitute of idealism, so devoid of a sense of honor, as to regard a matter of this supreme importance with the eyes and souls of mere shopkeepers. However extensive our trade with Russia might be, we could well afford to jeopardize it rather than have it said that our country rates the dollar higher than it does the man, that it esteems the volume of its trade more than its national dignity.[1]

Once familiar with the situation, the public responded with great indignation at the patent affront to the dignity of the American passport. A joint resolution urging our Government to terminate a United States treaty with Russia which had been in force since 1832 was passed by the House of Representatives by a vote of 300 to 1. Before the measure reached the Senate floor, however, the treaty was officially abrogated by Secretary of State Philander Knox in December 1911.

With this step the U. S. served notice to the whole world that America would no longer be a party to any treaty or act which would permit discrimination against American citizens by a foreign nation because of their race or religion.

Goren Haywood Hackworth's comprehensive Digest of International Law, an official State Department publication,[2] describes a number of other instances in which the United States Government acted to protest discriminatory treatment of Americans abroad. A few examples will serve to illustrate the point:

—Switzerland: In 1924, the Government of Switzerland denied a group of American Mormon missionaries extension of their cantonal residence permits. Assuming that this exclusion was ordered solely because of the Mormons' religious faith, our envoy made diplomatic representations to the Swiss Government. The matter was dropped only when our representative was satisfied that there were other reasons for the move.[1]

—Germany: Our Government's numerous protests and denunciations of Nazi decrees and conduct took place within the recollection of many present employees of the State Department. Our first representations were made after the German decree of April 26, 1938, requiring the declaration of property owned by Jews. The U. S. insisted that application of such decrees to the property of American citizens violated rights of Americans under existing treaties and by virtue of comity and international law.

—Italy: In 1938, our State Department also registered a series of protests with the Italian Government, concerning the expulsion of Jews who had come to Italy or its possessions after January 1, 1919. When Italy explained that the measure applied not only to American Jews, but to all Jews, the U. S. declared that we were not questioning treatment of American Jews as compared with the Jews of other countries; that our protest was "against the application to American nationals of measures which would have the effect of dividing them into two broad classes, namely Jewish and non-Jewish, and would accord to the former differential treatment."[2]

—Danzig: In 1939, the State Department instructed our Consul at Danzig to protest, in behalf of an American citizen, the imposition of a property tax levy applicable only to Jews. Here, too, the U. S. insisted that the provisions of existing treaties with respect to the treatment of our nationals abroad be applied to all our nationals "without exception based on race or creed," adding that the U. S. "declines to recognize the rights of other nations to apply measures to American citizens which would have the effect of arbitrarily dividing them into special classes and subjecting them to differential treatment."

INTERNATIONAL LAW

Leading experts in international law support the right of the United States to protect its own citizens against discrimination by foreign governments.

According to Charles Calvo, long regarded as one of the most eminent authorities, we can resolve the question of whether a particular act of intervention is a "right, duty or a banal act only by placing one's self on the ground of practice."[1] Certain cases rest upon "the exercise of an incontestible right and the tendency and appreciation of which are logical and necessarily in accord with true international principles." When a sovereign state uses diplomatic pressure for the protection of its citizens abroad, it seeks neither to change or to prevent change in the existing form of government in that country. The sole motive is to protect its own nationals.

Among the principal types of intervention discussed by legal authorities are: (1) Those designed to enforce engagements contracted with or for nationals of the intervening state; (2) Those calling for compliance with "the general principles of international law when they have been violated."[2]

That the United States has long accepted this doctrine is clearly demonstrated in a 1934 memorandum of the Solicitor of the Department of State:[3]

> There is considerable authority for the proposition that such interposition by one state in the internal affairs of another state for the purpose of affording adequate protection to the citizens of one resident in the other . . . is not only not improper, but, on the contrary, is based upon, is in accord with, and is the exercise of a right recognized by international law.

In this memorandum the State Department lists the occasions on which our Government has moved by force to protect American citizens or property. The earliest example is the case of the Amelia Islands in 1812; the latest incident took place in Smyrna, in 1922. From 1812 to 1911, there were some fifty such "interpositions;" another eleven "typical incidents" are cited in a supplement covering the period from 1911 to 1933.

The American Jewish Committee of course does not advocate use of force in this instance. We do believe it relevant to call attention to the striking contrast between U. S. action in other situations and inaction at the present time.

AMERICAN LAW

The mandates of our Federal Constitution, numerous court decisions and oft-expressed public policy obligate the U. S. Government to repel Arab assaults on the dignity of American citizenship.

The first amendment to the U. S. Constitution provides that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." This has been interpreted by the U. S. Supreme Court as barring all Federal action that would tend to "prefer one religion over another."[1]

According to our Constitution, therefore, the departments and agencies of the State are forbidden to use their facilities or resources to discriminate against any American citizen on the basis of religion. When the United States Air Force bows to Saudi Arabian demands by barring American soldiers of the Jewish faith from service at the Dhahran Air Base, it obviously practices discrimination and thus violates the civil rights of its own citizens. Soldiers and civilians of a particular faith are singled out by a Federal department and, in effect, segregated from other American soldiers and civilians. Their constitutional right to be treated by their Government without preference, favor or discrimination, has been grievously impaired — whether the location of the military base is desirable or undesirable, strategic or otherwise. At a time when racial segregation is all but eliminated in the armed forces, it is paradoxical that the Army and Air Force should move toward religious segregation.

The right to travel abroad has been legally established as more than a mere privilege accorded American citizens; it is an attribute of personal liberty, which may not be infringed upon or limited in any way without satisfying the due process requirements of the fifth amendment.[2] Furthermore, if the applicant intends to use the passport for business, an unwarranted denial or limitation may constitute a deprivation of both personal liberty and property.[3]

[3] Boudin v. Dulles. 136 F. Supp. 218, 220 (1955).

Hence, when the State Department fails to assert and defend the dignity of the U. S. passport and to insist on the equal treatment of American citizens seeking to travel on such passports to Arab nations, it shirks the clear responsibility imposed by custom, usage and practice in both national and international law. The U. S. Government is, in effect, nullifying for one group of its citizens the rights and privileges implicit in an American passport.

In an historic decision involving racial restrictive convenants, the U. S. Supreme Court has ruled that Federal judicial enforcement of such agreements represents "state action" which violates the "public policy of the United States as manifested in the Constitution, treaties, Federal statutes and applicable legal precedents." Significantly, the Court declared:

> It is not consistent with the public policy of the United States to permit Federal courts in the nation's capital . . . to compel action denied the state courts where such action has been held to be violative of the guaranty of the equal protection of the laws.[1]

Clearly, the injunctions upon the judiciary which are outlined in this ruling apply equally to the executive branch of the Federal Government. The equal protection clause of the fourteenth amendment requires the states to treat all citizens as equal, and without discrimination or distinction based on religion or race. If all state action in violation of the equal protection clause is prohibited by the Constitution, it is evident that this proscription applies with equal force to the various departments and agencies constituting the executive branch of the Federal Government.

Since 1933, our Federal Government has expressed an unequivocal position with respect to racial or religious discrimination in employment financed, directly or indirectly, by Government funds. In 1933, non-discrimination clauses were inserted into contracts for all public works projects.

In 1941, the first executive order was promulgated prohibiting discrimination in employment on the ground of race, creed, color, religion or national origin by any company holding defense contracts.[1] The same directive also ordered the elimination of discriminatory employment practices within the Federal Government.

In 1953, President Eisenhower issued Executive Order 10479, which strengthens the provisions of earlier executive orders by declaring that non-discrimination in employment on government contracts is "Government policy."

In 1955, the President's Executive Order 10590 created a President's Committee on Government Employment Policy to supervise the non-discrimination program in Federal employment.

Against this background, it is evident that several Federal agencies are flouting clearly-stated public policy in their dealings with the Arab states. The United States Army, in recruiting construction workers for defense installations in Arab countries, and in assembling military units for service, overtly discriminates against Jews. The excuse that "the discrimination is forced upon us" because the Arab governments refuse to issue visas to American Jews does not absolve a Federal agency from its responsibility to carry out the policy and the law of our land.

OBLIGATIONS OF WORLD MORAL LEADERSHIP

Even if diplomatic usage, international law and the public policy of the United States argued less forcefully against U. S. tolerance of Arab discrimination, it would still be morally indefensible for our country to remain silent.

Since the end of World War II, the United States has occupied a role of leadership in the free world. As a leader, how should the United States behave? An emphatic answer was given by John Foster Dulles in October 1945, on his return from a London meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers:

> We are emerging from six years of war, during which morality and principle have increasingly been put aside in favor of military expediency. The war has now ended and with that ending, principle and morality must be re-established in the world . . . .
> It devolves upon us to give leadership in restoring principle as a guide to conduct. If we do not do that, the world will not be worth living in . . . .

As recently as April 25, 1956, Secretary Dulles, speaking before a Senate Judiciary Sub-Committee, attacked our present "national origins quota" system of immigration, which is widely criticized because by implication, many of its exclusions are based on race. The Secretary asserted that the system "cannot be reconciled with the fundamental concepts of our Declaration of Independence."

Yet, in the case of Arab discrimination against American citizens of the Jewish faith, these basic principles have been sacrificed to military expediency and diplomatic appeasement. This course places the U. S. in an indefensible moral position, in both international and domestic affairs:

By capitulating to Arab discrimination, the U. S. gravely compromises its own strong defense of international human rights.

After World War II, the United States was a prime mover behind the United Nations Charter and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The "expediency" of our present behavior in yielding to anti-Jewish prejudice must be weighed against the principles enunciated in these two documents, which we have repeatedly endorsed:

—The United Nations Charter calls for "universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion."[1]

—The Universal Declaration of Human Rights, adopted as "a common standard of achievement for all people and all nations," recognizes "the inherent dignity and . . . the equal inalienable rights of all members of the human family" as "the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world."[2] Article 7 of the Declaration states:

> All are equal before the law and are entitled without any discrimination to equal protection of the law. All are entitled to equal protection against any discrimination in violation of this Declaration and against any incitement to such discrimination.

Clearly, our recent concessions to Arab discrimination breach the spirit in which the United States pressed for universal standards of human rights, just as Saudi Arabia breaches the letter of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. If the U. S. is to be a world spokesman for freedom, certainly it cannot compromise the freedom, equal rights and dignity of its own citizens.

By permitting discrimination against its own citizens abroad, the U. S. is weakening its democratic principles here at home.

The U. S. Government, in tacitly approving Arab fiats, is forcing Americans to accept religious tests for Government service, military service and employment on U. S. defense installations built under Government contracts. It is impossible for the United States to "accommodate to" such Arab restrictions without debasing the value of U. S. citizenship — for its citizens of the Jewish faith today, and perhaps for members of other groups tomorrow.

Acceding to outrageous demands by Arab governments is scarcely the way to win allies, or to earn friendship and respect. Munich-like tactics of appeasement will only cause us to be scorned for our weakness. Experience has proved repeatedly that submitting to intimidation is futile and, all too often, disastrous.

[2] Preamble.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The United States should take definite steps to dissociate itself from Arab discriminatory practices, and should protest, firmly and with dignity, against the affronts which have already taken place.

Toward this end, the American Jewish Committee has framed four proposals which, we submit, are in the national interest:

1. The various departments and agencies of the Federal Government should discontinue immediately any action, or adherence to any policy, which condones or facilitates discrimination against Americans by any country on the basis of religion or race.

The Armed Services should be instructed no longer to consider the religion of military personnel in making assignments to Arab countries.

The Passport Service should be directed to cease advising Americans to be prepared to submit evidence that they are Christians, in order to enter Arab countries.

Contractors recruiting workers for defense installations on Arab soil should be informed that they may not impose a religious test for employment.

The State Department should withdraw its recommendation that state commissions against discrimination should not allow "anything" to interfere with relations between Arab governments and American business concerns.

2. Our Government should not tolerate or accept any interpretation of international agreements negotiated or renewed between the United States, or any of its departments or agencies, and other countries, which leads to discrimination based on religion or race.

Any decision by another country to exclude an American Citizen as persona non grata must be based on his personal record or conduct and not on his membership in, or adherence to, any religious or racial group.

3. All chambers of commerce and other business or trade associations in the United States should be advised by our Government to refuse to cooperate with other countries by providing such information as may tend to assist them in boycotting American business firms on the basis of their religious or racial affiliations.

Just as the device of boycott based on race or religion should be repugnant to the departments and agencies of our Government, so should it be similarly repugnant to private organizations interested in promoting economic development.

4. The United States delegation to the United Nations should call upon the United Nations to investigate the discriminatory practices described in this memorandum, as violations of the United Nations Charter and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

As a signatory of the United Nations Charter, the United States is pledged "to take joint and separate action in cooperation with the Organization (UN)" to strengthen "human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion."[1]

* * * * * * * * * * * *

The American Jewish Committee submits that firm U.S. action protesting Arab discrimination against Americans of Jewish faith is long overdue. In the past, this country's reaction to similar affronts to Americans has been clear-cut and positive; the same forthright position on the part of our Government is imperative today. The U.S. must take prompt steps to resist any and all stipulations and practices which draw distinctions between American citizens on the basis of religion.

To do less is to surrender a precious right of our American heritage and to degrade the status of American citizenship.

As of possible interest to your agency, a letter dated June 15, 1956, from Irving M. Engel, The American Jewish Committee, 386 Fourth Avenue, New York 16, New York, forwarded to this Bureau a publication entitled "The Assault on American Citizenship," issued by The American Jewish Committee.

Engel's letter stated this publication indicates how the status of American citizenship is being impaired and our national prestige damaged.

EX-122 RECORDED - 86 62-102104-36

The publication points out that for a number of years American citizens of the Jewish faith have been denied the right of travel or transit through Arab countries with the exception of Egypt. It claims that the State Department has been remiss for not making stronger protests about such denials. Recommendations are set out urging that Government agencies refuse to consider a person's race or religion when assigning personnel in an Arab country, that international agreements between agencies of the Government and Arab Jews and they still reserve their first loyalty for Israel. And in this respect the Jews of the U.S. differ not the slightest from their co-racists elsewhere. For convenience and appearance sake they pretend to be loyal and patriotic Americans, but always their eyes are turned toward Palestine...

No better example of this Yiddish perfidity and disloyalty to America can be found than in the way they educate their youth. Most Jewish parents send their children to special Jewish schools for at least a part of their education, and there they are brazenly instilled with disloyalty to America while at the same time being indoctrinated with a fanatic devotion to the Jewish state of Israel. In these schools, Jewish youths regularly salute the flag of Israel, sing the Israeli national anthem and pledge allegiance to the government of Israel. They are also inculcated with Jewish "folklore", history and a rabid consciousness of Jewish "destiny". They are taught, in other words, to be Jews first, last and always -- and Americans for appearance sake only.

CONCLUSION: Today, as America's second largest minority group (second only in numbers to the Negro population) organized Jewry constitutes a nation-within-a-nation upon American soil. It raises more money annually to finance its activities than does the state of Israel. It maintains a network of Jewish newspapers from coast to coast (secular newspapers, not religious). It operates an independent school system of growing size, its own labor, fraternal and social organizations, and even its own Jewish law courts (called "Beth Dins"). It appropriates, by its own admission, more than $5,000,000 annually for combating "anti-semitism" (i.e. to stifle criticism). It boasts of employing more paid civil servants (teachers, professionals, social workers, etc.) than does the state of Israel. Its United Jewish Appeal (UJA) alone raises more money for Jewish "relief" annually than does either the American Red Cross or the Community Chest. It promotes bond drives for the government of Israel, and upon occasion has even recruited U.S. Jews for the Israeli armed forces in violation of U.S. laws. It functions literally as a secret government upon American soil...

It should be emphasized that religion has nothing to do with all this. The government of Israel is not a religious institution any more than the government of Syria, Egypt, or Pakistan are religious organizations. Nor is the flag of Israel a religious symbol any more than any other nation's flag. The state of Israel is a sovereign nation and any group of so-called Americans who pledge allegiance to its government, sing its national anthem and salute its flag are guilty of treason and subversion to the same degree and in the same measure as if they were pledging allegiance to Soviet Russia, and singing the Soviet national anthem. The same applies to any other nation or flag.

The advertisement to the left, featuring a photo of an Israeli soldier under the title: "He Died For Us", was photographed from a recent issue of the West Coast's largest Jew newspaper, the B'nai B'rith Messenger. It provides convincing evidence that the real loyalty of U. S. Jewry lies in Palestine... The Jewish National Fund (JNF), which sponsored this particular advertisement, is one of organized Jewry's major fund raising agencies. Prepared and published by: AMERICAN NATIONALIST Frank L. Britton, editor Box 301, Inglewood, Calif.

This nation was built by people of diverse national origins: English, Irish, Spanish, German, Scandanavian and many others. They originally spoke different languages and still practice different religious beliefs. But from the time this nation was founded 181 years ago there has never been a recorded instance where one of these national or racial groups deliberately rendered allegiance to a foreign nation, or sought to place an alien flag upon an equal basis with the American flag. None, that is, except the Jews -- and it is high time they were called to account for their actions! The question is no longer one of "dual loyalty", but of treason! #114

DUAL LOYALTY IS TREASON!

Unknown to the American public, this country harbors within its borders what is without doubt the largest, best organized and most dangerous "fifth column" ever known to history. Possessed of vast financial reserves, motivated by a fanatic tribal loyalty and sustained by its own educational, fraternal, religious, propaganda and police agencies, it constitutes a veritable secret government upon American soil. And it renders its sole loyalty and allegiance to a foreign nation and a foreign flag -- that of Israel.

Jewish propagandists (and their gentile apologists) strive by every device and stratagem at their disposal to keep the American public in ignorance of these facts, and one of the surest ways for any journalist to bring down the charge of "anti-semitism" upon his head is to use the term, "dual loyalty" or "dual citizenship" in connection with Jewry. Nevertheless, it does not require a great deal of effort to prove conclusively that the teeming swarms of alien Semites who infest our cities do indeed owe their real loyalty to Palestine instead of the United States. There is really nothing surprising about this finding, because the history of the past 600 years is replete with similar evidence of the Jew's loyalty to his own tribe and kind, and his distaste and even hatred of the gentile nations which harbored him. Thus, in every century and every clime we find the Jews maintaining their tribal identity and exclusiveness, and holding themselves above and away from the people around them. And in almost every instance we find this Jewish tribalism incurring the well deserved hostility and wrath of their Christian neighbors -- usually with disastrous results to the Jews themselves. That is why there were practically no Jews to be found in Western Europe between 1492 and about 1650: they were all deported. England expelled its Jews in the year 1290; France in 1306; Spain in 1492. Except Germany, virtually every other European state did likewise. History shows that Jews invariably generate anti-semitism wherever they go, and that this antipathy is always the result of their own conduct... Their expulsion from Germany in the 1930's, and their current deportation from Egypt, are but sequels of an old story.

Students, from elementary through high school grades, learn all about the history in their Jewish as well as American background.

And each morning they sing the national anthems of both, America and Israel.

Two Flags Are Given Tribute at Brandeis Academy

In the clipping to the left, taken from the MIAMI HERALD, Jewish students at "Brandeis Academy" are shown giving the pledge of allegiance to the American AND Israeli flags. The accompanying article (see inset) also states that ... "each morning they sing the national anthem of both America and Israel". Most Jewish youths attend such schools eventually, where they become fanatic Zionists....

The role of the Jew in the modern world has actually changed very little from that of ancient times. Today, wherever you find Jews you will find them still paying their primary allegiance to the tribe, and giving only lip service to the country of their residence. The Jews of Argentina or Egypt, no less than those of England, France and elsewhere, all go through the motions of being patriotic Argentines, Egyptians, Englishmen or Frenchmen, but underneath they are still

Tax-Exempt American Jewish Committee Is Not A Charitable Organization

This issue is devoted almost entirely to the reproduction in print of part of the contents of an amazing tape recording, which is a commentary on the 1953 BUDGET REPORT of the directors of the American Jewish Committee.

"STRAIGHT FROM THE SERPENT'S MOUTH"

There has recently come to light "confidential" "top-secret," "hush-hush document of utmost interest and value to Americans. It exposes hitherto unsuspected facts of a certain war. It reveals enough to convince every Doubting Thomas there actually IS an undercover set of so-called "Americans" working ceaselessly to destroy America, but you, Christian Reader, were never supposed to so much as hear of such a document, let alone scan it with your own eyes. For it is a _____ private memorandum, a revelatory dossier designed and printed only for fellow _____s. It is an outline and blueprint and summary of the activities, past and proposed, of a group of persons thereby unmasked as the worst and deadliest enemies ever tolerated under the American Flag.

This is not the Communist Party. It is not the Mafia. It is not "The Syndicate." Nor is it even one of those many, many crackpot cults this nation tolerates and with which this diabolical group has every affinity, provided that cult is likewise destructive. None of the Lait-Mortimer "Confidentials" have covered so much as a hint at it. Will it eventually be recognized as a criminal organization engaged upon the most illegal of all unlawful purposes, namely, the subversion, overthrow and destruction of the American Government?

Beyond this "top secret" document's detailed self-exposure of its evil designs against America, One of its most important disclosures is the record, page upon page, for 281 pages, of the MONEY it spends for anti-American purposes.

"Money talks!" In this secret document it shouts, boasts, gloats, and it even prints without hesitation or shame the "low down;" that is, the itemized statements and figures of WHO is to be worked upon by this secret body of _____; how NUMEROUS are its victims-to-be; WHERE they are to be found; how BEST to subvert them; how much MONEY is allotted for their subversion.

This is all set forth in implacably cold figures, with utmost explicit details as to methods, accomplishments and expectations. For religious bodies, so much spent on them, youth organizations, so much; veterans associations, so much; college professors and public school teachers, so much. No national grouping of whatever kind is overlooked. There are listed MONEY allotments for influencing of farmers, trades unionists, scientists, newspaper staffs and magazine writers. All influencers and shapers of public opinion, such as motion pictures, television and radio groups, have MONIES devoted for their "control." And so on through the TOTAL list of American institutions and associations of every description and purpose. MONEY, real CASH, MILLIONS of dollars, have been and is now being spent to change American patriots from what they have been to something other than American, namely, _____

When such "money talks," does it not sound like conspiracy?

In history's long record of propaganda, intrigues, assassinations and revolts, this secret document's self-exposures are something new. Never before has there been revealed to the light of day such a consummate and diabolically SYSTEMATIC _____ by so few against so many. Never has there been acknowledged such inexhaustible sums of MONEY collected for such evil ends. Never until now was uncovered a personnel so maliciously, persistently and wickedly sworn to carry to catastrophic ends the destruction of a culture upon which rests the ethical future of the whole world. And, finally, never before such METHOD, analysis, practical application, cooperation of parts and breadth of action, as revealed in this "top secret" document's exposure of its underground war upon the Christian religion, hence upon the Christian Governments.

And what is this "top secret," "confidential," clandestine and Not-To-Be-Seen-By Gentiles document?

Why nothing less than the "AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE'S ANNUAL BUDGET, 1953."

Yes, but you thought the Jews, the "poor oppressed Jews," were only interested in taking care of their own.....So you did, you naive, easy-going, tolerant, asleep-at-the-switch Christian Americans. Quite naturally, therefore, they would have a "budget." Would that was all there was to it! For so they do, take care of their own—so often with your help. But it doesn't stop there. Far from it. They are going to "take care" of you too. And when they do, you'll "know all about it." But you do not have to WAIT for this to happen; for it is all spread out in this Jewish secret document; their plans, processes, methods, devices, tricks, schemes, and deceits; and not least the MONEY they have spent in this enormous solicitude for Christians; the MONEY they are spending; the MONEY they will spend...Touching—this enigmatic anxiety over the Welfare of Christian Americans, who have thus far pretty much stood on their own feet.

Once again, "Money talks"—and this gang of _____ have got it...

If you had this anti-American secret document before you, Christian Reader, you would look in vain for scurrilous language. In it are neither vehemence, vituperation nor curses. It is strictly factual, both as to motive and inference. This is a "business proposition." "Money talks." Money gets results. It bought all this 281 pages of figures and language. It paid for all this huge staff in the spending for results. Yet in all the printings of the world, never was a language so warped, twisted and perverted; never before such consummate mastery of the craft of "double-talk." It is a veritable lexicon of the most grandiloquent phrases, the most recent up-to-date vernacular from the leftish professional classrooms of sociology, political economy and psychology, not overlooking either that voodooistic mumbo-jumbo, "psychology:" that "science" of the shaded window and couched lupanar.

In short, it is all on the order of "uplift." It is set forth always in the saccharine terms of "do-gooding." It reeks with deceitful solicitude for benighted Christians, but breathes never a word of the Golden Rule. Written with forked tongue in cheek, there is not a line in the entire document, secret though it be, which says in plain words exactly what it means.

But we can say what it means. It means a war to the death with all of the Christian World.

THE UNOFFICIAL GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES

In a great speech on Feb. 14, 1955, Sen. Wm. E. Jenner of Indiana stated that the government of the United States is a "TWO-HEADED MONSTER," that our country has a "DUAL GOVERNMENT." One of these is the visible government—the Congress, the President and the Vice President, and other high officers appointed by the Executive branch, some of them confirmed by the Senate, but the great majority of them not subject to such confirmation.

The other government, as Sen. Jenner points out, exists partly within the visible government of the U.S. and partly without. This government has its members, or agents, witting or unwitting, in the Congress; in the Supreme Court; in the Executive office of the President and other Executive agencies; in the government departments, and elsewhere.

Even more significant, however, the hidden government—revealed by Senator Jenner—has established controls over press, radio, television, the theater, charities and foundations, many schools and educational associations, and other media of influencing the public, including many churches, particularly those in the National Council of Churches.

Since censorship is a principal arm of the hidden government, a problem of considerable difficulty confronts the average citizen who wishes to know the truth about the extra-official controls and influences to which he is subjected.

Fortunately, however, the method of operation of the invisible government can frequently be shown from its own official documents.

The American Jewish Committee is but one of many Jewish groups which seek so successfully to shape the policies of the official government of the United States. The New York Times, for instance, listed the names of 16 Jewish organizations whose officials went to Wash. in a group to tell Sec. of State John Foster Dulles the kind of Middle East policy which they desired.

These 16 organizations are not to be considered all of the branches of the Jewish power block. There are power blocks which are not exclusively Jewish. There are doubtless power groups whose names are not known.

Among the visible branches of organized Jewry, however, the American Jewish Committee seems (with the closely cooperating order of B'nai B'rith) to be quite the most powerful.

Through its own publications, intended for more or less general circulation, much can be learned about the aims and methods of the American Jewish Committee. For instance, a magazine called Commentary and an annual Yearbook tell much.

Much more is learned, however, from documents prepared, apparently not for general wide distribution but for members and others under their influence.

A 36 page booklet entitled FACTS ABOUT THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE (A.J.C., 386 4th Ave., N.Y. 16, N.Y., March, 1951) is helpful.

From this brochure it is learned (p.2) that "funds for the American Jewish Committee's activities are raised jointly with the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith." A special map of the U.S. (p. 30) shows the network of local offices, including as many as 6 per State. Many of the goals of the AJC organization are clearly stated in FACTS. Some of the goals are as follows:

1- The shaping of U.S. government policy by the maintenance of a staff in Wash.

2- The control of the press, radio, motion pictures, etc., in many specified ways such as "feeding facts to newspapers," "suggesting special 'angles'," "working with producers and writers," etc., etc.,

3- The control of U.S. churches by seeing that "Christian teachings" are "altered," by helping in the preparation of lesson materials for Sunday schools, etc., etc.

4- The control of the thinking (brainwashing) of the American people and "the methods of modifying their thoughts."

By all odds the best available way to learn about the aims of the American Jewish Committee, however, is to study a document entitled AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE, BUDGET, 1953. It is obvious that this book does not contain all the facts.

The document entitled "American Jewish Committee Budget, 1953," does however contain enough facts and in sufficient detail to give beyond any question or doubt a picture of many of the significant ways in which the American Jewish Committee works to achieve its purposes, which include the shaping of the policy of the government of the United States.

From its great headquarters in the United Nations city of N.Y., the American Jewish Committee directs its powerful Washington organization. Like a government it has its subordinate stations in all parts of the country. The branch offices afford a set-up for pressure, propaganda, the collection of intelligence, and other openly admitted activities. It is to be especially noted that the American Jewish Committee relies to a very large extent on an intelligence set-up which includes secret investigations.

An examination is here made of the major fields in which the AJC operates: 1- Churches of Christian denominations. 2- Education. 3- Veterans' organizations. 4- Tax exempt foundations and other "Charitable organizations." 5- Newspapers. 6- Magazines. 7- Books. 8- Motion pictures. 9- Radio and Television. 10- Government. 11- Labor.

Here then, in the American Jewish Committee's own words, is an account of their plans and purposes. The quotations are intended as samples only and do not include everything on a given topic. All page references are to AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE, BUDGET, 1953.

Influence On Christian Denominations

Because of the traditional influence Christianity, it is not to be wondered at that the Christian denominations were among the very first targets of the American Jewish Committee.

The exerting of influence seems to have been attempted to some degree in most major denominations. A penetration sufficient for exercising a major degree of control seems, however, to have been achieved only in the National Council of Churches and the denominations in its network.

"Our primary resource group within Protestantism is the National Council of Churches of Christ's two major divisions, Christian Life and Work and the Division of Christian Education." (p. 98)

In regard to Jewish preparation of Protestant Sunday school lessons: "The National Council of Churches Dept. of Christian Education will call upon us for many new materials during the coming year." (p. 102) The American Jewish Committee's influence on Audio-Visual materials" used by the NCCC is shown on p. 67.

The only Protestant organization in which AJC control is analyzed in some detail is the Methodist Church. Referring to the AJC book Make Way For Youth, its success is noted and "new orders have come from the NCCJ, the Methodist church, and the Australian library." (p. 70)

The AJC is particularly powerful among Methodist women. Under "Resources outside the agency" (pp. 39-40) are listed not only such organizations as "The U.S. Committee for a Genocide Convention," "National Conference of Christians and Jews," "Voice of America," "United Parents Association," the "American Association for the United Nations," "National Citizens Committee for UN Day," but also "Women's Div. of the Methodist Church."

The last named Methodist group, "published handbook for community action, You Hold The Key To Human Rights, written and produced by our (AJC) staff." (p. 40)

Pages 148-49, and 179 of AJC, B. contain references to the moves of the AJC working sometimes through the N.C.C.J. to influence Catholic policy. Claim is made for the establishment of contacts, but no mention is made of preparation of materials or other such specific evidences of control as is shown for the churches in the National Council of Churches.

With regard to broadcast programs of a religious nature, the influence of the AJC appears to be supreme:

"In general, 'We have now reached a mutually satisfactory arrangement whereby all national religous programs will be co-sponsored by the Synagogue Council of America and ourselves.' One of the examples is "The Week In Religion" (pp. 54-55)

Specifically, as an example, "a national network preparing an Easter script, Pontius Pilate, was referred to us by the NCCJ (National Conference of Christians and Jews) for guidance. Similar recognition has come with greater frequency in Catholic matters." (p. 101)

For "Christological interpretations" of the Bible, see p. 65. See especially, pp.100-102 for influence on Protestant denominations.

Education

The AJC lists certain organizations which cooperate so fully with its program that they are described as "resources" of the AJC. Particularly noted for cooperation is the U.S. Office of Education. "Sponsored 6 newspaper advertisements produced by us for American Education Week. "Published a cartoon booklet, They Can't Wait, on public school needs, which we wrote and illustrated and distributed some 60,000 copies to date," etc. (p. 39)

The United Parents Association also has "used our materials." (p. 39) Much influence is exerted on the National Education Association (NEA) "Which has requested repeated printings of our pamphlet, Danger! They're After Our Schools: to a total of [illegible],000 to date." See also, p. 109.

References to influence on education are scattered through the AJC, B. book. On page 156 is a reference to the subsidizing of "research projects in the social sciences" by "fellowships" and "grants in aid." Professors are presumably among the "opinion molders" who receive books (p. 175) and other AJC propaganda. "Farm Study" is discussed on p. 154. The AJC has a magazine called COMMENTARY, and "a great many gift subscriptions are sent to government people, libraries, and schools." (p. 185)

Veterans, Charitable, Youth, and Other Organizations

The American Jewish Committee gives the membership figures (p. 115) for 11 veterans organizations and shows its methods of influencing the only 2 with significantly large memberships, the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The AJC notes in veterans circles a "tendency to bracket liberals with pro-Communism..." (p. 116) Veterans, according to the AJC, have shown a tendency "to withdraw support from the UN, because of alleged liberal and pro-Communist influence." (p. 116) The AJC thus decides that it should give "even greater emphasis" to educating veterans and veterans' leaders to support "our basic democratic processes," the "our" reflecting, of course, the AJC concept. (pp. 116-117).

Proposed corrective measures are drastic, and 15 "resources outside the agency" (AJC) are listed. Here are some of the things the AJC claims to do (p. 119):

1- They "maintain a monthly press service for 480 veterans publications..."

2- They "put editors on guard against accepting advertising" which the AJC disapproves of.

3- They "confer with editors when stories or drawings, published in their magazines or newspapers, seems likely to create unfavorable impressions..."

4- They "suggest resolutions for State and National Conventions."

5- They "prepare background material and speeches for use by organization leaders..."

On page 120, the AJC makes this significant statement:

"Veterans groups generally have taken the 'extreme' position in combatting Communism. Hence, their views on civil rights and civil liberties differ widely from those of the American Jewish Committee....We have stepped up our education in this regard..."

Detailed accounts of successes with veterans organizations include the following:

"We frequently supply speeches o speech material to officials of the Legio and the Veterans of Foreign Wars...Practi cally all of the addresses delivered by th National Chaplain of the Legion durin 1950-51 were supplied by us, for which h expressed appreciation. Many of ou speeches were used in national broadcast by the Commander-in-Chief of the Veteran of Foreign Wars, and those not used wer printed and circulated to Depts. and Post of the VFW in clipsheet form." (p. 122)

Many other achievements are named in cluding "endorsement by leaders" of the Restitution Laws promulgated in Germany by Gen. Clay, and preventing the 195 American Legion Convention from endors ing "The McCarran Act in toto." (p. 122) The AJC "supplied much of the materia and photographs for the American Legio magazine article, 'Israel and The Sovie Union.'" (p. 123)

The Great Tax-Exempt Foundations and Other "Charitable" Organizations

Both Ford and Sloan foundations ar listed as subject to AJC influence:

"We worked with Sloan and For Foundations in the development of thei broadcasting and telecasting plans, als participated actively and directly in th Foundation's programs allied to ou interests." (p. 57)

An item of assistance is recorded (p.56)

"Supplied the Ford Foundation wit story material which was used in its wel known radio series on CBS, The Peopl Act."

See also below under "Radio and Television," for the contact of Mr. Saudek of the Ford Foundation with the AJC.

Other organizations and foundations mentioned as being subject to some degree of AJC control or contact include Camp Fire Girls (pp. 40, 138, etc.); America Assembly of Youth (p.137); Girl Scout (pp.137, 139); Child Study Assn. (p.137); General Federation of Women's Clubs (p. 137); National Mid-Century Committee for Children and Youth (p. 137); UNESCO (p. 137); National Social Welfare Assembly (p. 118); N.S.W.A. Committee on Camping (p. 137); N.S.W.A. Committee on Comics (p. 137); the Science Research Associates (p. 138); National Conference of Christians and Jews (p. 118 etc.); and many others.

Newspapers

In the field of newspapers, the AJC program is elaborate:

"Our material generally goes to a selected list of 1700 daily newspapers throughout the country. Since editors of the smaller papers are most receptive to 'canned' editorials, feature articles, cartoons, and the like, we confine the distribution of such material to those with less than 100,000 circulation. Editors of the 300 large dailies receive occasional factual memoranda which they use as background material for their own editorials." (p. 42)

Much evidence of success is listed. "For example, when public pressure, which we have helped to activate, results in the admission of displaced persons to the U.S.A. it may be reasonably concluded that our considerable efforts in this direction were successful." (p. 44) Other fields in which success has been achieved or envisaged, with the help of the press, include "the defeat of the anti-school forces" (p. 44) "Federal FEPC," and "Revision of U.S. policy in Germany." One of the AJC goals is the public "Disapprobation of Red Witch-hunts." (p. 44)

Magazines

The AJC effort with magazines is very great.

"One of our most productive resources outside the agency is the Society of Magazine Writers, to which we belong. The Society's 60 members are responsible for about 80% of the important articles appearing in American magazines. To one or another of these writers we furnish ideas that eventuate in published articles... (p. 77)

By "conferences with editors and writers" the AJC achieves its purposes. "On most magazines we know at least 1 or 2 editors to whom we can speak frankly on most subjects. We give them complete outlines of suggested articles..." (p. 77)

Also "we are able to make suggestions to free-lance writers because we stand ready to supply them with the kind of research that is invaluable..." (p. 78) Again "on the preventive side we work regularly with editors, pointing out unwise features of projected articles." (p. 78)

"The most telling evidence of success is the responsiveness and voluntary repeat [illegible] of editors among the publications that have developed considerable receptivity are Reader's Digest, Colliers, Look, This Week, Life, Time and Newsweek." (p. 79) Listed in the receptive category also are Woman's Home Companion and Everybody's Digest.

Books

There are scattered references to books here and there in A.J.C., B., of which the most significant is probably this under the heading "Revising of Social Science Textbooks.")

The A.J.C. program in this field is concerned especially with "the problem of revising the teachings of social science textbooks on immigration and the ethnic factors in American life. Our expert in this field has not only prepared the necessary background material but has cooperated with textbook publishers on this project." (p. 234)

Motion Pictures

The A.J.C. "Film Division" achieves its results not only through its own direct efforts, but lists the following as "resources outside the agency":

Hollywood motion picture companies, Distributors and producers of educational films, Motion picture Producers Association of America. Details (pp. 62-72) are too numerous to record. Here is a sample:

"Only 2 years ago, a producer made a film from the book, I Can Get It For You Wholesale. This featured an opportunistic and ruthless Jewish clothing salesman. After several conferences with our Hollywood liaison man, the chief character of the story was changed to a girl dress designer, who achieved success through opportunism. Furthermore the character was so portrayed that under no circumstances could it be assumed that she was Jewish." (p. 64) Unfavorable mention is made also of an "anti-Communist picture," not named, which was objectionable because it "may have reinforced the idea in the minds of some that most Communists are Jews," etc. (p. 64)

Radio And Television

The "Legal and Fact-finding Dept." (p. 6) of the A.J.C., meets not only with "publishers, newspaper people, Church and Labor officials, etc." but "with radio and television officials." Here is a part of the story (p. 53):

"Close relationships have been established with the major radio and television networks:

1- The Columbia Broadcasting System, 2- The National Broadcasting Co., 3- The Mutual Broadcasting System, 4- The American Broadcasting Co., 5- Dumont Television Network.

In putting over its objective the A.J.C. enjoys "close relationships with key individuals in the networks, advertising agencies, program package offices, program producers, directors and writers." (p. 53), examples are:

1- "Mr. Davidson Taylor, Vice-President of the National Broadcasting Co. in charge of public affairs television programs." 2- "Mr. Edward Stanley, manager of NBC public affairs radio programs." 3- "Mr. Robert Saudek, director of the Ford Foundation radio and television department." 4- "Dr. George Crothers, Columbia Broadcasting System's public affairs radio department." 5- "Mr. George Rosen, radio and television editor of Variety." (p. 53)

Some of the "methods and materials" used in influencing Radio and TV are (p. 54) furnishing the networks with "kits of script material," and with "information and story material for all kinds of programs—dramatic, quiz, documentary, forum etc." For religious programs see (1) above.

Labor

Scattered through A.J.C., B. are references to contacts with organized labor. The account of the "Labor Division" begins on p. 84. Among the "objectives" of the A.J.C. are these to:

"4- Induce labor unions to support specific measures bearing on social issues of interest to the A.J.C." (p. 85) "5- Induce labor to support legislation dealing with essential human relations problems, such as immigration, FEPC, UN, Genocide and Housing." (p. 85)

The resources outside the agency (pp. 86-87) include:

"4- Directors of university workers programs, 7- International labor unions, 8- National Conference of Christians and Jews, 14- Department of Labor, 15- Mutual Security Agency, 17- CIO Community Services Committee, 18- AFL Community Chests Dept." Moreover, "all national labor service materials designed to meet labor's needs in the development of educational programs, and in leadership training, are created in cooperation with the organized labor movement..." (p. 88) Also, the A.J.C. has established a press service, regularly offering cartoons, editorials and a serial comic strip to labor editors." (p. 88)

Government

By all odds the biggest of the A.J.C.'s many ventures is their set-up for influencing government. In addition to their direct efforts to influence members of the government, much of their material directed to press, radio and television, veterans organizations, etc., has the ultimate goal of influencing legislation or Executive action. A whole section in A.J.C., B., 1953, is headed: WASHINGTON OFFICE.

The Wash. office serves (p. 269) "as the established liaison of the National Foreign Affairs Dept. (of the A.J.C.) for day to day contact with governmental authorities, particularly the Dept. of State..." It is recorded that "The Wash. office has served as the permanent liaison in the Capital not only for the American Jewish Committee but indirectly and informally also for all cooperative undertakings of various groupings of Jewish organizations..." The undertakings are designed primarily, it appears, to make U.S. policy hostile to German nationalism and friendly to "Israel" (p. 220, etc.); To abolish all immigration laws disapproved of by the AJC, and to discourage investigations of Communism. Among the targets at which A.J.C. propaganda and pressure are aimed are: "Governmental officials, Legislators and political leaders." "Repeated reflections of favorable public opinion must be brought to Senators. Views of influential citizens must be continually advertised."

The A.J.C. is strong in the field of government education:

"The U.S. Office of Education...asked us to supply text and drawings for a cartoon book on public school needs published by the Government Printing Office." On p. 39 two subdivisions of the U.S. government are actually listed as "Resources" of the A.J.C. These are "Voice of America" and the "U.S. Office of Education." The Dept. of State is especially cooperative. "Only recently the State Dept. asked for permission to continue circulation of the German and Japanese versions" of an A.J.C. booklet, Make Way For Youth. (p. 70) On p. 138 it is recorded that the A.J.C. is "consulted by State Dept. regarding philosophy and practice of youth councils."

Secret Activities

The strong arm of the A.J.C. is their branch devoted to secret activities and investigations.

"Quite important in the publicity and public relations work which this dept. does is its planning and carrying out publicity-wise a good many projects, supported or undertaken by the A.J.C., but not identified as Committee undertakings. Often the very nature of the project makes such identification unwise." (p. 251)

The "need of the Investigations Division's services" has "greatly increased" during "the past 2 years." (p. 30) "The Investigative Div. derives its information as to anti-Semitic activities in large part through the medium of confidential investigations and operations, and contacts with confidential sources." (p. 29, 157)

ACTION BY YOU, THE CHRISTIAN IS SORELY NEEDED

As revealed above every part of our existence is under constant threat. Enemies of Christianity will show absolutely no mercy in obtaining their goal. Your life and property and that of your loved ones is not safe while this exists.

All loyal Americans must combat this anti-Christian force with every means at his disposal. While we twiddle our thumbs and dream of personal success, many of our elected representatives, who are good Americans, are threatened constantly by these evil forces who favor anti-American legislation.

As a result of our apathy we now face the most critical time in our history. Apparently we are already under the rule of the United Nation's One World Government. We must in some way eliminate this dangerous situation and regain the sovereignty of the United States of America.

The world is witnessing the greatest historic spectacle of recorded time. Almost in a single lifetime, we see the rise of a nation of really free individuals and then the swift, sudden threat to destroy that free society including the race of man who created it.

"What can I do?" Is the question which generally presents itself when uninformed individuals first learn of the plot against Christian civilization. Learn the truth. Even though the press, radio, television and motion pictures and current magazines are under the influence of these world conspirators, the facts are available to those with enough intelligent curiosity to want to learn the fate facing a free people. Factual Books such as THE IRON CURTAIN OVER AMERICA ($4.00 order from Common Sense) THE PROTOCOLS OF THE LEARNED ELDERS OF ZION ($1.0 order from Common Sense) FEDERAL RESERVE CONSPIRACY ($1.00 orde from Common Sense) JEWISH ANTI COMMUNISM (50¢ order from C.S.) an many others may be obtained as a start i the right direction so as to counte the daily brainwashing of the norm means of communication.

Learn what's good and what's bad fo America. Tell the stories to friends neighborhood gatherings, thrugh you social clubs and church groups.

Write and wire your Senators and Congressmen, the State Department, eve the Department of Defense, and let thei know your full American views. Th enemies of America flood these gover mental agencies with propaganda to for legislation favorable to them. Remembe the government is still supposed to be th servant of the people. Every loyal America must act. There is no time for a "lt George do it" attitude. These conspirators are bringing their centuries old plot to a rapid conclusion. The situation is critical only an intelligent, informed and militat citizenry can prevent the bloodshed of a other 1776 if America is to be saved.

ACT NOW! BEFORE IT IS TO LATE!

Order Now! While They Last!

The 1953 BUDGET BOOK of the A.J.C. is actual photographs of the original, 281 pages. Every American, who is concern about the unrest, confusion, threat of wa high taxes and the bankruptcy of our country, should read this amazing document!

Not long ago a number were produced and carefully placed in the hands of important people. The BLACK MARKET price in two large cities is $35.00. In an effort to hold back the Marxist anti-Christian tide in our country, COMMON SENSE has arranged to make the same photo-copy available for $5.00.

We have a limited number of this amazing book containing more information on the "conspiracy" than may be gained in years from any other source. Orders will be filled as received. If our supply is exhausted we will return your money promptly.

When ordering ask for BUDGET 1953.

Send a copy of the AJC BUDGET 1953 to your Minister, Bishop, Priest. This will be the best $5.00 investment you can make toward saving your country. It may turn the tide. This book is "PROOF POSITIVE" for even the most naive! We would like to place a copy of this 281-page book in the hands of every Senator, Congresman, Bishop, Minister, Priest, as well as every patriot in the U.S.

HELP SECURE A MILLION READERS

Why Tax Deductible?

Why is it necessary for Jews to spend at least 20 million (tax deductible taxpayer's money) a year in the U.S. to promote tolerance of them? No other class of people find this necessary.

On April 4th, The Joint Defense Appeal (American Jewish Committee and Anti-Defamation League) launched its 1957 drive for $5,600,000 at a dinner at the Waldorf Astoria. The purpose as stated "programs combatting bigotry and discrimination," has nothing to do with two campaigns for 100 million dollars each, this yr. by United Jewish Appeal which is used mainly to bolster Israel in their plot to grab still more territory from the Arabs. Why is it all your life you hear Jews screaming persecution (when caught with the goods) from many countries?

For 20 years we have read leading Jewish publications and in every issue they cry "anti-Semitism," or "discrimination." Still they are the most discriminating people on earth;—won't even eat off the same dishes the Christian uses.

Here are just two of hundreds of anti-Christian quotes COMMON SENSE has from Jewish publications:

"One of the finest things ever done by the mob was the Crucifixion of Christ. Intellectually it was a splendid geture. But trust the mob to bungle. If I'd had charge of executing Christ, I'd have handled it differently. You see, what I'd have done was had him shipped to Rome and fed to the lions. They never could have made a savior out of mincemeat!"

...Ben Hecht, Zionist writer of Hollywood, p. 20 "A JEW in LOVE."

"To Christians of all denominations Jesus is the symbol of all that is pure, sacred, and lovely. To Jews of the fourth century, Jesus became the symbol of anti-Semitism, of libel, of cruelty, of [illegible] Zionist Jew, in "The Republic of Israel," p. 10.

It is plain to anyone who takes time for investigating, that all of the world is not out of step. It is the Jews who bring discontent, confusion and hate in countries until they are driven out. This will never stop as long as the Rabbis continue to shape the minds of Jewish youngsters in the anti-Christian cult which is camouflaged as Religion.

THINK HOW EASY

If each reader would send in just one new subscription, the COMMON SENSE reader list would be doubled immediately. What a practical effort for our COUNTRY and FREEDOM!

Human nature being what it is, we know not every subscriber will be an active part to this cooperative project. Hence, some patriots who are fired with zeal to drive this world Marxist Conspiracy from our shores could secure a number of new subscribers to offset those who send in none. Some wonderful patriots are doing this now.

A short while ago, a patriot sent in 305 subscriptions within 2 weeks. During the last month an informed business man in a western State sent us 450 subscriptions. A patriot out in Wyoming sends in 5 or 10 regularly; a friend in California sends an average of 10 a month; many send us 2 or 3 subscriptions a month.

COMMON SENSE carries no advertising, hence is free to give the unvarnished facts the people need to help them understand what is going on. For this we are constantly smeared by Jewish organizations as anti-Semetic, anti-Catholic, anti-Negro, and anti-everything else they can think of. The fact is, we are none of these things—but every bit of our investigation and probing, has led us directly into the Jewishness of Communism, we are dedicated to exposing this vicious serpent no matter how the chips fall. Our desire is to give you a paper each week with news while it is "hot."

Ask your friends to give you a dollar for twenty-four issues packed with truthful information not available elsewhere!

Dear Mr. Engel:

Thank you for your thoughtful letter of April 30, 1958, in which you commented so favorably regarding my book, "Masters of Deceit." Your generous remarks and good wishes are deeply appreciated, and I am very pleased that you and your colleagues have found the book of such interest.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I hope it is not too late for me to tell you how favorably impressed I was with your Masters of Deceit.

Your chapter on "The Communist Attack on Judaism" is particularly fine. It is unfortunately true, as you say in the opening paragraph of that chapter, that "one of the most malicious myths that has developed in the United States is that persons of the Jewish faith and communists have something in common." If anything can dispel that myth, it is your book.

And of course my colleagues and I greatly appreciate your kind reference to the American Jewish Committee and to the "exhaustive study," Dr. Schwarz's The Jews in the Soviet Union, that we sponsored.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

SUBJECT: AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Abe Goodrich, Washington Counsel of the American Jewish Committee, whose headquarters are New York City, dropped by to see Mr. DeLoach on June 6, 1958. Mr. Goodrich was disturbed about the attached issue of "Common Sense" newspaper dated May 1, 1958, in which Conde McGinley wrote a lengthy editorial on the first page criticizing chapter 19 of the Director's book "Masters of Deceit."

b7E

Mr. Goodrich stated that the American Jewish Committee and the entire Jewish race were extremely proud of the Director's statements concerning Judaism in "Masters of Deceit" and they felt the attack by McGinley was indeed very scurrilous. He wanted to know if the Director might desire to issue some statement which could repudiate the criticism as set forth in "Common Sense." He was told that the Director would not want to dignify any statements of criticism of "Common Sense" by replying. Mr. Goodrich stated he thought this would be the case but he wanted to make certain we knew about this matter.

Zionists--The Only Real "MASTERS OF DECEIT"

Those who are experienced in examining the writings of Jewish brainwashing groups, immediately recognized in the pages of "Masters of Deceit" the handwork of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and the American Jewish Committee. The main object in promoting this book is to trap the gullible Goy into reading the 16 pages, starting at page 255 which attempts to exonerate the Jews for their part in this world-wide conspiracy. It is a very clever move and we congratulate both the ADL and AJC.

Those who want an anti-communist book, read through the pages until they arrive at the chapter on Judaism and are stunned and confused to be told Jews have nothing to do with communism. To give these 16 pages of whitewash a semblance of fact, they maneuvered a respected name as the author.

Only an amateur would fail to recognize these pages as written by a Jew—a clever effort to convince the uninformed public that 2 plus 2 is five.

Starting in 1917, Jews have been suppressing the sale of every anti-communist book. In the cities where practically all book stores are owned by Jews it has been impossible to buy a book against communism—but THIS is different. They are promoting "Masters of Deceit" in the U.S. and especially foreign countries; page advertisers are influencing newspapers to write editorials and run the whole book in serials; it is also being plugged on the controlled radio and television.

Israel plans on a war in the next two years, and expects the U.S. to send its boys to help kill off the Arabs and thus leave Israel free to annex more Arab land. With the growing understanding that communism was set up and directed by Jews, public sentiment will be against our going to war once more for Jewish interests. Hence, this bold move to maneuver the prestige of J. Edgar Hoover behind their propaganda.

"Masters of Deceit" is a good title. These Pharisees are the world's greatest masters of deceit since they deceived Pontius Pilate into delivering Christ to be Crucified. They deceived our country into World War I and II.

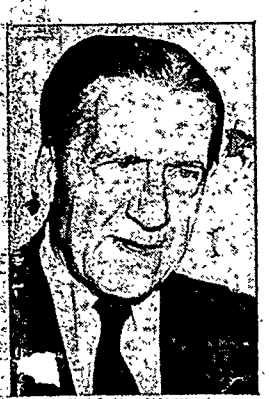

If the Jews have no connection with communism, why do they devote 16 full pages trying to prove otherwise? They do not defend any other group, religious or racial. From 1917 to at least 1950—33 years—Jews have had the same connection with communism in the Soviet Union as an engineer has with a train!

Here in the U.S. the Jews represent about 6% of the population but at least 95% of the spies caught are Jews. When Cong. John Rankin was a member of the Un-American Activities Committee he stated in Court that their files showed that 75% of the Communists in the U.S. were Jewish!

Warren Studies Talmudic Law Here

Chief Justice Earl Warren with St. Louis Rabbinical chancellor on arrival at Jewish Theological Seminary.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise

"Some call it Communism; I call it Judaism."

Warren is not content with the way he has upset the Jews with his "DECISIONS" now must study Jewish Law under a Rabbi, this can only be of further comfort to the Communists.

On Dec. 14, 1954, Robert L. Kunzig, (Zionist) on the staff of the Un-American Activities Committee leaked a report to the press smearing COMMON SENSE. The Chairman of the Committee, Harold Velde, was on a honeymoon in Mexico and the Committee knew nothing of the report. Cong. Francis E. Walter, incoming Chairman, stated that the Committee had not seen the report and "this kind of thing is going to stop." The report was written in the N.Y. office of the American Jewish Committee! THEY ARE THE REAL MASTERS OF DECEIT!

Up to recent years, Jewish papers, including the B'nai B'rith, their official newspaper, have never uttered one single word against Communism, but have smeared those who dared oppose it. Now that the world is becoming aware that Communism IS Jewish, they are desperately changing plans and posing as anti-Communists.

The following are just a few quotations showing beyond a doubt that Communism, Socialism, and Fabianism are products of the Pharisee who are now known as Jews or Zionists.

"Lenin On The Jewsh Question," booklet dated Aug. 9, 1918, by Diamanstein, Jew: "The Council of People's Commissar has instructed all Soviet Deputies to take uncompromising measures to tear out the anti-Semitic movement by the roots; pgromists are to be placed outside the law."

Scholem Asch, quoted by the "Jewish World," London, June 29, 1922: "In Russia peasants, soldiers, everybody hates Jews... Jews of Russia are unanimous in believing that the fall of the Soviets and the grasping of power by OTHER HANDS would be the greatest calamity—for Jews that could be imagined."

The "American Hebrew," the nation's most outstanding Jewish weekly, said on Sept. 10, 1920: "The Bolshevist Revolution in Russia was the work of Jewish brains, of Jewish dissatisfaction, of Jewish planning, whose goal is to create a new order in the world. What was performed in so excellent a way in Russia, thanks to Jewish brains, and because of Jewish dissatisfaction, and by Jewish planning, shall also through the same Jewish mental and physical forces, become a reality all over the world."

Theodore Herzl, World Zionist leader, wrote in the "Jewish State": "When the Jews sink, we become a revolutionary proletariat (Communistic); when we rise, there also arises our terrible power of the purse" (Capitallistic).

The periodical "Asia" carries the following in its Feb.-March 1920 issue: "In all the Bolshevist institutions the heads are Jews."

From the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia "The Jewish Voice," N.Y. City, for Oct. 1941, carried the following statement by Dr. Chaim Weizmann, world Zionist leader: "We wholeheartedly respond to the appeal of the Jewish rally in Moscow... We are proud of the struggle put up by the Soviet armies whose successes evoke universal admiration and fortify confidence in ultimate victory."

"Without exaggeration it may be said that the great Russian Revolution was indeed accomplished by the hands of the Jews." Statement of the Jew, M. Cohen in "The Communist Charkov," April 12, 1919.

Walter Rathenau, Jew, late Financial Dictator in Germany, in "The Wiener Free Press," Dec. 25, 1909: "Only 300 men, each of whom knows all the others, govern the fate of Europe. They elect their successors from their entourage. These Jews have the means in their hands of putting an end to the form of any State which they find unreasonable."

Bernard Lazare, a Jew, in his book "Anti-Semitism and its Causes," Paris 1894, wrote: "The spirit of the Jew is essentially a revolutionary spirit and, consciously or otherwise, the Jew is a revolutionary."

"The Jew is a Communist." Otto Winiger in his book, "Sex and Character," Vienna, 1921.

"The Jewish religion is hostile to Christianity in general and to the Catholic church in particular." M.J. Oglin in "The Morning Freiheit," N.Y. daily, Jan. 10, 1937.

"We intend to remake the Gentile... what the Communists are doing in Russia." Rabbi Lewis Browne in his book, "How Odd of God" published in 1924.

"Nationalities must disappear, religion must be suppressed. But Israel must not disappear, for this little people is the Chosen of God." Adolphe Cremieux, president of L'Alliance Israelite Universelle, in "Les Archives Israelites" Paris Nov. 25, 1861.

"What we Jews must do is to set our faces as flint against Fascism, against any form of it whatsoever. Our next step to be taken as soon as ever it is possible, must be to seize in the interest of the workers, all the nat industries, and let nothing whatsoever stand in our way, even should we have to use violence." James Wise, son of the late Rabbi Wise, split of the Free Synagogue, writing from the 1928 "The Rising Tide. Will it Overwhelm Us?"

"The revolution in Russia is a Jewish revolution, a crisis in Jewish history. It is a Jewish revolution because Russia is the home of about half the Jews of the world. But the revolution in Russia is a Jewish revolution also because Jews are the most active revolutionists in the Czar's empire." From the Zionist organ, "The Maccabean," N.Y., Nov. 1905, p. 250, headline "A Jewish Revolution."

The following is an excerpt of a report delivered by the Netherlands Minister at Petrograd on the 6th of Sept. 1918, on the situation in Russia. The Netherlands Minister was acting for the British Ambassador and the report was presented to Parliament in London....

"The foregoing report will indicate the extremely critical nature of the present situation. The danger is now so great that I feel it my duty to call the attention of the British and all other Governments to the fact that if an end is not put to Bolshevism in Russia at once the civilization of the world will be threatened. This is not an exaggeration, but a sober matter of fact; and the most unusual action of German and Austrian consuls-general, before referred to, in joining in protest of neutral legations appears to indicate that the danger is also being realized in German and Austrian quarters. I consider that the immediate suppression of Bolshevism is the greatest issue now before the world, not even excluding the war which is still raging; and unless, as above stated, Bolshevism is nipped in the bud immediately, it is bound to spread in one form or another over Europe and the whole world, as it is organized and worked by Jews who have no nationality, and whose one object is to destroy for their own ends the existing order of things. The only manner in which this danger could be averted would be collective action on the part of all Powers."

COMMON SENSE has a photostatic copy of the original above article—Editor.

From the book "JEWISH ANTI-COMMUNISM"

In the Soviet Union Jewish influence was especially powerful in the Central Council of Commissaries. In 1920, the Central Council consisted of 20 members, of which 17 were Jews. The Commissariat of War at the same time consisted of 43 members, of which no less than 34 were Jews. In the Commissariat of the Provinces, 21 out of 23 belonged to the same race, as did 45 out of the 55 members of the Commissariat of the Interior. The Commissariat for Foreign Affairs was comprised of 17 members, out of this number, 14 were Jews. Taken as a whole, the percentage of Jews in the Commissariats, the highest offices of Revolutionary Russia, was during the Lenin regime as follows:

In 1917-18, out of 316 Commissars, 300 were Jews. In 1920, out of 457 Commissars, 322 were Jews. In 1921, out of 550 Commissars, 447 were Jews. In 1922, out of 525 Commissars, 445 were Jews.

The U.S. Secret Service (a forerunner of the present Central Intelligence Agency) was aware of this Jewish influence in the Soviet government, and circulated to allied governments a confidential report on the matter, from which we quote below:

SECTION I. In Feb., 1916, it was first discovered that a revolution was being fomented in Russia. It was found that the following persons, as well as the banking houses mentioned, were engaged in this work of destruction: Jacob Schiff, Guggenheim, Max Breitling, Kuhn, Loeb, & Co., Jewish banking houses of which the following are directors: Jacob Schiff, Felix Warburg, Otto Kahn, Mortimer Schiff, S.H. Hannauer.

SECTION II. In the spring of 1917 Jacob Schiff began to supply funds to Trotsky (Bronstein) to bring about the social revolution in Russia. The N.Y. "Daily Forward," which is a Judeo-Bolshevic organ, gave a subscription for the same cause.

Christian Americans of this generation have witnessed the transition from reverence to repugnance in the collective American mind for those ideals and maxims of political morality written with patriot's blood in the Declaration of Independence of 1776. They have seen the death by re-interpretation of that once sacred Charter of Freedom called the Constitution of the United States of America; and its replacement as the "Law of the Land" by that ignoble work of Alger Hiss and associates called the Charter of the United Nations.

And now the third great shock of the generation: The Synagogue of Satan has "captured" that last great citadel of officialdom, the office of the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In a city become as sinful as Sodom, as corrupt as Gomorrah, as mongrelized as original Babylon, an Abraham of today still could have found a few righteous men. And the name of J. Edgar Hoover would have led all the rest in the minds of men of honor.

But now there is a best-seller which is classified as non-fiction, which is titled "Masters of Deceit," which calls itself "The Story of Communism in America and How to Fight It," and which ALLEGEDLY was written by J. Edgar Hoover, though the style is sadly reminiscent of previous works by the REAL "masters of deceit."

Much of "Masters of Deceit" is worthy of the name of Hoover. However, as the author states on page 82 of the book, referring to the Communist Party:

"The Party's objective is to drive a wedge, however slight, into as many minds as possible."

Unfortunately, that is exactly what this book will do. For the entire literary effort seems to have been expended in an attempt to "plant" in people minds one basic and important seed of untruth which is found in one tiny paragraph appearing on page 257:

"Some of the most effective opposition to Communism in the United States has come from Jewish organizations such as B'nai B'rith, the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish League Against Communism, the Anti-Defamation League, and a host of other Jewish groups."

The author of "Masters of Deceit" does not deny that the vast majority of the leaders who forced Communism upon the people of Russia were Jews. He does not deny that the vast majority of the Communist spies, saboteurs, espionage agents exposed in America have been Jews. He admits that "It is a matter of record that numerous Communist Party leaders call themselves Jews and claim a Jewish origin."

But the author also states:

"One of the most malicious myths that has developed in the United States is that persons of the Jewish faith and Communists have something in common."

And he defends his thesis by this most audacious stratagem of semantics:

"A true follower of the Jewish faith, like those of other religions, cannot embrace Communism."

In plain English, this means: when a Jew becomes a Communist, he ceases to be a Jew. The leopard has changed his spots.

What, then, is the author of "Masters of Deceit" to do about the words and writings of those respected Jewish religious leaders who identify Judaism and Communism as one and the same thing;

Arthur Spingarn

A Zionist Jew and president of the NAACP. Has contact with many Communist-Front organizations.

Channing Tobias
Asst. Treasurer of NAACP, at least 50 Communist-front listings

Thurgood Marshall
Special Council NAACP, has 5 Communist-front citations

Roy Wilkins
Executive Secretary NAACP 9 Communist-front citations

W. E. B. DuBois
Founder of NAACP, has 72 Communist-front citations or at least branches from the same tree? What of that great Rabbi Stephen S. Wise who said, "Some call it Communism; I call it Judaism"? What of the words of the late Rabbi Judah L. Magnes "Revolutionists, socialists, bolshevists, majority or minority socialists, under whatever name we may call them, are Jews and they are to be found in every revolutionary movement as leaders or propagandists"? What of the words of the Jewish World of London, issue of Jan. 10, 1919: "The fact of Bolshevism itself, the fact that so many Jews are bolshevists, the fact that the ideal of Bolshevism so nearly resembles the cherished ideals of Judaism, should make serious Jews reflect with care"?

Should not such documentary proof that men of the Jewish faith themselves identified Judaism and Communism as ideological Siamese twins, make the author of "Masters of Deceit" likewise "reflect with care?"

The author of this remarkable book seems to agree that Communism is Jewish; but then he adds that any Jew who also is a Communist is one of those "who say they are Jews and are not" but are of the Synagogue of Satan. The fallacy of such reasoning lies in the fact that, in the religious sense, there hasn't been a real Jew since the time of the destruction of the temple (fulfilling Christ's prophecy) in 70 A.D. By that time all real Jews (in the religious sense) had become Christians. The rest of them, followed the Pharisees, accepted the curse that "His blood (be) on us and our children," and to this day should be called Pharisees and NOT Jews. Their religion is NOT based on the laws of Moses, nor is the Bible THEIR Holy Book.

We call to witnesses to affirm the above, first Talmudic professor Louis Finkelstein (who taught "Jewish Law" to Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court), who wrote in 1946:

"Pharisaism became Talmudism, Talmudism became Medieval Rabbinism, and Medieval Rabbinism became Modern Rabbinism. But throughout these changes of name, inevitable adaption of custom, and adjustment of law, THE SPIRIT OF THE ANCIENT PHARISEE SURVIVES UNALTERED." (Italics added)

Next witness: the very reverend chief Rabbi, Dr. J.H. Hertz, writing in his foreword to the Soncino edition of the Babylonian Talmud—

"The Talmud is the product of Palestine, the land of the Bible, and of Mesopotamia; the cradle of civilization. The beginnings of Talmudic literature date back to the time of the Babylonian Exile.... The Babylonian Exile is a momentous period in the history of humanity—and especially so in that of Israel. During that Exile, Israel found itself. It not only rediscovered the Torah and made it the rule of life, but under its influence new religious institutions, such as the synagogue, i.e. congregational worship without priest or ritual, came into existence—one of the most far-reaching spiritual achievements in the whole history of religion..."

Here is an outright admission, from a late chief Rabbi of the Pharisees, that the religion of those who call themselves "Jews stems—not from Abraham or Moses—but from things learned in Babylon during the Exile!

So, in the religious sense, the author of "Masters of Deceit" has told us a part of the truth when he says "The people who gave the world the concept of our monotheistic God and the Ten Commandments cannot remain Jews and follow the atheism of Karl Marx and the deceit of the Communist movement."

But here is the greater truth which the author should have added: "The people who gave the world the concept of our monotheistic God and the Ten Commandments cannot remain the seed of Abraham and reject the Firstfruit of that seed." If they reject Christ, then, it makes little difference who they follow; Marx or Metatron, Maimodese or Mendelssohn. The Kol Nidre oath takes care of all seeming differences, anyway.

The national and/or racial consideration is something else again. Zionists may or may not attend a synagogue. They make no pretense that Zionism is anything more than extreme nationalism; which may or may not imply worship of the secular state of Israel. But, when a so-called Jew becomes a Zionist, does he thereby cease being a so-called Jew?

As for the race theory, diaspora leaders have been trying for years to prove that Jews are a race. The latest attempt involved two scientists, Dr. Leo Sachs of the Weizman Institute, and Dr. M. Bat Miriam of the Israeli Institute for Biological Research. These two say their research proved that "Jews have common genetic factors not found in non-Jews." If this be true, does a Jew-by-race cease to be a Jew-by-race when he becomes a Communist? These are questions the "Masters of Deceit" neglected to discuss.

THE TROJAN HORSE

Another most dangerous error of the book is the failure to give proper credit—or discredit—to one Leon Trotsky (Braunstein). Trotsky is mentioned as having gone to Moscow from N.Y. City, as having been more brilliant than Stalin; a brief report of the struggle for power and Trotsky's banishment is given; as well as mention of the fact that a Trotskyite branch of Communism "broke" with the Stalinist branch in the U.S. Then the Party became the nucleus of a new kind of Communism in America (Trotskyite) and that one Jay Lovestone was expelled by the Stalinist branch in 1929.

If the author of "Masters of Deceit" had intended to expose the REAL deceit of Communism, this is the spot where his story should have begun. Instead, he dropped this phase of the story, overlooked the REAL DANGER which is the Trojan Horse of Trotskyism and he devoted the rest of the book to whitewashing Jews and condemning the Capital Letter Communism which is the least menacing part of the entire conspiracy.

WHITEWASHING THE NAACP

On page 246 we find the statement that "The NAACP's national leadership has vigorously denounced Communist attempts at infiltration." Surely the following documented facts can be found in FBI files:

"The NAACP was founded in 1910, not by Negroes at all, but by one white female abolitionist (Mary Ovington White), one white male Socialist (Oswald Garrison Villard), one Russian trained revolutionary (William F. Walling), one Roumanian born Jew (Dr. Henry Moskowitz), and one mulatto (W.E.B. DuBois, who happens to have been cited as having 72 Communist-front affiliations by the FBI, the HUAC and the Senate Judiciary Investigating Committee).

Not even "Masters of Deceit" ever disproved the statement made by the Hon. Eugene Cook in his capacity as Attorney General of the Sovereign State of Georgia, part of which we quote:

"The files of the House Un-American Activities Committee reveal records of affiliation with or participation in Communist, Communist-front, fellow-traveling or subversive organizations or activities on the part of the following present officials of the NAACP—the president, Arthur B. Spingarn, 3; the chairman of the Board, Channing Tobias, 10; the honorary chairman, W.E.B. DuBois, 72; the treasurer, Allen [illegible], 3; eight [illegible] seven of the twenty-eight vice presidents, twenty-eight of the forty-seven directors; the chairman of the National Legal Committee, Louis Marshall, 6; the Executive Secretary, Roy Wilkins, 3; the special counsel, Thurgood Marshall; the Southeast Regional Secretary, Ruby Hurley, 2; the Director of Public Relations, Henry Lee Moon, 3; the West Coast Secretary, Franklin H. Williams, 2; Director of the Washington Bureau, Clarence M. Mitchell and two field secretaries (one ea.—Ed)."

So, the statement that NAACP leaders vigorously denounce Communist attempts at infiltration, may be most literally true. Why should they "infiltrate" an organization which they (Communist-fronters) created and have controlled from the very beginning?

Here is a case where half-truth distorts and makes a seeming lie of the whole truth. There are other examples in "Masters of Deceit," but we feel enough has been said on this score.

But, we can't resist an academic question:

We've always considered Arthur Spingarn, president of the NAACP, to be a Jew. But, he has a record as a Communist-fronter. Does that mean he's no longer a Jew? And, since he heads a supposedly Negro organization, does that change his race, or his nationality, or his religion? It must change SOMETHING about him if our book author is correct.

It's Up To You!

Conde McGinley

There are a few very important developments that good Americans should be aware of; however, these developments are well camouflaged and worked so quietly that the average person does not fully understand them. These clever moves are conditioning our country for World Government and Zionist Marxist control!

Probably the most important of all, and well near completion is the plot to control all means of thought and expression. Most Americans are awake to the realization that the Zionists now own and control television, radio, movies—and most important of all—newspapers, this by the fact that they place most of all advertising.

In addition to the papers not owned outright by Jews, but whose editorial policy is controlled by them, Jews do own many, such as the internationalist minded NEW YORK TIMES and are in the process of buying many more. Several Jewish groups have been quietly and steadily buying up newspapers. Lehman Brothers have been very active, using a relative, S.I. Newhouse, as a front. They have within a period of four years formed a large chain. The following are but a few:

Newark Star Ledger, Staten Island Advance, Jamaica L.I. Daily Press, Jersey Journal and Jersey Observer, Birmingham News and Alabama Statesman, (pay 18 and one half million dollars) Saint Louis Post (paid 6 and one half million dollars). Beside all these Newhouse has 2 papers in Syracuse, N.Y., two in Oregon and many others besides, 5 radio stations.

Vance McCormick of Harrisburg, Pa. placed a stipulation in his will which forbade selling his paper, the Telegraph, to a Jew, but a man named Russell buy it for him. There is still another member of the Lehman clan buying up every weekly paper possible; his name is Oren Lehman.

To save America and Christianity there is a crying need for a FREE press—the press cannot be free if it is continually muzzled and governed by its advertisers!

A newspaper with no advertising and with the will to print the unvarnished truth cannot finance itself. It MUST be a mutual enterprise backed up by money and work from patriots.

All good Americans can consider COMMON SENSE as their newspaper and its editor as unpaid and dedicated to the task.

Those of you who have the means are asked to please join with us and help purchase more efficient equipment. Others may help by securing new subscribers, ordering and distributing COMMON SENSE. Talking to and explaining the seriousness of the peril to America among your friends also helps.

It is you the people who really own COMMON SENSE and its you who can keep it in business. We are the front line of the battle for America and Christianity. Let's all do our part to make it strong and secure.

FULL STEAM AHEAD AND DAMN THE TORPEDOES!

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor;

"I am confused and need some help. But, I don't know whom to ask. Ordinarily, I would ask my Congressman but since the Supreme Court makes the laws I don't suppose my Congressman would know the answer. I am afraid to write the Supreme Court for fear of having an injunction issued against me for writing on white paper.

My problem is I have just discovered that I have both white oaks and black oaks growing in my yard. The trouble is the white oaks are in the front yard and the black ones are in the back. I didn't plant them, they just came up that way. I want to know if I will have to integrate them by transplanting, or will the soldiers just come and cut down the white oaks? I am not sure what the "Law of the Land" is on this point.

Then too, I have a black dog and my neighbor has a white one. They don't like each other, and fight every time they get together. My neighbor's white dog won't let my black one come into his yard. I feel that this is affecting my dog psychologically. How can I get Judge Davies to acquaint my neighbor's dog with the "Law of the Land?

Another thing worrying me is that the white pigeons and black birds around my home won't nest in the same trees and segregate themselves in separate trees. Will I be held in contempt of court for this prejudice on the part of the birds, and if so, will I get a jury trial or an automatic sentence?

I have solved the problem of my white and black peas. I planted them in separate BUT equal rows, which I know is in violation of the 1954 Law of the Supreme Court, but after the first year they mixed themselves and saved the paratroopers from having to jump into my pea patch.

Please, Mr. Editor, tell me from whom I can get a ruling on the above matters?

Sincerely
O.R.P.

Civil Rights Pressure Groups

For those who would like to know the names of the pressure groups responsible for passage of the so-called Civil Rights Bill, we list these organizations. It is well to keep in mind these organizations were pushing for enactment of the original version of the Bill, which authorized federal troops to be sent into the South to enforce race mixing.

Of the 36 organizations listed, 20 are either Jewish or Jewish directed; the others have influential Jews in their directorship with exception of the National Council of Churches which is a brain child of B'nai B'rith, a well known world-wide Jewish organization.

U.N. Angers Arabs

From a personal friend, a trained observer, now long the refugees from Zionist Palestine.

"The Palestine Arab refugees are angered at the apparent indifference with which their very existence has been handed by the United Nations during their last session of the General Assembly. They are tired of leading a life of misery, idleness and frustration as they await justice at the hands of the world organization which they hold responsible for their plight; and they seem to have despaired of the justice of man.

The Arab refugees are more determined than ever in their demand to go home. We want no charity, we ask no favors, they declare. We want our right to our homes and homeland. The refugees demand the right to live, the right to hold and enjoy their property like all other free peoples, and to be allowed to lead their lives in peace, dignity and self-respect. Denial of this simple request is an offense against the elemental principles of democracy, equity and justice."

I would like to call your attention to those who tell us of the wealth and progress of Israeli and her peoples, in comparison to what they call the backwardness of the Arabs in the Middle East. I would ask that you remind these people that they have gotten about $2,000,000,000 in aid (charity) from people in this country alone, plus more from South African Jews and others around the world. This is more than $1,200 per Israeli. The current campaigns have been bringing in from three hundred to five hundred million dollars a year, I am told. This would amount to $150 to $250 per year per Israeli. Compare this with 7¢ a day doled out to the Palestinian refugees. Compare this with the nil amounts given to the Arabs in surrounding nations. In addition Israel enjoys, gratis, the services of a corps of experts who donate their services. Then Israel got nearly as much foreign aid as all of the 40 million Arabs in other Middle Eastern countries. True the Arabs sell their oil, but Israel sells her products too in the world's richest markets.

*AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

Mr. Allen Goodrich, General Counsel of the captioned organization, whose headquarters is in New York, called DeLoach at 4:30 p.m. today to inquire as to our participation in the bombing of the Jewish synagogue in Atlanta, Georgia. He was told we could not elaborate on the matter, that a statement had been issued by the White House concerning this matter.

He then stated that the Board of Directors of the American Jewish Committee planned to meet in New Orleans, Louisiana, within two weeks and that he would appreciate having some information from the FBI to present to them at the time. He was told that our files were, of course, confidential; furthermore, that we could not release information in a pending case, if such was the status of this matter at the time.

Goodrich stated that he felt this would be the case. He indicated that he wanted to wish us a lot of luck in the investigation of this matter and that we should call on him or his committee anytime for needed assistance. Goodrich was very friendly.

Our principal contact with the captioned committee is Joe Woolfson who is one of the heads of the organization and a Legionnaire who is extremely cooperative.

Mr. Nathaniel H. Goodrich, attorney-at-law, 1625 I Street, Northwest, Washington, D.C., telephone DI 7-3204, a Washington counsel for the American Jewish Committee, called at the Director's Reception Room and was interviewed by me. Mr. Goodrich stated that the Director received a telegram from the headquarters of the American Jewish Committee in New York this morning asking for an appointment for officials of this committee to meet with the Director on next Wednesday. He wanted to follow up on this telegram and urge the Director to see these officials if at all possible. He stated he would be glad to assist in working out any details concerning the time and date if he could do so.

Mr. Goodrich stated that the officials of this organization wished to discuss with the Director their contemplated plans of enlarging their coverage of determining what certain individuals are doing in connection with anti-Semitic activities. They did not want to expand their present operations until they had had an opportunity of discussing this matter with the Director. They also would like to ask the Director for any suggestions for any former Special Agents of the Bureau whom they might employ in connection with their activities.

SYNOPSIS:

Irving M. Engel, President, American Jewish Committee (AJC), wired the Director on 10-17-58. He referred to recent bombings of houses of worship and urgently requested meeting with Director on 10-22-58 for himself, George Mintzer and George Trosk. Nathaniel H. Goodrich, Washington Counsel of AJC, talked with Mr. Holloman on 10-17-58 regarding this telegram. He stated that these officials wished to discuss their contemplated plans of enlarging their coverage of determining what certain individuals are doing in connection with anti-Semitic activities; to discuss suggestions for any former Bureau Agents they might employ in connection with their activities. The Director by telegram 10-17-58 expressed regrets he would not be available to meet this group on 10-22-58; that Mr. Rosen would meet with them at their convenience. The AJC was founded in 1906; dedicated to safeguarding the civil and religious rights of Jewish people throughout the world; has been anticommunist and is non-Zionist. Prior cordial correspondence; organization invited Director to attend some of its functions in 1946 and 1949, invitations were declined. Nathaniel Goodrich reportedly was a known associate of James R. Newman who was known to have associated with subjects in the Silvermaster espionage case. No derogatory information in Bufiles concerning Mintzer or Trosk. Concerning Engel, files show he was secretary of a publication, chartered in 1939, the executive editor of which reportedly associated with members of the Communist Party. When Wolf Ladejinsky was dismissed from the Department of Agriculture as a security risk, AJC protested this firing and Engel sent a present to Secretary Benson critical of this dismissal. Files show one allegation that Engel was loyal to Israel and not to the United States. On 4-28-58 AJC in a telegram to the Attorney General signed by Engel asked for FBI inquiry into recent bombings.

BACKGROUND: ~~SECRET~~

Irving M. Engel, President, American Jewish Committee (AJC) wired the Director on 10-17-58, noting therein the close cooperation between the Bureau and the AJC for the past 25 years. He mentions the recent bombings of houses of worship and urgently requested a meeting with the Director in Washington on 10-22-58 to discuss plans for furthering expanded collaboration to be attended by Engel, George Mintzer, a former Assistant U. S. Attorney, Southern District of New York, and George Trosk. Mr. Nathaniel H. Goodrich, 1625 I Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C., a Washington counsel for the AJC, called at the Director's Office on 10-17-58 and talked with Mr. Holloman. He wanted to follow up on this telegram and urge the Director to see these officials if at all possible. He stated that the officials of this organization wished to discuss with the Director their contemplated plans of enlarging their coverage of determining what certain individuals were doing in connection with anti-Semitic activities. They do not want to do so until they discuss this matter with the Director. They also wanted to ask the Director for any suggestions regarding former Special Agents they might employ in connection with their activities. Goodrich was informed that the Director's schedule for next week was indefinite and in the event the Director was not in the city, Assistant Director Rosen would be available to meet these officials if they so desired. By telegram dated 10-17-58 to Mr. Engel, the Director expressed regret that he will not be available to meet with Engel and his associates on 10-22-58, but arrangements have been made for them to meet with Assistant Director Rosen at their convenience.

INFORMATION IN BUFILES:

American Jewish Committee

The American Jewish Committee was founded in 1906 and incorporated in 1911 as an organization devoting itself to safeguarding the civil and religious rights of the Jewish people throughout the world and to combatting discrimination and prejudice. The organization has been anticommunist and it is described as being non-zionist and in many respects is similar to the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and is reportedly a very wealthy and influential group. The Director in his book "Masters of Deceit" states that some of the most effective opposition to communism in the United States has come from such Jewish Organizations as the AJC. On the occasion of its 50th Anniversary in April, 1957, an article appearing in the "New York Herald Tribune" states that in its statement of principles, the AJC asserted that in the quest for national security "Our country must not weaken those constitutional protections which were won through the bitter experiences of mankind."

On various occasions through the past years, this organization, through its representatives, has furnished to the Bureau material on such subjects as anti-Semitism, civil rights and the position of the Jew under communist rule. They have also complimented the Director on the accomplishments of the FBI. Bufiles reflect rather extensive prior cordial correspondence with this organization. ~~SECRET~~ In April, 1946, the Director was invited to attend its annual meeting in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, which invitation was declined. In November, 1949, the Director was invited to take part in a series of discussions dealing with the techniques of American agitators and this invitation was declined. (62-102104) An article appearing in the April 29, 1958, issue of the "New York Times" states the AJC on the day before sent a telegram to Attorney General William P. Rogers asking for an inquiry by the FBI into the recent bombings in the South. Irving M. Engel, President of the Committee, was quoted as saying that the series of bombings "clearly indicate a concerted course of criminal action on an interstate scale and points to the existence of a conspiracy which warranted an immediate investigation by the F. B. I." (100-135-63-A)

Nathaniel H. Goodrich SUMMARY DC

He is an attorney, born in New York City, June 30, 1914; received an LL. B. degree from Cornell University in 1936. He was a staff attorney of the AJC during the period 1938-41 and since 1953 has been the Washington counsel of this organization. In 1947, he was counsel to the President's Scientific Board; counsel and executive secretary, President's Special Board of Inquiry on Air Safety, 1947-48; counsel to Comptroller, Department of Defense, 1948-50, assistant general counsel, 1949-52, and deputy general counsel, 1952-53. (Who's Who in World Jewry, 1955)

Bufiles reflect that Goodrich was a known associate of James R. Newman who was one of the persons known to have associated with the subjects in the Nathan Gregory Silvermaster espionage case. [redacted] An address book belonging to a former secretary of the White Collar Group of the Communist Party contained among others, the name of Nathaniel H. Goodrich. (100-3-65-968) By letter dated December 21, 1954, Goodrich forwarded to the Director a pamphlet which was published by the AJC. The Director thanked him by letter dated December 29, 1954. (62-102104-29) (U) b3 b7E

Goodrich was counsel for the Committee to Study Protection of Classified Information, Department of Defense, known as the Coolidge Committee, which was set up during 1956 by the Secretary of Defense. Mr. A. H. Belmont appeared before this Committee on September 12, 1956. (62-103450-6)

George Trosk

He is an attorney, born in New York City, September 22, 1890. He received an LL. B. degree from New York Law School in 1911. Since that time he has been in private practice and has served in various investigative capacities for agencies of the City of New York and New York State. He was New York State's Superintendent of Insurance in 1953. (Who's Who in World Jewry, 1955)

In 1934 this Bureau conducted an investigation of Trosk in connection with his candidacy for an appointment as United States District Judge of the Southern District of New York. No derogatory information was developed. (77-7539) In April, 1954, Army G-2 requested a name check on George Trosk who was under consideration for counsel for the Army in its hearings before the McCarthy Committee; (62-60527-37961)

George J. Mintzer

He is an attorney, born May 17, 1898, in Austria, who entered the United States in 1901. He received an LL.B. degree from Fordham University in 1919. During the period 1926-31 he was an assistant United States Attorney, Chief, Criminal Division, Southern District of New York; was counsel of the AJC, 1939-49. He has also been connected with various agencies of the State of New York. (Who's Who in World Jewry, 1955) In January, 1941, Mintzer wrote to the Bureau stating that he had been engaged in conducting an investigation of subversive activities on behalf of the AJC; much of the material developed by this investigative group was made available to the New York Office. (100-36016) On September 8, 1955, Mintzer filed a registration statement with the Foreign Agency Registration Section of the Internal Security Division of the Department of Justice. He listed his business as that of an attorney and labor-mangement arbitrator. He indicated that he would be serving as associated legal counsel for the government of Turkey. [redacted] b3 b7E

IRVING M. ENGEL Summary

BIOGRAPHICAL DATA:

Comm

"Who's Who in World Jewry" (1955) reflects that Irving M. Engel, a lawyer and communal leader, was born in Birmingham, Alabama, October 19, 1891. He received the LL.B. degree cum laude from Yale Law School in 1913. He was a member of the law firm of Konta, Kirchwey and Engel of New York City from 1926 to 1943 and has been with its successor firm Engel, Judge, Miller and Sterling since 1944. He practiced private law in Birmingham, Alabama, until 1924. Engel is a lecturer on real estate and taxation for the Practicing Law Institute, the American Bar Association and New York University. He was candidate for Congress on the Democratic and Liberal Parties, New York City, in 1950. He is affiliated with a number of business, civic and fraternal organizations. He is the author of books and articles.

INFORMATION IN BUFILES:

There are numerous references to Engel in Bufiles. Only the more salient ones are being set forth below. A memorandum was written concerning Engel in December, 1951, at which time we had received a request from the White House for information appearing in Bufiles regarding him. The memorandum written in 1951 reflected that Engel was a contributor to the National Citizens Political Action Committee or the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions according to a list received from Frederick Woltman of the "New York World Telegram" in 1947. This information was not disseminated in view of its vague nature. (100-338892-169)

Information also appears in Bufiles indicating that Engel was Secretary of the publication known as "The Leader" which was chartered in April, 1939. A confidential informant advised that Maxwell Lehman was Executive Editor of "The Leader." This informant advised that in 1941 Lehman associated with members of the Communist Party but could furnish no information that he was a member of the Party. (121-14758-7)

None of this information was disseminated to the White House in view of its vague nature.

You will recall the controversial case of Wolf Ladejinsky who was dismissed from the Department of Agriculture as a security risk. Newspaper clippings of January, 1955, reflect that the American Jewish Committee protested this firing and Engel as President sent a telegram to Secretary Benson critical of this dismissal. (121-6977-A Section 2)

During 1956, we corresponded with Engel on three occasions when he forwarded matters in which he thought the Bureau would be interested. (62-102104-32, 34, 35)

In connection with our investigation of Israeli Intelligence activities on May 22, 1957, a confidential informant of the Washington Field Office advised that Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban had a discussion with Barney Balaban, President of Paramount Pictures. Balaban reportedly told Eban that people like Engel and others are waiting to know what to do and who to reach. The informant also advised that Engel and others had been in contact with Ambassador Eban on other occasions. (S) [redacted] (S) (U) b3 b7E

In June, 1957, Arnold Forster of the Anti-Defamation League forwarded to Mr. Nichols a card which had been mailed obstensibly to a large mailing list by Rear Admiral John G. Crommelin (Retired). Forster also included a detailed summary concerning Crommelin and his Anti-Semitic activities. This memorandum stated that Crommelin identified various Jews as being loyal to Israel and not to the United States. One of these mentioned was Engel. (62-91575-13)

According to a newspaper clipping of January 16, 1958, Engel was a member of Governor Harriman's committee on Public Employees Security Procedures. (62-103493)

By letter dated April 30, 1958, Engel wrote to the Director and complimented him on his book "Masters of Deceit" and stated he particularly enjoyed the chapter pertaining to the Jews. His letter was cordially acknowledged. (100-120277-138)

In April, 1955, the Senate Republican Policy Committee prepared a document on the Americans for Democratic Action. This document showed Irving M. Engel as a member of the Board of the National Issues Committee of Americans for Democratic Action. (100-348196-122)

The AJC on 4-28-58 sent a telegram to the Attorney General, signed by Engel, asked for an inquiry by the FBI into the recent bombings in the South. (100-135-63-A, "New York Times," for 29-58.)

CONFERENCE WITH AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

I thought you might be interested in a conference which was held yesterday by a representative of this Bureau with Irving M. Engel, President of the American Jewish Committee, and other officers of this organization.

They were here on behalf of their interest in establishing an effective program within their organization to counteract the widespread bombing throughout the South. They indicated an intention to confer with other agencies of the Government in the interest of outlining their plans so they will not do anything objectionable in promulgating their program.

They stressed the responsibility of religious leaders and enforcement agencies to attack this problem on a local level, pointing out that if the respective communities had an effective program and proper leadership, this would go a long way in solving the problem.

Their attitude and approach to this situation seem to be particularly worth while. They are anxious to do something constructive but with restraint and in the exercise of good judgment and common sense. They hope to establish a program which will produce specific results and they also recognize in accomplishing this objective they should not do anything which will create further hysteria.

In line with previous arrangements I spoke with Irving M. Engel, president, American Jewish Committee (AJC), George Mintzer, George Trosk, and Nathaniel H. Goodrich, Washington counsel, AJC.

Engel, the president of the group, outlined the background and purposes of the organization which have heretofore been stated. Their interest at this time is in the widespread bombings throughout the South and they wanted to know whether their plans interfered with or were objectionable to any agency of the Government.

1. Their plans generally are to have someone inquire into the activities of groups which have been violent or could be violent so that they would be fully aware of their activities. They wanted to know if there were any former Agents who could be suggested for this activity, and I advised them that I knew of none who are available at this time.

2. They believe this problem to be in part a local problem and are seeking the assistance of religious leaders and enforcement agencies in the respective communities. They feel this can be done on a local level and, if effective locally, will go a long way in solving the problem. In this regard they were advised of the Bureau's position and of the Director's all-out assistance in the recent bombings. They indicated that the Director's actions in these cases were viewed with the greatest of favor and obviously it had created a most salutary effect and had produced results.

3. They also feel something ought to be done to curb the widespread printing and dissemination of hate literature. They said much of the stuff being put out in the South was not printed locally but came from other sections of the country, and they thought this kind of literature certainly incited violence and in instances where it would do this, the Post Office ought to refuse to handle it.

4. They thought retired military officers - they mentioned Admiral John Crommelin and others - ought not to have the right to use the prefix of Admiral in the Navy or some other prefix such as General in disseminating or speaking their views on this subject. They thought the military ought to prohibit the use of these prefixes in private situations but they, of course, recognized the difficulties in restricting and controlling this sort of thing.

5. They felt in carrying out any plan it should be done by them in a quiet manner without any publicity. They said over the years they have been gathering information concerning organizations of this type as well as subversive and fascist groups, and they have furnished literally thousands of reports to the FBI, G-2, and ONI on the information which has been developed by them and through the facilities of their organization.

6. They plan to concentrate on three or four of the most notorious groups at the present time and felt that they might be able to come up with some interesting information if they were able to get their sources infiltrated into these groups. They said any information they would get would be turned over to the FBI.

In connection with the above, they appeared to be quite interested in obtaining the names of any persons we could suggest who might be able to assist them in getting into these organizations. They did not name the organizations. I took time to carefully explain that I was aware of their desire to be furnished such information and that I knew of no one at this time whom I could suggest for such a task. They still indicated an interest, however, in knowing of anyone if it should come to our attention in the future.

They also said that they had talked to Judge Walsh in the past and they knew that the FBI was keeping in close touch with the situation. Engel, the president, indicated his brother presently lives in Birmingham and is a friend of the Chief of Police and information had been brought to their attention concerning the activities of some of those persons who were responsible for disseminating hate literature. They mentioned Stoner, Allen, attorney Venable (he is in Atlanta) and knew that the FBI was aware of these activities.

The above represents the sense of the meeting. They were most cordial, most praiseworthy of the Director for allowing their group to be heard, expressed their admiration for communications which had been sent by the Director to them on previous occasions, carefully indicated they did not want to do anything which we might object to, wanted the Bureau to clearly understand their purposes and objectives. These people are substantial citizens as has been indicated in the memorandum prepared concerning them. They can be guided if the occasion arises on select subject matter in the event it is necessary to call upon them in the future. They indicated they were anxious to do something constructive but to do it with restraint and in the exercise of good judgment and common sense. They recognized that whatever they did should produce specific results and not create further hysteria.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN:

No further action need be taken.

A very worthwhile attitude. Send memo to A.G. & Walsh.

Allen Goodrich, General Counsel, American Jewish Committee Against Communism, called Mr. DeLoach again on 10/14/58. Mr. Goodrich called on 10/13/58 and inquired as to information concerning the Atlanta bombing. He was told that we could not give out any other facts than what had been given in the original White House press release. On 10/14/58, Mr. Goodrich wanted to know if we had any facts concerning the Peoria, Illinois, bombing. He was told that we could make no comment at this time other than to state that we were running down out-of-state leads for the police, that the facilities of our Laboratory and Identification Divisions had been made available, and that the Special Agent in Charge of our Springfield Office had been at the scene of the crime and was keeping in close touch with the police so that every possible assistance could be given.

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED DATE 11/16/84 BY 9145 DU/SB 237047

Goodrich wanted to know if the Director could meet with officials of his organization from New York in the near future. He was told that the Director's schedule was extremely tight at this time in view of the two mentioned cases and other cases of great magnitude. He then wanted to know if DeLoach could meet with these people. He was told that we would, of course, be happy to see his group at any time, but that there was no information available that we could give them at this time in view of the pending nature of the cases. He was asked if they had been in contact with the police in Atlanta and Peoria. He replied in the negative and stated they preferred to keep in touch with the FBI regarding these matters.

Mr. Goodrich was told that we, of course, keep in touch with Joey Woolfson, the principal liaison officer of the American Jewish Committee Against Communism. Woolfson is a prominent Legionnaire and has been very cooperative. Goodrich stated that Woolfson might drop down to see us in the near future. He was advised that Woolfson would be very welcome.

I will have DeLoach see Woolfson if he comes to town. There will be no difficulty involved inasmuch as Woolfson is very friendly and cooperative.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

October 24-26, 1958

STATEMENT ON RECENT ACTS OF LAWLESSNESS

Resolution adopted by the American Jewish Committee

386 4th Ave NY 16 N.Y.

Within the recent past, Americans have witnessed isolated threats and outbreaks of bigotry. Such lawlessness knows no regional boundaries and respects no groups. With each unpunished act it becomes further emboldened.

President Eisenhower spoke for all citizens of conscience in his swift and unequivocal condemnation of the most recent outrages in Atlanta and Peoria. His forthright statement and his summons to the nation's law enforcement agencies have done much to reassure all peoples, at home and abroad, that terrorism is no part of democracy. For this action, he deserves the highest commendation.

The recent lawlessness has fired the determination of our fellow citizens to halt these assaults that endanger human lives, disrupt the tranquillity of many communities and diminish our country's stature in the eyes of the world.

Speed is here of the essence. For lawlessness unstemmed can spread violence throughout the nation. We therefore urge the appropriate agencies of the government to press forward their investigations. Voluntary organizations of citizens must continue in every effective manner to alert all Americans to the dangers of bigotry and violence. These efforts must be pursued unflinchingly until the instigators and perpetrators are apprehended, the threat to internal security removed, and confidence in law and order restored.

REC. 33

Dear Mr. Engel:

EX-135

I wanted to take this opportunity to thank you for the bound set of "For Your Information," the American Jewish Committee's monthly newsletter on hatemongering and other divisive activities. This compilation will prove very helpful to the FBI and it was most thoughtful of you to furnish this material.

Apropos of our conversation, I know you have been closely following the efforts launched by Communists, hatemongers and other unsavory groups in their attack upon the FBI and Mr. Hoover. They all attempt parallel tactics in their programs. They resort to distortion, deceit and utilize every opportunity to disseminate misinformation in the form of innuendoes and smears. Their aim is to discredit the FBI and its accomplishments and to attempt to minimize the efforts of those who seek to expose their insidious propaganda and their subversive purposes.

Because of your concern in this matter, I am taking the liberty of enclosing a series of excerpts from the Congressional Record and other sources which I hope you will find of interest.

With kindest personal regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Rosen:

Herewith forwarded to you is a bound set of For Your Information, the American Jewish Committee's monthly newsletter on hatemongering and other divisive activities.

In reviewing these issues of F.Y.I., it occurred to me that, in line with our conversation in your office some months ago, this compilation might prove very helpful to you and to the Bureau. As you will note, a recently prepared index is included.

We are continuing our concern with the problem along the lines discussed with you personally.

With kindest regards, I am,

Cordially yours,

I talked with George Kellman who is employed by the American Jewish Committee and is in charge of fact-finding for the Committee. He came by on June 3, 1959, merely to pay his respects.

He covered in general his interest in the work of the Committee and the excellent work of the Bureau. He again stated the interest of the Committee to be of whatever assistance it could. He referred to excerpts which I had given to Attorney Nathan Goodrich, Washington representative of the Committee. He said that he was familiar with these excerpts and that he knew the smear campaign by the New York Post was discussed at the last meeting and that the Committee, without formalizing anything for publication, was actually doing what it could to carry out the unanimous opinion of the Committee that everything possible must be done to insure that the New York Post does not write anything further in derogation of the Bureau and the Director.

Kellman indicated he had been in various sections of the country and he knew that wherever information came to the attention of the Committee which might be of interest to the Bureau, it was being turned over on a local level. He hoped this was satisfactory.

Kellman gave me his telephone number in New York in the event it became necessary to communicate with him. It is Murrayhill 5-0181.

TEEN-AGE NEO-NAZIS APPREHENDED

During the spring, three incidents took place involving high-school youth groups engaged in neo-Nazi activities. A certain degree of similarity can be detected between events reported from New Jersey, Ohio and California.

April: About a dozen youths in the public and parochial high schools of Wayne, N.J., a suburb adjoining Paterson, were discovered to be members of the Nazi Regime of America, a group they had formed some two years previously. A threatening note to a teacher led to their apprehension. Officials discovered among the group's paraphernalia a homemade bomb, a gun, swastika insignia and hand-printed literature. No evidence of direct instigation or support by hatemongers has yet been uncovered. Swift action by local authorities and the FBI resulted in six of the youths being put on probation. Classmates considered the boys "oddballs" and virtually ostracized them.

May: Four Cleveland, O., high-school boys of above-average intelligence confessed they were members of a group known as the Fourth Reich. The avowed objective was to "get rid of Jews and Communists." The leader, addressed by his gang as "Fuehrer," has a genius I.Q. and had prepared a "death list" which included President Eisenhower, among others. Apprehension of these boys was occasioned by investigation of the source of 300 crank calls to the Cleveland office of Bonds for Israel. Several raids also had been made on this office, during which an Israeli flag was ripped and a swastika painted on the wall. Two of the boys were held for observation; two were ordered by the Juvenile Court judge to pay $15 to Bonds for Israel and to write a composition on why American democracy is "the finest form of government in the world." To date, the investigation shows that the Four th Reich seems to be basically a gang of juvenile delinquents. The same group of boys two years ago were joined in a rocket club, disbanded after one of the members was injured. Authorities are still probing for evidence of adult involvement or of links to the New Jersey episode; locally, however, the incident is considered closed. Public mention of incidents such as the outrage to the Bonds for Israel office may encourage other youths in imitating this anti-social behavior, and should be avoided for this reason.

June: A group of about 25 teen-agers were found to be members of a "Nazism club" in Visalia, a city of about 15,000 in central California. The club was uncovered when authorities solved the theft from a private museum of Nazi flags and German war mementoes worth several hundred dollars. Reports indicate some similarities between this group and Cleveland's Fourth Reich. The 17-year-old ringleader, also called "Fuehrer" by his high-school followers, was described by police as an intellectual who was a fanatic about nazism; all the group members came from good families. Club officers used German military titles, and some members comprised an SS corps "in case rough stuff was needed." These "bully boys" cut the initials "SS" into their wrists when they were initiated. Four of the youths were jailed at Tulare County Juvenile Hall on burglary charges.

Despite the wide geographic distance between these groups, similarities in the three cases have led authorities to continue searching for possible connections. So far, there has been no evidence of adult instigation. The incidents appear to reflect a search for new "kicks" by maladjusted teenagers who have latched onto neo-Nazi symbols and ideas to express their defiance of society.

Some observers question in particular the impact of the highly publicized activities of George Lincoln Rockwell, the Arlington, Va., fanatic whose followers sport Nazi regalia and insignia. Rockwell, head of the World Union of Free Enterprise Socialists, publishes Hitler-glorifying, anti-Semitic, pro-Nazi leaflets. A bulletin received from Rockwell's press in July brags:

> Nazi youth groups exist all over the country in the colleges and high schools, with three of them being exposed in the last month alone... (emphasis ours)

J.B. STONER
LAUNCHES FOUR-STATE
KU KLUX KLAN ORGANIZATION

To mark the official opening of a four-state Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan headquarters at 702 Barret Avenue, Louisville, Ky., Imperial Wizard J.B. Stoner held a press conference at the new office. He was interviewed by Clarence L. Matthews, a reporter for The Louisville Defender, a Negro weekly.

Klansman Stoner, a native and resident of Atlanta, Ga., told the Negro writer that his purpose was to revive Klan activity in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois in order to preserve total segregation and "save the white race."

The Christian Knights of the KKK will differ from earlier Klans, Stoner declared, by accepting any white, gentile American, including Catholics and foreign-born. Jews are to be excluded, he explained, since they were the "cause of the trouble between the races."

An attorney, Stoner was Kleagle of the Klan in Chattanooga, Tenn., while still in his teens. In 1948, he formed the Stoner Anti-Jewish Party and ran for Congress on a pledge "to make being a Jew a crime punishable by death." He also headed the Christian Anti-Jewish Party, a group which developed few activities other than the distribution of anti-Semitic literature.

IN BRIEF

Herman S. Reynolds, editor of Kentucky Law News, a mimeographed newsletter published in Louisville, in the May issue warned his readers against "Jewish deceivers"; urged a boycott of an integrated cafeteria; and plugged the Citizens National Law Enforcement Commission, an extremist group headed by racist Millard Dee Crubbs . . . . Another mimeographed paper, Dogwoods Log, devoted its June 19 issue largely to an article, "The Fulfillment of the Prophecies," dealing with the forged "Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion." This newsletter is published in Kannapolis, N.C., a textile town with a population of about 28,000 . . . . Copies of the Argentinian, German-language Der Weg, officially banned in the Federal Republic of Germany, continue to be smuggled into that country. A year ago, Frederick Lenz, a German citizen, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for distributing the monthly together with other anti-Semitic material. An action against Der Weg is before a court in Lueneburg. The Jewish community in Argentina currently has renewed representations to authorities to suppress the publication. . . . "Do You Know," a monthly column feature in the American Mercury, informs readers of the August issue that "Soviet Russia and South Africa, the world's two greatest gold-producing countries, are controlled by Zionists." Another department of the same magazine features a letter from Mary D. Cain, chairman of the Congress of Freedom in Summit, Miss., which says: "American Mercury has been nominated for the Congress of Freedom's Hall of Fame because of its untiring efforts toward restoration of Constitutional government." . . . . A complete issue of Conde McGinley's newspaper, Common Sense, was recently devoted to an article by Benjamin H. Freedman, "Christians Duped by Unholiest Hoax in All History." Also included was an advertisement for Facts Are Facts, a book by Freedman.

SCHOOL OPENINGS TRIGGER ACTIVISTS IN SOUTH

In Little Rock, school began early this year, with token integration in the city's high schools. On August 12, the first day of classes, segregationists gathered to register their resistance; the demonstration was quickly dispersed by authorities. The situation was quiet and orderly until Labor Day, when within an hour three bombings blasted the school board offices, the mayor's private business office and the fire chief's car -- fortunately producing no casualties.

At this writing, five men have been arrested on charges of setting off the explosions. The arrests were made as public indignation over the deterioration of law and order rose to fever pitch in the Arkansas capital. One of the first to be apprehended was E.A. Lauderdale, 48-year-old lumber dealer and a director of the segregationist Capital Citizens Council. Others charged with the bombing are: J.D. Sims, 35, truck driver and Ku Klux Klan member; John Taylor Coggins, 39, automobile salesman; Samuel Graydon Beavers, 49, carpenter employed by the state hospital in Little Rock; and Jessie Raymond Perry, 24, truck driver.

Quantities of hate literature were circulated in Little Rock during the late summer, when tension over school openings was mounting. Conspicuous were broadsides printed by Frank L. Britton, California publisher of the anti-Semitic American Nationalist. A "Message to Little Rock" from Britton advised citizens not to "compromise with these alien Jews who would force your children to mix with Negroes! Do not yield an inch in your determination to keep your schools white! Defeat this Jewish plot to mongrelize your schools!" Another inflammatory item, printed to resemble the familiar "wanted" notice with front-face and profile photographs, was headlined "WANTED for Impeachment — EARL WARREN."

In Miami, two anti-Semitic segregationists attempted unsuccessfully to stir up protests against the September 8 opening of the Orchard Villa School on an integrated basis. Fred B. Hockett, Florida White Citizens Council leader, and J.B. Stoner, Imperial Wizard of the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, based in Louisville, were barred from a news conference in the school because they had no press credentials. Stoner argued that he represented the publication of the notorious National States Rights Party, and declared, "The Jew-controlled press can go in, but I can't because I represent a segregationist group." Originally from Atlanta, Stoner formerly headed a group known as the Christian Anti-Jewish Party.

Throughout the South, the flow of racist, anti-Semitic literature continued unabated, with noticeably large quantities routed to troublespots.

"THE ARAB WORLD" PRAISES AMERICAN FRIENDS.

An admiring description of the American Friends of the Middle East (AFME) appears in the August issue of The Arab World, a slick-paper monthly magazine published in the United States by the Arab Information Center, an agency of the League of Arab States. Entitled "American Friends of the Middle East: a review," the article presents the history, current activities and aims of the eight-year-old organization, originally headed by Dorothy Thompson. Since AFME has received little mention in the U.S. press recently, The Arab World's summary of its present undertaking is of interest. According to the magazine, the following is AFME's present basic framework:

> ... a United States headquarters with several regional offices, and offices in as many Middle Eastern and Islamic countries as possible . . . Cairo, Damascus, Teheran, Karachi, Baghdad, Arab Jerusalem, and Amman. These offices are headed by a Middle East Director located in Cairo, Commander Elmo H. Hutchison . . . . Directing the over-all activities of the organization at present is the Hon. Harold B. Minor, former United States Ambassador to Lebanon.

"The broadest bridge between AFME-overseas and AFME-United States," the article declares, "is formed by the student placement program." AFME has aided students in their choice of colleges and has facilitated the translation of students' academic records. "When the student arrives in the United States, he is encouraged to drop in at AFME headquarters or regional offices for any advice or counseling he may need," The Arab World notes.

IN BRIEF

J.R. English, a 72-year-old accountant, was named resident agent in Arkansas for the U.S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klans, Inc., a job vacated when A.C. Hightower, a Little Rock barber, resigned as grand dragon of the Arkansas branch of the KKK. State law requires each corporation registered with the state to designate some resident to accept legal papers and allied documents for the corporation. Although never a KKK member, English describes himself as "pretty sympathetic with them"; he calls himself an "irritator" and a "113 or 114 per cent segregationist" who works at the cause "8½ or 9 days a week." . . . . A notice in The Georgia Tribune announced that the Louisville, Ky., Ku Klux Klan offers to all contributors bumper stickers reading, "THE KLAN RIDES AGAIN." The appeal explains: "You can put them on your car bumpers. If you can't put them on your own bumpers, you can get high school boys to put them on their car bumpers. They can also be stuck on the side of your house or your windows." . . . . In a pasture in Samsula, Fla., 200 hooded men gathered to hear Florida Klan leaders launch a statewide membership drive to "fight the segregation battle with ballots, not bullets." A motorcade of 83 cars preceded the rally, at which a 15-foot cross was burned. Florida Grand Dragon Jason Kersey said the meeting was the first step in preparation for the 1960 state elections. . . . Every Sunday, from 2:30 to 5:00 p.m., Conde McGinley conducts meetings of the "Patriotic Forum" at Union, N.J., where he publishes Common Sense. "Good Christian Americans Welcome," the admission card reads . . . . McGinley's Christian Educational Association is distributing an anti-fluoridation tract prepared by the La Crosse,

Wisc., Citizens Committee Against Fluoridation. . . . The Thunderbolt, "official Racial Nationalist Organ of the National States Rights Party," runs in its September issue a letter from Utah racist Marilyn Allen to the FBI, in which she scores the Federal agency as "the same kind of powerful, terrifying Secret Police that the Jews operated in Russia, after their Bolshevik conquest of that Country." . . . . In "Termites of the Cross," the October issue of Russell Maguire's American Mercury tries to prove the compatibility of Zionism and Communism. "The most transparent myth which the Zionist-controlled press has foisted upon the American people," the article states, "is the myth that Communism is anti-Semitic and that Jews are persecuted in the USSR."

Vol. IV, No. 12, December, 1959

APPRAISAL OF 1959

Organized anti-Semitic activity showed no appreciable rise or fall during the year. As in 1958, the main effort of virtually every active bigot was to inflame anti-Negro sentiment in the South and to stoke the fire with anti-Semitism. One notable change for the better was the marked abatement of the violence which had characterized 1958. The emphasis was on literature: quantities of leaflets, periodicals and pamphlets flooded every Southern community disturbed by tensions over desegregation. The Southerner was told that "the Jews and Communists" are trying to "mongrelize" the population as part of a plan to control the nation.

As usual, the hate propagandists tossed out their line in many directions. They continued to use Arab-Israel tensions as a timely context for impugning the loyalty of American Jews and depicting Israel as the seat of "Jewish and Communist world-power." They also persisted in airing perennial canards of anti-Semitism while denouncing the United Nations, the income tax amendment, fluoridation of water, mental health programs and, to a lesser degree, this year, Salk polio vaccine. Finally, there was a marked inclination to dredge up and recirculate "documents" long ago discredited as fraudulent -- The Protocols, sinister "reports" of rabbinical conclaves, "Talmud exposes," "letters" attributed to famous figures in early American history, and other forgeries.

TROUBLE IN THE SOUTH

Hate literature for circulation in the South arrived, for the most, in bulk shipments from other parts of the country. The items most often in evidence originated from Frank L. Britton and Gerald L.K. Smith (California), and Conde McGinley (New Jersey). Distribution was handled by local "wholesalers" -- white supremacists, including Klansmen and members of the more extreme Citizens Councils.

After the Synagogue Bombings

The shock and fear generated by the series of synagogue bombings during 1958 died down by the early part of this year. Although some threats to Jewish institutions and individuals were reported, no bombings occurred during 1959.

The year-long period of comparative quiet was doubtless due mainly to the swift public reaction to the bombing of The Temple in Atlanta -- a general recognition of the threat to law and order and to the sanctity of houses of worship. Of the five defendants charged with complicity in this outrage, only one, George Michael Bright, has been brought to trial. His first trial ended in December, 1958, with a hung jury. On January 23, 1959, he was retried and acquitted after a brief deliberation. During November, another defendant, Richard Bowling, was arrested for speeding; police found two revolvers next to him on the front seat of the car. At the end of the year, there was no indication that the defendants still under indictment for the bombing would be brought to trial.

National States Rights Party — Striving to become a clearing house of information for hate-mongers, NSRP, an amalgam of Northern and Southern fanatics, increased its propaganda and political activities. Thus, the party's monthly publication, The Thunderbolt, bragged that "the Atlanta case was a triumph of concerted effort by NSRP, together with allied patriotic groups." NSRP continued to promote a "grass-roots draft" of Rear Admiral John G. Crommelin (USN, ret.), for president on a third-party ticket in 1960. A verbal attack on J. Edgar Hoover and the FBI was launched. By October, a streamlined Thunderbolt was campaigning for funds to support its appearance on a semi-monthly basis, and for a wider circulation.

Ku Klux Klan — Although still divided into competing groups, the Klans continued to stage demonstrations, campaigns and cross-burnings. Some 1,500 persons attended a June rally at Plant City, Fla.; the same number turned out in September for a demonstration at Stone Mountain, Ga. Throughout Alabama, Klan activity was high. In Birmingham, a motorcade of 40 carloads of Klansmen drove to cross-burnings in front of a church and two homes in July; eleven more crosses flared in September in front of Birmingham's white schools -- presumably to frighten Negro children from applying for admission. The Alabama Klan erected "welcome" signs on Federal and state highways at the approaches to Bessemer, Birmingham, Gadsden, Heflin, Monroeville, Montgomery, Prattville, Selma, Sylacauga, and Tuscaloosa.

Two new Klan units were established in June. In Louisville, Ky., J.B. Stoner announced the formation of the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan with himself as "Imperial Wizard." Stoner formerly headed the Christian Anti-Jewish Party in Atlanta, and was a Kleagle in Chattanooga, Tenn. As the year ended, his Louisville venture had made so little progress that he all but abandoned it. The second new group was the Arkansas Ku Klux Klan, organized by A.C. Hightower, a little Rock barber. As Grand Dragon, Hightower announced his Klan would "practice cross-burnings"; but when trouble brewed in Little Rock over desegregation, he resigned to avoid legal responsibility for the acts of Klansmen over whom he had no control. J.R. English, an elderly accountant, became legal resident agent of the group, although denying that he himself was a member. The authority of the new Arkansas Klan was challenged at its inception by R.E. Davis of Dallas, Tex., who claimed jurisdiction over the region, describing himself as National Imperial Dragon, Knights of the Original KKK.

The largest group in the movement was still Eldon L. Edwards' U.S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga. The smallest was the Aryan Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, one-man operation of Horace Sherman Miller of Waco, Tex., a prolific publisher of anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic leaflets.

White Citizens Councils

With overall membership estimated at 300,000 to 500,000, the White Citizens Council movement remained a loosely organized network of autonomous local units. Most Citizens Councils dropped "White" from their names. Activity and membership increased in communities where desegregation moves were taking place, and fell off as tensions relaxed. The nature of Council units covered a wide range. While some earned reputations of respectability in their communities, others were flagrantly extremist and concentrated on spreading anti-Semitic literature throughout the South.

In September, Fred B. Hockett of the Florida White Citizens Council led an unsuccessful attempt to mobilize opposition to the desegregation of the Orchard Villa School in Miami.

In October, Parson Jack Johnston, editor of the anti-Semitic, pro-Klan Georgia Tribune, announced formation of a Citizens Council of Georgia, with an Atlanta unit in operation and plans underway to set up units in each of the state's ten Congressional districts.

Despite the absence of its leader, Frederick John Kasper, who was serving a prison term from July to mid-December, the fanatic Seaboard White Citizens Council kept busy in Washington, D. C. and the northern Virginia area. Kasper faces still another six-month term for his part in disorders during the school desegregation crisis at Nashville, Tenn., in 1957.

Little Rock

On August 12, Little Rock's Central High School opened with re-integrated classes. Effective police action quelled a demonstration. The city was flooded with inflammatory literature: for example, Frank L. Britton's Message to Little Rock urged the reader to "defeat this Jewish plot to mongrelize your schools." Tensions seethed until Labor Day, when three bombs exploded within one hour, blasting the school board offices, the mayor's private business office and the fire chief's car. Of the five men arrested in September, three were later convicted of destroying public property with explosives. The defendants were sentenced to terms ranging from three to five years.

John G. Crommelin — The retired Admiral ran in Montgomery's Democratic mayoralty primaries in March, polling one-tenth of the 17,000 votes cast. Crommelin's Platform, used not only for local campaigning purposes but for out-of-state propaganda mailings as well, declared that "the key to segregation of the races and the ultimate survival of the Christian White Race is a thorough understanding by White Christian voters of the communist-Jewish conspiracy. . . ." The Admiral was listed again this year as a stockholder of the Christian Educational Association of Union, N.J., which publishes Conde McGinley's Common Sense.

George Lincoln Rockwell — As Commander of the World Union of Free Enterprise National Socialists (WUFENS), Rockwell conducted a Nazi-style propaganda operation in Arlington, Va., using the house and press purchased for him in 1958 by Harold Noel Arrowsmith, Jr. of Baltimore. Small groups of uniformed youth met frequently here.

NEO-NAZI YOUTH ACTIVITIES

During the spring, three secret groups of high-school boys were uncovered in New Jersey, Ohio and California: "The Nazi Regime of America," "The Fourth Reich," and a "Nazism Club." In each case, the boys used Nazi titles, slogans and insignia. During August, Richard V. Smith, Jr., an 18-year-old Georgia boy, was apprehended for setting fire to a private art museum and painting swastikas in two synagogues. Described by police as "an avid follower of the Nazi doctrines of Adolph Hitler," he was sentenced to six to ten years for arson. In October, a "Nazi storm troop" of high-school boys was uncovered in Alexandria, Va., when police investigated the fire-bombing and anti-Semitic defacement of a city official's home. No relationship between these groups has been established.

EXPLOITING ARAB-ISRAEL TENSIONS

U. S. anti-Semites kept using pro-Arab propaganda as a vehicle, equating communism with Zionism and charging American Jews and Jewish organizations with a conspiracy against the United States. Bigot literature protrayed fund-raising appeals for Israel as sinister, and made frequent insinuations of dual loyalty.

Material emanating from official Arab sources, however, generally confined its enmity to "the Zionists," Israel and Israeli Jews, carefully skirting outright bigotry. One exception was an extremist article on Arab-Israel issues which appeared in the January 15 Common Sense under the byline of Sami Hadawi, assistant director of the Palestine Refugee Office.

APPEALING TO RIGHT-WING EXTREMISTS

The National Economic Council Letter, addressing itself to readers with extreme right-wing views on social and economic issues, again reflected the anti-Jewish bias of its editor, Merwin K. Hart. In March Hart defended The Protocols against denunciation by columnist Joseph Alsop, and in April he challenged the authenticity of The Diary of Anne Frank.

City planning came in for heavy assault during 1959, with organized hatemongers playing on fears of communism, integration and one-world government as they tried to defeat projects for consolidating obsolete governmental units into single metropolitan systems. Don Bell, anti-Semitic publicist of Palm Beach, Fla., issued an elaborate pamphlet, Terrible 1313, which reprinted Upton Close's vilification of one regional plan as a conspiracy of international bankers. At its Minneapolis convention in May, the National Planning Association cited Frederick John Kasper, Don Bell and other bigots as leaders of a concerted hate campaign.

Stepped-up political activity is anticipated in the near future. During Presidential election years, anti-Semites generally increase their efforts to insert themselves and their propaganda into national campaigns and issues. It is likely that they will pursue these aims in 1960, mainly through attempts to influence reactionaries, states-righters and pro-segregationists.

A REVIEW OF THE LITERATURE

The output of the anti-Semitic press in 1959 matched the previous year's high. Leaders in volume and circulation were: Frank L. Britton's The American Nationalist and one-sheet leaflets, Conde McGinley's Common Sense, and Gerald L.K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag. Smith and McGinley also stocked the longest lists of anti-Semitic items available for mail-order sales. Among the many periodicals still issued regularly were: Lyrl Van Hyning's Women's Voice, Elizabeth Dilling's Bulletin, Leonard E. Feeney's The Point, Rev. J.A. Lovell's The Kingdom Digest, and Charles Smith's The Truth Seeker. In the general magazine field, New York industrialist Russell Maguire injected heavy doses of anti-Semitism into his monthly magazine, The American Mercury; in the September issue, for example, an article entitled "The World Wide Betrayal" offered a "Chronology of the Zionist Master Plan for World Domination." A large selection of reprints was advertised in each issue.

THE SWASTIKA FUROR: A REVIEW AND ANALYSIS

Six weeks have passed since Christmas, when the shocking news of swastikas defacing a synagogue in Cologne, West Germany, set off a world-wide epidemic of similar outrages. The wave has diminished somewhat, although it has not entirely subsided.

On February 6, two 25-year-old men were convicted by a German court for the initial Cologne desecration and were sentenced to jail terms of 10 and 14 months. Although the prosecution argued that the culprits had acted at the instigation of the Nazi-oriented German Reich Party, proof was deemed insufficient to override the defendants' denials.

At this writing, more than 1,000 incidents have been reported -- from such widely separated cities as Melbourne, Hong Kong, Tokyo, Johannesburg, Sao Paolo, Paris, Rome, Oslo, Vienna and Athens. The catalogue of outrages includes threatening telephone calls and letters, smashed windows, bombings and arson, as well as ubiquitous smearings of symbols and slogans. Jewish property has been the main target, but fanatic acts have also marred Catholic and Protestant churches, public monuments, schools, streets, government buildings, subway and rail stations, private homes and cemeteries.

With the exception of West Germany, the United States was clearly the hardest hit. Since January 3, desecrations have been reported daily here -- principally from large cities like New York, Boston, Chicago and Los Angeles, and also from smaller communities in the western and central states.

In recent weeks, the nature of the outbreak in the U.S. has changed. While the volume of swastika-daubings seems to be tapering off, more instances of serious destruction have occurred, and the number of telephone threats have increased. During the week of January 25, two synagogues were bombed, a third was defaced, and firemen found swastikas and Stars of David scrawled on the walls of a burning public school in Fairlawn, N. J.

NAZI SYMBOLS ATTRACT JUVENILE DELINQUENTS

To date, U.S. police have picked up and questioned more than 60 suspects. The overwhelming majority are teen-agers; a few as young as 10, a few in their twenties.

According to police, many offenders were simply imitating the acts so luridly described in newspapers and on radio and TV. A 16-year-old Long Island boy, who confessed smearing his friendly next-door neighbor's house, explained that he had "read and heard all about these people painting swastikas on Jewish people's houses and synagogues. That gave me the idea, but I don't know what made me do it." More restrained treatment of the "swastika furor" by the mass media during recent weeks reflects a general recognition that imitation is an essential motivating factor in this type of anti-social behavior.

Other teen-agers, however, were behaving more purposefully. A number of incidents were linked to the activities of secret Nazi youth groups, which have sprung up during the past year in high schools throughout the nation.

The appeal of Nazi symbolism to unstable youth has been recognized for many years. While rebellious boys hardly understand the full meaning of nazism, they do know that swastikas, thunderbolts, storm-troop daggers and similar trappings are held in abhorrence by their elders. Mail-order houses and retailers sell Nazi regalia as "replicas" or "war souvenirs" to boys who get a kick out of wearing these trappings.

The following episodes occurred during January.

Kansas City, Mo. A bomb caused extensive damage to Temple Kehillath Israel, one of several synagogues which had been defaced with swastikas. The explosion occurred shortly after police had rounded up a dozen youths suspected of membership in a neo-Nazi movement which has an estimated membership of 80 high-school boys and was found to possess a stock of Nazi brassards and other storm troop regalia. No connection has been established between the bombing and the youth organization, but two leaders did admit to having painted the swastikas.

Flushing, N. Y. Three youths were apprehended for organizing a neo-Nazi group which they called the National American Socialist Renaissance Party. A search of the room of leader John Wallace, 21, yielded membership cards bearing the infamous SS lightning insignia, as well as anti-Semitic literature, Nazi regalia and recordings of Hitler's speeches. Wallace and two lieutenants, aged 20 and 16, were ordered by a magistrate to face charges of treason, conspiracy and disorderly conduct; the treason charge was later dropped. Trial of the three now awaits the results of medical reports on two who were committed for observation. Wallace's ideas clearly had been influenced by James H. Madole, old-time neo-Nazi leader who heads the National Renaissance Party in New York City's Yorkville section. Madole's own organization started a "storm-troop" youth group several years ago.

Detroit, Mich. The National Socialist German Sympathizers Labor Party, discovered by police investigating swastika incidents, turned out to be a group of children aged 12, 13 and 14. The youngsters confessed to several acts of defacement.

New York, N. Y. Three young men, 17, 20 and 21, were arrested in Union Square for giving the Nazi salute and shouting "Heil Hitler!" at the close of an anti-Nazi meeting. Each received 90 days for disorderly conduct. Investigation showed all had been in contact with anti-Semitic agitators and publicists.

Episodes which had occurred in different localities in 1959, uncovered a number of Nazi-type youth groups, such as the Nazi Regime of America, in a suburb of Paterson, N. J.; a "Nazism Club" in Visalia, Calif.; and a "Nazi Storm Troop" in Alexandria, Va.

Significant are the recent activities of pro-Nazi pamphleteer George Lincoln Rockwell of Arlington, Va. A man in his 40's, Rockwell heads the World Union of the Free Enterprise National Socialists and the American Nazi Party. As "commander" of his organization, Rockwell surrounds himself with a group of youths attired in Nazi gear, who distribute his swastika-emblazoned literature in Washington, D. C. A July bulletin by Rockwell reported that "Nazi youth groups exist all over the country in the colleges and high schools." On February 8, the U.S. Navy revoked Rockwell's active reserve commission "because of his civilian activities."

CAUSES AND CONCLUSIONS

Many observers believe that the initial West German episodes were inspired by organized neo-Nazi elements, included emigré Hungarian and Slavic fascists. Others stress that the new outbreaks in country after country were sparked by the coordinated efforts of a small but well-knit network of fanatical racists. Additional theories charge instigation by Communists or by Arab and Nazi extremists in Nasser's Cairo government.

It seems highly probable that organized activity was responsible for some of the initial acts which set the swastika furor in motion, but that the mainstream of activity after the trigger incidents was unorganized -- imitative acts by young delinquents and a few psychotics.

Throughout the world, civic leaders and national spokesmen have demonstrated a vigorous determination to counteract the rash of bigotry. West German officialdom was rudely jolted, as critics pointed to the ignorance of German youth about the history of the Hitler era, and to government policies which permit former Nazis to occupy important positions. At a conference with the German ambassador in Washington on January 5, AJC leaders stressed the need for major reforms. The responsive actions of the Adenauer government have been heartening.

Finally, the outbreak has demonstrated that acts of abuse and destruction are contagious. The close relationship between Nazi-like outrages and juvenile delinquency has intensified public concern. Today, more than ever, there is a sharp awareness of the need to rout these twin evils.

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised through the Joint Defense Appeal.

ALABAMA
ATROCITY

On Friday night, March 25, during the dedication of a school wing at Temple Beth El in Gadsden, Alabama, a teen-age boy fumbled an attempt to bomb the Reform temple with two home-made "Molotov cocktails." Before fleeing the scene in his stepfather's car, the youth opened fire with a .22 rifle on the first two men who ran out of the building. He shot one in the chest, wounding him critically, and inflicted a hand injury on the other. Condemnation by civic and religious leaders, the press and the public was immediate and vigorous. An interfaith service, called by the Gadsden City Commission, took place at Temple Beth El on April 1, just a week after the outrage.

The youth was a 16-year-old schoolboy. Although his legal name is Hubert Sherrill Jackson, Jr., he is known in the community as Jerry Hunt, having adopted his stepfather's surname some years ago. Apprehended within hours, Hunt is being held without bail on two counts of assault with intent to murder. Police discovered in the car three boxes of ammunition, a machete, two large knives, a can of gasoline and rags.

Hunt earned a reputation as an "oddball" in school. In the seventh grade, he started a Nazi club with six classmates; they soon dropped out and the boy found it "impossible to be a club all by yourself." Recently angered by schoolmates who taunted him for wearing a swastika armband, Hunt reportedly swore he would exchange his life "for a bunch of Jewish lives." Several days before the shootings, he told several students he intended to bomb the Temple; a few hours before acting on his threat, he invited some friends to come along.

KAMP ANALYZES
"SWASTIKA SPREE"

In the first propaganda item he has issued in many months, Joseph P. Kamp lengthily propounds the thesis that the recent swastika epidemic was set off by Communists and inflamed by Jewish organizations. A 40-page compendium of familiar smears, The Bigots Behind The Swastika Spree imputes sinister plots to major Jewish groups, minimizes Nazi activities abroad and demands an immediate Congressional investigation.

Now about 60, Kamp has a long history as a hate propagandist. From 1933 to 1936, he served as executive editor of The Awakener, a periodical recommended by the Nazi propaganda sheet World Service, then published in eight languages. Among his fellow-editors were Lawrence Dennis, author of The Coming American Fascism and presently publisher of The Appeal to Reason; and Harold Lord Varney, now an editor of Russell Maguire's anti-Semitic monthly, The American Mercury. Kamp stood trial twice after he refused in 1944 to give the House Campaign Expenditures Committee a list of contributors to his organization, the Constitutional Educational League. The Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the conviction, and in 1950 Kamp began his sentence. Also in 1950, Kamp was again cited for contempt, this time for refusing to turn over contributors' names to the House Select Lobbying Activities Committee. Convicted by a Federal Court jury in 1951, Kamp was retried after an appeal and acquitted of the charges. In 1949, the Illinois Department of the American Legion, through its Americanism Commission, described the activities of Kamp's League. As quoted by the Congressional Record, the Legion report called his literature "pamphleteering. . . .to create religious hostility," and labeled the League a "personal vehicle of Kamp's which sells its pamphlets at profiteering prices in order to insure a good living for him."

Kamp's pamphlets have attacked the Y.W.C.A., the New Deal, organized labor, the United Nations and the Eisenhower Administration. During the 1952 Presidential campaign, a Kamp blast implied that General Eisenhower was backed by Jews and sympathetic to Communists; this charge was circulated in some 100,000 copies of a special issue of Kamp's periodical, Headlines. During the 1958 California gubernatorial campaign, national political controversy erupted over a Kamp pamphlet attacking labor leader Walter Reuther. Mrs. William P. Knowland, wife of the Republican candidate, who had helped circulate the pamphlet, publicly disclaimed awareness of the author's background. National chairmen of both major parties repudiated Kamp and his writings.

TEXAS FOUNDATION
FINDS IT DIFFICULT TO GIVE MONEY AWAY

The Texas Educational Association, a foundation set up in 1949 by the late George W. Armstrong, millionaire hate-pamphleteer of Fort Worth, Tex., and Natchez, Miss., recently attracted public notice by offering financial aid to public schools in the Southwest. The Corpus Christi schools are reported to have turned down a $5,000 check after a controversy over the matter. Aside from general misgivings -- fears that private subsidy might impair the independence of the public school -- many Southwesterners doubtless recalled the national storm of protest in 1949 when Armstrong's offer of valuable oil rights to Jefferson Military College in Natchez was rejected because of racial and religious discriminatory conditions he placed upon its acceptance.

During 1959, according to Armstrong's son, the Texas Educational Association dispensed $150,000, individual gifts ranging from $5,000 to $10,000. Officials of the Association are his son, George W. Armstrong, Jr.; Y.Q. McCammon; and General George Van Horn Moseley, an old friend of the senior Armstrong.

Moseley -- often termed "dean of the anti-Semitic movement in the United States" -- has been an active promulgator of racist ideas for more than two decades. He first appeared on the scene in pre-Pearl Harbor days, urging that all refugees coming to the United States be sterilized. The Dies Committee exposed his links with pro-Nazi and pro-Fascist groups in 1939. The late Gerald Winrod published Moseley's version of his statement to the Dies Committee. In recent years, Moseley has turned to Conde McGinley for a literary outlet. Thus, an entire Moseley pamphlet, Fightum, ran in Common Sense (February 1, 1957); signed articles by Moseley are featured in the paper (May 1, 1957; September 15, 1957; April 15, 1959; November 1, 1959).

NEW LITERATURE

Vistas '59, paperback book authored and published by Johan Schoeman of Pretoria, South Africa, offers a collection of scurrilous anti-Semitic canards, printed in both English and Afrikaans. On the last page, Schoeman urges readers to "Write to the addresses below for any book . . . on the problems of today." He lists Common Sense, Gerald L.K. Smith and Britons Publications Society . . . . The May issue of the Klan Bulletin, issued in mid-March, contains an application blank informing prospective members of the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Louisville, Ky., that initiation fees are $10 for men and $5 for women and applicants under 21. J.B. Stoner is editor of the bulletin and imperial wizard of the Klan group . . . . Crudely mimeographed literature from the Citizens National Law Enforcement Commission states that the organization was established "to see that our criminal laws are enforced against . . . Zionist-Jewish demons who masterminded the world Communist plot." Millard D. Grubbs of Louisville, Ky., is listed as chairman; Ned A. Harman of Wetumpka, Ala., as secretary.

ADMIRAL CROMMELIN RUNS AGAIN

Although the incumbent Senator, John J. Sparkman, won handily in Alabama's Senatorial primary on May 3, there were 51,591 votes for Admiral John G. Crommelin (Ret.), the avowedly racist candidate on the three-man slate. Crommelin came in second, garnering almost 13 per cent of the total vote. In Montgomery County, where Crommelin maintains one of his two homes, he registered a striking improvement over an earlier campaign by winning 28 per cent of the County total. The final score:

Crommelin's campaign was less energetic than his past efforts. Nevertheless, in the three months preceding the primary, he made a dozen paid TV appearances over local stations, principally in Montgomery; he toured the state, particularly the northern section, in an automobile fitted with a loudspeaker; he also claims to have made about 40 stump speeches. Most of the 200,000 items of campaign literature which he distributed were produced by Crommelin himself.

The present primary is the latest in a series of political races Crommelin has undertaken since his retirement from the Navy in 1950 and the start of his hatemongering activities.

Political Ups and Downs

In 1956, when Crommelin opposed Senator Lister Hill for the Democratic Senatorial nomination, he received 112,000 votes to Hill's 240,000 -- 31.8 per cent of the total, the best he has done to date. Some discount the significance of this high percentage, claiming that Crommelin was known at that time more as a naval hero than as an anti-Semitic propagandist. Others point out that Crommelin did clearly identify himself as an anti-Semite through his speeches, which harped on "The Hidden Force" and "Zionist conspiracy" themes, and through the scurrilous "campaign literature" he distributed -- the output of Conde McGinley and other hatemongers.

In 1958, running twelfth in a 14-man race for the gubernatorial nomination, Crommelin scored his lowest tally -- 2,200 votes out of 618,000, or .003 per cent of the total.

In 1959, the bigoted candidate improved his local political standing in a four-way race for nomination as mayor of Montgomery. With 1,760 votes out of 17,330, he rolled up more than 10 per cent of the total. He was heard on radio and TV, and his racist campaign literature and platform were widely distributed.

Career of Bigotry

Crommelin has not hesitated to identify himself with the most notorious of the hatemongers. He is listed as a stockholder of the Christian Educational Association of Union, N. J., which publishes Conde McGinley's Common Sense. He appeared as a character witness for John Kasper at the young firebrand's 1956 trial for fomenting racial disturbances in Clinton, Tenn. He has spoken under the auspices of Gerald L. K. Smith. He was one of the first to publicly endorse Iron Curtain Over America, a vicious anti-Semitic diatribe written by Southern Methodist University Professor John O. Beaty, now retired.

In the framework of his recurrent theme - "The Hidden Force" - Crommelin has attacked "the Jews"; warned against "Zionist individuals"; quoted the infamous Benjamin Franklin forgery; distorted the sacred Hebrew "Kol Nidre" prayer into a diabolical conspiratorial device; and imputed sinister significance to the fact that three AJC leaders -- Irving M. Engel, Herbert H. Lehman and Joseph M. Proskauer -- all came from Alabama. "If that is anti-Semitism," Crommelin concluded after voicing the last-mentioned charge, "you may say that I am an anti-Semite."

THE KU KLUX KLAN IN 1960

Ku Klux Klan activity is on the increase. Even though the hooded fraternities are still split into vying groups and sub-groups, the movement appears to expand, accordion-like, as new desegregation moves take place in areas where Klan nuclei exist.

A well-planned "show of strength" took place on March 28, 1960, when more than 100 crosses were lit in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. The one-night demonstration was concentrated, for the most, in an area encircling the town of Anniston, Ala. Coincidentally, it was in nearby Gadsden, Ala., the night before, that a Nazi-obsessed teen-ager had wantonly shot two members of a synagogue after an abortive attempt to bomb the house of worship.

Acts of Terror

Since the beginning of the year, cross-burnings, demonstrations and other Klan activities have been reported from the South and from non-Southern areas of the United States. Even abroad, there have been recent Klan-like incidents.

Feb. 22, Montgomery, Ala.: a Jewish merchant finds a KKK sign posted on his door, along with an invitation to leave town.

Mar. 17, Los Angeles, Cal.: a cross burns on the lawn of a Negro disc-jockey.

Mar. 28, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina: more than 100 crosses are ignited in the four-state area described above.

Apr. 2, Lewisburg, Pa.: a 20-foot cross flares in front of a fraternity house whose membership includes three Negroes.

Apr. 10, Macon, Ga.: a motorcade of more than 100 cars wind through the city streets.

Apr. 18, London, England: a flaming cross is erected on a railroad bridge in the Notting Hill section, locale of racist incidents for more than two years. Many past disturbances were sparked by followers of Fascist leader Oswald Moseley, who has been exploiting the influx of West Indian Negroes to the area.

Mar. 22, Macon, Ga.: a red-bulbed, electric cross is erected ceremoniously in front of a house occupied by three Negro families, recent arrivals in a formerly all-white neighborhood.

Apr. 23, Indianapolis, Ind.: four teenagers are apprehended for setting a cross aflame in the yard of a Negro family's home.

May 1, Montgomery, Ala.: 500 hooded Klansmen stage a political rally in a rented field illuminated by a fiery cross and red flares. The leaflets distributed at the meeting promote "states' rights" candidates for Presidential electors.

Organizational Chaos

The Klan still remains a loosely woven movement rather than a cohesive organization. Several Imperial Wizards and many Grand Dragons continue to assert sovereignty over private preserves in Klandom.

In Alabama, for instance, a schism is taking place. Grand Dragon Robert M. Shelton of the Alabama Realm of the U.S. Klans was recently dismissed from his office by Imperial Wizard Eldon L. Edwards, chief of the U.S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, which has its headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. Replacing Shelton as Grand Dragon of the Alabama unit is the Rev. Alvin Horn of Talledaga, Ala., a 48-year-old past officer who, three years before, had resigned under pressure after his marriage to a 15-year-old girl. Shelton is launching a rival group, the Alabama Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. Klansmen have been heard to say that from week to week they didn't know which Klan they belonged to.

The confusion spreads beyond Alabama. R. E. Davis of Dallas is making headway in organizing a Texas Klan. H.J. Jones of Jonesboro, Ga., has announced himself as Imperial Wizard of a new KKK and claims a membership of 42,000 in 17 states. Some would-be Klan leaders meet with little or no success. So far, J.B. Stoner, a long-time anti-Semitic agitator who last year launched the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, is finding the going difficult. He now invites Catholics to join his faltering group. A.C. Hightower, Little Rock KKK leader, abandoned his post for fear of becoming "involved" as school desegregation tensions mounted. Probably the smallest unit of the hooded fraternity is the Aryan Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, virtually a one-man enterprise run at Waco, Tex., by a retired semi-invalid, Horace Sherman Miller. Miller's unit compensates for lack of membership by mass pamphleteering. Inflammatory leaflets from Waco have caused concern in such widely separated places as Buenos Aires, Santiago and Vienna.

These are merely a few examples of the numerous Klan organizations and splinter groups in existence. Clearly, it is impossible to speculate with any accuracy on overall Klan strength. Estimates of membership range from 10,000 to as high as 100,000.

NEW HEADQUARTERS FOR NATIONAL STATES RIGHTS PARTY

The National States Rights Party, political haven for an assortment of anti-Semitic and anti-Negro agitators, is moving headquarters from Jefferson, Ind., to Birmingham, Ala., in an effort to attract a larger following. An announcement in the June issue of the Party publication, The Thunderbolt, declared that before moving, the group had "made an extensive survey of every major city in America." NSRP concluded that the "local /Birmingham/ populace want our movement" because, among other reasons, "it is made up of a tough industrial working class, determined that race-mixing will never take hold of the city."

According to NSRP, quarters for the supporters of retired Admiral John G. Crommelin are included in plans for the new Birmingham offices; Crommelin is a perennial candidate in Alabama, campaigning on an all-out anti-Semitic platform for a variety of local and national posts. The Thunderbolt promised that "great amounts of patriotic literature will flow from this office."

The National States Rights Party was formed in the spring of 1958 as a merger of several small pro-segregation groups with the United White Party. Its leadership includes: J.B. Stoner, a former Atlantan, whose present Klan-organizing activities follow many years as head of the Christian Anti-Jewish Party; Matt Koehl of Wisconsin, a mid-West hate propagandist; and Edward R. Fields, a Louisville chiropractor whose organizing talents have been linked to hate groups in the Kentucky area since his youth. Another NSRP leader, Mrs. Edna Cowan of Jeffersonville, Ind., was identified as one of the pickets distributing literature in front of the Louisville Courier-Journal in July 1958; the leaflets bore the imprint, "National Committee to Free America of Jewish Domination," a front-name for the activities of the native Nazi leader, George Lincoln Rockwell.

After the 1958 bombing of The Temple in Atlanta, several of the men indicted for the dynamiting were, according to testimony given at the trial of George M. Bright, affiliated with NSRP. After Bright's acquittal -- which came at the conclusion of his second trial -- Edna Cowan, then vice chairman of NSRP, dubbed the men indicted for the bombing "The Atlanta Five." In the April 1959 issue of The Thunderbolt, Mrs. Cowan concluded: "The Atlanta case was a triumph of concerted effort by NSRP, together with allied patriotic groups." Other defendants have not been brought to trial; in some cases, charges have been dropped.

ROCKWELL GIVES NEW YORKERS THE "SHOCK TREATMENT"

Following his plan to "shock the Jews" into giving him publicity, George Lincoln Rockwell, neo-Nazi leader from Arlington, Va., appeared in New York County Court House June 22 to oppose moves to deny him a permit to hold a Nazi rally in Union Square on July 4. His remarks produced a near-riot in the crowded courthouse.

Tensions had started mounting soon after Rockwell's request for a Park Department permit became public in May. The press and city officials were deluged with vehement objections from concentration-camp survivors and veterans' groups, among others. Some voices in the New York Jewish community urged that Rockwell be permitted to speak -- with the proviso that he be subject to prosecution for any breach of the peace incurred as the result of his remarks or actions.

Two court proceedings had been started during June to compel the city to deny Rockwell the permit -- one instituted by two state legislators, the other by a group apparently formed on an ad hoc basis. In both proceedings, the New York Civil Liberties Union appeared on behalf of Rockwell, on the grounds that denial of the permit would constitute an infraction of freedom of speech.

Appearing in New York's Supreme Court June 22 to oppose these actions, Rockwell tried, during an on-the-spot TV interview, to air his views -- which included the opinion that 80 per cent of the Jews are traitors. This statement inflamed the crowd of more than 200 demonstrators cordoned off in the Court House; many of them rushed Rockwell, but were quickly fended off by police. Under police protection, the Arlington "fuehrer" was quickly driven to LaGuardia Airport and boarded a plane headed back to Washington.

Later the same day, Mayor Robert F. Wagner banned Rockwell's appearance in New York City in strong words:

> Information supplied to me by qualified sources shows clearly that Mr. Rockwell's intent is to incite a riot by preaching, in a city where people of all races live peacefully together...

> a philosophy of race hatred and violence...We have in this city the largest and best police force of any municipality. It can quell any riot, but no police force in the world can stop a riot from starting...This is an invitation to riot and disorder from a half-penny Hitler. The invitation is declined. Mr. Rockwell will not speak here on the Fourth of July or any other time in terms of race hatred and race extermination...

Editorially, the New York press was divided on the handling of the episode. For example, The New York Times regretted that Rockwell had not been permitted to speak; the crux of the matter in their view was the danger to free speech. Representative of the opposite view was the New York Journal-American editorial which applauded the Mayor's decision. In this paper's opinion, "the overriding consideration was... whether the rally would provoke violence and endanger the safety of the city. We had a sample of this yesterday..."

In Washington, on June 26, Rockwell held a meeting at which he bragged to his audience that he had reached the ears of 20 million Americans as a result of the widely publicized New York disturbance.

In Brooklyn, on June 28, State Supreme Court Justice Louis L. Friedman signed a temporary injunction restraining Rockwell and his American Nazi Party from engaging in any Nazi political activities in New York State; a hearing on whether the injunction should be permanent is scheduled for August 22. The judge also accepted a disorderly conduct complaint against Rockwell, and signed a warrant for his arrest when and if he returns to New York.

Rockwell has appealed to the New York Civil Liberties Union for further moves to compel the granting of a permit, but it is apparent that no legal action would enable him to hold his Manhattan hate rally before Labor Day, if then.

Rockwell's rally in Washington on July 3, held near the Smithsonian Institution, broke up in violent disorder. He and several of his followers, as well as some of those protesting his tirade, were arrested for disorderly conduct. This did not prevent Rockwell from holding a July 4 meeting at another location in the capital.

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised through the Joint Defense Appeal.

ARAB PROPAGANDA IN THE UNITED STATES

The opening of a new Arab Information Center unit in the Southwest, at Dallas, Tex., represents a stepped-up effort to expand Arab propaganda facilities in the United States. This regional office has been in the planning stage for a long time; its establishment now suggests that increased funds for propaganda activities are anticipated. Operations are not expected to get into full swing until the latter part of 1960.

Heading the Arab Information Center's new unit will be Sami Hadawi, for many years an agent of the Palestine Arab Refugee Office in New York. Directed from Lebanon, this organization was conspicuous for its exploitation of the Arab refugee plight, attributed by the PARO to the "Israelis" and "Zionists." Hadawi himself was featured in the July 1957 issue of Gerald L. K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag; his autobiographical contribution was prefaced as follows:

> It was the pleasure of the editors of The Cross and the Flag to visit personally with Mr. Hadawi, whose story we reproduce herewith.

National headquarters of the Arab Information Center are in New York City; other branch offices are located in Washington, D.C., Chicago and San Francisco.

Past Trends

The prospect of expanded activities points up the need to review the overall Arab propaganda effort in the United States.

Since the establishment of the State of Israel, a cardinal point of Arab strategy has been to try to undermine the new nation by sustained attacks upon American Jews, whom the Arabs view as the principal mainstay of the new state. Thus, Arab propaganda constantly hammers at the charge that American Jews have a "dual loyalty." At the same time, the Arabs bid for American support by stressing three other themes: 1) the miseries of the Arab refugees which are attributed to Israel and "the Zionists"; 2) the need to return to the UN's original partition plan; and 3) the strategic importance of Middle East oil, a resource readily available to the West, the propaganda implies, as long as America backs the Arab League.

Most of the Arab materials published for U.S. consumption are not anti-Jewish; they are aimed chiefly at highlighting improvements in education, housing, public health and other aspects of life in the Arab countries -- progress which the propaganda often credits to Nasser's leadership. Yet a certain amount of anti-Jewish bias is apparent, particularly in the confusion of the terms "Zionist" and "Jew," and the repeated charges of "American Zionist influence in Washington."

As might be expected, the recent world-wide swastika furor became grist for the Arab propaganda mill. Dr. Fayez al Sayegh, long a spokesman for the Arab Information Center, interpreted the swastika-daubings in a series of articles in The Caravan, an English-language Arab weekly published in Brooklyn, N.Y. According to this author, the spread of the daubings resulted because the Cologne rabbi refused to have the first painted swastika removed immediately from his synagogue. This decision was made, wrote Sayegh, "with forethought and deliberation, and with fore-knowledge of the consequences," upon the advice of "Jews (certainly Zionist Jews) from outside Germany." The Zionists, Sayegh concluded, emerged as the "supreme beneficiaries" of these incidents.

WO/10 C,

Middle East Publications

Future trends may be indicated by some of the recent publications arriving from Middle East sources.

The April issue of The Scribe, an English-language monthly published in Cairo by the Middle East Research Center, carried a portion of Jack B. Tenney's pamphlet, Zion's Fifth Column. Tenney is a former California state legislator and more recently a collaborator of Gerald L.K. Smith. In May, in an article discussing the picketing of the S.S. "Cleopatra" in New York, the same publication quoted Mohammed el Shoreiky, Jordanian ambassador to Cairo, as follows: "There may be clouds in the Arab atmosphere, but this does not prevent the Arabs from standing united against all Zionist and imperialist conspiracies."

The Egyptian Economic and Political Review, another English-language publication issued in Cairo, is usually sober and judicious in tone. Below, however, is part of its "analysis" of the New York dockworkers' strike against the S.S. "Cleopatra" in its April-May issue:

> ...New York, with its huge, over-emotional, insecure Jewish population, uprooted from the various parts of Europe, a people in an alien city, pathetically trying to salvage memories of a discarded homeland, in refugee populated neighborhoods, reproducing as much as possible the way of life and customs of their European background....In New York /the Jews/ representatives occupy every function in the society. He can be found in the slum, in the harbor, and in the television studio, in the police force, and in the underworld, in the offices and in the street....
> It is the reputation of America that is at stake here. A country whose foreign policy and whose vital interests can so easily be upset and flaunted with impunity by the smallest of pressure groups within its territory can hardly make a reliable friend, and will lack the reputation necessary to the conduct of normal relations with the outside world.

Students in the United States — The estimated 2,000 Arab students in American colleges and universities play an important role in spreading the Arab League line. The Organization of Arab Students, a group with headquarters in New York, publishes a newsletter, schedules appearances for Arab student spokesmen at local and regional meetings, and holds an annual national convention. While mainly engaged in interpreting Arab cultural activities to non-Arab collegians, the O.A.S. Newsletter, in a recent issue, departed from this objective to feature a photograph of Arab students picketing Ben-Gurion during his United States visit. One of the placards read, "America, Beware of the Zionist Bear."

ROCKWELL, COMMITTED FOR OBSERVATION, IS FOUND SANE — Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell was arrested on July 24, along with 16 followers, when a disturbance flared at an outdoor meeting in Washington, D.C. During his July 27 appearance in court, the would-be fuehrer was ordered committed to the District of Columbia General Hospital for mental observation. On August 4, on the basis of a psychiatric report, the court declared Rockwell sane and mentally competent to stand trial later in the month on charges of disturbing the peace.

Since early April, when he launched his series of pro-Nazi Sunday meetings, Rockwell has found the nation's capital a thorny area for winning friends and influencing people. Early in July, he was forbidden use of the popular Mall and had to move his meetings to a less desirable spot. In addition to his forthcoming trial on charges arising out of the July 23 disturbances, Rockwell is also awaiting trial for his part in the fracas which ended a July 3 demonstration.

On August 7, Rockwell staged another Nazi rally. Exploiting his hospital release as "vindication," he drew applause and cheers from some 40 followers and sympathizers in the audience of about 125 persons. This meeting differed from earlier rallies in that none of Rockwell's group wore uniforms, and no disorders took place. On the platform, Rockwell hardly deviated from his standard tirade, except to announce his intention to move on to the South in the near future.

NSRP HOLDS POST-ELECTION CONVENTION

Encouraged by the notoriety gained in several Southern states during the Presidential election, the National States Rights Party held a convention Nov. 26-27 in Chattanooga, Tenn. The meeting room, appropriately located in a hall used by local Klansmen, was decorated with the thunderbolt symbol. About 50 persons attended. The party claimed representation from ten states: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Tennessee.

Business of the opening day included election of officers and an open evening meeting. The second day was devoted to "working and planning sessions." Presiding at all meetings was Ed Fields, Alabama publisher of the party bulletin, The Thunderbolt. In an address to the convention, Fields stressed that NSRP is essentially "racist" and "anti-Jew," urging members not to get sidetracked on tangential issues.

charges arising out of the 1958 bombing of The Temple in Atlanta, Ga., exhorted his audience to "get behind NSRP and make it work." Bright, an NSRP celebrity since the inception of the bombing case and a sparkplug of the party's Atlanta unit, was acquitted after his second trial, the first having ended in a hung jury.

The slate of officers for the coming year follows: National Chairman: Ned Dupes of Knoxville, Tenn. When NSRP was first formed in 1958, Dupes was elected secretary of the party. National Vice Chairman: Ann Bishop, of Little Rock, Ark. Mrs. Bishop worked her way into the limelight by her energetic efforts, during the summer and fall, to circulate NSRP nominating petitions in Arkansas. National Organizer: Roy Frankhouser of Reading, Pa. The delegate from Pennsylvania is an ardent supporter of American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell. Information Officer and Editor of the Thunderbolt: Ed Fields of Birmingham, Ala. A young chiropractor originally from Louisville, Ky., Fields has been linked since 1949 with a number of hate groups, most consistently with the Christian Anti-Jewish Party. Counsel: J. B. Stoner of Atlanta, Ga. In addition to his NSRP activities, Stoner heads the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan; he formerly headed the Stoner Anti-Jewish Party and the Christian Anti-Jewish Party. Security Officer: Matt Koehl of Milwaukee, Wisc. Koehl has conducted neo-Nazi propaganda activities in the Wisconsin area for many years.

RECENT KLAN LITERATURE

KKK newspapers and handbills are devoting considerable space to whipping up anti-Jewish hostility.

A lengthy, vitriolic expose of "Communist Jews" appears on page one of the October 28 issue of The Rebel, a paper providing generous news of Klan activities. Published in College Park, Ga., The Rebel claims 50,000 readers in seven states.

A red, white and blue broadside, issued by the Association of Florida Ku Klux Klan, a group with headquarters in Orlando, declares:

> The time has come to awaken and reorganize the Invisible Empire as a secret fighting force... and we must list and as time goes on maybe kill those Communist collaborators who would sell us into Slavery...

The November Klan Bulletin, publication of J. B. Stoner's Christian Knights of the KKK, devotes an entire issue to anti-Semitic canards. A central theme is that "the Jews are plotting to turn our public schools into cesspools of integration and dens of Jewish atheism."

JOHN PALL, ROCKWELL AIDE, ORDERED DEPORTED

Hungary Canada D.C. Va.

On December 6, Hungarian-born John Pall, a naturalized Canadian citizen, was ordered deported for "failing to maintain his status as a visitor." U.S. Immigration authorities investigated Pall's citizenship status after he was arrested, together with American Nazi Party Leader George Lincoln Rockwell and four others, on the charge of disorderly conduct for carrying anti-Jewish placards in front of Democratic National Headquarters in Washington, D. C. on October 12. Pall had been living at Rockwell's house in nearby Arlington, Va.

The November issue of Rockwell's National Socialist Bulletin announces the official appointment of Pall as "International Secretary of WUFENS and the American Nazi Party." WUFENS, an abbreviation of the World Union of Free Enterprise National Socialists, was the original organization name Rockwell adopted.

COMMENTS ON OUTCOME OF ELECTION

Bigoted reactions to the election of John F. Kennedy began to appear in November. According to Conde McGinley, in the Nov. 15 Common Sense, the President-Elect was advised by "clever, Marxist-minded counselors." The Georgia Tribune, published by Klan apologist "Parson Jack" Johnston, deplored the election result in a Nov. 17 article headlined, AMERICA HAS FIRST ROMAN CATHOLIC PRESIDENT AFTER MORE THAN 400 YEARS. Neo-Nazi propagandist James Madole, in his November National Renaissance Bulletin, sounded a warning: "The future of America during the next four years depends on whether or not young John Kennedy can stand up to the sinister forces which placed him in the White House, namely: the politically-minded hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church and Zionist Jewry."

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised through the Joint Defense Appeal.

Vol. VI, No. 1, January 1961

REVIEW OF 1960

The year was marked by a number of widely reported outbreaks of anti-Semitic agitation, threats and even violence.

— As the new year began, the world-wide "swastika furor" set off in Germany reached New York City and flashed across the country.

— By mid-year, would-be fuehrer George Lincoln Rockwell succeeded in arousing tempers and winning coverage of his American Nazi Party activities in newspapers and magazines, on radio and TV. Other hatemongers exploited the capture of Adolf Eichmann and public interest in the Nazi war criminal's impending trial.

— The fall election campaign witnessed energetic attempts to use politics as a vehicle for racial and religious bigotry.

Even though these were the developments that made headlines in 1960, the mainstays of organized anti-Semitism in the United States were still the indefatigable propagandists, who concentrated on producing an undiminished flow of vitriolic literature exploiting domestic or international tensions. Chief among the producers of pamphlets, periodicals, flyers and leaflets were: Conde McGinley of of Union, N.J. (Common Sense); Californians Gerald L. K. Smith (The Cross and the Flag) and Frank L. Britton (The American Nationalist); and New York industrialist Russell Maguire (The American Mercury). Other active hate publicists included oldtimer Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago; neo-Nazi James H. Madole of New York City's Yorkville neighborhood and National States Rights Party editor Ed Fields of Birmingham, Ala.

WORLDWIDE SWASTIKA FUROR

On Christmas Eve, 1959, the desecration of the Cologne synagogue in West Germany touched off a wave of Nazi-style vandalism and outrages against synagogues, churches, schools, homes, stores, public buildings and monuments. An estimated 2,500 incidents took place in more than a score of countries. The United States, West Germany, Austria, Great Britain, Italy and France were among the hardest hit. The number of outrages tapered off after the peak months of January and February, but incidents did continue to occur throughout the year.

Youthful Imitators

In the United States, the January 3 smearing of New York City's Temple Emanu-El triggered a series of some 800 desecrations all over the country. It is still a question whether the initial outrage was instigated by adults. Investigation of later episodes, however, established that most U.S. swastika daubings were the work of teen-agers -- some as young as 10, some in the mid-20's, a few older. The median age was between 15 and 16. For the most part, the perpetrators appeared to be emotionally unstable -- rejected youths seeking attention and identity through imitative acts of nazism and anti-Semitism.

Bombings and Nazi Youth Clubs

At the height of the swastika furor, two synagogue bombings occurred, one in Kansas City, Mo., on January 28, the other in Springfield, Mass., on January 31. In Kansas City, police had uncovered two Nazi clubs operating in high schools: the Reich Nordic Youth Club and the National Socialist Workers Party. Although no connection was established between these groups and the bombings, two club members did admit to having defaced the temple. In Springfield, the bombing culprits were three boys aged 15 and 16.

In March, a 17-year-old threw a firebomb at Temple Beth El in Gadsden, Ala., and then shot two congregants who came out of the building to investigate. In August, released on bail and awaiting action by the grand jury, the youth drove his stepfather's car into a tree, dying almost instantly in the presence of a high-school band rehearsing nearby.

Jerry Earl Hunt 3-25-60 Killed in August 30 1960

As police investigated swastika incidents, more Nazi-style youth groups were uncovered: the Naz-Comms in Levittown, N. Y.; the National Socialist German Sympathizers Party in Detroit; the SS Elite Club in Yonkers.

ROCKWELL AND HIS AMERICAN NAZI PARTY

George Lincoln Rockwell achieved notoriety by following a systematic plan to "aggravate the Jews so bad" they would have to give him publicity. With his small band of followers newly renamed the American Nazi Party, Rockwell at the start of the year was issuing handbills and pamphlets from his Arlington, Va., headquarters and brazenly beginning to flaunt swastikas and other Nazi trappings. By January, his storm-troopers were on Washington street corners handing out literature which promised, among other things, "the gas chamber" for "Jew traitors." The Navy revoked Rockwell's reserve commission in February "because of his civilian activities." A street melee between an American Nazi Party aide and an outraged passerby resulted in the first of Rockwell's many entanglements with law-enforcement authorities during the year. Though no prosecution was instituted, the fracas was reported in the press. It was from this vantage point that Rockwell announced plans for a Nazi rally to be held in April on the Mall near the Washington Monument.

Outdoor Demonstrations

From April to October, the American Nazi Party staged a series of regular weekend rallies. Attired in Nazi garb and attended by a phalanx of uniformed storm-troopers in rigid formation, the would-be fuehrer ranted racist ideas and proclaimed devotion to Hitler. Some meetings erupted into violence between Rockwell stormtroopers and audience hecklers; on several occasions, arrests were made.

Rockwell's peak of notoriety came in May and June, when he applied for a permit to use New York City's Union Square for a Fourth of July rally. On June 22, during his appearance at New York's Supreme Court House, an irate crowd of 200 rushed him in reaction to his remark, in an on-the-spot TV interview, that 80 per cent of Jews are traitors. He was taken to the airport under police protection. Later that same day, Rockwell was denied the Union Square permit, Mayor Robert F. Wagner publicly announcing his refusal of "an invitation to riot and disorder from a half-penny Hitler."

On July 3, at a rally in Washington, D.C., the American Nazi Party leader and seven of his troopers were arrested for disorderly conduct. On July 23, Rockwell was again arrested with 13 followers after another riot occurred. A Washington court ordered him committed for mental observation to determine his competence to stand trial. Released as sane on August 4, he was later fined $100 on each of two counts of disorderly conduct arising out of the two episodes.

A Motley Crew

During the last half of the year, several Rockwell lieutenants also made news. In July the Marine Corps discharged Pfc. John C. Patsalas after an investigation established that he was an active member of the American Nazi Party.* In August, the U.S. Attorney General requested Roger C. Foss, another Rockwell storm-trooper, to register as a foreign agent. Foss had admitted taking sums aggregating $500 from Valentin M. Ivanov, First Secretary of the Soviet Embassy, who had requested that Foss get U. S. Government employment. In December, U. S. Immigration authorities ordered Hungarian-born Janos Pall, a naturalized Canadian, deported for "failing to maintain his status as a visitor." Pall, Rockwell and four other ANP members had been arrested for disorderly conduct October 12 in connection with their picketing of Democratic National Headquarters.

*The discharge was not in the "dishonorable" category.

In the fall, while vigorously continuing his exploitation of the Nazi line, Rockwell began experimenting with "non-Nazi" appeals in order to attract bigots who might have been "scared away" by his blatant Nazism.

BIGOTRY IN THE CAMPAIGN

With a profusion of anti-Catholic material circulating the nation during the 1960 Presidential campaign, some bigot propagandists tried to inject anti-Jewish hatreds in their attacks against canddidates of both major parties. Conde McGinley's Common Sense illustrates this approach. In one issue, the headline read, KENNEDY'S MARXIST RECORD; a later edition was headed, NIXON IGNORES VITAL ISSUES. WHAT IS THE MYSTERIOUS FORCE RESPONSIBLE?

BIGOTS IN THE SOUTH

The South, deeply troubled by desegregation tensions, continued to prove the most fertile field for bigoted activity by extremist politicians, rabid pro-segregationists and peddlers of vicious anti-Semitic propaganda.

Political Action

In May, an openly anti-Jewish candidate for nomination as U. S. Senator ran in the Alabama primary, polling close to 13 per cent of the state tally.

Retired Admiral John G. Crommelin, perennial candidate, campaigned actively, touring the state. In a dozen TV appearances and many stump speeches, he charged the existence of a "hidden force" or Communist-Jewish conspiracy to mongrelize and control the nation.

The National States Rights Party, an amalgam of Northern and Southern racists, launched a drive to place their party on a number of state electoral ballots. Circulating nominating petitions and copies of the bigoted party newspaper, The Thunderbolt, they secured enough signatures to win spots on the ballots of Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida and Tennessee. At a March convention in Miamisburg, near Dayton, Ohio, NSRP "drafted" Arkansas Governor Orval E. Faubus and Admiral Crommelin as Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates. Governor Faubus, never anti-Semitic, issued a statement that he had not authorized the nomination and was running only for reelection as governor of Arkansas; he later officially requested that his name be removed from the Florida ballot, thereby invalidating it in that state. NSRP's best showing was in Arkansas, where the ticket polled about 7 per cent of the votes. Some observers believed many segregationists, attracted by the NSRP's use of the Governor's name, were unaware of the character of NSRP or the Governor's attitude toward it. In Tennessee the party polled slightly more than 1% of the vote and much less than that in Delaware and Alabama.

Ku Klux Klan

Though beset with schisms, the Klan continued active, staging rallies and cross-burnings throughout the year, and circulating racist literature and propaganda, including anti-Semitic screeds.

In January, Alabama's Grand Dragon Robert M. Shelton was deposed; he started immediately to form his own Klan. In February, H. J. Jones of Jonesboro, Ga., designated himself Imperial Wizard of a Klan group claiming to consolidate Klansmen of 17 states. In July, the first all-ladies Klan, Women of the KKK, Inc., was chartered in Fulton County, Ga. After the death of Imperial Wizard Eldon L. Edwards in August, Robert L. Davidson of Macon, Ga., succeeded to the post, promising a drive to enlist teen-agers into Junior Klans.

On March 28, more than 100 crosses were burned in an apparently coordinated "show of strength" by Klansmen in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. In September, a rally of allegedly consolidated Klans was held at Stone Mountain, Ga. Two days later, NSRP leader J. B. Stoner staged a large rally of his robed group, the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, at Danville, Va. Klan signs continued to be displayed on highways in Alabama.

White Citizens Councils

Self-styled "Citizens Councils" remained an active force in Southern communities during the year. While some units were Klan-like in nature, many others, avoiding religious bigotry, drew an entirely respectable membership of segregationists. Anti-Semitic elements in the movement continued to promote and distribute hate-literature originating from many parts of the country.

Seaboard White Citizens Council leader John Kasper was released from jail in Tennessee after completing a six-month sentence for inciting to riot in connection with the 1957 Nashville school desegregation disorders.

ARAB PROPAGANDA FRONT

Official Arab propagandists in the United States generally confined their attacks to charges of "dual loyalty" against American Jews. This slur was employed -- with varying degrees of subtlety -- by pamphleteers, lecturers and Arab students. In July, the Arab Information Office expanded its propaganda network by adding a branch in Dallas, Tex., headed by Sami Hadawi, former official of the Palestine Arab Refugee Office in New York. An autobiographical article by Sami Hadawi had previously been featured by Gerald L. K. Smith in his hatemongering paper, The Cross and the Flag (July, 1957). Smith and other native agitators continued to project pro-Arab views by laying the blame for tensions in the Middle East on "Jews, Zionists and Communists."

ROCKWELL SCORES IN HIS CAMPAIGN TO STIR UP TROUBLE

A victorious round in the courts and a well-functioning campaign to stay on the front pages are boosting the trouble-making potential of George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi Party.

The New York Apellate Court, by a 4-1 decision, reversed a previous ruling of the New York State Supreme Court (see FYI, No. V, No. 9, September 1960) and held that New York City improperly denied Rockwell a permit to stage a Fourth of July rally because of "contemplated" incitement to violence. The Court refused to sanction prior restraint -- the denial of free speech before any violation of law has taken place. The majority opinion stated that the risk taken in permitting free speech is "the price paid for liberty" and "for not having the policeman or commissioner as censor." The New York Civil Liberties Union stated that it will continue to defend Rockwell's constitutional right to free speech, stressing that his "hateful" or "racist" views are not the issue.

Mayor Wagner acted immediately to seek an appeal from the New York Court of Appeals. Rockwell, for his part, applied with equal promptness for permission to hold a rally in Union Square May 1, announcing his intention to bring with him 50 or 60 uniformed "storm troopers." His telegram to Park Commissioner Newbold Morris indicated he would be "scrupulously careful" not to say anything "that could be termed insulting." His speech, he added, would discuss "the race issue and anti-communism" and "the overwhelming Jewish participation in communism."

Since mid-December, Rockwell has been engaged in a new campaign, revolving around pre-announced picketing demonstrations keyed to openings of the motion picture Exodus in leading cities. To date, this scheme has resulted in large-scale riots and other disturbances in Boston and Philadelphia, and minor incidents in Chicago, Minneapolis and Detroit. Rockwell's tactic has gained him a publicity bonanza.

When Exodus opened in New York City December 15, a small group of pickets staged a quiet demonstration, bearing signs identifying themselves only as anti-Communist, not pro-Nazi. This demonstration was under the aegis of Fighting American Nationalists, a small group in close contact with Rockwell. In Chicago however, when four F.A.N. picketers arrived at the December 30 premiere, they were driven off by an angry crowd of 200. A minor scuffle took place in Minneapolis, on January 26, as two demonstrators marched with anti-Israel signs, claiming membership in the National Society for the Preservation of the White Race.

Well in advance of the January 15 Boston opening, Rockwell notified city authorities that he and his Nazi henchmen would be there. Surveying the gathering mob of several thousand from a nearby vantage point, Rockwell was able to choose the proper moment to emerge in full Nazi regalia, flanked by three cohorts. Immediately rushed by the outraged spectators, Rockwell was taken into "protective custody" by the police, spirited away through an alley and the basement of the theatre, and driven to the airport, to fly back to Washington. A truckload of Rockwell Nazis were dissuaded by police from continuing to the scene of the disturbance. Voluntarily accepting police protection, like their fuehrer before them, they turned back under escort as far as the Connecticut line.

The pattern was repeated when Rockwell told the Philadelphia Police Commissioner he intended to demonstrate on February 1. As protests mounted, police persuaded him to stay out of the city, for reasons of personal security. The evening of the premiere, a large crowd of anti-Nazi demonstrators, most of them students, were on hand. Even though Rockwell kept his promise not to show up, his lieutenant, Ralph P. Forbes, arrived in full storm-troop regalia with two other neo-Nazis. Confusion and near-violence erupted. Forbes and his two supporters were removed from the area swiftly; they are now under charges of incitement to riot, disorderly conduct and breach of the peace. In addition, some 65 anti-Nazi demonstrators were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. Another group, almost as large, was detained and later released. That same evening, the police persuaded a group of Pennsylvanian Rockwell sympathizers not to enter Philadelphia, and a truckload of Rockwellites, stopped at Camden Bridge, turned back to New Jersey.

As Rockwell continues to keep his name and ideas on the front page by stirring up public outrage and counterdemonstrations, it is important to recall that he is doing just what he promised more than a year ago: "to aggravate them (the Jews) so bad, . . but so arrogantly that they will have to notice us."

KLANSMEN EMERGE IN ATLANTA

During the early hours of Saturday, January 28, some 200 Klansmen, including women and children, strolled the sidewalks of downtown Atlanta. Later the city's Tower Theatre was the scene of a large Ku Klux Klan rally. Masked Klan members attending the gathering heard three speakers, the Reverend E. E. George, the Reverend Royce Bagley and James Venable, an attorney. Four masked Klansmen appeared in black robes, an innovation in KKK regalia. Georgia law forbids the wearing of masks on private property without written permission from the owner.

BOUQUETS AND BRICKBATS FOR THE THUNDERBOLT

From Coventry, England, last month came a glowing accolade for The Thunderbolt, organ of the Birmingham Ala.

extremist National States Rights Party, whose headquarters are at Birmingham, Alabama. The British National Party, in its bulletin, The Northern European, heralded NSRP as an associate in its "circle of friendship and cooperation, the Northern European Ring." British admirers of The Thunderbolt boasted that the publication "has increased its circulation in some two years from 52 to 10,000, going to every state and to 13 foreign countries."

In Arkansas, distribution of the January Thunderbolt stirred up a flurry of protest in the state capital. Copies were placed on the desks of state legislators January 24. Mrs. E. L. Bishop of Little Rock, national vice chairman of NSRP, later said that members of the Senate and House had given her permission to distribute the newspaper in this fashion. The issue, headlined REDS MOVE INTO THE WHITE HOUSE, was rejected by the lawmakers in no uncertain terms. In the House, Representative Talbot Field, Jr. called for a resolution which was unanimously adopted, banning the circulation of literature in the House without authority of the Clerk. Senators Ellis M. Fagan of Little Rock and John D. Eldridge of Augusta echoed the criticism in the Senate, calling for enforcement of an existing Senate rule on literature distribution.

SYNAGOGUES DAMAGED BY VANDALS

During January, 1961 -- just one year after the peak of the worldwide "swastika furor" -- three outrages against Jewish houses of worship occurred in major cities on three continents.

In Chicago, on January 10, a bomb exploded at Anshe Emet Synagogue, the city's largest Conservative congregation, tearing a hole in the ground, destroying two doors, cracking walls. The blast shattered more than 100 windows in the vicinity. Total damage was estimated at more than $2,000. Despite intensive police efforts, the perpetrators have not yet been identified.

In London, on January 13, officers of the Brixton Synagogue arrived for Sabbath Eve services to find a chaotic scene of looting and desecration. Ritual silver valued at more than $2,200 had been stolen. Curtains were dragged down, furniture and fixtures smashed.

In Johannesburg, dynamite blasted the principal synagogue of the South African metropolis on January 15, shattering glass and wrecking an office.

NEW LITERATURE

Currently in circulation is a diatribe against Israel by Gerald L. K. Smith: The Crime of the Century. A vicious attack on American Jewry, the pamphlet is larded copiously with "deadly documentation" from the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, a proven forgery . . . . Farmer's Voice, a mimeographed monthly newspaper issued in Wooster, Ohio defines "racial or ethnic democracy": "Here the Jews and Negroes work together to obtain the right for Negroes to marry whites, but not Jews." . . . . The Rabbi Rabinovich canard, a modern version of the infamous Protocols introduced some years ago by Conde McGinley, is revived in a four-page "treatise" being distributed from Phoenix, Ariz., by the Christian Vegetarian Crusade.

AMERICAN MERCURY UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

Ownership of the American Mercury, for eight years published by New York industrialist Russell Maguire, changed hands at the close of 1960. This latest turn in the 37-year-old magazine's checkered career places it under the aegis of Defenders of the Christian Faith, Inc., an ultra-fundamentalist missionary and propaganda organization founded by the late Gerald Winrod of Wichita, Kans., whose outspoken anti-Semitism in the 30's earned him the soubriquet of "Jayhawk Nazi." Since Winrod's death, however, DCF's publication, The Defender, has improved its tone in this regard.

The change was announced in the monthly's first issue (January 1961) under the new management. A statement by Maguire, "Mercury Moves Forward," stresses that "our dedicated efforts have been opposed at every turn." On the opposite page, publisher Gwynne Davidson, head of Defenders of the Christian Faith, assures Mercury readers that "the same policies remain in force." It is still too early to judge whether Maguire's editorial formula -- intermingling highly bigoted material with general articles -- will continue. But the January issue does offer some significant clues.

The maiden effort of the new publisher soft-pedals the vitriol of previous issues. Apparently an effort was made to present a more respectable journal of ultra-conservatism. The letters-to-the-editor section does not contain names of known anti-Semites. A regular quotations feature, "This Is What They Said," is considerably watered down, although one quote is attributed to Candour Magazine, a leading publication of England's neo-fascists. Yet the issue does feature Elizabeth Dilling as a contributor. In an article attacking the United Nations, she confines herself to the subject of international trade, avoiding her characteristic flow of scurrility against the Jews and their religion. None of the crudely racist arguments and language typical of Mrs. Dilling's monthly Bulletin, published from Chicago for almost a generation, are visible in her American Mercury article.

RETURN OF THE NATIVIST

After years of inactivity, Allen A. Zoll, a leading figure in bigoted attacks against the public schools in the late 1940's and early 1950's, has re-emerged as chairman of a new, right-wing organization, the Federation of Conservatives. Zoll's Federation, headquartered in Washington, D. C., is one of several ultra-conservative groups now being formed to combat modern social and economic policies. These groups view with alarm the liberal trends in both major political parties, the Administration and the nation in general.

Although the announced objectives of the Federation of Conservatives include no racially or religiously biased statements, the fact that the new group is housed at Zoll's address warrants mention of some highlights in his career.

In pre-Pearl Harbor days, Zoll was the leader and organizer of American Patriots, Inc., listed by U.S. Attorney General Clark in 1947 as "Fascist." In 1938, Zoll was chairman of the first New York mass meeting of the Christian Front. He also led a "Christian Front picket line" at New York's radio station WMCA in support of Father Coughlin. Zoll's most far-reaching efforts, however, began after World War II. In July 1948, his National Council for American Education was launched, ostensibly as a legitimate voice in a heated controversy over modern education. Once Zoll's early connections were revealed, some honest critics of the schools dissociated themselves from the group.

ANOTHER KLAN SPLIT IN GEORGIA

The Imperial Wizard and Grand Dragon of the U.S. Klans, Knights of the KKK, Inc., resigned in February after a top-echelon split within the Georgia group, headed by Eldon L. Edwards until his death last August. Robert Lee (Wild Bill) Davidson of Macon and Calvin Craig of Atlanta will henceforth be Imperial Wizard and Grand Dragon of their newly formed group, The Klans, Knights of the KKK of America, Inc., which has applied for a new charter. The faction now in control of the Edwards Klan meanwhile moved to elect an Imperial Wizard to succeed Davidson, so it can challenge the new Klan's authority in the area.

SWASTIKA OUTBREAK NEAR BOSTON

During February, swastikas and defamatory slogans were smeared on doorways of Jewish and Negro homes and businesses in Newburyport, Mass. The spate of vandalism followed an unsuccessful attempt by American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell to picket Boston showings of the motion picture, Exodus, and subsequent announcement of a state investigation into the activities of the ANP.

IN BRIEF

The March issue of J.B. Stoner's Klan Bulletin, organ of his Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, concludes a four-page assault on minority groups: "America is a Christian nation. It is the Jew who is the subversive traitor in our midst." . . . . A recent issue of the Montgomery Home News, Alabama weekly, reprints a tract issued by the Christian Patriots Crusade, located in Hinsdale, Ill., which demands that "the mask of Jewish SHAM DECENCY must be removed." . . . . From Tahlequah, Okla., Sylwood O'Toole's Journal, a mimeographed "personal journal of comment," plugs a variety of bigoted materials, among them The Thunderbolt, vicious publication of the National States Rights Party. "The O'Toolegram" (February 1961) also recommends James Warner's National States Rights Bookstore in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Warner, a former lieutenant of American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell, is now engaged in "exposing" his old "fuehrer." . . . . James A. Madole, leader of the National Renaissance Party, neo-Nazi organization in New York City, is now espousing Fidel Castro. An invitation to his Cuban-American Friendship Rally on March 11 explains: "The sinister campaign of hatred and vilification directed against the governments of President Gamal Nasser of the United Arab Republic and Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba by America's Zionist-dominated press, radio and TV is turning the peoples of the Middle East and Latin America into bitter foes of the United States. We urge our Cuban and Arab friends to join with members of the National Renaissance Party in a mass unity rally to oppose this Zionist-sponsored campaign of hate!" . . . .

Einar Aberg, 70-year-old Swedish anti-Semite, was sentenced in February to three months in prison for having distributed racist literature abroad.

RACIST EFFORTS TO MAKE TROUBLE IN ATLANTA FIZZLE

Troublemakers in Atlanta during the late August integration of that city's public schools failed in their efforts to stir up conflict. Police precautions prevented any riots or similar disturbances from marring the orderly desegregation of four public schools on August 30 and 31. Groundwork for the peaceful changeover had been laid well in advance by municipal authorities, led by Mayor William B. Hartsfield, the Chamber of Commerce and other civic groups.

Police made short shrift of two attempts to inflame segregationist sentiment. When four high-school youths, ~~17 to~~ 19, tried to picket the integrating schools, they were arrested and charged, under a local ordinance, with disturbing pupils during school sessions. One of the four, George S. O'Bear of nearby Avondale, had in his car a loaded pistol, a stapling gun and quantities of racist propaganda, including The Thunderbolt, anti-Semitic publication of the National States Rights Party.

An American Nazi Party lieutenant, William Gene Cody, of Arlington, Va., appeared on the scene in place of ANP fuehrer George Lincoln Rockwell, who failed to make good an early promise to come to Atlanta. On Cody's arrival in uniform at a desegregating school, he was placed under arrest. The storm trooper sported a T-shirt emblazoned with the slogan, "Whites Have Rights Too." Striding off the line-up platform, he raised his hand in the Nazi salute, shouting "Sieg Heil!" When Cody repeated this performance before the judge, the reply was brief. "Thirty days," the judge said.

The following Monday, Labor Day, a Ku Klux Klan meeting was held in privately-owned Almond Park, with Grand Dragon Calvin Craig presiding. Although held in the wake of Atlanta's school integration, the rally attracted an audience considered merely "average" for a Klan function — 250 Klansmen and spectators. Atlanta Police Chief Herbert T. Jenkins, who came to observe the proceedings, drew jeers from the crowd. A noisy protest was mounted against the arrest of Roy E. Frankhauser, Jr., an American Nazi Party supporter who had been charged with assaulting Atlanta Police Captain R. E. Little.

MADOLE KEEPS PLUGGING HIS BIGOTED DOCTRINE

Regular monthly meetings of the National Renaissance Party were announced by James H. Madole at an August meeting in New York's Yorkville neighborhood. The neo-Nazi leader outlined plans to rejuvenate his organization before a meager audience assembled in a local hall. Wooing a Southern readership for his monthly publication, the National Renaissance Bulletin, Madole, in his latest issue, attacks national Jewish organizations for using "their vast propaganda facilities to promote the breaking down of all racial barriers between the productive White race which brought the benefits of European civilization to the New World and the non-productive Negro and Puerto Rican minorities."

THUNDERBOLT APPEALS FOR FINANCIAL SUPPORT

Money problems apparently plague even the most widely distributed of the new hate sheets, The Thunderbolt, Alabama-published newspaper of the National States Rights Party. Despite a regular circulation of 10,000, editor Edward C. Fields sent a letter to NSRP members and supporters, asking for contributions to "a sustaining fund." Almost half the money used for publication during the first six months of 1961 came from this source, Fields wrote. "Because of the 'Sustaining Fund,'" he asserted, "our position is strong. Without it, we would cease to exist."

An advertisement for The Thunderbolt appeared recently in The Northern World, a London quarterly devoted to the idea that Nordics are the only "pure" race.

IN BRIEF

Twenty-year-old Harry J. Connors, Jr. of Hampton, Va., arrested August 7 in Newport News for possessing a German-made sub-machine gun, told police he is an "admirer" of George Lincoln Rockwell and a follower of the American Nazi Party. . . . Frank L. Britton, bigoted publisher of the defunct American Nationalist, was convicted in August in San Francisco of "attempted bribery"; unable to raise bail, he is in prison awaiting sentence. A mail campaign has been launched to collect enough money for a new trial. . . . FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy were hanged in effigy at a National States Rights Party rally held September 5 in Anniston, Ala.; an audience of 200 was on hand to hear the featured speaker, J. B. Stoner, head of an anti-Jewish Klan Group. . . . Dr. John O. Beaty, former professor at Southern Methodist University and author of the anti-Semitic Iron Curtain Over America, died September 9 at the age of 70 in Virginia. . . . Merwin K. Hart's Economic Council Letter repeats in the August 15 issue its charge that the United States is run by "the American Foundations, the Zionists and the Communists.". . . . Currently in circulation is The Cause of Anti-Semitism in the United States, by Irwin L. Potter. The pamphlet concludes: ".... The rising tide of anti-Semitism and the present world unrest is due to the Jewish World Government that rules. . . . What are you going to do about it?". . . . A single mimeographed sheet, "The Brain-Washed," by H. J. Sherwood, "counsellor" to the White Horse Crusade of Los Angeles, Calif., attacks as "false Jews" those "who try to bolster their deceit by another delusion — 'anti-Semitism' — upon any person or group who exposes their evil works and doings upon all peoples."

ANTI-SEMITIC ATTACKS ON THE RISE IN ARGENTINA

In August, a gang of about 20 youths attacked a Jewish farm-training camp in Mercedes, near Buenos Aires, Argentina. Overrunning the youth settlement in a night raid, the Nazi-like hoodlums, who claimed to be members of a secret organization, Tacuara, beat many of the youngsters with sticks, and caused thousands of dollars of damage.

Throughout 1961, anti-Semitic activity has been mounting in Argentina. Outrages committed by student Fascist elements have added to the tensions of a nation undergoing economic, political and social reorganization since the end of the long Peron dictatorship. The acts of terror and violence committed by today's hoodlum gangs are comparable to the outbursts of the Nazi-like Alianza groups active during Peron's regime.

Shortly after a hate literature drive in Buenos Aires, a rash of swastikas and similar vandalisms broke out. There were attacks on synagogues and Jewish centers. Vandals tried to set fire to a synagogue and the ORT school in Buenos Aires. Another synagogue was bombed. A Jewish wedding ceremony and a school bus carrying Jewish children were targets of crude anti-Semitic assaults. During Rosh Hashanah, two young boys near a synagogue were set upon by hoodlums. Scrawls and daubings on streets and buildings urged "Death to the Jews" and "Jews to the Crematory and Gas Chambers."

A number of these episodes are attributable to the Tacuara movement, the most highly organized activist group in Argentina. A secret Fascist high-school society, Tacuara espouses a corporate state along the lines of Franco Spain, and favors the dominance of the Church. It claims considerable backing from Argentina's clerical and military elements. The Nationalist Restoration Guard is a "post-graduate group" composed of former Tacuara members. Both Tacuara and the Nationalist Restoration Guard have their roots in the UNES (National Secondary School Students Union), which operated during the Peron regime.

The near-fatal shooting of a Jewish high-school student in August 1960 was attributed to Tacuara members. After that episode, Tacuara headquarters were raided by police, but few effective measures have been taken against it or other extreme nationalist groups. In response to the many representations made to the Government by leaders of the Argentine Jewish community, the Minister of the Interior and several members of the Argentine Congress have condemned the situation. As 1961 draws to a close, anti-Semitism in Argentina remains a subject of grave concern not only to the Argentinian Jewish community, but to Jews the world over.

SMITH PETITIONS URGE CONGRESS TO QUIT UN

Gerald L. K. Smith, whose petition to impeach Supreme Court Justice Earl Warren long antedates that of the John Birch Society, has launched a new project. Printed circulars with space for 55 signatures appeal to Congress to "WITHDRAW from the UN." The Smith front circulating the petitions is the Citizens Congressional Committee.

SUCCESSFUL NSRP RALLY HELD IN MONTGOMERY

Prevented by Fairfield, Ala., authorities from holding a rally there during October, the racist National States Rights Party succeeded in meeting on November 16 in the City Municipal Auditorium of Montgomery, Ala. Some 300 persons heard the anti-Semitic guest speaker, the Rev. Gordon Winrod. of Little Rock, Ark., son of the late Gerald Winrod. Among those present were J. B. Stoner, longtime Klansman and NSRP official; and Mrs. E. L. Bishop, Little Rock resident and vice chairman of NSRP. Virtually the entire November issue of NSRP's vitriolic newspaper, The Thunderbolt, featured articles and editorials expressing outrage over alleged deprivations of NSRP's "civil rights" in Fairfield.

LITERARY ITEMS OF INTEREST

W. Henry MacFarland, Jr. has returned to the lunatic-fringe forum with an article in the November issue of The Pilgrim Torch, published by Kenneth Goff, a former Gerald L. K. Smith henchman. MacFarland, whose defunct group, the Nationalist Action League, was listed as "Fascist" by the U.S. Attorney General, presents a diatribe against the social sciences, psychiatrists, sociologists, social psychologists and educators, labelling all as "brainwashers." The article also calls for local textbook committees in every school district throughout the country.

The Rockwell Report, semi-monthly publication of the American Nazi Party, claims in the December 1 issue that "the entire first edition" of Rockwell's autobiography, This Time the World!, was oversubscribed before publication. There is no substantiation other than Rockwell's boast and his advertisement for the "Second Edition" -- at $10 per copy. The Rockwell book has not yet appeared in any edition.

In a crude attempt to attract pro-segregationist extremists, James H. Madole's National Renaissance Bulletin features a lurid drawing of a Negro and a white girl in intimate embrace. "The white race is under no moral obligation to uplift the moral, cultural and living standards of inferior races which lack the innate drive to lift themselves," Madole declares. He charges that Jewish organizations attempt to "forcibly integrate the public school system of the United States."

A new racist tabloid, The White American, is being issued by Robert A. Bowling in Atlanta, Ga., as the official voice of the National White Americans Party. The second issue is headlined "RACE WAR PREDICTED, Negroes Arming, Whites Vow to Take No More," and carries an advertisement for Conde McGinley's most recent pamphlet, Frankfurter's Red Record. Bowling, a member of Atlanta's National States Rights Party unit in 1958, was among those indicted in connection with the bombing of The Temple in Atlanta. Later the indictment against him was dismissed.

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised through the Joint Defense Appeal.

Dear Mr. Rosen:

It was most gratifying to me to get Mr. Hoover's kind, thoughtful letter of December 18, together with his enclosures.

As you know, my letter of December 19 to you crossed in the mails with Mr. Hoover's letter to me. I still believe that his statement of April 1 is the best, providing a ready insight into the full scope and functions of the Bureau.

Therefore, I shall appreciate your kindness in forwarding to me 5,000 copies of the April 1 statement. These will be sent to a selected list of key people in communities across the country.

Again, with many thanks to Mr. Hoover and your own good self, I am

SUBJECT: GEORGE KELLMAN
Director, Fact-Finding Division
The American Jewish Committee
165 East 56th Street, New York 22, New York

In connection with the attached letter from George Kellman dated December 19, 1961, he talked with me today, 12/20/61, on the telephone. He was not aware of the Director's letter of December 18th. It apparently crossed in the mail with his letter of the 19th. He states when he receives the Director's letter he will send a note to the Bureau pointing out that when he wrote the letter of the 19th he had not received the Director's letter.

Kellman said he was highly pleased and honored that the Director had written to him and he plans to send the April 1st statement to opinion molders and key men throughout the country who are security minded and need to know the Director's views as indicated.

He plans to send a letter to the Director expressing a desire to obtain 5,000 copies if at all possible and he is willing to pay the charges.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN

We should await the communication from him.

This is to thank you ever so much for your kindness in forwarding to me copies of J. Edgar Hoover's statements, particularly the one of April 1, 1961, and the reprint of his Senate Internal Security Committee statement of Sept. 23.

Is it possible for you to let me have 20 copies each of these two items?

Also, I want to tell you that I personally consider the statement of April 1, 1961 a model of positiveness and clarity on an issue presently worrying the public, and I am wondering whether or not Mr. Hoover has issued something like it at a more recent date. If not, it is my opinion that it ought to be up-dated and re-issued.

Meantime, I shall appreciate receiving any other release you may want to send me.

With kind personal regards, I am

Cordially yours,

George Kellman

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Thank you for your thoughtfulness in so warmly responding to my request for additional copies of your statement of April 1, headed "To All Law Enforcement Officials."

As I told Mr. Rosen, I consider this statement outstanding for the balanced, concise and penetrating way in which it gets its message across. Frankly, I had the feeling that not giving it greater currency would be tantamount to hiding this light under a bushel. The type of response to our distribution of it more than substantiates this view.

It is a pleasure to have this opportunity of communicating this thought to you.

Again, with many thanks, and cordial regards, I am

While 1961 brought no such widespread outbreaks of unorganized Nazi-style vandalism and hoodlumism as had marked the previous year, organized anti-Semitic activity persisted undiminished. For the third year running, George Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi Party stole the headlines through noisy demonstrations; other hatemongers continued to concentrate chiefly on distributing inflammatory leaflets and pericdicals.

A new propaganda springboard was supplied by the trial of Adolf Eichmann. Agitators flatly denied the facts of the World War II holocaust, decrying the charge that six million Jews were murdered and hailing Eichmann as a martyr.

Following the pattern of earlier years, nearly all political developments were interpreted as phases of a Jewish-Communist conspiracy for world conquest -- often said to be based in Israel. United Nations actions were depicted as steps in the execution of this plot. However, while portraying "Jews and Zionists" as the sinister force behind the Soviet Union, the bigots -- in typical self-contradiction -- also attacked NATO and other anti-Communist defense arrangements.

On the domestic scene, Southern communities were again flooded with literature blasting integration as a Jewish scheme to "mongrelize" America, preparatory to a Communist takeover. President John F. Kennedy was labeled a tool of Jews and Communists; his Administration replaced the memory of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the New Deal as one of the anti-Semites' prime targets.

ANTI-SEMITES SEEK TO INFILTRATE THE FAR RIGHT

As the ultra-conservative right burgeoned, anti-Semites stepped up their perennial efforts to gain influence in that quarter. To accredit themselves, they aped the extreme right-wing position -- attacking social-welfare and mental-health "schemes," the income tax, fluoridation of drinking water, and "Federal control" in general.

The upsurge of ultra-conservatism began in March, when Robert H.W. Welch, leader of the John Birch Society, accused ex-President Dwight D. Eisenhower and other high officials of Communist involvement. In the wake of the resulting publicity other right-wing groups, old and new, burst into activity. Dr. Fred Schwarz's Christian Anti-Communist Crusade and the Rev. Billy James Hargis's Christian Crusade emerged as chief rivals of the John Birch Society.

Leaders of right-wing movements quickly and emphatically disclaimed racial and religious prejudice, sometimes pointing to Jews in their ranks. Thus, Schwarz's publicity stressed Catholic and Jewish as well as Protestant sponsorship or support for his rallies. In the Birch Society's Bulletin (April), Welch scored bigotry as a Communist weapon and declared:

> I am not anti-Semitic, never could be, and could never allow the John Birch Society to become an agency or even a haven of anti-Semitic feeling as long as I am directing its policies....

But the anti-Semites, undaunted, continued their attempts to thrust their support on ultra-conservative organizations. The picture became further confused as a result of bias in the publications of some ultra-conservative groups, such as Merwin K. Hart's National Economic Council.

TENSIONS IN THE SOUTH

In the face of Freedom Rides, sit-ins and school desegregation, Southern racists often combined anti-Negro appeals with anti-Semitism, charging a Jewish-Communist plot to "mongrelize" the South. Production of hate literature in Southern states increased, though the bulk still came from other regions.

Ku Klux Klan

The Klan movement was highly active despite internal rivalries. In January, Klansmen distributed hate literature during integration riots at the University of Georgia, Athens. The next month, hooded figures threatened school-board members in Baton Rouge, La. A cross was burned at the home of U.S. Representative Overton Brooks in Shreveport, La., while a Klan organizing drive was going on.

Klansmen were in evidence at the Freedom Rider riots in Alabama during May, and the state's two main Klan groups were among defendants temporarily enjoined from further violence by a Federal judge on June 2. In Atlanta, late in August, police measures thwarted attempts by Klan groups and others to disrupt school integration; at a subsequent Klan "protest meeting" the Police Chief's car was mobbed.

The Klan's trend toward fragmentation continued, despite occasional reports of mergers or federations. The U.S. Klans organization was split when Imperial Wizard Robert Lee ("Wild Bill") Davidson of Macon, Ga., and Grand Dragon Calvin Craig of Atlanta resigned to found the United Klans of America. Through an "educational department," Craig solicited donations -- falsely represented as tax-deductible -- for the new group. Control of U.S. Klans passed to the widow of Imperial Wizard Eldon L. Edwards (d. 1960), and Davidson's successor, E.E. George.

A significant statement came from veteran Klan leader Bill Hendrix of Oldsmar, Fla. Resigning as Grand Dragon of the Southern-Northern Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, he said:

> I see no way to stop racial integration and it looks to me like the best thing to do is to accept it.... Those in the Klan can only block it by illegal means. I'm not going to agree to such things as bombings and burning schools....

National States Rights Party — Made up of bigots from all over the country, NSRP was active chiefly in Southern trouble spots. Its monthly, The Thunderbolt (edited by Ed Fields of Birmingham) was circulated wherever desegregation was imminent. During the Atlanta lunch-counter crisis in February, a "Special Georgia Edition" blasted Gov. S. Ernest Vandiver and Sen. Herman Talmadge as "subservient to Jews" for permitting school integration. Other issues proclaimed: "Reds Move Into White House," "Jews Control NAACP" and "Eichmann Trial Giant Propaganda Hoax."

On January 24, Arkansas legislators were shocked to find copies of The Thunderbolt on their desks. Mrs. E. L. Bishop, NSRP's National Chairman, claimed permission had been obtained for this distribution. Steps were promptly taken to prevent a repetition.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy were hanged in effigy at an NSRP rally in Anniston, Ala., during September. The next month, Fields was arrested in Fairfield, Ala., for contempt of a court order banning a proposed rally; The Thunderbolt devoted nearly a whole issue to this "deprivation of civil rights." In November, 300 persons attended an NSRP meeting at Montgomery Municipal Auditorium to hear the Rev. Gordon Winrod, son of the notorious anti-Semite, Gerald B. Winrod.

White Citizens' Councils

Membership in White Citizens' Councils was estimated at 300,000, but active participation seems to have fluctuated greatly, depending on local tensions. Councils continued as autonomous groups loosely federated by regions or states. Most dropped "White" from their names.

Religious bigotry was promoted by extremist elements in some Councils. Leander Perez, Louisiana WCC leader and a champion of state segregation laws, publicly blamed Southern problems on "Zionist Jews." Other Councils -- for example in Mississippi -- confined themselves to right-wing and segregationist themes.

GEORGE LINCOLN ROCKWELL AND THE AMERICAN NAZI PARTY (ANP)

Through picketing, hate sheets and a "Hate Bus," American Nazi Party Commander Rockwell pursued his aim of "aggravating the Jews so bad" that they would not be able to ignore him. Throughout the year, he and some of his followers were involved with law courts.

Demonstrations

Disorder and some publicity was generated by ANP threats to picket local premieres of the movie Exodus. In Boston (January 15), Rockwell watched from his hotel (where he had registered as "Nathan Ginsburg") while an anti-Nazi crowd gathered outside the theater, then strode into the assemblage with three of his men. About to be mobbed, he was spirited away by police and packed off by plane. A truckload of ANP members was escorted out of the state.

At the Philadelphia opening of Exodus (February 1), ANP Deputy Commander Ralph P. Forbes and two others were swiftly removed from the scene. Arrested for inciting to riot, they were later acquitted. At subsequent premieres in Detroit (February 11) and Washington (February 20), picketing was restricted to assigned areas some distance from the theaters and proceeded uneventfully.

Mimicking the Freedom Riders, ANP members, between May 22 and 24, traveled from their headquarters in Arlington, Va., to New Orleans in a Volkswagen microbus plastered with racist and anti-Semitic signs. The "Hate Bus" was not allowed into New Orleans until the signs were removed. Attempts to picket an NAACP meeting and the local premiere of Exodus landed Rockwell and nine others in jail, where they staged a hunger strike, in imitation of the jailed Freedom Riders. Rockwell was later fined $100 and sentenced to 60 days, but was released on bail.

Legal Proceedings

Rockwell's right to hold a rally in a New York City park was finally upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court on November 13. Denied a permit in 1960, he had won a reversal in the two appellate courts of New York State; the case had then been taken to the Supreme Court by the City. Throughout, he was represented by the American Civil Liberties Union, which stressed his right to speak, however repugnant his views.

On July 20, in Arlington, two ANP troopers were sentenced to the county road gang for seizing a Jewish boy and holding him at ANP headquarters until freed by police. A third trooper was fined and jailed for assaulting another boy.

In January, retiring U.S. Attorney General William P. Rogers decided not to list ANP as subversive, since its name constituted sufficient warning to the public.

Publications

A stream of scurrilous leaflets plus a monthly National Socialist Bulletin poured from Rockwell's printing press in Arlington. Late in the year, his autobiography, This Time the World, was published under the imprint of J. V. Kenneth Morgan, one of Rockwell's confidential aides. Priced at $10, Jews were urged to buy it in self-protection.

PRO-ARAB PROPAGANDA

Attacks by American anti-Semites on "Zionists" or Jews (the terms being used interchangeably) were in evidence throughout the year, as was anti-Zionist propaganda disseminated by Arab bodies in the United States: embassies and UN delegations, the Arab Information Center (AIC), the Organization of Arab Students, the Palestine Arab Refugee Office (PARO), and the new Arab Palestine Delegation.

While Common Sense (January 15) and Merwin K. Hart's Economic Council Letter (April 15) blamed Zionists for drawing the United States into World War I and creating the Soviet Union, a pamphlet by PARO director Izzat Tannous branded Zionism as a new form of colonialism, and the Arab Palestine Delegation's Newsletter (August 15) enlarged upon "Zionist crime, murder and robbery."

Arab propaganda pamphlets were offered for sale in James H. Madole's neo-Nazi National Renaissance Bulletin. Gerald L. K. Smith gave this accolade to the PARO chief in The Cross and the Flag (July):

> The story of Jew-organized gangsterism has been told by a great citizen, a former citizen of Jerusalem, Dr. Izzat Tannous. I have met Dr. Tannous. He is a gentleman of breeding, intelligence and honor.

ANTI-SEMITIC PERIODICALS AND BOOKS

The output of the hate press continued undiminished. Common Sense, edited by Conde McGinley in Union, N.J., claimed a new high -- 89,500 copies -- for its October 1 issue. Admiral John G. Crommelin (Retired), the Alabama anti-Semite and perennial political candidate, was listed as one of the magazine's stockholders.

The American Mercury switched from religious bigotry to ultra-conservatism when control passed from Russell Maguire of New York to the Defenders of the Christian Faith, a fundamentalist missionary group. The Defenders, though founded by Gerald B. Winrod, have avoided overt anti-Semitism since his death. However, Gerald's son Gordon started a monthly, The Winrod Letter, which proclaimed that "there is nothing wrong with hate," and, among other items, touted Arab anti-Jewish literature.

Among numerous other hate publications, Gerald L. K. Smith's monthly, The Cross and the Flag, adjusted its anti-Semitic line to nearly all current developments, while his New Letter printed items "other news agencies might hesitate to carry." Anti-Negro and anti-Semitic appeals were combined with attacks on religion in The Truth Seeker, and James H. Madole's National Renaissance Bulletin featured lurid drawings of Negroes embracing white girls.

The World Conquerors, a handbook of anti-Jewish canards by a Hungarian Fascist, Lajos Marschalko, was widely circulated in an English edition imported from London. Another book distributed in quantity was Iron Curtain Over America by the late (d. November 9) John O. Beaty, now in its 16th printing.

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised through the Joint Defense Appeal.

Vol. VII, No. 2, February 1962

NEW YORK IN THE OFFING FOR ROCKWELL?

Bolstered by a U.S. Supreme Court decision affirming his right to speak, American Nazi Party leader George Lincoln Rockwell has applied to New York City's Park Commissioner for a permit to hold a meeting in Union Square April 20. Rockwell selected the date which marks the birthday of his inglorious hero, Adolf Hitler. But this year, two of the most sacred holy days in the Christian and Jewish religions happen to fall on the same day: Good Friday and the second day of Passover. Rockwell's application is still under consideration.

Rockwell was invited to address the Student Forum of Bucknell University on January 31. His appearance was called off amid protests by numerous campus and local groups, including the American Legion and the Daughters of the American Revolution. On the day of the scheduled talk, the streets of nearby Lewisburg, Pa., were strewn with ANP leaflets. "Captain" Seth David Ryan was charged with "illegal distribution of literature" and sentenced to 10 days in prison or $25. Ryan spent a short time in jail before the fine was paid.

On February 4, Rockwell arrived belatedly in Lewisburg, accompanied by a shabby-looking retinue of nine henchmen. Denied the city courthouse and the Federal building for his meeting-place, the ANP leader proceeded to deliver his tirade in a public square. A crowd of more than a thousand persons, regulated by 50 law-enforcement officers, made it difficult for the "fuehrer" to be heard; most of his remarks were drowned out by jeers and shouts of "Go home!" After about 10 minutes, the would-be orator gave up, retiring his forces in order and without incident.

On the literary front, Rockwell has intensified his efforts to "aggravate the Jews" into vociferous and attention-getting protest. Since late in 1961, his official publication, The Rockwell Report, has been appearing twice a month, garishly headlined and emblazoned with red, often illustrated with large, crude cartoons portraying the Jew in the style of Nazi Germany's Streicher. The February 1 Report brandishes a scarehead, "EXTRA," in type six inches high, and purports to offer the word-by-word translation of a manuscript written by Adolf Eichmann in captivity and smuggled out of Israel. The alleged communication from Eichmann describes the prisoner's supposed "torture" at the hands of Jews.

This Time the World, Rockwell's long-advertised autobiography, is finally out, issued under the imprint of J.V. Kenneth Morgan, a confidential aide of the ANP leader for some years. Despite a prohibitive price of $10, the book is amateurishly printed and offers little more than a surfeit of photographs of Hitler and a rehash of the anti-Semitic arguments already expounded in Rockwell's many leaflets. Autobiographical portions give a shallow portrait of a frustrated childhood and youth, and go into tiresome details about the author's pre-Nazi career -- the fruitless years spent living in a trailer with his family, taking on short-lived jobs in publishing and trying his hand at ill-fated right-wing projects. Sections dealing with Rockwell's current Nazi activities contain little material that is new.

BOMBINGS IN LOS ANGELES

During a panel discussion of "The Extreme Right" held February 1 at Temple Sinai in Los Angeles, bombs exploded at the homes of two participants, Rev. John G. Simmons (Unitarian) and Rev. Brooks Walter (Lutheran). The families of both ministers narrowly escaped injury. The home of Marsha Hunt, the third panelist, was untouched -- probably because it is listed under the actress' married name. Temple Sinai grounds were strewn with leaflets bearing crude drawings of the Star of David, the hammer and sickle and the UN emblem. In the course of a police investigation of the bombings, it was revealed that a suburban resident had gotten a similar leaflet, scribbled over with death threats.... Several days after the Temple outrage, a telephoned bomb threat was received at the home of actor Robert Ryan, who had just taken part in a local radio expose of right-wing activities.

NSRP PROGRAM FOR 1962

The racist National States Rights Party sets forth details of "the big job to do in '62" in a letter from Dr. Edward R. Fields at Birmingham, Ala., headquarters. The anti-Semitic, anti-Negro group gives first priority to plans to participate in the 1964 Presidential election. Rallies and meetings are to be scheduled in areas where the Party has members and supporters but no active branches. National headquarters will organize local activities for all branches; these will include picketings, boycotts and meetings.

CURRENT LITERATURE IN BRIEF

In his National Renaissance Bulletin (October - December, 1961), neo-Nazi editor James H. Madole implies that Americans might profit from studying the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union and the Arab nations.

> JEWS HAVE BEEN PURGED FROM THE SOVIET DIPLOMATIC CORPS AND FROM NEARLY EVERY MAJOR POST IN THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT BECAUSE OF THEIR POLITICAL UNRELIABILITY. Their race is still prominent in the Russian arts and sciences but exercise little or no control of Soviet economic life....Russian Communism is not anti-Semitic as many American Jews claim but merely anti-Zionist....In time the Russian government may learn, as the Arab nations have learned, that mere anti-Zionism will not suffice.

In Oberammergau in Upper Bavaria, the Widar Publishing House has printed 36,000 copies of The Coming Red Dictatorship, anti-Semitic tract by the American hatemonger, Conde McGinley. In the German translation, the word "Jews" has been replaced by Sataniden (Satanic beings).

Action, a mimeographed newsletter published in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., by James Warner, a former Rockwell lieutenant, lists a variety of anti-Semitic books and pamphlets for sale. Among them is I Testify, by the late Robert Edmondson, advertised at $3.50. This compendium of anti-Jewish slanders hit its peak of distribution in the early '40s, during the heyday of the German American Bund. Warner's selling point is that this book has been recommended by such notorious anti-Semites as Elizabeth Dilling, George E. Deatherage and Frank Britton.

In the January 1962 issue of The Winrod Letter, Rev. Gordon Winrod, son of the late Rev. Gerald Winrod of Kansas, promotes the sale of his father's anti-Semitic materials, even though many of them date back to pre-World War II days. One feature article presents Winrod's conspiratorial interpretation of his expulsion from the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod. Complaining that "no reason has been stated and no charges have been made," Winrod reprints a notice of ineligibility which appeared in December in The Lutheran Witness, official organ of the Synod:

> Rev. Gordon Winrod, deposed from the ministry by First Lutheran Church of Little Rock, Ark., is no longer eligible for a call in The Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod. He has organized a congregation known as Saint Paul Lutheran Church, Little Rock. This congregation has no affiliation with the Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I have read with great interest the excellent article on "The Rightist Crisis in our Churches" which appeared in the April 24th issue of Look.

The report of the activities of the F. B. I. under your most able direction in combating both Communism and the Radical Rightists must fill all of us with renewed pride and confidence in what your organization means to the welfare of our country.

You are performing an invaluable service in preserving the democratic process, which is an inseparable part of our Judaeo-Christian heritage.

Yours very respectfully,

Louis Caplan

NOTE:

New York furnished a copy of a ~~"Confidential"~~ letter sent by the captioned committee to one of their members. This letter was furnished to New York by the Secretary General of the Action Committee on American Arab Relations. The letter reveals that the American Jewish Committee (AJC) had conducted a study of anti-Israeli propaganda and furnished instructions as to how this propaganda could be refuted. New York is of opinion that AJC may have incurred an obligation to register with the Department. Contents of LHM does not support this opinion and New York being advised to conduct no further inquiries. A copy of LHM has been furnished to Department for information. The Bureau has maintained cordial relations with the AJC in the past.

April 2, 1969

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Dear Colleague:

The intensified Arab propaganda effort in the United States is taking place in a number of areas: United Nations agencies, American political leadership, college campuses and the general American community. Of particular concern is the extent to which this effort has penetrated church groups and publications. According to a recent study of the American Jewish Committee, the anti-Israel campaign has taken several forms: (1) the proliferation of a number of associations, committees, etc. over the past several years, a number of them led or coordinated by American clergymen, some with headquarters in Arab nations, most notably Lebanon, such as Americans for Justice in the Middle East, Americans for Middle East Understanding, etc. (2) There is a barrage of mail from American missionaries in Arab nations, directed to "fellow Christians" of the West which are readily printed or reprinted in major Protestant denominational or interdenominational publications. (3) Reports from Christian church delegations to the Middle East -- which are based largely on visits to the Arab refugees -- tend to be anti-Israel in tone. (4) There is an apparently well organized campaign of letter writing to the general and religious press reflecting an anti-Israel position.

The overwhelming majority of American Christians whose stance is anti-Israel have scrupulously avoided the use of blatant anti-Semitic propaganda, and this distinction should be borne in mind in countering their efforts. (Another distinction which should be acknowledged is some difference between Catholic and Protestant responses; American Catholics tend to be more sympathetic to Israel, and most of the pro-Arab statements and materials are found in Protestant journals and among Protestant clergy. The Middle Eastern Catholic groups are, of course, uniformly anti-Israel.) Nevertheless, some of the anti-Israel, anti-Zionist material slides into anti-Semitism. Christian attitudes toward Israel are also complicated by frequently unacknowledged - and perhaps unconscious - theological presuppositions on the one hand, and an uncritical acceptance of the "third world" political ideology on the other hand.

b7C

The arguments of those Christians who are anti-Israel center around certain themes:

1. An overriding preoccupation with the plight of Arab refugees, and the assumption that Israel is totally or largely responsible for their plight.

2. A tendency to characterize Israel as a militaristic, expansionist state.

3. A tendency to regard Zionism as narrow tribalism, or racist chauvinism, a contradiction or corruption of the "noble universalism of prophetic Judaism." (Along with this frequently goes a sympathy for the American Council for Judaism, and in some cases, specific directives to seek cooperation and dialogue with that organization.) The other side of this coin is a tendency to look sympathetically on Arab nationalism, and in some cases to romanticize the Arab fedayeen terrorist groups and commando units as "freedom fighters".

4. American Christians share the general American mood of non-intervention, and express particular anxiety about the possibility of a major world war being sparked by the Middle East crisis. There is an almost automatic assumption that should a conflagration be touched off, it will be the fault of Israeli, not Arab intransigence.

PROPOSED SUGGESTIONS FOR RABBINIC ACTION

I. Organizing the Jewish Community

1. Regional, state and local meetings of Jewish religious and communal leadership should be held to alert people to the problem of Arab propaganda in churches and in American Christian publications.

2. Specific committees should be organized to monitor Christian publications, speakers, programs, etc. that take place in church settings. These committees should be aware of the existing resources that are available to them.

3. Bureaus of informed Jewish speakers, both rabbinic and lay, should be organized on a community level. Public platforms and mass media should be used to interpret the issues.

4. Letters on the Middle East situation should be sent to public officials and to the general and religious press, and to radio and TV program directors. Especially hostile articles should be answered directly with a strong and knowledgeable response.

II. Dealing with the Christian Community

1. It is necessary for Jews to talk to Christians often and to speak to them with the assumption that they are friendly toward Israel. Do not assume that they are hostile. It should be emphasized to Christians that being pro-Arab and pro-Israel are not mutually exclusive.

2. Personal contacts and friendships with Christian clergy should be enhanced and deepened. These may include lunches, pulpit exchanges, social visits, private and public meetings, etc..

3. Local Jewish communities should organize one day Jewish-Christian "Middle East clergy institutes." Experience has shown that these institutes are extremely effective in combating anti-Israel propaganda. It matters little how the institute is structured. It can be along either "theological" or "historical" lines. The Middle East should be thoroughly discussed at these institutes by competent authorities.

4. Available printed materials should be distributed to Christian clergy and Christian lay leaders.

III. Allies.

1. In programming or seeking speakers, be sure to check with the following organizations: American Professors for Peace in the Middle East, University and Interfaith Committee of the American Israel Cultural Foundation, members of the Christian clergy and seminary faculty who have shown their commitment to Israel through previous speeches and writings.

For Your Information from THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMITTEE

386 FOURTH AVENUE, NEW YORK 16, N. Y.

No. 1, June 1955

This is the first issue of a newsletter designed to keep you abreast of trends and movements of interest to you. Further issues will appear from time to time.

UN FOES HOLD RALLY

The Congress of Freedom, an annual assembly of some 600 members of right-wing groups, recently met in San Francisco. Main feature of the agenda was condemnation of U. S. participation in the UN. Speakers included Merwin K. Hart, head of the ultra-conservative National Economic Council; Westbrook Pegler, the columnist; and Thomas H. Werdel, a former Congressman from California. Robert Le Fevre, organizer of the Congress and a member of its executive committee, is the man who spearheaded the attack against the Girl Scouts last year. He also contributes articles to Merwin K. Hart's National Economic Council Bulletin, which fulminates against the UN and makes excursions into anti-Semitism.

Dr. V. Orval Watts, a delegate to the Congress, objected to the wording of a resolution on "The Philosophy Behind the United Nations." He demanded that a phrase equating American principles with Christianity be removed to avoid offending non-Christians. The compromise retained the words "Christian American principles," but added another phrase referring to the rights of all faiths to religious freedom.

Noting he had been termed "a foreigner," despite having lived in the U. S. for 40 years, Watts declared: "That spirit is what worries me about the Congress." He pointed out that communism could be fought more effectively by obtaining support from "many who are not Christians -- but Jews, for example." His words provoked a storm of denunciation. Dr. A. G. Blazey, a physician of Washington, Ind., said "the American movement" consists "chiefly of Christians." Mrs. Frank Cunningham of Santa Monica asked "this Christian gathering" not to deny Christ by supporting Watts, but to join together in the "fight against the anti-Christ."

All were unanimous in dubbing the UN the brainchild of Communist conspirators. Americans were urged to mark the UN's anniversary by wearing black armbands and flying the U. S. flag at half-mast. The convention closed with the adoption of 10 resolutions condemning the UN and calling for U. S. withdrawal.

NEWSPAPER CHAIN HITS HATEMONGERS

The Scripps-Howard Syndicate recently featured a series of exposes on the hate movement and its personalities. After sketching the activities of pre-Pearl Harbor bigots, the articles described present-day purveyors of bigotry, including Benjamin Freedman, Joseph Kamp and Conde McGinley. It was pointed out that new right-wing and isolationist groups, which were set up to voice neo-nationalist or ultra-conservative views, provide a happy hunting ground for bigots. In trying to infiltrate and gain control of these organizations, the articles noted, the forces of bigotry have adopted the fifth column tactics of the Communists.

ARABS STEP UP PROPAGANDA

The propaganda arm of the Arab League -- the Arab Information Center -- has opened New York offices at 445 Park Avenue. First issue of a newsletter, Arab Information, carried a statement that the publication was filed with the Department of Justice under the Foreign Agents' Registration Act. The second issue contained a "thank you" column, which observed: "More than 60 editors, educators, commentators, leaders in industry and in international affairs, of the 400 receiving the first trial run of Arab Information, replied to our inquiry. We are delighted by the enthusiastic interest they expressed."

The AIC, obviously addressing itself to molders of U. S. public opinion, offers "press information to keep news and magazine editors informed, as well as radio and TV commentators...information also to non-governmental organizations such as clubs, colleges and business...." The Center is receiving "books, pamphlets and official reports" from Arab countries.

Students of Arab propaganda are already acquainted with such pamphlets as Israel's Aggression at Gaza, Story of Zionist Espionage in Egypt, and Jewish Atrocities in the Holy Land, which attempt to evoke sympathy for the Arab countries and promote bias against Israel, the Israelis and Jews in general. These pamphlets are distributed by anti-Semitic groups in the USA, such as the National Renaissance Party, whose program was characterized by the House Un-American Activities Committee as being "virtually borrowed wholesale from the Fascist and Nazi dictators." Individual bigots -- Gerald L. K. Smith, George W. Armstrong, Conde McGinley, Frank L. Britton and others -- also circulate Arab propaganda.

NEW REACTIONARY GROUP

A new ultra-conservative group, Young Men for America, has been formed at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. The first issue of its paper, Op. Cit., claims a circulation of 11,000 and describes itself as "a monthly publication devoted to the preservation of constitutional government and Christian Civilization -- to encourage students to take an informed and active interest in the affairs of our government." Features include laudatory reviews of several right-wing books; an "analysis" of a Gallup Poll to prove that Senator McCarthy and General MacArthur are the most admired men in America; and excerpts from a speech by Senator Jenner, charging that a "collectivist machine," friendly to the Soviet Union, operates in key Government circles. General George E. Stratemeyer's endorsement of John O. Beaty's Iron Curtain Over America is reprinted in full. Beaty, a professor of English at SMU, has been criticized for his anti-Semitic views and his glorification of Prussianism. In 1945, he wrote two pamphlets in which he attacked the AJC.

ILL WINDS

Don Bell Reports, published in Palm Beach, Fla., by Don Bell, continues its anti-Semitic diatribes. Various versions of the Protocols themes are included from time to time. The Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower administrations are blasted because of alleged domination by Jews. The UN is cited as the "Fifth International of World Revolution," its control "vested in Jewish International Organizations." The "most un-American group" is the CIA. George Deatherage, notorious anti-Semite, has been listed as the publication's "research specialist."

Headlines, Joe Kamp's publication, rehashes his usual charges that government officials are under Jewish "control," and that Jewish agencies are controlled by Communists. The House Un-American Activities Committee is condemned for its report exposing neo-Fascist and hate groups. Chief Investigator Owens is accused of setting up "a branch of the Velde Committee in the headquarters of the American Jewish Committee...Here Owens got more 'evidence';..a mass of malicious misinformation..." Kamp, head of the isolationist Constitutional Educational League, served a four-month sentence in 1950 for refusing to give the House Campaign Expenditures Committee a list of contributors to the League.

Facts Are Facts is the latest pamphlet by Benjamin Freedman, pro-Arab spokesman and a principal financial backer of Conde McGinley's scurrilous Common Sense. Purporting to "reply" to the writings of Catholic apologist David Goldstein, Freedman's screed promotes the hoax that "Jesus was not a Jew." Passages from the Talmud and other Jewish religious writings, taken out of context and otherwise distorted, are used to discredit these works as obscene.

The National Renaissance Bulletin, official organ of the National Renaissance Party, attacks Israel and "the Zionist-dominated Eisenhower regime." NRP's program was described by the House Un-American Activities Committee as advocating "abolition of parliamentary government in the United States in favor of government by a 'trained elite'; establishment of a Fascist corporate economy; encouragement of 'racial' pride; preservation of the 'White Aryan' race by gradual deportation of 'the Porto Ricans, Negroes, Jews and Asiatics'; and the denial to Jewish people of citizenship, professional and political posts, and the right of 'intermarriage.'"

CONDE McGINLEY: HATEMONGER

This issue of FYI describes the activities of Conde McGinley, a fanatical racist who is currently vying with Gerald L.K. Smith for the title, "Number One Anti-Semite." Said the House Committee on Un-American Activities last year, in its Preliminary Report on Neo-Fascist and Hate Groups: "...Conde McGinley has developed a shrewd and flourishing business out of hate propaganda."

Quartered in a converted roadhouse at 530 Chestnut Street, Union, N. J., McGinley operates the largest depot in the U. S. for the dissemination of bigoted writings, ranging from such time-worn literary frauds as The Protocols of the Elders of Zion down to the most recent outpourings. Latest example is Benjamin Freedman's Facts are Facts (see FYI No. 1), which McGinley has been promoting vigorously and selling in the thousands. McGinley's own publication, the semi-monthly Common Sense, dubbed by the House Committee as "almost exclusively a vehicle for the exploitation of ignorance, prejudice and fear," also emanates from this center.

Since its inception in 1947, Common Sense has grown both in venom and in circulation. A list of its editorial contributors reads like a roll-call of anti-Semites. It now has some 25,000 subscribers. But bulk shipments of the tabloid often go to Senators, State legislators and members of the UN, to cities throughout the U.S. and to many foreign countries. Thus, some issues reach well over 100,000 readers.

The ostensible theme of McGinley's sheet is the fight against communism. But to him, communism is merely another synonym for Jews, Zionism and all other groups and movements of which he disapproves. He pushed this theme to the limit in a special publication, The Coming Red Dictatorship, which pictured 36 prominent Jews -- many of them members of the Eisenhower Administration. It was headlined: "ASIATIC MARXIST JEWS CONTROL ENTIRE WORLD AS LAST WAR COMMENCES . . . THOUSANDS OF PLOTTERS PLACED IN KEY POSITIONS BY INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT." Appealing for funds recently, McGinley boasted that he had distributed 470,000 copies of this document.

BIGOTRY VS. ANNA ROSENBERG

Common Sense of Nov. 1, 1950, kicked off the drive against Senate confirmation of Mrs. Anna Rosenberg as Assistant Armed Forces Secretary. Under derogatory scareheads, Mrs. Rosenberg was given the familiar anti-Semitic, Communist-smear treatment. Thousands of copies were distributed to Government officials and employees in Washington, and to the general public throughout the nation. Benjamin Freedman, Gerald L.K. Smith and former Congressman John Rankin were among the bigots who joined the drive begun by Common Sense. However, this baseless campaign soon collapsed and Mrs. Rosenberg's appointment was confirmed.

McGINLEY AND POLITICS

Through his paper, McGinley constantly injects himself into the political scene. Both major parties are targets. The headline of August 15, 1952, is typical: "INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT RULES BOTH PARTIES . . . ADLAI AND IKE MARXIST STOOGES . . . BARUCH, FRANKFURTER, LEHMAN, AVERY, SCHLESSINGER, SAM ROSENMAN GIVE ORDERS." The September 1, 1952, headline announced: "REDS OWN STEVENSON, ADA-ROCKEFELLER TOOL." Spewing no less vitriol on General Eisenhower, the issue of May 15, 1952, proclaimed: "IKE ENSLAVES 200,000."

In the 1954 Maine primary, McGinley tried vainly to defeat Senator Margaret Chase Smith by trucking issues of his paper into several cities, for distribution by his henchmen.

In the New Jersey primary campaign, McGinley tried to defeat Clifford Case by distributing literature of the Christian Educational Association, a McGinley front, and by otherwise aiding a diversionary candidate for this nomination.

On the legislative front, McGinley employs rabble-rousing techniques to support the Bricker Amendment.

CASHING IN ON DESEGREGATION

The Supreme Court's desegregation decision last year was the signal for McGinley to step up his anti-Semitic, anti-Negro propaganda. Large quantities of the July 1, 1954, Common Sense flooded the South, its headline screaming: "COMMUNISM HITS SOUTH WITH NON-SEGREGATION . . . JEWISH MARXISTS THREATEN NEGRO REVOLT IN AMERICA! COMMUNISTS PLAN BLACK REPUBLIC IN SOUTH!" By means of "junk mail," Delaware was innundated with anti-Negro, anti-Semitic issues of Common Sense amid desegregation tensions in that state.

"POISON PLOT" AGAINST U.S.A.

Two issues of McGinley's paper have been almost entirely devoted to the fluoridation of drinking water. This measure, supported by many scientists as a means of reducing tooth decay, is branded by McGinley as a plot to poison America and weaken its resistance to the Reds. Jewish names are prominently played up. In communities where the pros and cons of fluoridation are being debated, Common Sense often turns up in letter-boxes or is distributed on the streets.

DOWN WITH THE UN

A Common Sense headline labels the UN the "UN-WORLD JEWISH PLAN." Another demands "GET AMERICA OUT OF UN." McGinley's thesis is that the "Jewish plan for world conquest" will eventually be brought about through the UN. One issue of Common Sense urges readers to communicate with the United States Day Committee, Inc., a project of Robert Le Fevre to promote "United States Day," in opposition to UN Day. Le Fevre heads the Congress of Freedom (see FYI No. 1), which seeks to unify extreme rightist ultra-conservative groups.

ARAB PROPAGANDA

McGinley devotes considerable space to pro-Arab propaganda. He accuses the Jews of "massacres, indiscriminate killing and savage acts," as well as destruction of holy places. Common Sense of July 15, 1953, rehashed major portions of the notorious Arab League pamphlet, Jewish Atrocities in the Holy Land. Arab supporter Benjamin Freedman has admitted making heavy contributions to Common Sense. In a two-month period alone, he claimed, he gave in excess of $7,000 to the paper.

NAILING A BIG LIE

In a recent trial in New Jersey Superior Court, McGinley was found guilty of libel against Dr. Joachim Prinz of Newark. Common Sense had called Prinz "a Red Rabbi" who was "expelled from Germany for revolutionary Communist activities." An all-Christian jury awarded Prinz $30,000 in damages.

AMERICA HITS BACK

Public-spirited citizens and organizations, as well as Government agencies, have expressed repugnance at McGinley's bigotry and have alerted the public against it. Here are a few examples of what has been said about McGinley and his paper:

The American Legion, Department of New Jersey, denounced Common Sense. The Americanism Commission of the Legion's Illinois Department did likewise in a report, reprinted in the Congressional Record, which termed McGinley's activities "inimical to the best interests of American democracy."

Catholics were warned against Common Sense by Rev. William Daley of the Third District of the Holy Name Society, which represents nine parishes in the Bronx, N.Y.: "Although the paper does not directly attack Catholicism, it is anti-Semitic. If it would attack one religion, it would attack all...."

Hearst columnist George E. Sokolsky, after analyzing McGinley's sheet, wrote: "I appeal personally to real fighters against communism to denounce this paper. Such a paper as Common Sense, by constant repetition of a lie, follows the Great Lie technique which both Hitler and Stalin have used to such great advantage. I take this opportunity to nail the lie that communism and Zionism are identical, akin, associated."

Last year, the General Assembly of New Jersey, McGinley's home state, passed a resolution to "make known its abhorrence of the organized campaign of prejudice and bigotry and of the author of that scurrilous literature, Conde McGinley."

The House Committee on Un-American Activities has stated: "Common Sense represents itself as 'the nation's anti-communist paper.' Subscriptions are sought from 'loyal and patriotic Americans' in order to 'help save our Republic.' Such patriotic claims provide poor disguise, however, for some of the most vitriolic hate propaganda ever to come to the attention of this committee... Through the sale of Common Sense and innumerable booklets printed and offered for sale, the McGinleys /father and son/ appear to serve as a clearing house for hate propagandists throughout the country. Among these are many of the native Fascists and hate racketeers who were active in the 1930's...."

WHY McGINLEY BEARS WATCHING

Unlike many rabble-rousers who are "trying to make a living," McGinley's reputation among bigots is that he is "sincere." Totally obsessed with anti-Jewish animus, McGinley has become a focal point for anti-Semites throughout the country, who feel that every contribution they make to him will further their common phobia. Similarly, hatemongers who no longer have their own publications -- and some who do -- have made Common Sense a principal vehicle for their writings. That paper thus gains a variety of themes and modes of presentation, in addition to McGinley's own keen awareness of topical issues which may be manipulated into anti-Semitic propaganda. These factors combine to create the most virulent generator of anti-Semitic infection in this country today.

While most right-thinking citizens have seen through McGinley's "anti-communism," and clearly recognize his efforts as being the divisive propaganda that it is, we ought not derive too much comfort from this circumstance.

Dare we lose sight of the possibility that a time of economic distress, with accompanying social unrest, could provide a larger and more attentive audience for McGinley's ideas? Experience has proved that in periods of strain -- when people are prone to accept desperate solutions to their problems -- there is a tendency to find scapegoats among minority groups. A well-informed citizenry is the best guarantee that demagogic appeals will go unheeded, even in times of tension. It is important, therefore, that men like Conde McGinley be constantly unmasked before the public.

No. 3, August 1955

POLITICAL HATE CAMPAIGN OFF TO A FLYING START

As plans for the 1956 Presidential campaign begin to get under way, hatemongers are preparing to intensify their exploitation of political issues and personalities. Dissident right-wing elements are now organizing around the country, striving for a national coalition which they hope will be strong enough to capture one of the parties or form an effective "third party" movement.

Attempts of bigots to influence American politics have been notorious in recent years, particularly during Congressional and Presidential elections. Pandering to reactionary elements in both major political parties, the current line is that Democrats and Republicans are birds of a feather and that both parties are dominated by "Communists, Zionists and One-Worlders." Among numerous targets, President Eisenhower bears the brunt of the attack.

A high-point of hatemongering was attained in 1952 when entire regions were flooded with pseudo-political tracts smearing Eisenhower. Immediately after the Republican convention opened, anti-Semites held their own national conclave in Chicago, thereafter deploying among the Republican delegates to propagandize against Eisenhower, Warren and other potential candidates "controlled by the Zionists and Reds." After Eisenhower's nomination, the Constitution Party was organized by ultra-conservative elements as a "third party." It soon fell under the control of such bigots as Upton Close and W. Henry MacFarland, Jr. -- the latter a leader of the Nationalist Action League when that group was listed by the Attorney General as "Fascist." California State Senator Jack B. Tenney accepted the Vice Presidential nomination of Gerald Smith's Christian Nationalist Party. Anti-Semitic publicist Gerald Winrod and others spread fantastic canards claiming that Eisenhower was the puppet of a conspiracy which had dominated U. S. presidents for fifty years. Despite the obvious absurdity of these smears, many ultra-conservatives -- some of considerable standing -- were taken in.

The July 1955 issue of Williams Intelligence Summary, published by West Coast pamphleteer Robert H. Williams, carried an article headlined: "EISENHOWER WILL RUN IN '56 OR DECLINE TOO LATE FOR CONSERVATIVE TO GET INTO GOP PRIMARIES. BUT -- WILL SOME GOPATRIOT JUMP IN THE RING ANYWAY WITHOUT WAITING FOR IKE'S ANSWER?" A supplement to the June issue of Williams' paper hailed McCarthy's "break" with Eisenhower over the issue of American prisoners in Red China:

> "McCarthy has such a powerful following, he now confronts the next Republican Convention with a mountain it will be hard to get around.... He serves notice at the right time that the Republicans had better not re-nominate Eisenhower; he lets the Democrats see that if Ike is re-nominated, they can sweep the nation by naming a candidate acceptable to the conservative Republicans. . ."

Williams attained a measure of national notoriety during the 1952 campaign by widely distributing a doctored version of a group photograph which made it appear that Eisenhower and Soviet General Zhukov were conferring alone in the most friendly manner.

The June issue of Gerald L. K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag intimates that Yalta will be used to smear both Republicans and Democrats. Charging duplicity on the part of "this phony Republican National Committee," Smith said that Senator McCarthy was "amazed" to find that "these /Yalta/ files were to be guarded more jealously and more dogmatically by Eisenhower than they had been by Truman." The uses to which the Geneva Conference will be put were indicated in another of Smith's publications, The Letter, which predicted that the meeting would lead to agreements "in the same pattern as those reached at Yalta."

McGinley's Common Sense (June 15) printed a purported "letter" to the Republican National Chairman, suggesting that he is building up an "Eisenhower Image," which might lead people to ask: "Who is doing the Eisenhower thinking, Jack Martin or Max Raab or both?.... They will even go into the Anna Rosenberg thing and ask where she fits into the Image.... Now the Eisenhower Image wants Communists to travel freely.... The Eisenhower Image has changed our historic passport rules...."

Recent items in the hate press also harp on the states' rights theme in connection with the Supreme Court's desegregation decision, in the hope of influencing Southern voters to abandon the Democratic Party and join the dissident bloc. The July 15 issue of Merwin K. Hart's Economic Council Letter, devoted entirely to attacking the Supreme Court's decision as a violation of states' rights, concludes with the query: "Haven't the American people -- haven't the President, the Congress and the Supreme Court -- submitted long enough to pressure groups of a wholly alien and un-American nature?"

HATE PARTY LAUNCHED

A new political group worth special mention is the Nationalist Party of the U.S.A., organized by West Hooker. Its national committee reads like a roster of the anti-Semitic movement. Included are General George Van Horn Moseley, who was exposed by the Dies Committee as having met with the German-American Bund leadership; Bryant Bowles, leader of the vitriolic National Association for the Advancement of White People; and such anti-Semitic authors as Eustace Mullins, Peter Xavier and Marlyn R. Allen.

Nationalist Party Bulletin Vol. 1, No. 1, lists the Party's views as follows:

> "Regarding 'Politics'
> Pro-Nationalism, with Friendly Relations.
> Anti-Internationalism, Interventionism with Entangling Alliances.
> "Regarding 'Race'
> Pro-Natural Segregation with Natural Assimilation.
> Anti-Forced Integration and Forced Assimilation with Resulting Forced Mongrelization.
> "Regarding 'Creed'
> Pro-Christianism and Tolerant of Non-Christianism
> Anti-All Forms of Anti-Christianism - whether Stalinist, Trotzkyite, Marxist, Pharisaic, Talmudic, Rabbinistic, Zionistic, or Judaistic Brands."

BIGOT LAUDS PAL

General George Van Horn Moseley, formerly regarded as the potential leader of a Fascist movement in the U. S., has written an open letter to Attorney General Brownell praising Conde McGinley and his scurrilous Common Sense (see FYI #2). Moseley asserts:

> "...Quite naturally Mr. McGinley, in fighting communism, has been attacked by the Jews who have been seriously involved in that conspiracy.... Communism could be crushed in a week if the Jews generally were sincere in their efforts opposing communism.... The political and financial power of the Jews is so great that no politician dares criticize them or even refer to them by name.... I have known Mr. McGinley well for several years. I marvel at the punishment he has taken without it defeating his aims and purposes in the least. He is a Christian of the finest type and highest character. If our Republic is finally saved, Mr. McGinley should be called before the assembled Congress and given a medal of honor for his heroism....."

In the midst of his build-up of McGinley as "an outstanding patriot," the General takes a poke at the AJC for its "power over the press and radio."

WHO'S WHO

The First National Directory of Rightist Groups, Publications and Some Individuals in the United States has just been published by an organization calling itself Liberty and Property. Willis Carto, executive director, is a leader of the right-wing Congress of Freedom which recently lashed out against the UN (see FYI #1). Says the directory's forward: "The one and only thing in common of the within names are that they all represent a protest of some sort to prevailing 'leftist' political and/or social trends." Result: many respectable persons and groups are listed side-by-side with such elements as Elizabeth Dilling, the Christian Educational Association (McGinley), and Gerald Smith's Christian Nationalist Crusade.

BIGOTS BUILDING UP A MARTYR

Lucille Miller of Bethel, Vermont, publisher of the Green Mountain Rifleman, this summer was convicted on eighteen counts of an indictment which charged that she had counseled evasion of the Selective Service Act. Mrs. Miller was given concurrent suspended sentences of a year and a day on August 8 by the Brattleboro, Vermont, Federal Court. Also sentenced to a year and a day and fined $1,000 was her husband, Manuel Miller, for forcibly resisting U. S. marshals who had come to take Mrs. Miller into custody. He was placed on three years' probation on one count, and given a suspended sentence on another.

A concerted drive has been in progress for several months to build up Mrs. Miller as a martyr of the anti-Semitic movement. Early this year, in the course of the prosecution, a U. S. district judge had remanded her to Brattleboro Retreat, a mental institution, for observation. Later, she was ordered for the same purpose to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a Government mental institution in Washington, D. C. Declared sane at the end of June, Mrs. Miller was convicted by a jury on July 13.

Since Mrs. Millers involvement with mental institutions, the hate press has exploited her situation with two principal objectives:

1) To depict her as a victim of government persecution at the behest of Jews; 2) To attack mental health programs and institutions, which are smeared as devices of the "Jewish conspiracy" to do away with those who oppose it.

The following excerpt, originally printed in the June issue of Williams Intelligence Summary and immediately reprinted in Common Sense, sums up this latest line of attack:

> Behind the propaganda tidal wave which swept the Salk polio vaccine into the White House and apparently governmental control . . . comes another tidal wave, this one for mental health laws which seem deliberately shaped for use in intimidating political opponents . . . Glancing backward, it seems likely that the Marxists, who evidently have carefully planned these various state campaigns . . . must have intended the seizure of Lucille Miller, Vermont anti-Communist, as the kickoff of their drive. Having observed the technique of the immigrant Marxists, especially the gifted Zionists, for a dozen years, I can see how they might have expected to make a big newspaper splurge about the "mentally sick" -- Mrs. Miller, who had to be put in an insane asylum -- just a batty super-patriot using anti-Communism as a cover for anti-Semitism.

Hatemongers for many years have wooed the support of health enthusiasts and other faddists by promoting propaganda lines to which these fringe groups are responsive. In recent years, the bigots have courted opponents of water fluoridation, promotion of quack cancer cures and, most recently, critics of the Salk polio vaccine. Attacks on psychiatrists and on mental health programs, infused with suggestions of persecution, conspiracies and plots, now appear on the rise as one of the principal anti-Semitic themes of the "health" variety, with the case of Mrs. Miller providing a dramatic rallying point.

THE FANATIC MOVEMENT OF FATHER FEENEY

Demonstrating against the dedication of Brandeis University's Catholic chapel, followers of Leonard J. Feeney, an excommunicated priest, on September 6 carried placards and distributed leaflets appealing to "Catholics of Boston" to "stop the Jews from dishonoring and desecrating the Blessed Sacrament at Brandeis University." In the melee, fifteen demonstrators were arrested. Disorders followed on successive days. A 24-hour guard had to be placed around the chapel in advance of its consecration by Boston's Archbishop Richard J. Cushing. The dedication took place September 9 without incident.

Rev. Leonard J. Feeney, a former Catholic priest of the Boston Archdiocese, was suspended in 1949 by Archbishop Cushing for preaching heretically that no one can obtain salvation outside the Catholic Church. Feeney, director of St. Benedict's Center, a Catholic student facility adjoining Harvard, had also come to the defense of four professors who had been dismissed from Boston College for teaching similar Catholic heresy. Feeney continued his open defiance of the Archbishop and the Church. As a result, St. Benedict's Center was forbidden to Catholics and Feeney was finally excommunicated by the Vatican in 1953.

In 1950, Feeney began holding Sunday meetings on Boston Common, attracting large crowds and holding forth against Jews, Protestants and the Catholic hierarchy. At these meetings, which continue to be held, he is supported and surrounded by a devoted group of some sixty black-garbed followers calling themselves "Slaves of the Immaculate Heart of Mary." Principal assistants are Hugh MacIsaac, William Smith and Temple Morgan. Within the past two years, there has been a distinct shift toward charges aimed principally at the Jews and dwelling on a "Jewish-Zionist-Communist" conspiracy to corrupt and rule the world. These provocations, combined with the Feeneyites' demonstrations against the Brandeis Catholic chapel, caused groups of misguided youths to heckle Feeney's meetings on Boston Common. At last reports, Boston police and community agencies were redoubling their efforts to stem these disorders.

The Feeneyites make occasional expeditions beyond Boston to places as far afield as Minneapolis. These meetings have often caused public disorders, sometimes involving police and court action for misdemeanors. One Feeneyite meeting on the Notre Dame (Indiana) campus created such a commotion that the group had to be removed forcibly by students and deputy sheriffs. On another occasion, Feeney supporters stormed the chancellery of the Chicago Archdiocese in an unsuccessful attempt to see Cardinal Stritch; they were fined and jailed in default of payment, until a supporter paid for them.

In numbers, the Feeney group is small, but his handful of devotees are imbued with a fanatical devotion to him and to what he stands for. Moreover, the voices of the Feeneyites are carried far beyond the limits of Boston by means of the cult's monthly publication, The Point.

The Point, published officially by St. Benedict's Center, 12 Bow Street, Cambridge, Massachusetts, is an effective propaganda weapon which has made the Feeneyites a matter of national concern. It is a thin, four-page periodical, attractively produced. Its content, though patently anti-Semitic, still bears the stamp of what was once the talent for well-constructed prose of a younger Father Feeney. (Some fifteen years ago, Feeney wrote several books in a humorous vein, notably Fish Every Friday, which recounted the discriminations against Catholics. Later, he was on the staff of America.)

During 1954-1955, The Point's circulation rose in cities from coast to coast. In response to this, The Michigan Catholic, official organ of the Archdiocese of Detroit, cautioned Catholics against such material. An item in the issue of February 17, 1955, was headlined, "FEENEYITES LIBEL JEWS IN 'POINT'." Excerpts follow:

> Detroit lawyers have reported receiving through the mail copies of the January, 1955 issue of the Point, a publication of St. Benedict's Center of Cambridge, Mass., the organization headed by the excommunicated Jesuit priest, Fr. Leonard Feeney. The pamphlet was apparently circulated to all members of the Detroit bar . . . All Catholics should know, and should make known to their non-Catholic friends, that St. Benedict's Center, Fr. Feeney and the Point have been disavowed by the Church. The wild and irresponsible calumnies contained in the Point have no credence or support among Catholics.

When The Point was started in 1952, it devoted most of its space to deriding the interfaith concept and "meeting-house Christianity." Succeeding issues attacked Christian Science, the Jesuits, the "liberal clergy," and numerous individuals including Father LaFarge, who was then editor of America, Dr. James B. Conant and Archbishop Cushing.

Today, however, this far-reaching publication concentrates more exclusively on anti-Semitism. A run-down of the contents during 1955 leaves little room for doubt concerning The Point's present objective.

Thus, the February 1955 issue, headed "The Catholic Church and the Jews," was devoted largely to a catalogue of Papal encyclicals from the Dark and Middle Ages condemning the Jews. In April, the paper featured distorted reports of the destruction of Catholic churches and shrines in Palestine. June's edition, "Plans of the Jews for World Control," attacked "the two world forces fostered by international Jewry -- the U. N. and Communism . . . " In July, Feeney came up with charges of an insidious Jewish plot to corrupt art, architecture, and thereby Christian culture, beginning with the broken, irregular images of Picasso who, according to Feeney, is a Jew.

It was in the May edition of The Point that the seeds were sown for September's public demonstration at Brandeis University. After carping at the university and such eminent supporters as Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, The Point attacked "the ailing Archbishop of Boston" for permitting the chapel, and concluded: "Anxiously, we ask the prayers of our readers that somehow, by some unforeseeable intervention, this plan will be frustrated . . . " On September 6, Father Feeney's devotees did their utmost to follow his published plea.

EXPLOITATION OF NEAR-EAST TENSIONS

Pro-Arab propaganda in the United States received new impetus when Egypt accepted Soviet arms in October. Encouraged by this new-found strength from abroad, Arab supporters in the U. S. began wooing extreme leftist elements. At the same time, developments in the Middle East stimulated fresh activity by U. S. hatemongers always ready to exploit pro-Arab arguments which might be turned against Jews.

Arab propagandists in the United States try to persuade Americans of the "dual loyalty" of the American Jew or "Zionist," terms which they use interchangeably. Another element in their line is the familiar anti-Semitic canard that a "Zionist" or "Jewish" conspiracy, with headquarters in Israel, is plotting to foment trouble and dominate the world. (See FYI No. 1, June 1955, P. 3).

A bold attempt at such propaganda was made by Syrian Ambassador Farid Zeineddine in the course of a speech November 14 before the Washington, D. C. Women's National Democratic Club. Reviving the Nazi racial theory, the Arab envoy asserted that American Jews are not really Semites. A United States security pact with Israel, he declared, would result in "American youths fighting against Arab youths in great bloodshed." He said Jews are trying to pit Arabs and Americans against one another for "Zionist" purposes. "Why not let New York be a homeland for the Jews?" he asked.

Early in November, the Daily Worker ran the official declaration of the Communist Party in Israel, thus laying down the line for extreme leftist groups here. The declaration charged Israeli leaders with "national betrayal," and railed against America for "pushing Israel into an aggressive and bloody war against Egypt." In November, Jewish Life, the Party-line mouthpiece for Jewish affairs, fell quickly into step, attacking the treaty proposal which "the Israel government and the Zionist leaders in this country have been urging."

In its new pro-Arab line, the Communist Party in the United States now stands cheek-to-jowl with the extremist, anti-Semitic hate groups. An examination of the October output of the groups reveals how anti-Semitic and pro-Arab viewpoints converge.

"WILL AMERICAN BLOOD FLOW IN PALESTINE?" This headline from a 1946 newspaper ad is resurrected in the late October edition of Conde McGinley's Common Sense. The entire issue is written by Benjamin H. Freedman, staunch McGinley benefactor and pro-Arab publicist. The American public, he charges, is "brain-washed" by "incessant distortions of the truth, and the interminable misrepresentation of the facts by the Zionist-controlled newspapers, magazines, radio, television, motion pictures, politicians, educators, churchmen, lecturers and other Zionist-controlled mediums for controlling the thinking of an unsuspecting public. . ."

Freedman claims the Jews manage to wield such sweeping power by virtue of their ability to "dictate the election of the president of the United States and the foreign policy of the United States in Palestine." Here is his devious reasoning:

> In the 1952 presidential elections . . . five states of New York, California, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts had a total of 148 electoral votes out of the total of 531. . . The Zionists are able to "deliver" these 148 electoral votes, 28% of the total, to either political party, as they have shown them in so many past presidential elections. . . Zionists use this power to "blackmail" political parties into competing for their votes by tempting them with 148 electoral votes as a political "payoff." . . . It would mean political suicide for the Republican Party to ignore the Zionists' effective control of the 148 electoral votes of those five states. . .

"WIRE URGES IKE QUIT NAMING DANGEROUS RED ZIONISTS TO KEY POSTS." A flyer bearing this headline and designed as a telegram to the President was widely distributed during the past two months by West Coast bigot Robert H. Williams. Typical excerpts:

> Though you condemn discrimination, you are practising rankest discrimination against the 92 percent American population who are non-Jews . . . who oppose both Communism and Zionism, by appointing multitudes (sic) Zionist Jews to key positions whence they threaten seizure of power as in the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia.
> As personal aide you retain Max Rabb, one of the rankest Jewish revolutionary agents of Zionist-Marxist machine. You have put many other Jewish revolutionaries in positions where they control much of our government.

An Arab League pamphlet, Jewish Atrocities in the Holy Land, provided material for Gerald Winrod's Defender in October. "Jewish criminals and underworld characters were brought in from the large cities of the Western world," Winrod himself adds. "Gangs took Arab families off guard and systematically began pillaging homes, raping and murdering. . ."

Gerald L. K. Smith, in his October issue of The Cross and The Flag, displays the bigot's characteristic concern with the Arabs and their problems. "It is almost impossible to find any information in any newspaper concerning these matters, because of Jew-Zionist pressure," Smith complains.

TENSE SOUTH FERTILE SOIL FOR BIGOTS

The issue of desegregation of the public schools continues to provide a handy vehicle for anti-Semitic, as well as anti-Negro, agitation. With the 1955 Supreme Court decision forcing the South to move toward desegregation "within a reasonable time," die-hard Citizens' Councils began to spring up in Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana. Today, the councils claim 80 units in as many counties. More than a dozen similar organizations have arisen to keep segregation intact in the South.

A principal weapon of the councils is the economic boycott, aimed at Negroes and others supporting desegregation. Effects of boycotting were stemmed to some extent when the Tri-State Bank of Memphis, Tennessee, extended credit to all those affected. Deposits have come to the bank from sympathetic persons throughout the country.

In the states where racial tensions run strongest, movements like the Citizens' Councils are most active. By now, it has become obvious that their prejudices are not confined to Negroes. Group after group has allowed anti-Semitic bigots to join their efforts. Council leaders in Mississippi recommend such anti-Semitic literature as Frank L. Britton's American Nationalist, and The White Sentinel, published by the National Citizens' Protective Association of St. Louis and written by John W. Hamilton, a former associate of Gerald L. K. Smith. Some pro-segregation activities are reminiscent of the Ku Klux Klan -- indeed, the new organizations include some Klan-like groups, headed by former Klansmen.

A noteworthy attempt to revive the Ku Klux Klan was made by Imperial Wizard E. L. Edwards of Atlanta, Georgia. At a meeting on August 21 near Conway, South Carolina, he delivered an anti-Negro, anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic address to an audience of 1,500.

Bryant W. Bowles' National Association for the Advancement of White People, it will be recalled, tried to exploit tensions when Washington, D. C. and Baltimore opened their desegregated schools. (See FYI No. 3, August 1955, P. 4.) Subsequently, Bowles settled in Milford, Delaware. His close collaborator, Conde McGinley, had flooded Delaware with a mass mailing of a "desegregation issue" of Common Sense, charging that "Communist Jews" were responsible for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the desegregation movement. This assault brought a storm of protest from press and public. (See FYI No. 2, July 1955, P.3.) However, in August 1955, a mass meeting at Milford's airport drew an audience of about 1,000. Principal speaker was Kenneth Goff, former henchman of Gerald L. K. Smith. Sharing the platform with him were Bowles and McGinley. The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, John O. Beaty's Iron Curtain Over America, and Frank L. Britton's anti-Semitic booklet, Behind Communism, were on hand.

Frank L. Britton's inflammatory publication, the American Nationalist, carries the double-barreled message of anti-Semitism and violent resistance to desegregation. Thus, in the October issue:

> In Alabama the president of the Bullock County NAACP, Aaron Fellers, already warned against further agitation by white residents, was bluntly told to take out more life insurance if he persisted.
> In Charleston, Missouri, outraged citizens burned a cross on the front lawn of the white president of the local school board after 27 Negroes were allowed to enroll in the city's high school. In Mississippi, another cross was burned next door to the residence of a Negro agitator, already twice arrested, who published an anti-white, anti-segregation newspaper.
> In New Orleans, when a Jewish rabbi by the name of Julius Feibelman presented local school authorities with a petition containing 179 names demanding immediate "integration" of the city's schools, five new Citizens' Councils sprang into being, promised to obtain 15,000 anti-integration signatures on a counter-petition . . . .

Another blatant voice is the National Renaissance Bulletin, organ of the neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party. (See FYI No. 1, June 1955, P. 5.) The September 1955 Bulletin, discussing desegregation at length, comes to this conclusion:

> Only the Jew and the Spiritual Bolsheviks in clerical collars, who seek to increase Church attendance by converting jungle savages and inflicting them upon their more civilized clientele every Sunday morning, can be numbered among the Twentieth Century apostles of racial mongrelization.

YEAR-END REVIEW OF ANTI-SEMITIC ACTIVITIES

Organized anti-Semitic activity in the United States showed no appreciable rise during 1955. Exploitation of such issues as immigration, the Bricker Amendment and "progressive education" diminished somewhat. However, bigots maintained a steady barrage on many other issues and were quick to take advantage of events which could serve as propaganda pegs.

Most important developments were: (1) more overt attacks on American Jews by Arab propagandists, prodded into action by heightened tension in the Middle East; and (2) increased racial tension in the South, following the latest Supreme Court desegregation decision.

Highlights of the year's activities follow.

POLITICS: THE BIGOTS EYE 1956

While this year found the bigots still relatively disorganized and ineffectual politically, they were ever ready to support and infiltrate into ultra-conservative moves to form a third party or to take over one of the major parties during the 1956 presidential race.

In July Williams Intelligence Summary urged that "some Republican patriot" enter the party's presidential race without waiting for President Eisenhower's decision on his candidacy. The October issue, written after the President's illness, urged its readers to "take advantage of the break."

DRIVE TO RUIN UNESCO, UN

In May, a Special Committee of the American Legion, headed by Past National Commander Ray Murphy, cleared UNESCO of the principal charges leveled against it. Published after eighteen months of intensive study, the Legion Committee report made no bones about the unsavory source of the accusations:

> Running clearly through the maze of testimony against UNESCO and as clearly through the mass of give-away material spread across the nation by various groups and individuals is the thread that leads back to 876 Granite Street, Philadelphia, the office of the American Flag Committee and the home of its guiding genius, W. Henry McFarland, Jr. As we have said, this is where the American Flag Committee's charges came into being. With it, Mr. McFarland has been able to mislead a great many Americans and some American Legionnaires.[1]

In April, the Congress of Freedom, claiming to be an amalgam of more than 100 rightist groups opposed to the UN, convened in San Francisco to protest the tenth anniversary celebration of the founding of the UN in that city. Principal speaker was Merwin K. Hart, head of the National Economic Council and publisher of the anti-Semitic Economic Council Letter. (See FYI, June 1955)

ANTI-SEMITISM INJECTED INTO HEALTH ISSUES

During the summer, anti-Semites capitalized on the confusion attending introduction of the widely-

---

1. At the Legion's national convention in Miami in October, the Special Committee's report failed of approval, without debate, though many delegates voiced their support. A resolution calling for United States withdrawal from the United Nations was defeated.

heralded Salk anti-polio vaccine. In Seattle, Gerald L. K. Smith followers distributed two pamphlets -- Murder, Inc. and Polio Gambling -- linking the vaccine with "the forces of anti-Christ."

Sharp controversy over fluoridation provided opportunities for anti-Semitic agitation in cities where the debate was raging. Hatemongers took these occasions to hint that Jewish or "Marxist" plots were behind efforts to force fluoridated water on the population.

Bigots depicted mental health programs as devices of Jews to control the country. A frontal assault centered around the experiences of Mrs. Lucille Miller, Vermont publisher of the Green Mountain Rifleman (FYI, October 1955), who was convicted of counseling draft evasion. Mrs. Miller had been remanded to mental institutions for observation and was declared sane before her trial. Hatemongers thereupon painted her as a "martyr" and victim of Government persecution at the behest of Jews.

On several occasions during the year, known anti-Semites promoted discredited "cancer cures." Gerald Winrod, for example, boosted one such nostrum. In his Defender, Winrod contended its condemnation was all a diabolical Jewish plot to prevent the world's ills from being cured.

AGITATORS IN THE NEWS

In March, a New Jersey Superior Court jury brought in a verdict against Conde McGinley in a libel suit (see FYI, July 1955). The plaintiff, Rabbi Joachim Prinz, whom McGinley's publication had termed a "red Rabbi," was awarded $5,000 compensatory and $25,000 punitive damages. Attorneys for McGinley were the son and husband of fanatic Elizabeth Dilling, herself one of McGinley's witnesses.

In September, disciples of Leonard J. Feeney, excommunicated Catholic priest, staged a series of demonstrations in Boston against the dedication of a Catholic chapel at Brandeis University. The ceremony was performed by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing. A police guard had been provided, but there were no untoward incidents. Feeney's anti-Semitic preachments in his publication, The Point, had caused The Michigan Catholic in February to warn its readers that "the wild and irresponsible calumnies contained in The Point have no credence or support among Catholics" (FYI, October, 1955).

ARAB SPOKESMEN ATTACK LOYALTY OF AMERICAN JEWS

A detailed analysis of Arab propaganda appeared in last month's FYI. Highlights of the year's activities:

March: The Arab League opens a new propaganda office, the Arab Information Center, in New York City.

June: Abdul Hassan of the Egyptian delegation to the United Nations addresses a meeting of the American Nationalist Coalition, another name used by the neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party.

September: Egypt concludes deal with Czechoslovakia for Soviet arms.

November: Syrian Ambassador Farid Zeineddine openly attacks the loyalty of American Jews in a speech before the Washington, D. C. Women's National Democratic Club. His reported query to the assemblage was: "Why not let New York be a homeland for the Jews?"

Communists in the United States quickly mount the Arab bandwagon. The Daily Worker and other Communist and extreme leftist publications lay down the line early in the month, demanding that Israel cease being an "instrumentality for the cold war."

ANTI-SEMITES MOVE IN ON TENSE SOUTH

The interweaving of anti-Negro and anti-Jewish propaganda in the South was described in the November FYI. Following is a brief summary of significant developments.

May: Responding to the U. S. Supreme Court's second desegregation decision which called for integration "within a reasonable time," die-hard Southerners reactivate and expand White Citizens' Councils and similar groups aiming to maintain the status quo.

August: Bryant W. Bowles, head of the ill-conceived National Association for the Advancement of White People, and his collaborator, Conde McGinley, conduct a rally at the airport of Milford, Delaware. An audience of 1,000 hear a speech by Kenneth Goff, former Gerald L. K. Smith henchman, who shares the platform with Bowles and McGinley.

October: White Citizens' Councils claim more than 100 units in Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana. Early suspicions that the Councils' fire would not be confined to Negroes are borne out. Mississippi Council leaders, for example, have been found recommending anti-Semitic literature to their members.

ARABS AIM TO CONFUSE THE WEST ON ISRAEL ISSUES

Sir Anthony Eden's visit to Washington dramatized the high priority placed by Western leaders on the Middle East, and drew national attention to the Communist-Arab alliance as a new threat to world peace. Hard-pressed to offset American antipathy to the Soviets, Arab propagandists developed new devices to obscure their Communist connections. Since the sale of Soviet arms to Egypt had tipped the Middle East balance of power in the Arabs' favor, their protagonists here have been operating on every level -- aiming their activities at elements ranging from Washington circles, down to the bigot press -- to keep the West from sending arms to Israel. Recent developments show how extensive and diverse the stepped-up pro-Arab campaign has become.

In January, there was a concerted effort to cloud the West's crucial concern over the Middle East in a fog of politics. Arab success along this line was most evident in the weeks just before the Eden-Eisenhower talks, when a proposal to "keep the Arab-Israeli issue out of politics" was launched.

100-120277-49

The movement was initiated by the American Friends of the Middle East in a prominent newspaper advertisement, later reprinted for further circularizing by AFME. The ad urged, among other things:

> The only way to assure a proper approach to this whole problem is for American voters to insist that the issue be taken out of domestic politics, that elective officials of whatever party refuse to commit themselves to a policy in behalf of either party to the Middle East controversy.

The impact of this appeal was strengthened by news of the formation of the Committee for Security and Justice in the Middle East. This group's membership of educators, churchmen and others, fell into step with AFME, calling on the National Committees of both major parties "to agree to take the issues of the Middle East out of the domestic political scene . . .".

Many people of good will are proposing that if a bipartisan policy agreement could be reached by Republican and Democratic leaders, then the Arab-Israel issue might be profitably removed from the Presidential election campaign. The AFME proposal, however, dismisses the need for any U.S. policy or commitments in the Middle East. Actually, it is a one-sided measure, favoring Arab partisans by lowering a curtain of discreet silence on the one topic that most embarrasses them in their case before America.

ARAB STUDENTS SPREAD ANTI-ISRAEL POINT OF VIEW

The Arabs' best bet in the United States, it seems, is to blot out the bad effect of the Arab-Red partnership by flooding the American public with a stream of their own propaganda. Toward this end, they have organized the more than 2,000 Arab students in the United States, encouraging them to appear as speakers and briefing them regularly on "Arab interests." An item in the January Newsletter of the Arab Students' Association (Columbia University) spells out the directive:

> Arab Students Abroad to Defend Arabism. The Secretariat-General of the Arab League requested member-states to furnish the League with the names of the nationals studying abroad. The Secretariat intends to provide these students, wherever they may be, with information which will help them defend Arab interests.

The same newsletter includes a series of propaganda lines which might be used as "information" by Arab students invited to college forums and other meetings. Following are some of the more scurrilous samples, attributed by the newsletter to the Egyptian weekly Al Musawwar:

> We Egyptians do not face a small country called Israel, but a well organized international movement called Zionism. This movement exerts tremendous pressure on the governments of the United States, France, England and other Western countries.
> Some Western and Eastern bloc countries supplied Israel with arms during the 1947 conflict. Certain Army generals, fliers and soldiers who fought for Israel were not Jews; identification cards of prisoners taken during that war testify to that.
> Israel was established upon the bodies of Palestine's rightful inhabitants, through funds obtained from the pockets of American, British and French Zionists.

DE COURCY ON A HOT TIN ROOF

The Arabs' rapport with the Soviets has placed their partisans in the United States in an awkward spot. Torn between anti-communism and anti-Zionism, some are finding it increasingly difficult to maintain an unremitting pro-Arab position.

A good illustration of this conflict appears in the "Review of World Affairs," written by Kenneth DeCourcy, a news analyst of right-wing extremist opinion, and published in the February issue of Destiny. This publication's viewpoint has been consistently pro-Arab and venomously anti-Semitic; its sponsor, the Anglo-Saxon Federation of America, is a racist, pseudo-religious cult. In the pages of this month's issue, DeCourcy -- until now an unrelenting foe of Israel -- searches his soul and finds he is compelled by the course of events to question his Arab commitment. His analysis poses the troublesome dilemma thus:

> The Western Conservatives, who are naturally anti-Communist and defense-minded, suddenly find that the Communists have gone in with the Arabs and the Jews want to join the West in an anti-Russian front. The shock of all this is profound. To aid Israel against the Arabs is not at all agreeable to most Western Conservatives. Yet, to aid the Arabs against Israel would now mean helping Russia to dominate the Middle East. To remain neutral is difficult and might mean a Russian-sponsored Arab victory . . .

Forced to take a new view of world events, DeCourcy's deep-seated anti-Communist convictions force him to detail the extent to which the Soviets have already penetrated Egypt, their base for Middle East operations:

> The whole Soviet approach in Egypt has changed from clandestine underground work to a combination of diplomacy, official propaganda and military and economic penetration. The results are impressive . . . The Soviet agencies in Cairo now form an extensive network which goes far beyond normal diplomatic needs. A base is being built for the implementation of Soviet policy throughout the Middle East and this base is becoming one of the most important Soviet strongholds in the world . . .

HATE PRESS AND ARABS SEE EYE TO EYE

The gutter press is faced with no such difficult choices. Despite their surface anti-communism, the hate-mongers have rung no changes in their old tunes. In the January issue of the venomous Common Sense, Benjamin H. Freedman is at his old stand (see FYI, June, November and December 1955), blithely allying communism and Zionism as if no Soviet-Arab partnership had taken place. He still doggedly links "the world-wide net-work of international conspirators" and "all the revolutionist Marxist 'founding fathers' of the Soviet Union." Freedman thus discounts the new alignment of Arab and Communist in the Middle East, which he dismisses as "recent propaganda . . . released in the Zionist 'kept press' by the interested parties . . . as a subtle but futile attempt now to conceal their joint promotion of communism."

NEW SOURCE BOOK FOR ANTI-SEMITISM

Tension, Terror and Blood in the Holy Land, a 250-page manual for pro-Arab writers and speakers in the United States, was recently printed in Damascus, Syria, bearing the official seal and imprint of the Palestine Arab Refugee Institution. The appearance of this source book is ominous proof of the strenuous effort being exerted in official Arab quarters to stir up suspicion and hatred of American Jews. The book is shot through with propaganda as blatantly racist as Goebbels'. A few characteristic excerpts follow:

> It is time that Americans realize that these teeming masses of Zionists who infest their cities and sit astride the arteries of their commerce are, in every sense of the word aliens. They are aliens by choice and by tradition. They are aliens by choice and by tradition. They are aliens because they render their first allegiance not to the United States of America, but to their own so-called state of Israel.

. . . not one American out of twenty has the slightest conception of how thoroughly Zionists are organized in the United States. Partly this ignorance is attributable to Zionist propaganda, which seeks to convince the Christian majority that Jewish tribal ties are a myth; partly it is due to Zionist imposed censorship . . . the concept of Jewry as a nation apart, or as a nation-within-a-nation, is a difficult one for the average American to grasp.

To military observers attached to the Mixed Armistice Commission, the Zionist performance was so sickening that many of them threw up their jobs and went home. Zionists prevented them from doing their work in the field and they cheated them of their paychecks when they got them in Zionist territory.

ANTI-SEMITIC WRITER SUES OIL LOBBY FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT

Anti-Semitic writer Eustace Mullins filed a $50,000 suit early in March in N. Y. Supreme Court, County of N. Y., against the American Petroleum Industries Committee, charging breach of contract. Alleging that he was on APIC's payroll from April 1953 to April 1954, Mullins claims he was promised $25,000 on January 1, 1956, for continuing his job sub rosa.

Mullins' complaint outlines the job he claims to have done for the APIC:

> In the scope of plaintiff's duties in defendant's employ, plaintiff, who was officially hired as an economist, was engaged as a writer and specialist on the political arena of the Middle East. The leaders of the Arab League had persuaded Americans with large oil investments in their area to offset the extremely favorable pro-Israeli press in the United States by publicizing the Arab side of the picture. Plaintiff's office thereby became a clearing-house for anti-Zionist propaganda....
> Within the scope of his aforesaid assignment, plaintiff held frequent telephone and personal conferences with other anti-Zionist leaders in the defendant's offices, and prepared more than one hundred speeches and articles on Zionist affairs during this period. During the same period, plaintiff delivered weekly speeches at the Yorkville street-meetings of James H. Madole's ultra-conservative organization, the National Renaissance Party, which later was cited by the House Un-American Activities Committee as "Neo-Fascist" . . .

Mullins' complaint further alleges that after he was cited four times in the 1954 special report of the House Un-American Activities Committee, the APIC decided to sever its official connection with him, nevertheless making a verbal contract to continue his speaking and writing activities. Last April, Mullins received a letter from the APIC praising his work and enclosing a token of $100.

Executive director of the APIC, John H. Bivins, denies categorically that Mullins was "employed by us in any capacity at any time for the purposes he alleges." His work was limited to "local economic research," Bivins states. Mullins has a long record of anti-Semitic propagandizing, which includes authorship of an article, Adolf Hitler: An Appreciation.

CONDE MCGINLEY HOOKS UP WITH JORDANIAN ANTI-SEMITE

Conde McGinley (FYI, July 1955) has been stepping up his already intensive activities as a transmission-belt of pro-Arab propaganda. Plunder in the Holy Land, a booklet published by Antoine F. Albina, Jordanian hate-publicist and editor of World Truth, is McGinley's latest "Arab item" for the market.

EXPORT TO EGYPT: U.S. TEXT ON HATE THEORY

After making the full rounds of bigot readers in the U. S. since its publication by an obscure Texas firm in 1952, Dr. John O. Beaty's bigoted book, The Iron Curtain Over America, has found a new audience for its 267 pages of hate. Egypt Message, bi-weekly journal of the Cultural Center of the Middle East, carried in its December 1, 1955 issue a quarter-page picture of the book and a full analysis in Arabic.

Beaty's ideas are simple and weird: 1) He upholds the theory that Prussia and Germany were and are the main fortress of European civilization against communism; 2) he inveighs against the "Khazars," an exotic term employed as a circumlocution for Jews. For Beaty, communism is racial. All Jews are "Khazars," and all Khazars are Communists. This Academically-coated brand of U.S. anti-Semitism may now get a new lease on life in the Middle East.

EXTREMISTS JOIN FORCES FOR 1956 ELECTION CAMPAIGN

The announcement of President Eisenhower's 1956 candidacy has stimulated the rapport between ultra-conservatives and racist dissidents. Their hope is that the combined strength of white supremacists and economic reactionaries will exert a strong political impact in November.

All are agreed on one point only: That there is no room for them in either the Democratic or Republican Party. Thus, they are trying to win a place on the political scene by: 1) Forming a "new" or "third" party under whose banner rightists of all camps can elect Congressional candidates in districts hospitable to their aims; 2) forming a stalemate in the Electoral College by agreeing beforehand on joint political maneuvers, thus throwing the election into the House of Representatives.

In the February American Mercury, John T. Flynn describes the "ideal" platform of "Fifty Million Americans in Search of a Party":

> The essentials of a new party can be quickly and clearly stated. It must pledge itself to a return to the Constitution in all its parts. It must recognize that this is a federal republic and that the States, in their own right, are sovereign republics, supreme within their own bounda> ries, save as specifically limited by the Constitution; that the Supreme Court, as at present constituted, is a lawless body dedicated to the destruction of our political and economic system; that the function of the federal republic is to govern the United States within severely contracted limits and not to attempt either to govern or to finance any other nation or continent; that it must be restrained from spending money, save in times of legally declared war, in any sum exceeding its tax revenues; and that it has no power, under the Constitution, to interfere in the educational systems, economic or cultural or other internal affairs of the sovereign States; that to this end the power of the federal government to collect income taxes shall be abolished or at least severely restricted; and that the United States shall get out of the United Nations and the United Nations shall be compelled to get out of the United States.

Tensions over desegregation in the South have strengthened the ties between the ultra-conservative and racist political groups, particularly since white supremacists have been quick to include reactionary appeals in their programs. A glance at recent developments shows the frantic realignments and consolidations that have been taking place:

The Interim Committee for a New Party is described by a supporter as aiming at "the integration of Southern states' righters into a national movement." Present head is Lieutenant General Pedro A. del Valle (USMC, Ret.), whose record includes enthusiastic endorsement of anti-Semitic literature.

The Constitution Party, with headquarters in San Antonio, exploits states' rights, opposes the United Nations, and at one time included on its executive board W. Henry McFarland, Jr., former leader of the Nationalist Action League which was listed as "Fascist" by the U. S. Attorney-General. Four years ago, one of the Party's founders, Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Stevenson, felt constrained to resign because of its anti-Semitic bias. A recent issue of Free Men Speak, an extreme-rightist publication, claims that the Constitution Party influenced last year's elections in Philadelphia. Its publisher, Kent Courtney, spoke at the party's "convention" in Houston during February, launching an attack against Eisenhower as "front man for the socialists and collectivists who control both the Republican and Democratic parties."

The Nationalist Conservative Party of Chicago, in its own words, is "composed of Rightwing Republicans, Dixiecrats, Byrd Democrats . . . and is opposed to 'me-too' and New Deal Republicans, New Deal Democrats, Socialists, One World Traitors, etc."

For America, an ultra-conservative group founded by the late Colonel Robert R. McCormick, is today under the leadership of Dean Clarence Manion and General Bonner Fellers. The roster of For America's policy-makers includes prominent Mississippi White Citizens' Council supporters.

The Federation for Constitutional Government was started in 1955 by John U. Barr of New Orleans. According to Barr, the Federation is "a nationwide organization . . . not controlled by fawning politicians who cater to organized racial groups." Barr explains his group as a "people's organization to fight the court, to fight the CIO, to fight the NAACP, and to fight all the conscienceless pressure groups who are attempting our destruction." On the advisory committee is Mississippi Judge Tom P. Brady, theorist of the White Citizens' Council; Brady's book, Black Monday, is the basic guide of the segregationist movement.

An ambitious attempt to achieve closer coordination among reactionary and racist groups will be made early in April, when the Congress of Freedom holds its annual convention in Dallas. During the past three years, the Congress has sought to fuse conservative groups into common cause with bigoted, racist elements. Choice of the Southwest for the current meeting underscores the seriousness of these overtures to the many disaffected groups that have sprung up in that region.

THE CONGRESS OF FREEDOM CONVENTION

Claiming to be an amalgam of more than 100 rightist groups, The Congress of Freedom held its annual convention April 5-7 at Dallas' Hotel Adolphus. The meeting had been widely heralded in ultra-conservative circles as a full-scale convention of America's nationalists. However, despite The Congress of Freedom's enthusiastic advance estimates, the event drew only 125 participants, most of them from the Southwest. This low attendance was in sharp contrast to the turnout of 600 at the 1955 assembly in San Francisco (see FYI, June, 1955).

Reports on the Dallas convention indicate a strong possibility of a split in Congress of Freedom ranks. Two of the leading sparkplugs of the more successful San Francisco meeting, Aldrich Blake and Robert LeFevre, were conspicuous by their absence.

In addition to those drawn to the convention because of their extremely conservative political and economic views, the meeting was attended by such well-known racists as:

---Elizabeth Dilling, one of the country's most notorious hate-publicists over the past two decades.

---Marilyn Allen, Utah pamphleteer and Klan-apologist.

---Kenneth Goff, a former Gerald L. K. Smith employee.

The opening session was greeted in the name of Texas by Mrs. Willard Hedrick, leader of Houston's Minute Women of the U.S.A. Addressing the group as "fellow Christians," Mrs. Hedrick eulogized Texans who were fighting "communism, integration and progressive education."

Speakers and other participants at the convention included:

---Dan Smoot, former director of H. L. Hunt's Facts Forum, whose keynote address attacked the UN.

---Harry T. Everingham, executive director of We, The People, a Chicago group, who called for a federation of ten million Americans "to form a voting bloc to protect pro-Americans."

---Tom Gibson of Mississippi, who delivered a glowing report on the White Citizens' Councils movement.

---Jessica Wyatt Payne, active in Republican women's circles in West Virginia, who voiced fears that religious and educational institutions in her state were the targets of Communist infiltration.

---Major Racy Jordan, prominent rightist lecturer and formerly coordinator of the McCarthyite Ten Million Americans.

---W. L. Foster, Tulsa, Oklahoma leader of the U.S. Day Committee, a group formed to counteract the celebration of U.N. Day.

---Mary D. Cain, tax-defying editor of the Summit Sun, a Mississippi newspaper which distributes White Citizens' Council literature.

---Verne Kaub, Vice President of Allen Zoll's National Council on American Education, a group which has denounced modern educators and educational methods as "red" or "red-influenced."

Resolutions adopted at the April convention voiced Congress of Freedom's opposition to Federal subsidies, compulsory unionism, income taxes, tax-exempt foundations, desegregation, the Alaska Mental Health Bill and social security. The group also urged the United States to withdraw from the United Nations and the Status of Forces Treaty.

Taking note of the forthcoming political conventions The Congress of Freedom declared:

> The Congress has come to the conclusion that both major parties have been taken over by socialistic forces, that the socialistic revolution has taken place, and that only a counter-revolution can still save the Christian States from succumbing to the fate of European nations.

WHAT SOME PEOPLE ARE READING TODAY

Anti-Semitic groups are turning more and more to the printed flyer, the newspaper, the mimeographed bulletin. For pamphleteering has replaced meetings, demonstrations and picketing as the main activity of extremist groups. Thus it is important to keep tabs on the kinds of material hatemongers are spreading around the nation to promote their unsavory ideas.

The crude anti-Semitic literature of the past has become somewhat more sophisticated, as it has climbed to a new peak of importance. Anti-Semitic propagandists have become more adept at tying in their message with topical issues of the day; at present, the Arab-Israel conflict and desegregation tensions head the list. Since 1947, the main tactic has been to smear Jews as Communists -- a hardy perennial of a theme, in view of the unrelieved tensions between East and West. In physical appearance, the literature has improved greatly, although some of the mimeographed material still is crude to the point of illegibility.

This issue of FYI is devoted to sampling the literature mailed out this Spring. The range of quality -- and of attack -- is of particular interest.

The National Renaissance Bulletin, official organ of the neo-Fascist National Renaissance Party (see FYI, June 1955, November 1955) is published in New York by James Madole. A six-page, closely typed, mimeographed bulletin, its text matches its format in crudeness. The March issue of the publication, for instance, employs the following language:

> ....the world is treated to the disgusting sight of watching political harlots like Eisenhower, Kefauver, Stevenson and Harriman crawling on their bellies to American Jewish leaders and seeking to outdo each other in promises of aid to the aggressor state of Israel.

The Cross and the Flag, published by Gerald L. K. Smith at Glendale in the Los Angeles area, continues to bear the imprint of one of his numerous "fronts," the Christian Nationalist Crusade. A slick, 32-page production, the style is a combination of many specially-captioned editorial comments, sandwiched among feature articles written by members of his staff or other anti-Semites. Occasionally, material from the Congressional record is reprinted under banner headlines. Smith's organizational "line" has changed little in a decade - he still claims that "as a national political committee we are in touch with 100,000 key men and women, located in every state of the Union..." Typical of Smith's attempt to render anti-Semitic themes in topical terms, the April issue of The Cross and the Flag, ominously declaims:

> We must not forget that two Jews, Max Rabb and I. Jack Martin, are at the very center of the President's secretarial staff. In fact, Mr. Rabb, formerly Rabinowitz, is the chairman of the secretarial cabinet of the White House....

Williams Intelligence Summary, published in Santa Ana, California, by Robert H. Williams, is a neatly printed four-page bulletin.

Its April "intelligence" attempts to blame the Jews for desegregation in the South:

> As long as there are Communists and Zionists in America they will stir up trouble between the races; the only genuinely happy solution for all concerned would be a movement to help the Negroes set up their own country and resettle in Liberia. . . . America, under the propaganda of Zionists and Communists and the race catering of political demagogues running for office, is being herded down the road to such racial degeneracy.

Women's Voice, a 16-page pamphlet dotted generously with hysterical capitalization, italics and heavy black type, is published in Chicago by Lyrl Van Hyning. Its stock-in-trade is fanatic anti-Semitism in the least subtle guise:

> If andwhen the United States is taken over into Socialism State ownership, our Zionists, Judaism, Turko-Mongol Jewish blood, interest bearing bankers will deed their present owned bonds, etc., to the new Socialist 48 states of the State ownership Government of the United States of America to the amount of one trillion dollars; the amount of the United States Government and its peoples debts -- to these bankers, who will receive in return, United States-State ownership mortgage bonds and 3% interest (for centuries to come) or $30,000,000,000 interest yearly (to come out of Taxes). This is interest at its best. - We are asking for it.

The Defender magazine, a 32-page periodical spiced with photographs and advertisements, is published in Wichita, Kansas, and edited by Gerald B. Winrod (FYI, December 1955). Its pages harp on health fads and the familiar canards of anti-Semitism:

> Communism, no less than Zionism, is the product of the Jewish Talmud. To this Satanic source, we are indebted for the inhuman and immoral code which has produced the world's upset.

Kingdom Digest, a pocket-size "family magazine," with a red, white and blue cover, is edited by J. A. Lovell, and published in Dallas, Texas, by the United Israel World Fellowship. Editor Lovell writes:

> The NAACP outfit, we believe, is communistically inspired and Jew-controlled, and is not out to help the Negro or to do the U.S.A. any good, but its desire is to foment trouble and bring about the aims and ambitions of the two groups that we believe are behind it.

The Point, a four-page printed bulletin, relatively austere and professional-looking, published in Cambridge, Massachusetts, is the mouthpiece of the excommunicated priest, Father Leonard J. Feeney (see FYI, October 1955). From the fanatic Dr. Feeney comes this outburst:

> The assault of the Jews on our Catholic parochial schools might easily, and not untruly, be chalked up to the general Jewish hatred for things Christian. But to see exactly why the "Catholic school attack" has such a high place in the over-all battle-plans of American Jewry, we need only to be reminded that Catholic schools are the preservers and spreaders of that thunderous information which the Jews are so bent on silencing: (1) The Jews killed Christ. (2) God has cursed them for doing it.

WHITE CITIZENS' COUNCILS SPILL OUT BEYOND DIXIELAND

Evidence that the White Citizens' Council movement is not necessarily confined to the South was confirmed when a new Council was formally launched this summer in Detroit, with additional units scheduled to open in nearby Highland Park, Lansing, Flint and other Michigan centers.

The Council rented Dearborn headquarters under the front name of the "Homeowners Association of the State of Michigan." Its Northern landlord, after learning the true identity of his tenants, took steps to oust the race-hate organization from his premises.

Sparkplug of the Detroit group is Ace Carter, Birmingham, Alabama WCC leader. Even in Alabama, Carter proved so extremist that a majority of his membership seceded to form its own non-anti-Semitic Council. The controversial Carter's 23-year-old brother, James Douglas Carter, is in charge of Detroit operations. Asked of his plans in Michigan, young Carter replied: "They seem to want me up there. They want me to be executive secretary of the councils for the state. I'll do anything I can to stop integration."

The Carters' obvious aim is to draw membership from the many Southerners who migrated to industrial centers in Michigan during and after the war.

HITLER SUPPORTERS GIVE A HAND TO EGYPT'S NASSER

The latest issue of the National Renaissance Bulletin (May 1956) devotes one of its seven pages to an "urgent appeal" to its readers to "assist by purchasing any two of the following books for $1." Of the eight items listed, seven are of Arab origin. They include:

— Zionist Espionage in Egypt, a tract which asserts that "Zionism and Communism are two distinctive forces with one political objective — world domination. Both powers cooperate secretly and in public without friction, since the power in the end will eventually go to Zionism."

— The Philosophy of the Revolution, by Egypt's President Nasser. This is one work, according to the Bulletin, which "every nationalist needs for his library."

— Arab Nations Support Egypt's Arms Deal, a pamphlet containing Arab press comment on the arms deal with Czechoslovakia, and a Nasser speech.

These items and other similar material have been issued from time to time by official Arab agencies in this country.

The organization plugging Arab propaganda in this Bulletin is the National Renaissance Party, "clearly subversive and un-American," according to the 1954 Preliminary Report on Neo-Fascist and Hate Groups by the House Un-American Activities Committee. Along with the advertisement of Arab materials, the May Bulletin reprinted a lengthy article by James H. Madole, the Party's director. In this article, "Adolph Hitler, the George Washington of Europe," the Party's objectives are unmistakably clear:

> Although Adolph Hitler is dead, his philosophy lives again in the growing strength of the Fascist forces in America, Europe and the Middle East. What Hitler accomplished in Europe, the National Renaissance Party shall yet accomplish in America.

REPORTS ON BIGOT ACTIVITIES HERE AND ABROAD

Gerald L. K. Smith announced that he would send a delegation of "official observers" to Chicago for the National Democratic Convention . . . West Hooker, memorable for his vitriolic charges of Jewish control of the airwaves, conducts a minor hate-venture from a store in New York City's Yorkville section, appealing primarily to teen-agers . . . Frederick C.F. Weiss, mainstay of international neo-Nazism, is about to launch another booklet. His "publisher," LeBlanc Publications, is simply another name for Weiss. Flyers now in circulation advertise a previous booklet, "Is Life Magazine the Pravda of America?," and announce the forthcoming opus with pictures of vermin and with caricatures of Dulles and the Jews . . . . Another neo-Nazi , Eustace Mullins, has had his book, The Federal Reserve Conspiracy, published in West Germany under the title, The Bankers' Plot of Jekyl Island. The same publisher, Guido Roeder, is offering The Coming Red Dictatorship by Conde McGinley in a German-language edition illustrated with Streicher-like cartoons of prominent Americans of the Jewish Faith. Latest reports are that the Mullins book was seized by West German authorities. . . . Einar Aberg of Norrviken, Sweden, whose anti-Semitic leaflets in English flood the international mails, was sentenced to a three-month term by a Swedish court for his racist activities . . . . Otto Strasser, would-be Poujade of Germany, is privately boasting a following of 125,000. He has political aspirations, and expects them to be fulfilled soon . . . . John W. Hamilton is using his racist National Citizens Protective Association in St. Louis, Missouri, to exploit desegregation. His White Sentinel keeps turning up in Southern trouble spots . . . . Kenneth Goff has authored a lurid pamphlet, "Father Divine — Fake or Father?," which dwells at length on Father Divine's marriage to a white woman. Pictures of Anna Rosenberg talking to Negro troops in Korea are insinuated into the text of the leaflet, which was printed and is being distributed by Goff's good friend and bigot-associate, Conde McGinley . . . . The anti-Semitic, Russian-language sheet Borba (The Struggle), published by Alex Jefimov, is concentrating on how "well off the Jews are in Russia." Jefimov has been attacking newspapers that "pressure" readers into believing reports of anti-Jewish persecution in the U.S.S.R. . . . . Pamphleteer Marilyn Allen charges that the Jews use the Negroes as pawns. In an article on the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in the July issue of Gerald Winrod's The Defender, the Utah hatemonger specifically attacked AJC.

BIGOTS STAGE UNSUCCESSFUL SIDESHOWS AT POLITICAL CONVENTIONS

The long-vaunted efforts of anti-Semites to enter the political arena at Chicago and San Francisco ended "not with a bang but a whimper."

At Chicago, the center of bigot activity was the East Room of the Atlantic Hotel, set up as headquarters of "The Chicago Committee for the Reception of Nationalist Observers." This project, directed by Matt Koehl, a local neo-Nazi, hit its peak at a meeting on August 12, attended by some 200 persons. The audience was urged to help fight for segregation by contributing funds to a new group, The North Friends of the South. Featured speaker was Joseph E. McWilliams, one-time leader of the Christian Mobilizers, a group notorious back in the '30s.

After a more than ten-year hiatus as an active hatemonger, McWilliams reappeared in Chicago with the same old canards. To bring his harangue up to date, he attacked Eisenhower and Truman for having turned the country over to "the leftists and Communists"; he vigorously supported segregation; he lavishly praised "nationalist groups" as the nation's defenders against "Communist, internationalist and Jewish infiltration"; he praised Egypt's Nasser - "a good leader" -- for seizing the Suez Canal.

Materials distributed through Nationalist headquarters included:

-- The Democratic Party, Arch-Foe of Civilization, a leaflet emanating from James H. Madole's National Renaissance Party (New York).

-- Fightum, a pamphlet devoted to a letter by General George Van Horn Moseley (ret.), remembered for his association with Bundists during pre-Pearl Harbor days.

Conde McGinley's Common Sense was also circulating in Chicago, its distribution aided by McGinley's presence in that city during the convention week.

At San Francisco, Gerald L. K. Smith cannily gained national press coverage by gratuitously endorsing Richard M. Nixon. The Vice-President immediately repudiated Smith in a strong statement pointing to attacks Smith had made on him on previous occasions.

Liberty & Property, Inc., headed by Willis Carto, opened a meeting place in a vacant store under the label of San Francisco Conservative Republican Headquarters. In its bulletin, Right, Liberty & Property has been publicizing "Project Big Four," a scheme aimed by a California racist, Aldrich Blake, against four organizations -- the American Jewish Committee, the Anti-Defamation League, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the Urban League.

A prospectus sent out months before had offered to "the American Rightwing" such services as car pools to and from the convention hall; a nationwide car pool to San Francisco; a press bureau; "a home away from home for Right Wingers." However, there was only a minimum of activity at "headquarters," highlighted by a sparsely attended meeting.

REPORTS ON BIGOT ACTIVITIES

Floridian Bill Hendrix, former Grand Dragon of the Southern Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, announced in August the Klan would be reorganized on a nationwide scale. REPORT ON THE KU KLUX KLAN

NEW COMEBACK

The Ku Klux Klan, discredited and quiescent for the past five years, is now attempting seriously to stage a comeback in the tension-ridden South. Labeling the White Citizens' Councils "too mild" to deal with desegregation problems, Klan organizers and supporters have found receptive audiences and enlisted new members in various Southern trouble-spots:

In Montgomery, Alabama, scene of the bus boycott, an audience of 1,200 attended a September rally of the Klan at which Imperial Wizerd E. L. Edwards attacked "Catholics, Jews, Communists, Negroes and Northern agitators" for menacing "the white heritage."

In Clinton, Tennessee, scene of the troubled integration of a dozen Negro students into the local high school, several hundred congregated for a Klan meeting on October 15.

Other Klan demonstrations and rallies, some with attendance as high as 3,500, have been reported in the following Southern cities and towns, among others:

Alabama: Birmingham
Mobile
Tuscaloosa
Warrior

Florida:	Jacksonville Lakeland Miami Orlando Tallahassee
Georgia:	Atlanta
Louisiana:	Baton Rouge New Orleans
South Carolina:	Columbia Hartsville Orangeburg Woodruff

VIOLENCE: THEORY AND PRACTICE

Where does the Klan stand on violence? In Georgia, Imperial Wizard Edwards maintained the Klan would stay within "laws that are just." At a June demonstration in Woodruff, S. C., the presiding Grand Titan said: "The Klan has always been against the use of violence and has never taken the law into its own hands." Then he added: "The record shows that any time the Klan took action, the facts justified it."

The record, in recent months:

In August, a Tuscaloosa, Alabama KKK rally ended in a burst of anti-Negro violence, with one Negro tossed in the air "like a baby," another slugged on the head. Addressing a Birmingham KKK crowd, an Alabama State Senator got a tumultuous round of applause when he shouted, "Give me segregation or give me death!" The same Senator, at an earlier meeting of Montgomery's White Citizens' Council, was reported to have favored "resort to force and violence to maintain segregation."

In September, in Mobile, Alabama, about 100 horn-blaring, shouting Klansmen burned a ten-foot cross at the home of a white woman who was trying to enter a Negro child in a white public school.

Nocturnal cross burnings have been occurring with increasing frequency of late, although primarily as anonymous, local reactions to desegregationist action. Among the more prominent victims of recent cross-burnings: Senator Herbert H. Lehman and Supreme Court Justices Earl Warren and Felix Frankfurter, at their homes in Washington, D. C.; Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, at his home in Bonham, Texas.

HOW SIGNIFICANT IS THE PRESENT REVIVAL?

Florida Klan leaders claim the resurrected movement has close to 10,000 members in their state alone. The reorganized Klan, Imperial Wizard Edwards told 3,500 in Georgia, "is growing faster than you think."

Moreover, it is apparent that, thus far, there is not the same degree of popular resentment against the Klan which led to its decline five years ago. There is an ominous absence of public revulsion to the return of the hooded men with their fiery crosses; as yet, respectable elements in Southern communities have not come forward with any forthright denunciations. The reason for this difference between reactions to the Klan today and five years ago is obvious. With school desegregation the law of the land, the South has a burning problem to handle. In the present atmosphere of tension, virtually any pro-segregation force is likely to find a welcome as part of a last-ditch stand against integration.

Nevertheless, it is worth remembering that at present the Klan movement has nowhere near the integrated organizational structure and direction of the '20s, or, for that matter, of the '40s. How much the White Citizens' Council movement has drained off the extremism of white supremacists is a factor which cannot as yet be assessed.

MIDDLE EAST CRISIS IS GRIST FOR THE ANTI-SEMITIC MILL

With one notable exception, anti-Semitic publications took the events this fall as a new jumping-off point for their vilifications against Jews. The exception, Destiny Magazine, in November ran an article attacking Nasser. Author Kenneth de Courcy's dilemma -- anti-Semitism versus anti-communism -- (see FYI, February 1956) was resolved thus:

> Several of Col. Nasser's close circle have been inscribed Communist party members. Their registration numbers are known and, judging from them, these memberships date from several years ago. At least two of the very highest persons in the regime have party numbers. Col. Nasser is employing over fifty ex-Nazi secret police officers and is using all the spying methods devised by the late Himmler. He is also using concentration camps in which there are now 100,000 persons slowly perishing in foul conditions.

Most of the anti-Semitic publications ran truer to form, fitting the current crisis to their old lines. A sampling of editorial reactions during November follows:

> National Renaissance Bulletin: The world grows weary of Jewish sponsored 'Hate Campaigns' directed against every nation or ruler who happens to stand in the way of their rapacious greed and international ambitions by appealing to world opinion and picturing themselves invariably in the role of a poor, suffering, downtrodden underdog the Jews have masterfully played on the heartstrings of Western Christendom and been responsible for crying up 'Holy Wars' in which Christian was pitted against fellow-Christian, brother against brother and Western culture against Western culture throughout untold centuries . . . . The New York Mirror ran a series by the Jew Erwin Savelson, entitled 'Nasser -- the Mid-East Hitler' which hoped to use the old Jewish psychological trick of identifying President Nasser with 'a hate object' in the American mind; namely, Adolph Hitler, the late Chancellor of Germany.

Common Sense: The public is led to believe that Egypt is preventing ships from passing through the canal and is likely to close it entirely. What ridiculous bunk! Egypt has not stopped one ship. The Zionist Jews who are maneuvering a war to be waged on the Arabs and Egyptians, plan on grabbing another large area of Arab country to accommodate the eleven million Jews they publicly state they intend to settle in Israel, which now accommodates only one and one half million . . . . Can the Jews who control our newspapers through their page advertising bring about a war where American blood will flow in Palestine? The Zionists forced Truman to validate the robbery of Arab land by Israel: now this same Israel presents a threat to World War III.

The Defender: As this Defender is being processed for publication, distressing reports from the Middle East tell of the Jewish invasion of Egypt. Intelligence sources of various Arab governments learned some time ago that international Zionist Jewry had mapped a grandiose plan for taking over all territory from the Nile to the Euphrates.

The discovery was made at a time when Israel possessed more arms and striking power than all the Arab states combined. Western governments, infiltrated by Zionism, considered this the status quo. The policy forced Egypt and other Middle East countries into the Soviet orbit at economic levels.

ARAB INFORMATION CENTER EXPANDS ITS PROPAGANDA PROGRAM

A new publication, issued by the Arab Information Center from three to five times weekly as a running commentary on topical events, began appearing early in November, with the following legend: "This is one of a series of Fact Sheets aimed at putting the record straight in view of the willful distortions and misstatements forwarded by the authors of the Anglo-French-Israeli aggression in Egypt."

A series of thirteen quarter-hour radio programs, "Assignment: Middle East," was offered by the AIC free of charge this fall to stations across the nation. At least 175 stations have accepted the offer.

These ambitious new projects indicate that new sources of funds are available to the Arab Information Center for its intensified program of propaganda activities.

BIGOTRY TEXT BY BEATY PROMOTED

In contrast with his ultra-racist Iron Curtain Over America (1951), John O. Beaty's new book Crossroads (1956) is a romanticized version of life in a Virginia hamlet just prior to World War II. His publishers, however, have tied in the issuance of the book with a new promotional campaign for Iron Curtain Over America. Their recently distributed flyer for the latter book contains endorsements from Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, Lt. Gen. Pedro A. del Valle and Admiral John G. Crommelin, among others. Crommelin appeared as a character witness for hatemonger John Kasper at the latter's trial, at which Kasper was acquitted (November 20) of charges of sedition in connection with the disturbances over school desegregation in Clinton, Tenn.

REPORTS ON BIGOT ACTIVITIES

Realpolitical Institute of Chicago is distributing a "memorandum," bearing an insignia patterned after the Hitler Jugend, "re the disloyal Jewish Concensus." In it, they ask for "creation of a National Repatriation Commission to encourage the voluntary emigration and resettlement of non-assimilable Whites and non-Whites through financial and economic assistance." James Madole distributed two booklets published in Cairo -- Peace & War and Threats & Intimidation. Both were sent out bearing the rubber stamp of Madole's National Renaissance Party . . . . On October 12, representatives of White Citizens Councils from ten states met in Jackson, Miss., to form the Citizens Council of America, designed as a "coordinating and planning agency for several state associations." The states represented were Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia . . . . . Wing Commander Leonard Young, anti-Semitic Britisher, is being introduced to American readers in the newly imported booklet, Deadlier than the H Bomb. Wide distribution is being given here to his blatantly racist views . . . . . Elizabeth Dilling, in a November issue of her Bulletin, uses anti-Semitism to "explain" the abortive revolt in Hungary. It would seem, she reasons, that "the function of RADIO FREE EUROPE in beckoning out the dissidents under Talmudic Red Dictatorship" is "that they can be eliminated by deportation, or the gun." To clinch her argument, she spins the vicious fancy that RADIO FREE EUROPE is under the "domination of The American Jewish Committee."

Vol. II. No. 1, January 1957

APPRAISAL OF 1956

Organized anti-Semitic activity in the United States showed no appreciable rise during 1956. However, the emphasis changed significantly.

The bigots last year concentrated their artillery on a few major issues of grave national concern. The most significant developments were: (1) intensified emphasis on anti-Semitism in the areas of the South torn by tensions over desegregation; (2) continuing exploitation of the Middle East crisis for overt attacks on American Jewry; and (3) exploitation of political efforts, during the months preceding the Presidential election, to dislodge the two major parties.

Anti-Semitic movements also continued to project themes which have long been vehicles for their hatred -- equating Jews and Zionism with communism, for instance. To attract reactionaries and ultra-conservatives, they continued to attack the income tax, liberalized immigration proposals, government controls, the United Nations, and even NATO, which they denounced as an entering wedge for internationalism.

ANTI-SEMITISM TINGES PRO-SEGREGATION ACTIVITIES

Most of the extremely racist anti-Negro and anti-Semitic literature distributed this past year in the South originated from areas where segregation was hardly an issue at all -- the Los Angeles area, Denver, St. Louis, New Jersey and New York. The Southerners' own material, dealing with "states' rights" and resistance techniques like the boycott, were temperate in comparison. For vitriolic propaganda, many white supremacy groups relied on materials they knew they could buy outside the South.

This literature, sold by leading anti-Semites like Conde McGinley, Gerald L. K. Smith, Kenneth Goff and John Hamilton, circulated canards smearing the Supreme Court desegregation decision as a facet of a "Jewish-Negro conspiracy," inspired by the Communists to "mongrelize the country." The bigots charged that Jews dominated the Negro organizations. They featured photographs of whites and Negroes of opposite sexes together, with headlines insinuating that Jews were behind efforts to "force mixing of the races."

The White Citizens Councils movement grew more receptive to such materials during 1956. Robert B. Patterson, executive secretary of the Mississippi parent group, recommended several such items to his membership. An August report of the Mississippi State Council claimed 80,000 members and boasted that "we have mailed over two million pieces of literature. . ."

Alabama's White Citizens Councils split into two factions, one moderate, the other extremist. The extremist group, known as the North Alabama White Citizens Council, is headed by Asa (Ace) Carter, a former radio commentator who openly collaborates with known anti-Semites.

Frederick John Kasper, Seaboard White Citizens Council leader, was charged in Tennessee with sedition for inciting to riot, for his role in the demonstrations against integration of Negro students into the Clinton high school.* Adjudged in contempt of a Federal Court decree in that state, he had been sentenced to a year in jail and released on bail pending appeal.

Most White Citizens Councils, however, disavowed religious and racial bigotry -- including anti-Negro bias. The presence of important local people in some Councils acted as a brake on frenetic trends. On the whole, developments in 1956 indicated that individual Councils reflect the tensions and attitudes of the locality, and that their membership and popularity fluctuate in direct ratio to specific incidents involving integration, declining sharply as soon as the issues are resolved.

Attempts to revive the thoroughly discredited Ku Klux Klan in the South were increasingly successful during the past year, their meetings drawing crowds in such places as Montgomery, Alabama; Woodruff, South Carolina; Tuscaloosa, Alabama; Clinton, Tennessee; Atlanta, Georgia -- to cite just a few.

The Imperial Wizard set the tone of the Klan campaign by attacking "Catholics, Communists, Jews, Negroes and Northern agitators" as the principal threats of "destruction of the white heritage." The Klan's activities in protest against desegregation and its supporters have proved, as expected, to follow a pattern of violence -- nightriding, robed Klansmen, fiery crosses.

Despite larger attendance at meetings and more activity throughout the year, the Klan had by no means regained its integrated structure and direction of the 1920's, or even the 1940's. How much the White Citizens Councils may be draining off the potential Klan membership is still a matter of speculation.

ARAB PROPAGANDA AND ANTI-JEWISH THEMES INTERLOCK

Arab propagandists in the United States increased their efforts to win over the American public to a pro-Arab, anti-Israel view. Indications were strong by the end of the year that they had found new sources of money here with which they were launching ambitious new projects.

Furthermore, the year brought fresh evidence that anti-Semitic arguments are part and parcel of the Arab line. Arab propagandists generally made charges of "Jewish dual loyalty" either in outright terms or by pointed implications. And some of the material widely circulated by Arab units was clearly anti-Semitic -- one blatant example, Tension, Terror and Blood in the Holy Land, bears the official seal and imprint of the Palestine Arab Refugee Institution, Damascus, Syria.

The Arabs were not loath to cooperate with U.S. racists to further their ends. Native anti-Semites, for their part, helped distribute official Arab propaganda and followed, in the main, strictly pro-Arab lines in their press. Thus, there appeared to be a working liaison between U.S. bigots and official and semi-official Arab representatives in the United States.

A flurry of activity was set off by the November crisis in the Middle East, with the extremist press quick to use the Israeli incursion and British-French Suez action as new jumping-off points for their vilifications against Jews.

EXPLOITING "THIRD PARTY" THEME

The political activities of the hate-mongers came to even less in the 1956 campaign than in 1952, although extremists did keep trying to exploit the dissatisfactions of ultra-conservatives and states'-rights dissidents, and laid plans for future political thrusts.

In April, a Dallas meeting of the Congress of Freedom, amalgam of many rightist groups, attracted such participants as Elizabeth Dilling, Kenneth Goff, Marilyn Allen -- all notoriously racist.

In August, the attempts of bigot groups to make a splash at the national conventions proved virtually fruitless. Only Gerald L. K. Smith managed to achieve national notoriety; at San Francisco Smith gratuitously endorsed Vice President Nixon, who promptly repudiated him.

In October, as the campaign drew to a close, a "third party" ticket headed by T. Coleman Andrews and Thomas H. Werdel had been picked by ultra-conservative elements of the North and pro-segregationists of the South. Although this movement was not anti-Semitic, hate-mongers like Conde McGinley hopped on its bandwagon and promoted its ticket.

A REVIEW OF THE LITERATURE

The anti-Semitic press continued, during 1956, to register improvement in typographical quality. New items consisted mainly of flyers and pamphlets dealing with desegregation in the South. At the same time, staples such as The Protocols were extensively circulated through the region. The periodicals apparently most widely circulated were Conde McGinley's Common Sense, Frank L. Britton's American Nationalist and Gerald L. K. Smtih's several publications. A revised edition of The Coming Red Dictatorship was another item that appeared in quantity wherever there was trouble in the South.

Nearing completion, for the convenience of FYI readers, is an index of past issues.

BIGOTS HAVE A FIELD DAY WITH MIDDLE EAST CRISIS

Current developments in the complicated Middle East scene have provided U.S. hatemongers with new frameworks for their old diatribes. During the early months of 1957, President Eisenhower's Middle East doctrine was a favorite target. Robert H. Williams, West Coast publicist, produced a vituperative anti-Eisenhower broadside, "Will Congress Abdicate?", under the imprint of the California Committee for Victory without War. "The President is dead! Hail the Emperor!" it proclaims. A sample of Williams' prose illustrates this current line of attack:

> Will the President's Mid East Wars Get Five Million American boys killed? . . . . How nice to have our sons do the fighting to help Israel expand so the Jewish financiers can take the oil away from their some-time rivals, the Rockefellers! . . . . The Marxist USSR will have the power to make the capitalist America bleed, while building up Marxist Israel.

Fact for Fact, a new publication, appeared under the imprint of the Foundation for Advanced Research Analysis, further identified as "a Delaware corporation." Devoted entirely to an intemperate article by Benjamin H. Freedman, this flyer berates Eisenhower as a tool of the Zionists, speaks softly about Egypt's resort to Soviet aid, and sees "sinister intentions, implications and innuendoes" in the Eisenhower Middle East doctrine.

Gerald L.K. Smith, in his February 14 newsletter, jumps on the same bandwagon with these characteristic words:

> If the Zionist Jews and their stooges in the Congress of the United States, together with their manipulators behind the scenes, are able to overwhelm our President and our Secretary of State, as they are trying to do at this very moment, we will be up to our ears in a blood bath of war to save the Jews of Palestine.

PRO-SEGREGATION FORCES TRY TO EXTEND THEMSELVES

During February, segregationist leader John Frederick Kasper attempted to set up a Philadelphia chapter of his Seaboard White Citizens Council. The Philadelphia drive included mailings of membership applications and propaganda literature, the setting up of headquarters, and a reported visit to the area by Kasper himself. These activities are presently under scrutiny by the Philadelphia District Attorney.

In Florida, another Kasper henchman, Fred B. Hockett, was arrested as he led an attempt to erect a kerosene-soaked white cross on the lawn of a Negro resident in a white district of Miami. An official of Kasper's Seaboard White Citizens Council, Hockett admitted participating in the race troubles in Clinton, Tenn. last fall. Settling in Miami as a permanent resident, Hockett had organized a local chapter of his anti-integration group.

A new publication of the pro-Kasper Knox County White Citizens Councils (Tenn.) has made its bow. Knoxville on Guard, a crude-looking, 12-page "newspaper," is liberally sprinkled with photographs: suggestive pictures of Negro men and white women, portraits of "NAACP leaders," including "Sen. Herbert Lehman, Marxist Jew" and "Felix Frankfurter (Jew)." Among the literature advertised "for broader study of the entire problem" of desegregation are The Protocols of the Elders of Zion and John O. Beaty's anti-Semitic diatribe, The Iron Curtain over America.

Incidental note: John W. Hamilton, editor of the racist publication, The White Sentinel, was convicted of child molestation in St. Louis on February 20 and given a two-year penitentiary sentence.

LITERATURE IS A CONTINUING CONCERN

The old-line agitator, Elizabeth Dilling, paid a visit recently to New York to confer with local bigots on ways to "improve" the literature output. Dilling's own effort, a voluminous, poorly mimeographed monthly "newsletter," still harps away at tortured "interpretations" of Hebrew literature and the Talmud, unchanged in tone and content for close to a generation.

An elaborate, attractively produced kit of hate materials is being circulated by Conde McGinley. This packet of 33 separate items includes slick, one-page reprints of the infamous Benjamin Franklin forgery, excerpts from the Protocols, a photograph and article charging former Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg with forcing integration of the races in the Armed Forces. Also in the kit are the pamphlet, Money and the Tariff, by the late George W. Armstrong, and The Coming Red Dictatorship, a newspaper-size flyer smearing 50 prominent American Jews. The wide distribution being given this kit is suggestive of "special financing."

THE KU KLUX KLAN TODAY -- AN APPRAISAL

A revived Ku Klux Klan has been gaining strength steadily in many areas of the South during 1957 (for earlier background, see "Report on the Ku Klux Klan," FYI No. 13, November 1956). Today, three years after the U.S. Supreme Court decision ordering an end to public school segregation, resistance in the South has increased, and a middle ground for mediating and adjusting to gradual desegregation has in many instances virtually disappeared. Into this atmosphere of fear and silence, the Ku Klux Klan has stepped with growing success.

While lacking the organizational cohesion of the Klan a decade ago, the Klan is profiting from the fact that many decent elements of Southern citizenry are unwilling to express their contempt for its activities. A growing callousness toward interference with the processes of law and order characterizes many areas of the South today.

These developments are buttressed by certain extremist groups in the White Citizens Councils movement which are virtually undistinguishable from the Klan in membership, aims and activities. In Birmingham, Alabama, for instance, the White Citizens Council led by anti-Semite Ace Carter operates side by side with the Klan. The tone of the propaganda is exemplified by a recent Birmingham Klan recruiting leaflet: "Please remember that every Rome or Jewish controlled newspaper is fighting the Ku Klux Klan religion." The leaflet includes anti-UN, anti-immigration and racist propaganda. Quantities of anti-Semitic literature have been distributed in this city of more than 325,000 population.

Montgomery, Alabama, has forbidden the Klan to meet within the corporate limits of the city, but this interdict is of little practical significance. In November, for instance, when a Klan rally was held just outside city limits, many robed Klansmen, in full regalia, walked up and down Montgomery's main streets without interference. Bombings of Negro homes and numerous other acts of violence have occurred since city buses were integrated by Federal court order. Montgomery's police chief, G.J. Ruppenthal, stated in February that his department had investigated four bombings of Negro churches and pro-integration ministers' homes; he concluded that these acts "were perpetrated by members of the Ku Klux Klan."

Violence and stepped-up Klan activities are by no means restricted to one trouble spot. In Tuscaloosa, Alabama, 70 robed men demonstrated on March 14 against a University of Alabama meeting on "The Impact of Segregation on the South." The Tuscaloosa Klan spokesman charged that there are "pinks and Communists" on the university faculty, and declared: "The University of Alabama is a white man's school. It has always been that way and we intend for it to stay that way . . ." In Birmingham, Alabama, a television newsman covering a Klan rally was knocked to the ground and slugged repeatedly by four or five masked and robed Klansmen. In Carrollton, Alabama, seven cars of robed nightriders fired into the home of a Negro tenant farmer and ordered him to move within 48 hours. In Columbia, South Carolina, a white high-school band director, 52-year-old Guy Hutchins, was flogged by a gang who charged he was preaching integration. Of the six men arrested in the flogging, "at least one" was reported to have admitted being a member of the Ku Klux Klan. In Florida, the Klan has been on the rise since January; the moving force behind the Florida rallies was a Northerner, firebrand John Kasper. On March 9, Kasper addressed several hundred persons at a Klan rally at Inverness in central Florida, charging that the Jews are responsible for desegregation troubles in the South. The most prominent items of literature distributed at this rally were products of Northern hate-mongers, notably Conde McGinley's Common Sense. Kasper's influence in Florida plummeted after his admission, before a legislative committee, that less than two years earlier, while he was running a bookshop in Greenwich Village, New York, he had been on cordial terms with a Negro girl and other Negroes.

ARAB STUDENTS ORGANIZED TO PROPAGANDIZE

The Organization of Arab Students (OAS), a group partially supported by Arab embassies and agencies, continuously tries to impress upon Arab students in the United States that they have obligations beyond the simple acquisition of academic or professional knowledge. "The student before being a student is a citizen of his country," the March 1957 newsletter of the OAS states. "The Arab view is not given adequate publicity. We, therefore, are under heavy obligation to ourselves and to our country to try to take advantage of every occasion for expressing our point of view. Our obligation is explain the real facts in all current issues."

During Egypt's crisis last fall, an emergency session was called, and 75 students from universities throughout the United States met in New York for guidance by OAS and Arab embassy officials. In Berkeley and San Francisco, Arab students framed a petition, collected 2,200 American signatures and mailed it to President Eisenhower. In Detroit, Arab students formed committees to answer anti-Arab comments in the local press and to give lectures on the Arab point of view.

The OAS, at the beginning of 1956, had 30 local clubs. The organization supports an extensive lecture program, thus far offered to some 2,000 schools and social institutions, and to 1,500 churches.

REVIEW OF BIGOT ACTIVITIES

Gerald L.K. Smith, in one of his infrequent appearances outside California, addressed an overflow audience on March 4 at the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas, Texas . . . . Smith's latest attack, in the April issue of The Cross and the Flag, is directed against Bishop Shiel of Chicago -- Smith's bon mot: "Is Shiel a shill?" . . . . The motion of John Hamilton (White Sentinel) for a new trial was denied by the St. Louis court. He was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary after being found guilty of charges of child molestation, and is out on $2,000 bond pending appeal . . . . The Protocols of the Elders of Zion, infamous forgery and classic favorite of anti-Semites, is now being advertised on the front page of a Cairo publication, Al Ahram, for ten cents; a new Portuguese language edition of the Protocols has just been published in Brazil, marking the first Brazilian edition of this infamous work . . . . Rear Admiral John G. Crommelin (ret.) addressed 1,800 followers of Gerald L.K. Smith in Los Angeles; his topic: "The Hidden Force," a blistering attack on Jews and Negroes . . . . Joseph P. Kamp's new publication, Trickery, Treachery, Tyranny and Treason in Washington, a broadside against the proposed federal civil rights program, includes a blast against Ambassador James D. Zellerbach.

THE CONGRESS OF FREEDOM CONVENTION

The Congress of Freedom, an amalgam of America's ultra-conservative organizations, convened in Biloxi, Mississippi, April 19-21. The convention attracted 250 participants -- an increase over last year's Dallas meeting (125), but still well below the 1955 San Francisco turnout (600). Director George J. Thomas and national chairman John Wismer presided.

Russell Maguire, wealthy publisher of The American Mercury, was elected national chairman of the Constitution Party, political arm of the Congress of Freedom. After his wired acceptance, Maguire was hailed as the "answer to our prayer for national leadership."

Speakers and other participants at the assembly included:

--Verne Kaub and Jessica Payne, both former associates of Allan Zoll in the now defunct National Council on American Education.

--Willis Carto, San Franciscan and head of Liberty and Property, who appealed to the assembly to set up a "Liberty Lobby" in Washington, D. C. Liberty and Property once published a Nationalist Directory which included such names as Conde McGinley and Elizabeth Dilling.

--Judge Tom Brady, a founder of the Associated White Citizens Councils.

--Dr. George S. Benson, president of Harding College, Searcy, Arkansas. Dr. Benson is frequently a featured speaker at events sponsored by ultra-conservative groups.

--J. Bracken Lee, former governor of Utah and now head of For America.

--Bob Snowden, head of The Campaign of 48 States, a state's-righters' organization.

--Harry T. Evringham, executive director of We the People, a reactionary Chicago group.

--Philip Lee Eubank, founder and outgoing national chairman of the Constitution Party.

--Robert Patterson, head of the Associated White Citizens Councils.

Among 15 resolutions passed by the Congress were statements calling for: repeal of the income tax; adoption of the "original" Bricker Amendment; reform of the electoral college; restoration of "states' rights;" support of the February 1957 impeachment resolution adopted by the Georgia Assembly. Other statements opposed: all federal school aid; the pending civil rights bill and any others that might be framed; and "mass medication" (fluoridation).

THE DEAN OF BIGOTS: GENERAL GEORGE V. H. MOSELEY

With the publication of Give Us Barabbas, a small brochure of distilled hatred, Major General George Van Horn Moseley (ret.) proves he is still on active duty, rounding out two decades as an anti-Semite.

Moseley first appeared on the scene in 1938, when he was active in Allan Zoll's American Federation Against Communism. In March 1939, an anti-Semitic speech delivered by the General was reprinted by the thousands by William Dudley Pelley. Moseley's most rabid speech was made to a closed meeting in May 1939. Among those invited were the late Fritz Kuhn and his closest aides in the German American Bund; and Joseph E. McWilliams of the Christian Mobilizers.

The degree of venom contained in Moseley's utterances is exemplified by a New York Herald-Tribune item of May 14, 1939, which quoted the General as having stated that if any refugees were shipped to this country, it should be with the understanding that "they all be sterilized before being permitted to embark."

The House Un-American Activities Committee's Report on Neo-Fascist and Hate Groups (December, 1954) said:

> "...the Special Committee on Un-American Activities reported in 1940 that General Moseley was being seriously considered as a national leader of an attempted union of fascist and hate-groups in the United States until the plans were exposed and Moseley was called as a witness before the committee..."

Moseley was a trustee of a foundation set up in 1949 by the late George Armstrong, millionaire hate-pamphleteer of Fort Worth and Natchez. A grant of Armstrong to Jefferson Military College was rejected because of racial and religious discriminatory conditions placed upon its acceptance.

Moseley's latest diatribe, Give Us Barabbas, charges that Jews "are the instigators and leaders of world communism," and constitute "the greatest problem before the world today because the Jew has infiltrated into every phase of world affairs, and he is behind the throne of every government." Moseley's solution matches his statement of the problem:

> If this problem is not faced and solved by proper governmental action, the peoples of the world will one day be driven to solve it themselves and it will be a sad day for the Jew . . . . No Genocide Treaty will protect them when courageous citizens finally act to rid their respective nations of these inhuman pests.

THE FALL FROM GRACE OF JOHN FREDERICK KASPER

John Frederick Kasper, a short time ago the boy wonder of the Ku Klux Klan and other pro-segregation groups in the South, has been rejected out of hand by his former followers and admirers, despite his success last fall at inciting trouble over desegregation in Clinton, Tennessee. This spurning of the young firebrand has been attributed to the public revelation that this "white supremacy" leader once ran an interracial bookshop in the Greenwich Village section of New York City and dated Negro girls.

Kasper has been officially warned by the Klan that henceforth he will not be permitted to speak at their meetings. Anti-Kasper feeling runs so high that the 16 segregationists arrested with him for disobeying a Federal injunction filed motions to avoid being tried with him.

REVIEW OF BIGOT ACTIVITIES

Starting April 29, the Mississippi White Citizens Council takes to the air-waves with a regular series of television broadcasts called "Citizen Council Forum." These 15-minute telecasts over WLBT (Channel 3) in Jackson are intended to acquaint the public with "the problems affecting States' Rights and race relations, and . . . steps being taken to meet them." . . . . Gerald L. K. Smith, encouraged by a successful public appearance in Los Angeles, has been visiting old cohorts in New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C. . . . . E. L. Edwards of Atlanta, Imperial Wizard of the U. S. Klans, was chief speaker at a South Clinton, Tennessee, KKK meeting and cross-burning on May 11. Edwards was visiting Clinton to investigate the "infringement" by John Frederick Kasper and Bill Hendrix, Grand Dragon of the Florida Klan. . . . Robert Williams, in the May issue of the Williams Intelligence Summary, claims that "many Californians are changing their registration to the Constitution Party, hoping thus to get the party on the California ballot in time for the next year's gubernatorial and senatorial elections." . . . . John O. Beaty's The Iron Curtain Over America, although several years old, is being given a large-scale promotion push by The National Christian Journal . . . .

Another old standby, the Arab-published Tension, Terror and Spod, was excerpted in a recent issue of the National Renaissance Party Bulletin. The NRP continues to advertise various Arab publications at attractive bulk rates. . . . Asa (Ace) Carter, leader of the anti-Semitic White Citizens Council group in Alabama, was roundly trounced in his race for the office of Birmingham police commissioner. Carter received only 1,664 votes against the 14,460 and 12,146 of his opponents. . . . Another political test will take place in September in Mobile, Alabama, where E. C. Barnard, Imperial Wizard of the Gulf KKK, is a candidate for the Mobile City Commission. Barnard is basing his platform on "white supremacy."

OLD PRO-NAZI FINDS NEW ALLIES IN THE ARAB CAMP

In 1944, Gerald Winrod, along with others, was indicted by a U.S. District Court Grand Jury in Washington, D.C. for conspiracy to commit sedition, the indictment alleging that the defendants "actively cooperated with each other and with leaders and members of the Nazi Party in the U.S." Mentioned in this indictment, along with Mein Kampf, Welt Dienst (World Service) and Der Stuermer, was Winrod's magazine, The Defender. The prosecution was dropped after the sudden death of the presiding justice during the trial.

The Defender, doggedly pursuing its anti-Semitic course, has found another foreign cause with enough anti-Jewish emphasis to make it attractive. In recent years, Winrod has latched firmly onto the bandwagon of Arab nationalism.

Indeed, the May and June issues of The Defender have gone so far as to feature articles by a foreign agent, Izzat Tannous, head of the Palestine Arab Refugee Committee in the United States. Both Tannous and his organization are registered with the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C., as agents of a foreign principal (Registration No. 897).

A glimpse at The Defender's contents during the past year shows how generously Winrod has been using the Arab propaganda line:

June 1956: A book review of Jack B. Tenney's anti-Semitic diatribe, Zion's Fifth Column. Like the book, the Defender review attacks all Jewish groups, focusing on the dual loyalty charge and conjuring up the spectre of an "international menace."

August 1956: "A Christian Arab Speaks," by M. K. Saca. This article, which opens by deploring that "Americans and Arabs do not know each other better," presents an untempered Arab viewpoint on Middle East questions.

September, October, November 1956: A series of articles by Khalid Ibrahim Babaa. Subjects range from U.S. interests in the Middle East to a bitter, violent "analysis" of "Zionist propaganda."

December 1956: "Zionism's Bid for World Domination," by Henry D. Allen. Speaking of the "Jew-Zionist menace" and the "Anglo-Jewish Conspiracy," this article concludes: "Thus it will be seen that the Arab case rests squarely on the admitted principles of International justice."

January 1957: A reprint of "Nasser's Statement of Egyptian Policy" with an accompanying editor's note: "This statement by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt is clarifying and at variance with much that the American people are being told by press and radio."

February 1957: "Beware of Zionist Propaganda," an unsigned article. The U.S. press, radio and TV are attacked for their treatment of the Middle East crisis.

March 1957: An editorial, "Zionist Lies."

April 1957: Heavily loaded with pro-Arab material, this issue includes: "Jerusalem Travelogue," by Rev. James Anderson: "Arab Refugee Problem in Retrospect," by Bob Shuler; and an editorial, "The Middle East Crisis."

BIGOT WITH POLITICAL AMBITIONS

At the California convention of the Constitution Party, held this month in San Francisco, a principal speaker was Lt. Gen. Pedro Augusto del Valle, U.S. Marine Corps (ret.) -- a figure who has been frequently identified with extremist activities. Literature distributed at this gathering of ultra-conservatives included such old standbys of anti-Semitism as The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion; Winrod's The Defender; and several Gerald L.K. Smith publications.

In addition to his appearance at the convention, del Valle this month authored an article for The American Mercury, a national magazine whose wealthy publisher, Russell Maguire, was named national chairman of the Constitution Party at the Congress of Freedom's May convention in Biloxi, Miss.

Since del Valle appears to be throwing his hat into the third party political arena, his record is of interest. Born in 1893 in San Juan, Puerto Rico, he was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1915. After serving in various posts and campaigns as an officer in the U.S. Marine Corps, he attained the rank of brigadier general in 1942, and thereafter was promoted to lieutenant general, at which rank he is presently retired.

In 1947, del Valle placed his wholehearted endorsement on the title page of a stridently anti-Semitic pamphlet, "Know Your Enemy," by Robert H. Williams. This well-printed, generously illustrated, 55-page booklet still is being circulated -- and still carries the General's plaudits. Its invidious message is that communism is merely a tool of a Jewish plot for world domination.

In 1951, General del Valle used the pages of Conde McGinley's Common Sense to attack the appointment of General George C. Marshall as U.S. Secretary of State. In this article, del Valle lambasted President Truman for having shown "more and more that he is a mere prisoner in the White House, so lacking in the mental and moral qualities demanded . . . as to present a pitiful, if hateful, spectacle of gross ineptitude. This is the type admirably suited to Zionist control."

BIGOT ATTACKS FOCUS ON ISSUES OF BROAD CONCERN

The more skillful of the hatemongers in the United States have learned the value of latching their invidious messages of hatred against Jews onto important national controversies, thereby gaining a far wider audience than they could hope for if they preached unadulterated hate.

Currently, bigots are accelerating their attacks on: desegregation, immigration, the income tax and the United Nations. A review of recent literature demonstrates how the extremist press has been turning these topical issues into showcases for their old canards.

Against desegregation: The line of attack has been that the U.S. Supreme Court decisions outlawing school segregation were a facet of the "Jewish-Negro conspiracy," inspired by the Communists and designed to "mongrelize the Country." Bigots have been hammering away at a favorite charge -- that Jews dominate Negro organizations -- and their publications highlight, at every opportunity, the activities of prominent Americans of Jewish faith who are linked with efforts to advance civil rights.

An article in the July 15, 1957 issue of Common Sense illustrates this approach. After characterizing Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter as an "Austrian-born Jew who rules the Court with an iron fist," the text launches into a broadside attack on the U.S. Supreme Court:

> May 17, 1954, the day of the desegregation decision by the U.S. Supreme Court, has properly been called "Black Monday." In recent weeks, however, patriotic Americans of all sections should have been filled with anxiety when they picked up their evening papers on Mondays for fear of reading additional "Black Monday" decisions by that Court. They certainly have been forthcoming.

The entertainment world has been singled out for sharp attack too. July's edition of the American Nationalist concentrates on the television, radio, motion picture and recording industries in an article headlined "BOYCOTT THEM!" Photography of Negroes and whites illustrate the haranguing text:

> Within the past year our alien-controlled TV industry has launched a vast and concerted propaganda campaign designed to encourage and glamourize wholesale race-mixing between whites and Negroes. At the moment they are concentrating on placing Negro "guest stars" on popular family programs as a means of getting them into your living room. By utilizing this device the alien masters of television have managed to work Negro actors and sports heroes into literally scores of family programs whose combined audience runs into the tens of millions . . . . and when this vast potential is perverted into an instrument for brainwashing the American public into accepting compulsory mongrelization, then it is time for the people to take a hand in the matter.

Against immigration: The anti-Semitic lines of reasoning portray all critics of the present immigration law as Jews seeking the law's repeal because they wish to get millions of their co-religionists into the United States. The myth of Jewish power is frequently woven into this argument. The actual facts -- that an overwhelming majority of the beneficiaries of a liberalized immigration law could be Christian, not Jewish -- are conveniently overlooked.

Thus, in March 1957, the Williams Intelligence Summary seized upon the Hungarian refugee crisis.

> Evidently, as the snows of winter melt, we are going to have to brace ourselves for a shock wave of pro-Communist Jews and their "liberal" allies from Hungary.
> No matter who or what sets off the revolt, the immigration lobby is determined to break down once and for all time the last thin wall of American protection now represented in the McCarran-Walter Act. The first and all-important Zionist objective is to capture the United States.

Against the income tax: Bigots have molded to their own advantage a cause with long standing appeal. The anti-Semitic twist currently applied to anti-income-tax arguments is fully illustrated in the January 1957 issue of Women's Voice. "INCOME TAX IS TREASON! Treason to Christ and Country! When Christ Vanishes from a Country, the People Perish," the headline blares. This article charges, in block letters: "EISENHOWER LIFTED NEW REPUBLICAN POLICY FROM THE PROTOCOLS OF THE LEARNED ELDERS OF ZION."

Against the United Nations: Attacks run the full gamut from crude and emotional to slick and rational. Thus, in January 1957, Grass Roots was declaiming:

> We Nationalists have been yelling for the U.S.A. to get this country out of the U.N. But the Jew-gangs merely shrug their shoulders and hiss. "Let 'em yell." And we are doing -- nothing.

The more slickly written Economic Council Letter in its April 15, 1957 number treats the same topic in this fashion:

> The formation of the United Nations in 1945 was without question a crafty Soviet idea, sold by such men as Alger Hiss to American "liberals" and by them sold to certain misguided churchmen and other unthinking Americans. Since the formation of the U.N., especially as its headquarters was planted in the United States, America has been at least partly subservient to other nations. After fighting two world wars, ostensibly to defend liberty, we permitted ourselves to surrender to international socialism as represented by the U.N. This was America's reward for the loss of half a million of our sons and the building up of a public debt twice as great as the debts of all other nations combined.

ARAB PROPAGANDA FINDS A READY MARKET IN ANTI-SEMITIC PRESS

The July 1957 issue of Gerald L. K. Smith's The Cross and the Flag features as its leading article "The Story of a Palestine Arab Refugee," an emotional piece by Sami Hadawi. Both the author and the organization with which he is affiliated -- the Palestine Arab Refugee Committee in the United States -- are registered with the Department of Justice as agents of a foreign principal (Registration No. 897).

An editor's note in the Cross and the Flag introduces the Hadawi article to Gerald Smith's readership:

> It was the pleasure of the editors of The Cross and the Flag to visit personally with Mr. Hadawi whose story we reproduce herewith. It is one of the most appealing, dramatic and factual statements to come to our attention.

EX-GOVERNOR LEE REPUDIATES COMMON SENSE

When former governor of Utah, J. Bracken Lee, head of the conservative movement, For America, was apprised that Conde McGinley had reprinted one of his speeches, he wrote the following letter to a member of the American Jewish Committee:

> "This letter to you is prompted by the fact that a small newspaper known as Common Sense, published apparently in Union, N.J. printed in full a speech I made before the Convention of the Congress of Freedom, in Biloxi, Miss. This is to assure you that no permission was granted by me, or was the matter even discussed by anyone connected with this newspaper concerning the right to print this speech. As I stated to you, I am not in sympathy with this particular newspaper, so long as they continue a policy of what I consider hate against any group and I feel that they have been guilty of doing this. . . ."

NEW PUBLICITY GIVES HYPO TO NEO-NAZISM

James A. Madole, leader of the openly pro-Nazi National Renaissance Party in New York City, last month received what was, for him, unprecedented notoriety and recognition. Within one week in July, Madole was interviewed twice, once on TV, once on radio. For half an hour on "Nightbeat," a TV program carried over a New York metropolitan station, Madole was given the opportunity to expatiate on his pro-Nazi, anti-Semitic and anti-Negro program, parrying arguments -- in some instances adroitly -- with the interviewer, and remarking that, were he permitted greater access to the airwaves, his following would increase. The previous night, he had been interviewed on another station's local radio show, "This Is New York."

Response in anti-Semitic circles to the appearances of this relatively obscure fuehrer was instantaneous. Heretofore considered a crackpot even by the crackpots themselves, Madole was endowed with new stature, and is now being regarded with greater esteem by anti-Semitic elements and their leaders, particularly those in the Northeast.

Besides neo-Nazism, Madole's current stock-in-trade includes pro-Arab ideas: he has for some time been distributing quantities of pro-Arab literature, some of it originating from official Arab sources. In the growing liaison between Madole and Arab propagandists, Madole's offices have served as a distribution depot for pro-Arab material, some of which is decidedly anti-Semitic.

THE UPS AND DOWNS OF KASPERISM

Despite his well-publicized conviction July 23 by a Knoxville court for conspiring to defy a Federal court injunction against interfering with the integration of the high school at Clinton, Tenn., Frederick John Kasper, anti-Semitic, anti-Negro hatemonger, appears to be making new headway in various sections of the South.

Though repudiated by some Klan and White Citizens Council units after a Florida legislative committee had brought to light his having socialized with New York Negroes in the past -- Kasper was the central figure at a rally held outside Nashville on August 4. Previously, he had been removed from a city park by Nashville authorities, who pointed out that no permit had been granted to him for holding a meeting there. According to Grand Titan Emmett Carr of the KKK of Middle Tennessee, Kasper "had such a bad reputation that we'd rather not associate with him." In opposition to Kasper's rally, Carr's Klan unit organized a rival meeting, which was poorly attended. Despite such instances of resistance, however, Kasper is boasting that he has recently been asked to activate other localities in the South.

During July, some rather odd echoes of Kasperism were heard in the North. On Long Island, Robert L'Hommedieu, son of an Oceanside policeman, announced that he was organizing a New York Chapter of the White Citizens Councils, aimed at influencing students in the "Ivy League colleges." Original announcement of this endeavor had been made by Kasper at a press conference in Knoxville. Another person named as a leader of this movement was David Wang, a Chinese graduate of Dartmouth College, who eight years ago had come to this country from Shanghai. Wang's benign interpretation of Kasper's violent philosophy is that Kasper "believes in the equality of the races." He told a reporter, "No white man has had more Negro friends than Kasper." Despite announcements by Kasper, L'Hommedieu and Wang, there has been no evidence, so far, of the existence of their white supremacy group.

Kasper was first convicted of contempt of court August 30, 1956, and sentenced to one year in prison. While the young firebrand was out on bail pending appeal, this conviction was upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Kasper is still at large on bail pending a Supreme Court appeal from the first conviction. In addition, he is out on bail pending appeal from another -- his most recent -- conviction.

IN BRIEF

Rev. George Vernon McCabe, Washington, D. C., white supremacy propagandist, is circulating a leaflet quoting from the infamous "Rabbi Rabinovich" hoax in support of his thesis that Jews are behind "mongrelization." The "Rabinovich speech," purporting to outline a latter-day version of The Protocols, first appeared several years ago in Conde McGinley's Common Sense, along with a note to the effect that it has been "discovered" by Eustace Mullins, former collaborator of both Frederick John Kasper and James A. Madole . . . . The August 1 edition of Common Sense devoted more than half a page to the announcement of a convention of an all-Negro pro-segregation movement; the meeting was slated to be held in Dutchtown, Louisiana, August 6-11. Prominently featured were photographs and biographical sketches of several Negro clergymen. Recent reports indicate that the opening day of this "convention" brought out an attendance of five. Leader of the group appears to be Archbishop C.C. Addison of New York, who describes himself as head of the African Universal Church and Commercial League Corporation and the African Stock Exchange Association Development Corporation . . . . The Citizens' Council, national publication of the WCC movement, plugged a "Freedom Fund" to support the defense of the 16 charged with contempt at Clinton, Tenn. These 16 of course included Kasper. Kasper's own solicitation for funds for the appeal from his first conviction made much of the fact that the Hon. Charles C. Simon, one of the judges of the Circuit Court which heard the appeal and upheld the conviction, is a member of the American Jewish Committee . . . . General George Van Horn Moseley (ret.) interviewed by The Virginian, declares that the United States needs a new party. He specifies: "I recommend strongly that all those good loyal Americans be gathered into a Revolutionary Party. It could sweep the nation. Under such a party, suffrage could be withdrawn from certain classes. The unfit could be sterilized and not permitted to breed. Our frontiers could be closed definitely except for certain selected Nordics."

THE HARDY PERENNIALS OF HATRED

Despite considerable change in the number and character of anti-Semitic propagandists in the United States over the past 25 years, there is still an old guard of active figures whose names have been associated with the movement since its very start.

George Deatherage -- Prominent in the 1930's as head of the long-defunct American Nationalist Confederation, which attempted to effect a fusion of hate groups throughout the country. He also led the Knights of the White Camellia, which he described as an elite inner circle of the Ku Klux Klan. He has recently served as research specialist for Upton Close and Don Bell, both active in Florida as publishers of anti-Semitic literature.

Elizabeth Dilling -- Since the early '30's, she has been making free-swinging charges of communism and harping on the "Jewish conspiracy." Now in her sixties, she still publishes her newsletter from Chicago; writes for other anti-Semitic publications, including Common Sense; is considered a drawing card at meetings of Conde McGinley's Christian Education Association in New Jersey when she comes to town. The August 1957 issue of the Dilling newsletter was almost exclusively devoted to vicious attacks against the American Jewish Committee.

Joseph Kamp -- One of the most prolific pamphleteers, he first made a name for himself with anti-labor tracts in the '30's. An early pamphlet, Join the CIO and Help Build a Soviet America, was recommended by the Nazi propaganda organ, World Service. In 1952, before the Republican convention, Kamp's periodical, Headlines, ran a series of articles on "What's Behind 'We Want Ike'." Kamp's answer: "Communists and Jews." Still going strong, Kamp recently published Behind the Plot to Sovietize the South, a pamphlet being given wide Southern distribution.

General George Van Horn Moseley (ret.) -- His early activities are summed up in the House Un-American Activities Committee's Preliminary Report on Neo-Fascist and Hate Groups, published in 1954: "The Special Committee on Un-American Activities reported in 1940 that General Moseley was being seriously considered as a national leader of an attempted union of Fascist and hate groups in the United States until the plans were exposed and Moseley was called as a witness before the committee." Moseley for a time served as consultant to the late millionaire hate-pamphleteer, George W. Armstrong of Fort Worth, Texas. Currently he acts as dean and advisor of anti-Semites, operating from his home in Atlanta, Georgia. A recent leaflet by Moseley, Give Us Barabbas, charges Jews with "being the instigators and leaders of world communism." This tract was reprinted by at least three anti-Semitic periodicals.

Gerald L.K. Smith -- Since his early association in the 1930's with William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Fascist Silver Shirt storm troops, he has consistently attracted attention as the most dynamic of the rabblerousers, latching on to such national figures as Huey Long. In recent years, his prestige has been enhanced by association with such personalities as former California State Senator Jack B. Tenney, who was vice-presidential nominee of Smith's Christian Nationalist party; and Admiral John G. Crommelin (ret.), who recently shared the platform at some of Smith's "rallies" in the Los Angeles area. Smith's monthly paper, The Cross and the Flag, is generally regarded as the best barometer of changes in the anti-Semitic line. His frequent meetings are still the leading "crackpot" events on the West Coast.

Gerald Winrod -- Originally anti-Catholic, he took up anti-Semitism in 1935 after a visit to Germany. His major publication, The Defender, has maintained a circulation in excess of 100,000 for many years. During the 1952 Presidential campaign, a Winrod article smearing Eisenhower as the choice of "the international Jewish banking fraternity" was circulated by the thousands. Still publishing in Wichita, Kansas, Winrod currently is adding a heavy overlay of Arab propaganda to his usual stock of anti-Semitic diatribes.

This is a sampling of the figures who form, within the anti-Semitic movement, the hard core of diehards. The oldtimers' constancy and activity supply inspiration to the movement as a whole. Their venom and industriousness undimmed by age and the passage of time, they are still prolific propagandists, quick to exploit every new avenue. By their example and their aid, moreover, they educate and guide the younger fanatics.

A CULT WITH OVERTONES OF ANTI-SEMITISM

Public attention was first drawn to a cult known as the British Israel, or the Anglo-Saxon movement back in the early '30's. Howard B. Rand, a minister and lawyer, and Clarence S. Warner, a publicity man, were promoting the formation of many Anglo-Saxon groups across the country. The anti-Jewishness of the movement was rooted in the premise that Anglo-Saxons and Celts -- not the Jews -- are the true Israelites of the Bible, destined to rule the world.

Today -- a quarter of a century later -- there exist many loosely connected groups of this Anglo-Saxon persuasion. Rand heads the major group, The Anglo-Saxon Federation, and is generally regarded as leader of the cult. The Federation publishes Destiny, an expensive-looking, carefully edited magazine. Destiny's contents include complex prophecies, editorial comments on world news and other material setting forth the movement's viewpoint. An excerpt from the July 1957 issue illustrates a typical concern of Destiny:

> To the majority of people uninitiated into the complications of the Arab-Jewish conflict, there may at first sight seem to be something inconsequential about Arab nations expressing fear at the ambitions of an infant entity such as the nine-year-old Israeli state. But behind the Jewish state looms the international financial power of World Jewry. This power is feared by the Arabs more than the power of the Third International in Moscow . . . .

Other groups within this movement include the following:

The United Israel Fellowship --

Leader of this group, with headquarters in Dallas, Texas, is the Rev. James A. Lovell. An ardent Gerald L.K. Smith supporter, Lovell issues the monthly Kingdom Digest, a publication blending personal observations on current events and expositions of Anglo-Saxon doctrine.

Lovell's recommended reading list includes the anti-Semitic works of Smith, the late George W. Armstrong, John O. Beaty, Marilyn Allen, Kenneth Goff, Jack Tenney and Eustace Mullins. Frequently found in Kingdom Digest are such blatantly bigoted passages as the following, which appeared in the February 1957 number:

> A very famous wartime hero has joined the growing list of prominent military men who have, within recent months, taken an outspoken stand on the racial question. He is Rear Admiral John Crommelin, who last month, made the headlines in dozens of Jewish newspapers when he lashed out at organized Jewry as the real instigators of the bitter racial strife now sweeping the South . . . . These facts from the Christian Nationalist reminded us of statements we have been making for many years . . . .

The Anglo-Saxon Christian Congregation -- This West Coast contingent is headed by the Rev. Wesley T. Swift. He often graces the platform at Gerald L.K. Smith rallies, occasionally serving as chairman, and further serves Smith by providing "research material" and helping bolster attendance at Christian Nationalist Crusade meetings. Another supporter of the Smith-Swift axis is the Rev. Max A. X. Clark, publisher of the National Christian Quarterly.

Not all the groups in this movement are anti-Jewish. But the examples cited prove how easily the Anglo-Saxon philosophy bends to bigotry.

LITTLE ROCK CRISIS PRODUCES INTENSIFIED SMEARS AGAINST JEWS

The events which shook the nation this fall when desegregated schools opened in Nashville, Tennessee and Little Rock, Arkansas, are now serving as rallying points for a series of fierce attacks directed by the bigot press against President Eisenhower as "Jewry's little errand boy in Washington." Lining up with the extreme segregationists and racists, hatemongers are handling the current issue with characteristic vigor and singlemindedness:

Frank L. Britton, whose one-sheet flyers have been extensively circulated by white supremacists, rushes into print with a fund-raising appeal in the form of a printed letter to "Dear Friend and Patriot." The letter scores Eisenhower for proving "time and again throughout his career that he has about as much honor as a main street barfly":

> He proved it when he turned the operation of his Cabinet over to the Russian-Jew, Max Rabb. . . He proved it best of all when he ordered Federal troops into Arkansas to compel integration only a few weeks after he had sanctimoniously declared. . . that he "could not imagine" a situation which would require the use of troops for that purpose!

James Madole, neo-Nazi propagandist, for the first time shelves his customary pro-Arab, pro-Hitler line in favor of a full-scale blast against the President. In the August-September issue (released in October) of his National Renaissance Bulletin, prepared exclusively for the Southern "trade," Madole warns:

> . . . above all, Eisenhower and his Jewish mentors should never forget that American freedom was born in the blood and fire of revolution against tyrannical laws.

Conde McGinley, in Common Sense, October 15, views recent events as evidence of a Jewish conspiracy to control enforcement of civil rights laws. Special feature was the text of a telegram which McGinley alleges was sent by Admiral John G. Crommelin to President Eisenhower:

> . . . I feel it is my duty to inform you immediately that in employing federal troops to attempt to enforce integration, you are considered by many informed Southerners to be a tool of the Communist-Jewish conspiracy.

Gerald L. K. Smith, in a special October letter on "Surpeme Court Tyranny and the Rule of the Bayonet," calls for the impeachment of Chief Justice Warren and Justice Frankfurter:

> The right of Self-government has been taken away from a sovereign state because of an erroneous decision made by the Supreme Court of the United States under pressure from the Jew-financed National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the underground Communist organization, the sappy sentimentalists, and the ruthless demagogues. Satanic forces are determined that the white race shall be destroyed by mongrelization and by the enthronement of manipulated minorities.

Robert H. Williams, one of the most vituperative critics of the President over the years, wastes no time in launching another bitter attack on Mr. Eisenhower. His October Williams Intelligence Summary is headed "Child-President Rips Constitution; Southerners Missing Golden Opportunity to Educate the Nation." The lead article begins:

> Once more the carpetbaggers are burning the South. The Warren-Frankfurter Supreme Court opened the gates of the white schools and the Jewish revolutionaries, already organized and waiting, began shooing confused Negro children in through the gates . . .

These early samples show the clear pattern of bigot reaction: an opportunistic latching on to the Southern tensions in the hope of stirring up mass opposition to the President, the Administration and the Supreme Court.

MYSTERIOUS "RUSSIAN" HARD AT WORK WITH U.S. ANTI-SEMITES

Hate propagandist Alex Jefimow (or Efimov), who describes himself as either a Russian or Ukrainian refugee from Soviet persecution, specializes in one-page leaflets printed in Russian or English, sometimes illustrated with a vicious, Streicher-like cartoon. Jefimow, who assists Conde McGinley and serves as an officer of the latter's Christian Education Association, also uses McGinley's mailing address as the point of origin for his literature. Most recent of his publications entitled Government of the Soviet Union, is illustrated by a stereotyped cartoon of a Jew dressed as the Statue of Liberty and holding aloft a hammer and sickle. The text advises the reader that:

> . . . In the Soviet Union there are two distinct governments, one visible and the other invisible. The visible government is composed of Gentile personnel and Jewish personnel, whereas in the invisible government all members are Jewish . . .

IN BRIEF

Frederick John Kasper on October 14 lost an appeal in the Supreme Court from his first conviction for contempt of court which arose out of his activities in Clinton, Tennessee, last fall. By October 18, he began serving a one-year prison term. Kasper has another contempt conviction and faces charges of inciting to riot. . . John W. Hamilton, still at large on an appeal from his conviction on a morals charge, is actively engaged in publishing his anti-Negro White Sentinel in St. Louis. . . Mana Truhill, one-time stormtroop fuehrer of the National Renaissance Party, has settled down in Tucson, Arizona after release from a Canadian jail. . . A recent issue of Banner of Truth, bi-monthly publication of the Dallas Ku Klux Klan, describes the advantages of Klan membership thus: "If you are a Klansman, and you feel you want to enlighten other Klansmen on the Jewish menace, you may do so with the full assurance that there will not be a single Jew in the Klavern to impose upon you" . . . New item in the South is Forward, a leaflet decorated with crudely etched Hebrew characters, purporting to be issued by a non-existent group, United Jewish Brothers; the fraudulent text pretends to "report" on progress in stirring trouble in the South and in dominating the nation . . . Recently expanded into a magazine, The Virginian, Newport News, Virginia, publication, features on its cover a portrait of evangelist Billy Graham captioned "Biggest Phony in America?"; the cover story berates Graham for his complimentary references to Israel, and for betraying "the centuries of racial integrity which produced him." New columnist for The Virginian is Lt. Gen. Pedro A. del Valle (USMC ret.), whose name appears on the masthead. . . Across the border, hatemonger Ron Gostick publishes in Ontario the Canadian Intelligence Service, advertising such American items as Iron Curtain over America, Zion's Fifth Column, Know Your Enemy and Waters Flowing Eastward -- all standard anti-Semitic works.

KASPER COHORTS CARRY ON WHILE LEADER IS IN JAIL

Although Frederick John Kasper had begun serving his time in prison, November nevertheless brought two new flyers produced and distributed by his organization, the Seaboard White Citizens Councils. Both plead for contributions to the John Kasper Legal Attack Fund — to make "the Communist Supreme Court rue the day they ever sent a white leader, John Kasper, to jail." One flyer, illustrated with a crude cartoon, is captioned "Public Enemy Number One — Jewspapers." This diatribe blames Kasper's defeat on the Jews in coarse, emotional prose. The second flyer, — "What is the Supreme Law of the Land?" — puts forth Kasper's legal case in more temperate language. Both wind up with the same urgent appeal: "Don't just stand there. Do something NOW! TODAY! We're still punching at the Seaboard White Citizens Councils. . . Send some money."

Something was done on November 8. Six picketing supporters marched outside the White House carrying placards reading: "Freedom for Reds, Jail for Kasper," "Long Live Faubus," "Does Communist NAACP Control Supreme Court?" and "NAACP is Jewish Communist Controlled."

Evidence of the existence of a New York State unit of the Seaboard Councils still is sparse. However, on October 29,

David Wang, a young actor of Chinese descent, rumored to be one of this group's founders, addressed an audience of 500 at a students' forum at Columbia University. Extolling Kasper, Wang declared that his young mentor sought to provide the races with an opportunity to develop independently of one another. "To those who oppose us, Marxist, usurer, race-mixer, degenerate politican," Wang declaimed, "we pledge eternal vigilance, eternal combativeness, even death."

KEEPING UP WITH CROMMELIN

"Admiral Crommelin has announced his intention of running for Governor of Alabama, to replace James Folsom, whose term expires in '58." Thus reads the text of a letter in the September issue of Women's Voice, organ of the Chicago hate group, We, The Mothers. The letter had purportedly been sent by General George Van Horn Moseley (ret), acknowledged "dean" of U.S. anti-Semites, to key editors of the hate press. In this letter, the General gives the Admiral full support: "We are fortunate in having a leader (Admiral John Crommelin) belonging to a fine old Southern family well known throughout the South, a leader who made an outstanding war record and who, today, is doing fine constructive work as he informs Americans in the frankest possible terms of the plans of the enemy to destroy us."

The Admiral's name turned up again when the November 1 edition of Conde McGinley's fanatic Commen Sense was issued, carrying a legal statement of ownership. In his sworn statement, McGinley named John G. Crommelin, Jr. of Montgomery, Alabama as one of three stockholders of the Christian Educational Association, which in turn is the holding corporation for this hate sheet.

KAMP'S NEW BOOKLET ON LITTLE ROCK IS MORE OF THE SAME

Joseph P. Kamp's latest diatribe, "The Lowdown on Little Rock and the Plot to Sovietize the South," appeared in October. While the first ten pages of this 40-page leaflet are new, the bulk of the material, word for word, is Kamp's two-year old piece, "The Plot to Sovietize the South."

Kamp's new material is for the most part a full-swinging attack upon the President of the United States. He begins his analysis of Little Rock thus:

> Some intemperate Southern leaders have compared Dwight Eisenhower to Adolph Hitler, because the President ordered Federal troops to invade and occupy a part of the sovereign State of Arkansas. They are wrong -- this is not a true parallel. Hitler had the Constitutional right to use Nazi storm troopers in any way he pleased. Mr. Eisenhower has no such right.

The hero of Kamp's piece is Governor Faubus of Arkansas, to whom Kamp refers repeatedly as "Governor Forbus."

MRS. DILLING TRIES TO CRASH A POLITICAL PARTY

Elizabeth Dilling's September newsletter carries a revealing report of her attempts to penetrate the ranks of the ultra-conservative political group, We, The People, during its September convention in Chicago. Along with Mrs. Lyrl Van Hyning, head of the patently anti-Semitic group, We, The Mothers, Mrs. Dilling rented rooms in the same hotel as the convention, using them as "headquarters" for distributing anti-Semitic literature to the delegates. The difficulty encountered by the rightwing group in rebuffing the ladies is best described by Mrs. Dilling herself:

> Over and over again, at the last meeting of We, The People, Mr. Everingham /president of the organization/ had repeated that they must guard their literature tables at the forthcoming convention so that no 'HATE' literature could be placed on them. 'We want NO anti-Jewish HATE literature; we are ONLY fighting SOCIALISM,' he kept saying. . . .
> At this convention I gave the dear worried man no cause for grief. . . . If I mentioned that several people had placed literature in one of the private bedrooms of the hotel - ROOM 458 - well, that was the truth . . . .

SYRIA HAILS THE SPUTNIK -- COULD USE ONE HERSELF

Al Fayha, a newspaper published in Damascus, Syria, on November 4 hailed the Soviet satellites as definite proof that Soviet scientists were superior to Americans and added:

> We wish the statesmen of the criminal imperial states, the leaders of criminal world Jewry and all their traitors, spies and agents were gathered in a cage and put in one of the satellites to receive the punishment which they deserve more than the innocent dog.

NEW VIGILANTE GROUPS STARTS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Operating from headquarters in Reno, Nevada, a newly formed national organization, Vigilance, Inc., has launched an ambitious effort to win membership. The embryo group publishes a weekly newspaper, The Vigilant Reporter, and sponsors a regular radio program, "The Voice of Vigilance," carried by Station KOH in Reno.

Members are being wooed with promises of insignia of proved appeal. A story in the September 12 issue of The Vigilant Reporter illustrates this well-worn but effective campaigning technique:

> . . . . The Chief also stated that all members are mailed a membership card. The annual male members receive also a distinctive lapel insignia; the ladies receive a pin. Those members gaining higher ranks are distinguished by appropriate insignia. . . .

The September 12 issue stresses the right to keep firearms and complains in this connection that "the One Worlders, commies, Zionists, etc., just never give up."

GERALD L. K. SMITH HIS ANTI-SEMITISM IS A GOING BUSINESS

Perhaps the most widely recognized anti-Semite in the United States is Gerald L. K. Smith, whose name has been identified with bigot activities since 1933. After cutting his teeth with Huey Long, Smith perfected a technique which was to prove remarkably profitable. His last report to the Clerk of the House of Representatives, showing the receipts of his Christian Nationalist Crusade for 1956, revealed a gross income of almost $174,000.

What is it that brings in such fat rewards? Smith issues a regular magazine, The Cross and the Flag, which sells for $2.00 a year ($3.00 if the subscriber wants it mailed in a plain envelope). Perhaps even more remunerative are the frantic letters appealing for funds frequently mailed to extensive lists. Meetings and rallies in Smith's home area, California and side trips throughout the country reinforce these mail appeals.

Recently Smith's sales have been further boosted by strong support from allies in the anti-Semitic movement. For instance, a letter is currently in the mails from Professor John O. Beaty, recently retired head of Southern Methodist University's English Department. Beaty, author of the bigoted Iron Curtain over America, urges in this widely circulated letter that Christmas be celebrated in a religious manner, and suggests appropriate gifts for the Yuletide season:

> My other gifts are mostly books and periodicals which are for rather than against Christianity and the decencies of our American Christian civilization. The Cross and the Flag is such a periodical. . . .

Smith's pitch is always the same. Portraying himself as perpetually hounded and "crucified" by Jews and Communists, the master bigot offers to serve as a willing sacrifice for the salvation of America. Predicting impending doom and even imminent seizure of power by "evil forces," he concludes that only contributions to his "Crusade" can avert national catastrophe. A former supporter, Jonathan E. Perkins, analyzes the sameness of Smith's line as follows:

> When you hear him once, you have heard him open all of his best cans, and when you hear him the second time, you become bothered by the flies of constant repetition. . . .

But the monotonous harangue pays off, perhaps because of Smith's inventiveness in aiming it at so many different audiences. Encouraged by the approval of Beaty and others, such as retired Admiral John G. Crommelin and retired General George Van Horn Moseley, he has been emboldened to resume his practice of holding meetings outside of California. The most recent of these, held in Dallas on December 4, was billed grandiosely as The Congress of Christian Patriots.

This name is the newest of more than 40 "fronts" Smith has used for his propaganda and fund-raising activities over the past 25 years. The following list is the fullest compilation available.

DO-IT-YOURSELF KLANSMAN AIMS HIS SHOTS ABROAD

The Aryan Knights of the Ku Klux Klan is a one-man organization. In Waco, Texas, Horace Sherman Miller, a retired railroad worker and semi-invalid, compiles mailing lists and sends out vituperative anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic literature under the letterhead of his "Klan." His leaflets have had curious repercussions in widely scattered parts of the world.

Rumors of a Klan movement in England last May, for example, were eventually traced to pranksters distributing Miller's leaflets in areas where there had been an influx of West Indian Negroes. The British Government and its Consul General in New York deemed it necessary to deny the existence of the Klan in Great Britain. In October, Miller sent letters in Spanish to Argentina, advising that the "Grand Dragon of Argentina" had declared "war" on the Jews. In the United States, only one Klan unit -- Birmingham, Alabama -- adopted Miller's literature for its own use, the rest apparently preferring the propaganda supplied them by non-Southern, anti-Semitic publishers.

IN BRIEF

Recently off the press are thousands of new copies of The Protocols; this old anti-Semitic propaganda staple still sells well for such hucksters as Lyrl Van Hyning, Conde McGinley and Gerald L. K. Smith. . . . Mosley Youth, a newly formed British group aimed at youngsters 15-21, is "dedicated to Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of The Union Now Movement." For many years leader of this Fascist movement in England, Mosley was interned during World War II and his organization disbanded. . . Frederick John Kasper took a book along when he went to jail on November 21 -- Adolf Hitler's Mein Kampf. . . . The Reverand J. A. Lovell, in the November issue of his magazine, reprints a "sermon" he delivered to a "large audience"

-- Capital Citizens Council of Little Rock, Arkansas. Title of the talk was "Must America Sell Her Birthright to Appease the Zionists and Internationalists?" In it Lovell attacked desegregation, placing the blame on the United Nations, UNESCO, the U.S. Supreme Court, the Red Cross and the Jews. He warns, "It is good to know our enemy! Our enemy is the same enemy that Jesus faced."

APPRAISAL OF 1957

Organized anti-Semitic activity showed no appreciable rise or fall during 1957. There was a change in emphasis, however. Since 1954, anti-Semites had been using three major national concerns as vehicles for their attacks: domestic politics, the Arab-Israel conflict and tensions in the South over desegregation. But this past year, the main effort was focused with great intensity upon the South. Virtually every active bigot added his oil to the fires of anti-Negro propaganda inflaming the South; patently anti-Semitic literature was to be found in quantity in every Southern troublespot.

Yet old themes, too, continued to occupy the bigots' attention. In politics they played, as they have for years, on the ultra-conservatives' economic antipathies to both major parties. The Arab-Israel conflict still afforded many opportunities for bigots to impugn the loyalty of American Jews. And other targets included, as in previous years, the United Nations, NATO, the income tax, labor legislation, mental health projects, fluoridation of drinking water. Dominating all these attacks were two interlocking canards -- that Jews are Communists, and that Jews are engineers of a "conspiracy to rule the world."

SOUTHERN TENSIONS CREATE NEW AUDIENCE FOR HATE PROPAGANDA

Throughout Southern and border states -- particularly in those areas where the resentment of white-supremacists was likely to flare into outright disorder -- bigoted pamphlets, leaflets and fliers were on hand in abundance, charging that Jews were responsible for a "conspiracy to mongrelize the nation" in pursuance of Communist aims. This slanderous propaganda charged, first, that the NAACP was the creation and tool of the Jews; second, that the U.S. Supreme Court desegregation decision had been "ordered" by "the Jews."

Published principally in such non-Southern states as California, New Jersey and Missouri, bulk quantities of these racist screeds flooded Alabama, the Carolinas, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas; by fall, when desegregation troubles began in Arkansas and Tennessee, they appeared there too. Among the principal agitators supplying this material were: Frank L. Britton (Inglewood, Calif.), Conde McGinley (Union, N.J.), John W. Hamilton (St. Louis, Mo.), and Gerald L. K. Smith (Glendale, Calif.). Wide distribution was accomplished principally by selling wholesale orders to contacts within the "white supremacy" movements and the Ku Klux Klan. Both of these continued to flourish in the South during 1957.

White Citizens Councils

The White Citizens Council movement maintained during the past year about the same strength it had mustered in 1956 -- an estimated 300,000 membership. Peak activity took place in six states, in the following order of strength: Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, the Carolinas and Arkansas. The virulence of WCC units varied; some denounced violence and sought to preserve segregation "by all legal means," while at the other extreme, some were virtually indistinguishable from their Klan counterparts.

By far the most notorious WCC leader of the year was Frederick John Kasper. Although 1957 saw this young rabble-rouser out of favor with some of his Klan following because of his past social relations with Negroes, he did nevertheless muster a sizeable following of Southern fanatics. By the end of the year Kasper was in jail, starting to serve a one-year prison sentence for his activities in connection with the Clinton, Tenn., disturbances of 1956; nevertheless, he was agitating Tennesseans in September in Nashville and other localities. He is up for further charges in connection with Nashville's school-opening outburst.

Less prominent WCC members also were active in desegregation outbreaks. In Greensboro, S.C., it was an official of the local WCC who egged on high school students to demonstrate against the admission of a single Negro student. WCC members from Little Rock, Ark., and surrounding towns were distributing large quantities of imported hate literature during the serious crisis which attended their high school integration.

A few Council units issued their own bulletins. Knoxville on Guard, publication of the Tennessee and Knoxville White Citizens Councils, appears periodically, often carrying an advertisement for the infamous anti-Semitic forgery, The Protocols. The Strong (Ark.) Citizens Council was circulating in September a leaflet it had produced, containing the complaint that "The Marxist-Jew-Commy-NAACP-Urban League brain-wash tells you that Citizens Councils are trash-rabble. . ."

Despite such blatantly violent and bigoted incidents during the year, extreme white supremacy groups in general appear to be tolerated, if not accepted, as part of the local scene in many Southern cities and towns, gaining in membership and prestige during tense periods and declining during relatively calm times.

Ku Klux Klans

The Ku Klux Klan in 1957 was increasingly active, and membership rose to an estimated 100,000. The various Klans still remain loosely organized, despite the claims of national leadership by Imperial Wizard Eldon L. Edwards of Atlanta, Ga., and various Grand Dragons elsewhere in the South. Edwards' group -- U.S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan -- split in June over the marriage of Grand Dragon Alvin Horn to a 15-year-old girl; the splinter group reorganized as the Alabama Ku Klux Klan, Inc. Other Klan groups prominent during the year include: the Association of South Carolina Klans, headed by Grand Dragon Robert E. Hodges of Columbia, S.C., the Association of Florida Klans, led by Grand Dragon Bill Hendrix; the Gulf Klans Association, presided over by Elmo C. Barnard, a Mobile, Ala., gunsmith; the Original Klans of the Confederacy in Birmingham, Ala., a unit headed by Asa Carter.

Throughout the South, Klan rallies, motorcades and marches in full regalia attracted audiences numbering from the hundreds to well into the thousands. In Florida, Frederick John Kasper -- whose speeches were more anti-Semitic than anti-Negro -- proved a powerful drawing card. Elsehwere, hatred was directed, in varying combinations, against Negroes, Catholics and Jews. Klonvocations were invariably complemented by the distribution of hate literature.

Violent actions sparked by Klanism were too frequent to list in this brief review; a few selected examples illustrate the kind of terrorism practiced. Koinonia, an interracial farm colony in Americus, Ga., was the scene of Klan bombings, shootings and cross-burnings throughout the year. In Birmingham, Ala., two Klansmen received 20-year sentences for the mutilation of a Negro, victimized solely to prove a Klansman eligible for promotion in the order. In Monroe, S.C., an armed Klan motorcade invaded the Negro section. Throughout the South, cross-burnings on the lawns of Negro homes and churches were frequent. Nor were they confined to Negroes, or to the deep South. A cross flared in front of the Executive Mansion of Governor Theodore McKeldin of Maryland. As far north as Pennsylvania, fiery crosses flared on the lawns of neighbors of the first Negro family to buy a home in Levittown, Pa.

POLITICAL THRUSTS PERSIST

Although would-be politicians among hatemongers had little impact on the voting public during 1957, they kept trying to win political positions or, at the very least, to influence the far right and pro-segregationists as the power behind the throne.

For example, Admiral John G. Crommelin, Jr., (retired), a prominent and ubiquitous anti-Semite, announced his intention of running for the Alabama governorship in 1958, even though he was defeated in 1956 in his primary battle for Senator Lister Hill's seat.

The Congress of Freedom, an amalgam of rightist groups, held its annual convention in Biloxi, Miss., in April, officially eschewing the efforts of anti-Semites to infiltrate its ranks. A bigoted publisher complained afterward that the "three-letter word" was not used by the speakers, although "in unscheduled talks in unannounced spots, truth-seekers listened to such 'marked' men as Admiral Crommelin, Conde McGinley, Elizabeth Dilling..."

The political arm of the Congress of Freedom -- the Constitution Party -- convened in June under its newly appointed national chairman, Russell Maguire, a New York industrialist and publisher of the American Mercury. Maguire and another speaker, retired Marine General Pedro A. del Valle, denounced "international bankers" for having planned both world wars and for plotting "to destroy the United States and Christianity." At this outspoken conclave, Conde McGinley's hate literature was widely distributed.

EXPLOITING NEAR EAST TENSIONS

Despite the increasingly obvious involvement of Arab nations with the Soviet Union and its satellites, the bigots continued, along with Arab propagandists, to step up expressions of their slanderous view of the Mideast crisis. Completely overlooking Communist machinations in this troubled area, U.S. anti-Semites repeated the charge that there was a "Jewish-Zionist-Communist conspiracy to embroil the major powers in the Middle East, thereby starting a third World War."

Bigots worked more closely with official Arab propagandists during the past year, advertising their more anti-Jewish wares in hate publications, featuring articles by Arab officials in their newspapers and magazines.

A REVIEW OF THE LITERATURE

Since 1947, propaganda literature has been the chief weapon of U.S. bigots. In terms of distribution, 1957 was the biggest year yet -- largely because of the expanding Southern market for racist reading matter. The most popular, newer products of the hate press were pungent leaflets dealing crudely with desegregation -- tailor-made for popularity below the Mason-Dixon line.

Among the most widely distributed items of the year are the following: Frank L. Britton's single-sheet leaflets; The Coming Red Dictatorship, a large broadside issued by Conde McGinley; and the periodical, Common Sense, from the same source; Gerald L. K. Smith's "letters," and his magazine, The Cross and the Flag; and Joseph P. Kamp's pamphlets: Behind the Plot to Sovietize the South: Trickery, Treachery, Tyranny and Treason in Washington; and The Lowdown on Little Rock and the Plot to Sovietize the South.

TRIO OF BIGOTS STAGE MEETING IN LOUISVILLE

Three of the South's most extreme racists were the moving spirits behind an "Ultimatum Conference of Loyal Americans," held on February 1 in Louisville, Ky., at the Henry Clay Hotel. The meeting was sponsored by a defunct periodical, The American Eagle, of which Millard D. Grubbs of Louisville was editor. Featured speakers were Rev. James W. Cole, South Carolina Ku Klux Klan leader indicted for inciting to riot in connection with the abortive KKK rally at Maxton, N.C. on January 18 aimed at the Lumbee Indians; and Adm. John G. Crommelin, well-known Alabaman who has been openly bigoted since his retirement from the Navy in 1950. Reporters were barred from the meeting by guards wearing armbands with a large "W" (presumably for "White"). The background which each of the triumvirate brought to this "Conference" is a matter of record, and a good indication of the character of the rally.

Millard D. Grubbs, the self-styled "editor" of the sponsoring publication, is chairman of the White Citizens Council of Kentucky, Inc., and an officer of the Christian Sentinels of Kentucky, Inc. As for his "periodical," The American Eagle, several issues did appear back in 1953, containing such articles as "The Invisible Government: A Policy of Rule and Ruin," which blamed every conceivable evil on "Jewish bankers." Regular publication ceased, however, in 1953. Since then, Grubbs has simply used The American Eagle name and masthead as a convenient label for the anti-Semitic materials he brings out from time to time.

During 1955, for instance, Grubbs sent out a 14-page reprint of The Philip Dru Case under The American Eagle aegis. Originally a fictionalized political essay depicting the rise of a dictator in the U.S., Philip Dru: Administrator was written anonymously in 1912 by the late Col. E. M. House, later to become Woodrow Wilson's chief advisor. It caused little flurry at the time of publication. In the 1930's, however, Philip Dru became a staple of Nazi propaganda. The pro-Hitler group "interpreted" the book as an updated version of the forged Protocols -- a new blueprint of a Jewish conspiracy to capture and control the U.S.

Rev. James W. Cole, a featured speaker at the Louisville meeting, won his first national -- if ignoble -- prominence after a mid-January KKK rally in Maxton, N.C. Despite the complete rout of Cole's Klansmen by the Lumbee Indians and the local authorities, he was invited, within weeks, to appear on the platform with Grubbs and Crommelin.

A preacher from Marion, S.C., Cole has some following, won by conducting tent meetings for several years.

At a rally of the KKK about a year ago, Cole proclaimed himself Grand Wizard of the KKK of the Carolinas. Klan rallies in Cole's county have been characterized by night-riding; his followers habitually drive through towns in satin robes and peaked hats, jeering at Negroes.

Adm. John G. Crommelin, another Louisville guest speaker, has become one of organized anti-Semitism's most outspoken and prominent advocates. His career as a bigot began shortly after his 1950 retirement from the Navy -- amid considerable official concern over charges that he had been releasing restricted information pertaining to inter-service rivalry. Currently a candidate for Governor of Alabama, the ubiquitous Admiral has been linked with known anti-Semites from coast to coast:

-- The November 1, 1957, issue of Conde McGinley's Common Sense, published in Union, N.J., names John G. Crommelin of Montgomery, Ala., in a sworn statement, as a stockholder of that hate sheet's ownership corporation, the Christian Educational Association. McGinley's blatantly anti-Semitic bi-monthly is the most far-reaching voice of U.S. bigots today.

-- Crommelin appeared as a character witness for Frederick John Kasper at the young rabblerouser's 1956 trial for fomenting racial disturbances in Clinton, Tenn. Testifying that he had found Kasper a "dedicated and peaceful young man," the Admiral told reporters that Kasper had helped him during his own 1956 primary race for a Senate seat.

-- During 1957, Crommelin spoke under the auspices of West Coast hatemonger Gerald L.K. Smith, in Los Angeles, Cal., and in Dallas, Tex. His topic was "The Hidden Force," which he identified as the Jews. Crommelin addressed the White Citizens Council in Clinton, Tenn., and the D.A.R. in Pensacola, Fla., on the same subject.

SOUTH AFRICAN RACISTS QUOTE U.S. HATEMONGERS

Echoes of bigoted U.S. opinion on integration have turned up in distant South Africa, in the pages of The South African Observer, a monthly magazine published in Cape Town by C.E.D. Brown. One recent issue carries an article by the California racist propagandist, Frank L. Britton, reprinted in full from Britton's American Nationalist. Another recent issue includes an article, "More Light on U.S. Civil Rights Bill," setting forth the views of Merwin K. Hart, as expressed in his bigoted Economic Council Letter. This reprinted diatribe attacks the American Jewish Committee along with many other U.S. organizations. An additional source of information for Brown's South African journal is the Citizens Councils of Jackson, Miss.

Original articles likewise reflect the U.S. bigots' line of reasoning. Here is a sample written by publisher Brown and entitled, "What South Africa Can Learn from the Southern /U.S./ States":

> The fundamental lesson for us to learn from what is happening in the United States today is the one Americans are learning to their cost, namely, that a very close nexus exists between Communism and the Integration Movement in their country.
> Patriotic Americans are also learning that the exploitation of the Integration Movement in their country is the Communist tactic being used to edge America into a "racial collectivism" which, in turn, is only a short step to communization.

IN BRIEF

The Seaboard White Citizens Council's newest one-sheet flier asks: "Why is John Kasper in jail?" Its answer: Because "he exposed the Jewish-Communist conspiracy behind racial integration."

This crude appeal for funds and sympathy ends with the sinister suggestion that "Communist-Jews know many ways to eliminate the patriots who oppose their conspiracy. WILL KASPER BE NEXT? We are keeping a watchful eye on his health." . . . . Common Sense (Jan. 15) reprints an entire recent issue of Merwin K. Hart's Economic Council Letter, scoring Zionists for world developments dating back to the Versailles Treaty. Hart's view -- obviously seconded by publisher Conde McGinley -- is that "world-wide Zionists, a political and not a religious group, have developed an organization whose interests are often totally alien to those of the U.S." . . . . The same issue of Common Sense resurrects Father Coughlin by re-printing an article from Social Justice, Feb. 12, 1940. Entitled "Abe Lincoln and the Rothschilds," this diatribe accuses Judah Benjamin of being an agent for the Rothschilds and the "brains" of the revolt. . . . Gerald L.K. Smith, in the January issue of The Cross and the Flag, reports an interview with a young Egyptian journalist, Ibrahim Baghdady, who convinced him easily that Egypt is not only "not Communist, but . . . anti-Communist." Smith emphasizes that "Mr. Baghdady insists that the Arab world is afraid of one monster; namely, Jewish aggression, Israeli invasion, Jewish imperial control." . . . . Dewey M. Taft, inactive since 1952, is back at the old stand, trying to revive his "Crusade for America" and plugging sales of Joseph M. Kamp's bigoted pamphlet, The Lowdown on Little Rock and the Plot to Sovietize the South. In his first newsletter, dated New Year's Day 1958, Taft promises he will "endeavor to distribute 100,000 copies this year and a million copies next year." He also announces resuming publication of his periodical, American Digest . . . . James H. Madole assaults the Catholic Church in a recent issue of his National Renaissance Bulletin, attacking it for its stand against racial segregation and ridiculing some of its religious doctrines as "idiocy" or "gibberish." . . . . The United White Party, formed by delegates of 20 patriotic organizations representing 15 states at a Knoxville, Tenn., meeting in November, proposes to "openly endorse the candidate who is closest to our Racial Purity Principles." It also expresses concern about "the alien minority in our midst" who "control the National Democratic and Republican Parties by manipulation of the large key blocs of delegates from States such as New York, Calif., Ill., Penna., etc." . . . . Ned Harman, St. Petersburg, Fla. hate propagandist, is circulating a new pamphlet which he calls Communist Red-Idolatry; or, Judaism Exposed! Harman's conclusion: "WE MUST UNITE IN GREAT FORCE, and demand of our lawful representatives in legislatures of States, and in Congress, that a thorough investigation be made of this diabolical so-called religion, JUDAISM . . ."

ARAB LEAGUE INTENSIFIES ITS ECONOMIC BOYCOTT AGAINST ISRAEL

"The Truth About the Arab Boycott," lead article in the February 5 issue of Arab News and Views, shows the determination of the Arab League to continue pressing its economic restrictions against Israel. This official story describes in specific terms the code of the boycott restrictions in force eight years against firms doing business with Israel. Heretofore, details of the proscriptions had merely trickled down, piecemeal. Following are portions of this story, published by the Arab Information Center in New York:

> Why Was the Boycott Created? - In May 1951, the Council of the League of Arab States adopted a resolution calling for the establishment of economic boycott offices in all of the Arab States. These offices were created in order to enforce a defensive boycott against Israel . . .
> What Are the Provisions of the Boycott? Since the purpose of the Arab boycott is to limit the economic power of an aggressor state, the boycott's provisions apply to any acts of trade or commerce with Israel. The Arab countries refuse to do business with any firms, regardless of national or religious affiliations, which engage in the following practices:

1. Firms which have branch factories in Israel.

2. Firms which have assembly plants in Israel, or firms whose agents assemble their products in Israel.

3. Firms which have agencies or main offices in Israel for their Middle Eastern operations.

4. Firms which give patents, trade marks, copy-rights, etc., to Israeli companies.

5. Firms (and private or public organizations) which purchase shares in Israeli companies or factories.

6. Technical or consultant firms which offer their services to Israel.

7. Shipping firms which permit their vessels to call on an Israeli port and an Arab port in the same round trip; oil tankers which convey oil to Israel; ships which transport goods of war potential to Israel, and ships which are chartered to Israel.

8. Airplanes which fly to Israel. (These planes may not fly in air space over Arab territory.)

To Whom Does the Boycott Apply? Any firm or individual which engages in one of the above practices is automatically placed on the Arab blacklist, and thus prevented from doing business with any of the Arab States. However, if a firm has unwittingly breached the boycott regulations, it is offered the choice of closing down the prohibited operation with Israel or being placed on the blacklist.

The regulations of the boycott are applied, without exception, to all firms, organizations and individuals wishing to do business in the Arab countries.

TOP ANTI-SEMITE IN THE RACE FOR GOVERNOR OF ALABAMA

In his campaign for the governorship of Alabama, retired Admiral John G. Crommelin of Wetumpka, Ala., pulls no punches and makes his prejudices plain for all to see. His "political program," targeted against Jews and against desegregation, includes two planks of blatantly bigoted composition:

1. All available facilities shall be utilized to inform Alabama Citizens of the origin, nature, and purposes and aims of the Communist-Jewish Conspiracy now bent on the destruction of the White Race and White Christian Civilization through economic strangulation, fratricidal wars, mongrelization and political slavery . . . .

2. Freeing of the press from the Communist-Jewish news "quarantine" shall be accomplished in Alabama to insure an honest, fair and truthful presentation of news, forever destroying the concept that freedom of the press includes the freedom to fabricate, distort, or conceal news to serve Communist-Jewish aspirations of world domination.

Crommelin's career as an outspoken bigot is relatively new. He first identified himself with U.S. anti-Semites in 1956, when he publicly endorsed Iron Curtain Over America, an insidious diatribe against the Jews by Professor John O. Beaty of Southern Methodist University. The views of Beaty, now retired from academic life, have been denounced by reputable Christians of all shades of economic and political belief. At present the book is being distributed by hatemonger Gerald L.K. Smith.

In the 1956 primaries, when Crommelin unsuccessfully opposed Senator Lister Hill, the Admiral's anti-Negro bias emerged forcefully. He accepted the support of the anti-Semitic White Citizens Council of Northern Alabama and Klan leader Asa (Ace)Carter, addressing this group on March 10, 1956. (For more information on Crommelin's life, see FYI No. 2, February 1958.)

IN BRIEF

After more than seven active years of hatemongering in Boston, Father Leonard J. Feeney and his group of 60-odd fanatic followers have moved to the Still River area near Ayer, Mass., giving up their Sunday marches to the Common to preach hatred. They will continue, however, to publish their monthly bulletin, The Point. . . . An advertisement in the February issue of The Revere, published by the Christian Patriots Crusade in Hinsdale, Ill., offers, as a "Collectors' Item," a $50 picture album of select shots of Hitler. A blurb that could tantalize only fans of the fuehrer says, in part: "The great majority of the photos were taken by the renowned Henrich Hoffmann, Hitler's personal photographer, and about 85% of them are pictures of Chancellor Hitler . . . at work, traveling, speaking, etc." . . . . A new item from the presses of Conde McGinley's Christian Educational Association in Union, N.J.: "Excerpts from the International Jew" by Henry Ford, Sr., a rehash of the forged Protocols of the Elders of Zion. Repudiated by Henry Ford, Sr. during his lifetime, this discredited item has been disavowed time and again by the Ford family and organization ever since . . . . The Citizens' Council, official paper of the Citizens' Councils of America, in February went off on a new tangent, taking the U.S. Government to task for dealing with Saudi Arabia, "where slavery in its most vicious forms still flourishes." Detailed descriptions of slavery practices in Saudi Arabia were coupled with the paper's outrage at President Eisenhower's use of Federal troops in Little Rock, Ark. . . . Mimeographed diatribes against Jews by D. W. de Louth of Queensland, Australia, are turning up in the United States. In a recently arrived bulletin, de Louth warns: "Beware of publications issued by the U.S. Health Department. They are drafted by Jews and Jewish influence. Therefore those publications are treacherous." The accompanying article touts the Hoxsey cancer treatment . . . . And from Istanbul, Turkey, comes The Islamic United Nations, a crudely printed English-language hate sheet distributed here by the Neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party. The January issue includes an article, "Exposing the Red Dictatorship," by Alexey Jefimcw, an aide of Conde McGinley.

MERWIN K. HART STEPS UP BIGOTRY

A recent issue of the Economic Council Letter displays Merwin K. Hart's racism at its shrillest pitch in years. The entire March 15 issue consists of one article, "The Jews in Our Midst," which charges American Jews with masterminding the civil rights law and desegregation, among other things.

On the civil rights law: "Many alien-minded Jews, this people who have received so much from America, boast in effect that they are the authors of this law."

On the desegregation decision: "It is apparent that left-wing Jews, working in close conjunction with communists, are largely responsible for the so-called integration decision of the Supreme Court of May 17, 1954."

Jews, Hart charges, are "taking a very leading part in the making of several policies which threaten our involvement in foreign war; and the complete destruction of our constitutional form of Government here in the United States." To support this thesis, Hart offers such "facts" as the following: "It has been widely asserted that over two hundred members of the House of Representatives have been recipients of campaign contributions from Jewish sources."

Hart's diatribe includes a reference to Jews as "descendants of the Khazars who for centuries occupied a large part of what is now European Russia," thus echoing a favorite canard of hatemongers such as John O. Beaty and Conde McGinley.

The Economic Council Letter has been published since 1931 by the National Economic Council, a membership corporation completely dominated by Hart. This publication, now so concerned over desegregation, has been equally antagonistic on a host of other issues, such as organized labor, the Marshall Plan, liberalization of immigration laws, Israel and the United Nations.

Hart's techniques were summed up in part by the Special House Committee on Lobbying Activities, which investigated the National Economic Council in 1950. The Committee's interim report states:

> One of the National Economic Council's techniques, for example, is to disparage those who oppose its objectives by appeals to religious prejudice, often an ill-concealed anti-Semitism. While it might be argued that NEC's contributors share some responsibility for its activities, it is more likely that many of the corporate officials -- and particularly the directors and stockholders of the corporate contributors -- would be opposed to NEC's appeals to unreason if they were fully apprised of them.

ABOUT THE SOUTHERN BOMBINGS

On March 16, in the city of Miami, Fla., at about 2:30 A.M., the school of Temple Beth-El was bombed. While no one was hurt, the doors of the school building were blown out, the roof lifted and the walls shifted -- damage estimated at $30,000. At about 3:30 A.M., a Miami rabbi, not connected with the temple, received an anonymous call informing him that other advocates of integration would get similar treatment.

On the same date, March 16, in Nashville, Tenn., at about 8:30 P.M., the Jewish Community Center was bombed. Although the building was in use shortly before the explosion, no personal injuries resulted. The door, ceiling and windows were damaged. At brief intervals after the bombing, two anonymous telephone calls were received by the rabbi of the temple. The caller said he was a member of the "United Confederates" or "The United Confederacy," and warned that any more teaching of integration would cause additional retaliation. Another threatening call was received during this same period by Federal Judge William E. Miller, who recently had denied delaying moves on the part of pro-segregationists.

The March 16 incidents were preceded by two earlier, unsuccessful attempts to dynamite Jewish places of worship in Gastonia and Charlotte, N.C. Furthermore, Florida, early in 1957, had been the locale of a statewide White Citizens Council drive with anti-Semitic overtones; leaders were Frederick John Kasper and Council leader Fred B. Hockett. At that time, a local paper charged that more than "100 cases" of dynamite had been cached, but nothing ever came of this.

The facts suggest strongly that anti-Semitic incitement in the South has set off these crimes. But in none of these incidents have the perpetrators been discovered. In the absence of evidence of interstate action behind the bombings, the FBI has not officially entered the investigation, except to concern itself with the security of Federal Judge Miller in Nashville.

IN BRIEF

The final issue of Robert H. Williams' anti-Semitic Williams Intelligence Summary appeared in March 1958. Editor-publisher Williams winds up by saying, "Keep fighting, I'll be back with you as soon as I can, in some way which may seem most likely to be effective." . . . . The conviction of John W. Hamilton on a morals offense was reversed in St. Louis during February 1958, by an appeals court, which ordered a new trial . . . . From Chicago, Lyrl Van Hyning's Women's Voice is urging "Patriots" to send contributions to Adm. John G. Crommelin for his Alabama political campaign . . . . In a "report" concerning "matters of national and international concern," Wesley A. Swift, Klan apologist and associate of Gerald L.K. Smith, blames all the troubles of the Administration on the Jews . . . . Two Klan leaders of the January KKK rally against the Lumbee Indians at Maxton, N.C., were sentenced for inciting to riot; Rev. James W. Cole received 18 to 24 months, and James Martin 6 to 12 months . . . . Three Klansmen were sentenced March 20 for plotting to bomb a Negro school near Charlotte, N.C. Francis Caldwell, Grand Wizard of Klavern 22, drew five to ten years, and Arthur M. Brown, Jr. and William Oliver Spencer received two to five years. All three are appealing their sentences . . . . Wickliffe B. Vennard, Sr., in his book, The Federal Reserve Corporation, purports to expose "the hidden government, money, war plotting and the United Nations." His argument is studded with such passages as the following: "I hope and pray that in time the Jews will renounce Zionism, Israel, Sanhedrinism, and Talmudism, accept Jesus Christ as their Savior, and integrate into the Races of their abode. Such a move would be the salvation of their Hides, the Souls, and the Peace of the World."

THE RECENT SOUTHERN BOMBINGS

Since last November, six bombings or attempts have been directed against Jewish religious institutions in the South. These highlight a recent trend toward racist violence set off by hoodlum reaction to desegregation tensions.

The most recent outbreak took place April 28 when a synagogue and a Negro school were blasted in Jacksonville, Fla., and a rain-soaked bomb was discovered in a Birmingham, Ala. synagogue before it could explode. No personal injury resulted in either instance.

An earlier double bombing had occurred March 16, when a synagogue in the city of Miami and the Nashville, Tenn., Jewish Community Center were blasted, again without injury to anyone. On February 9, an attempt to blow up the Gastonia, N. C. temple failed. On November 11, 1957, a similar abortive attempt was made on the temple at Charlotte, N. C.

The Jacksonville incident was accompanied by anonymous phone calls. A Jacksonville rabbi was told that "this is the Confederate Information Center," and a reporter on the Florida Times-Union took down this message:

> I am a member of the Confederate Underground and have just blasted the Jewish Center and a Negro school, and another school will be bombed during the night.
> Every segregationist must be set free. Jews must be driven out of Florida except in Miami Beach. Any Negro who votes in Florida will be killed. The underground's warnings have been disregarded.
> The bombings will continue until segregation is restored everywhere in the South.

The March bombings, too, were accompanied by telephoned warnings, in this instance, to Nashville and Miami rabbis. In Nashville, one caller said:

> This is a member of the Confederate Union. We have just dynamited the Jewish Community Center. Next will be the temple and next will be any other nigger-loving place or nigger-loving person in Nashville.

The Birmingham police commissioner, Eugene Connor, declared that the attempted bombing in his city "appeared to be part of an interstate conspiracy." Simultaneously, Jacksonville's mayor, Haydon Burns, publicly announced that the bombings in his city were "quite obviously the work of outsiders," and that the case had been turned over to the FBI. An FBI agent in the area, however, subsequently declared that his agency was not involved, but was "maintaining close liaison with local authorities."

Mayor Burns, along with officials of Miami, Nashville and Birmingham, called for a conference of mayors and police officials from Southern cities and towns affected by such acts of violence. The meeting, held May 5, was attended by officials from more than 20 municipalities. Conferees discussed ways of pooling the reward money offered by various Southern communities -- a total of some $56,000. Plans were laid for an intercity cooperative police setup-- in effect, a pooling of information and resources toward the end of acquiring evidence and apprehending the criminals.

Deputy U.S. Attorney General Lawrence E. Walsh has stated, in response to appeals for FBI intervention, that no legal grounds exist for such Federal action. Among the bills presently introduced or pending which would empower Federal action in such cases are those proposed by Rep. Emanuel Celler (N.Y.), Rep. Kenneth Keating (N.Y.) and Rep. J. Carlton Loser (Tenn.).

Demands for Federal action are mounting. During April and May, numerous national and local organizations - church groups, Jewish organizations, labor unions and other non-sectarian associations - passed resolutions publicly urging the Justice Department to act. Most of these pointed out facts and precedents which would justify such action.

These appeals also stressed the strong probability that the bombings and attempts were part of a plan of concerted terrorist action. Evidence to support such a conclusion includes the following considerations:

1) In two instances, a series of segregationist-motivated bombings or attempts occurred in two different states on the same day. 2) The would-be bombers generally tried to avoid causing personal injuries. The timing of several of the explosions suggests a planned effort to terrorize rather than to maim or kill. 3) Examination of the bombs laid in different localities showed that they contained similar explosives. In two instances, the bombs had been enclosed in valises of the same type. 4) The word "Confederate" was used by several of the anonymous callers to identify themselves.

Another compelling reason for Federal action, it is reasoned, is the interstate character of this campaign of violence. Jacksonville, for instance, is only 35 miles from the Georgia border. A witness reported seeing a man place the dynamite at the Jacksonville synagogue and drive off in an automobile which did not bear Florida license plates. Many telephone calls, particularly in border cities, originated outside the state. Finally, it is argued, a distinct violation of Federal law is involved since the acts of terror interfere with constitutionally guaranteed rights of assembly and worship.

None of the criminals has been apprehended.

IN BRIEF

"Parson Jack" Johnston's periodical, The Georgia Tribune, in its April 17 issue editorializes that the "Negro is not to be blamed for the racial racket in which we find ourselves, but the Jews are to be blamed . . . because they are afraid they will be next, among the so-called 'minority groups.'" The paper adds that the KKK aims "to maintain peace in America, and to prevent bloodshed, and violence of every nature . . ." . . . . The Fifty Million Club -- organized to bring a postcard pressure campaign on radio and TV networks to persuade them to stop featuring Negro entertainers -- is being plugged by the St. Louis racist periodical, The White Sentinel . . . . Gerald L. K. Smith, presently on a cross-country speaking tour, has been airing two new "grievances." At a recent San Francisco meeting, Smith first blamed the recession on the Jews, and then accused them of emptying museums of worthwhile art and substituting pictures of "an eyeball superimposed above a kneecap." . . . . In his literature, Admiral John J. Crommelin includes anti-Semitic symbols reminiscent of the work of Robert Edmondson, pre-World War II hatemonger . . . . After a considerable hiatus, France's once-outspoken anti-Semite, Pierre Poujade, reentered the headlines with a call for unity among Europe's small traders. The French politician proposed a meeting with the British Union of Small Shopkeepers to work out a common policy against big business.

KASPER SUPPORTERS PREPARING FOR HIS RELEASE THIS SUMMER

Segregationist John Kasper will be released August 9 from Federal prison after having served nine months of a year's sentence for interfering with integration at Clinton High School in Tennessee. A record of good behavior in prison at Tallhassee, Fla., gained Kasper this early release. Furthermore, a recent ruling by a Federal judge will permit him to post a bond pending appeal of a second conviction for which he had been sentenced to an additional six-month term.

Kasper's cohorts in the Seaboard White Citizens Council of Washington, D.C., have already planned a welcoming rally near the prison grounds on the day of release.

During the young firebrand's imprisonment, his followers have not been idle. A pamphlet, Segregation or Death, just published by the Seaboard White Citizens Councils, capitalizes on Kasper's imprisonment by making a martyr of him, and sets forth the group's blatantly anti-Semitic goals:

> Ultimately, we, in our young movement, envision the complete legal disenfranchisement and legal expulsion of the Jew from > American "national life." ...We will not fail in this struggle, even in death. To those who oppose us, Marxist, usurer, race mixer, degenerate politician, we pledge eternal vigilance, eternal combativeness, even death!

An accelerated membership drive is currently underway, targeted particularly at young people. The membership application form circulated by the Seaboard Citizens Councils includes the following pledge:

> I am white, 18 years of age, believe in the separation of the races, in upholding racial segregation, am loyal to the United States of America and believe in the divinity of Jesus Christ.

POLITICAL FORTUNES OF CROMMELIN AND CARTER

Two well-known anti-Semitic agitators made bids for public office in Alabama in the May 6 primaries of that State. Running for the gubernatorial nomination on an all-out anti-Semitic platform, Admiral John G. Crommelin (ret.), polled 2,245 out of 618,000 votes. This poor showing was, however, somewhat offset by the vote for Asa ("Ace") Carter, anti-Semitic White Citizens Councils leader. In the race for nomination for Lieutenant Governor, he garnered 31,000 out of 435,000 votes. Carter is notoriously prominent in northern Alabama Klan circles, and has given much support to Frederick John Kasper.

Crommelin has told his followers that his campaign achieved the essential purpose of using politics as a vehicle for dissemination of his propaganda. In a post-election bulletin mailed to his supporters, he wrote:

> On the positive side of the ledger, there is no question but that we achieved the major objective set out in our "Platform," to wit: "To expose the origin, nature and aims of the Communist-Jewish Conspiracy." Although some of our information may have been over the heads of the uneducated voting element, still the great bulk of the Communist-Jewish Conspiracy is primarily responsible for the plot to integrate and mongrelize the South and all of America. Also, our "Platform," which was mailed and passed out to the tune of at least 250,000 copies, has done a tremendous educational job throughout the entire 48 States.

According to Crommelin, more than $9,000 was received in campaign contributions. By his own count, he made 142 stump speeches and appeared 15 times on television. For the future, the retired Admiral promises he will try to have "candidates in Alabama campaigning on this 'Platform' in 1960, for both houses of the U. S. Congress and all county and municipal offices." He further announces plans "for carrying this fight throughout the United States," inviting supporters to contact the "resident Executive Secretary" of his organization at the Wetumpka, Ala., office.

J. EDGAR HOOVER INFURIATES THE ANTI-SEMITIC PRESS

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover's best-selling book, Masters of Deceit, drew immediate fire from such leading anti-Semitic publications as Common Sense, National Renaissance Bulletin, Georgia Tribune and The Revere. The irritant was a passage congratulating the major Jewish organizations, including AJC, for their role in fighting communism. A typical comment from The Revere, a monthly, published by the Christian Patriots Crusade in Hinsdale, Ill.:

> Masters of Deceit was probably written by some foul-mouthed, Christ-hating Talmudist in the New York offices of the American Jewish Committee.

ULTRA-CONSERVATIVE GROUP ECHOES RACIST LINE

Task Force, official publication of the Defenders of the American Constitution, Inc., has mostly concerned itself with isolationism and related issues, especially attacks upon NATO.

In a recent issue, however, the publication featured a diatribe on the subject of Little Rock, "Bayonets for Bastardisation," by British journalist A. K. Chesterton. "The directing force -- the force which had power to dictate that Eisenhower should send Federal paratroopers to overawe Little Rock -- was not a Negro organization although Negro subversives have posts in it, but an organization of Zionists and Jews," Chesterton declares. He bolsters his argument with this quote from Common Sense:

> The two races in the South have been living in harmony for quote some time, and they understand each other. What then is the trouble? Jewish Communist organizers from New York have been agitating and indoctrinating young Negroes in the South.

The Defenders' president is General Pedro A. Del Valle whose record ihcludes a public endorsement of the anti-Semitic writings of Robert H. Williams, and contributions to the pages of Common Sense.

TEXAS KLANSMAN LINKED TO KLAN VIOLENCE IN CHILE

In Santiago, Chile, on May 23, Franz Heinz, self-styled Grand Dragon of a Chilean Ku Klux Klan unit, and several followers were arrested. They confessed having committed terrorist acts against Jewish citizens and their property. Flags bearing the Nazi swastika and emblems of the KKK were found in their possession.

The group's activities were directed from Waco, Texas, according to Chilean police. Similar disturbances in England and Argentina also have been traced to Waco, where Horace Sherman Miller conducts a Klan-literature enterprise. (See FYI, December 1957.)

BIAS IN MERCURY RISING

New York industrialist Russell Maguire's monthly magazine, American Mercury, continues its trend toward bigotry.

The July issue advises:

> "If bombs are dropped on the U. S., over 90 percent of our casualties will be from broken glass and splinters. Disregarding these facts all new buildings (except synagogues) continue to be built with enormous quantities of glass."

Included in the issue are "fillers" harping away at "international bankers," and quotations attributed to the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and Lawrence Dennis, author of "The Coming American Fascism." The former describes the major political parties as wings "of the same bird of prey -- the banker," while the latter inveighs against the Federal Reserve Act.

Letters to the editor include one from Don Bell, publisher of the hate-sheet, Don Bell Reports, and another from Gen. Pedro A. del Valle, who several years ago openly endorsed the anti-Semitic writings of Robert H. Williams. Both letters, although not citing Jews, refer to "the Invisible

Another contributor is anti-Semitic political campaigner, John Crommelin (see F.Y.I. Feb.-March, 1958), whose article is devoted to questioning current national developments, concluding with:

> Could it be that all of these scare events and all this propaganda are timed to frighten American citizens into accepting federal control of our school systems - integration - and further destructive taxation? Lenin himself promised us national bankruptcy.

Resignation of the publication's managing editor, William LaVarre, is announced in the same issue. Shortly after Maguire acquired the Mercury in 1952 a substantial part of the editorial staff resigned in disagreement with the new owner's policies. Maguire at that time was extensively distributing John O. Beaty's book, Iron Curtain Over America, an anti-Semitic political diatribe which glorified Prussianism.

ACTIVISTS MOBILIZE FOR PROPAGANDA AND "POLITICS"

The Thunderbolt, a new mimeographed publication bearing a familiar Aryan emblem, announces a "merger" of the United White Party and the so-called National States Rights Party.

The NSRP, which makes its headquarters with Mrs. Peter Cowan of Jeffersonville, Ind., is not connected with the larger political movement of similar name in the South. The roster of NSRP's officials includes Matt Koehl, who bears the title of "Organizer." Koehl has long been active in the more vitriolic segment of the hate movement.

NSRP obviously does not intend to overlook the North. It claims that "units" are being established in New York and Oregon, as well as Atlanta, Louisville and Knoxville.

Thunderbolt, besides attacking the F.B.I. and Jewish organizations, supports Conde McGinley's Common Sense, and urges readers to "Draft Crommelin for President."

While NSRP does not at present appear to be more than an embryonic movement, its potential for propaganda should not be overlooked. On July 1, a notice to "Fellow Patriots" announced a "Welcome Back Kasper March.... We want to send a motorcade from Louisville, Washington, Knoxville, Nashville, Atlanta and other points converging on Tallahassee August 9...."

John Frederick Kasper, racist rabblerouser and head of the Seaboard White Citizens Council, is slated for release from Federal Correctional Institute at Tallahassee, August 9.

NEW RACIST "CORPORATION" OFFERS "SHARES"

Admiral John G. Crommelin's campaign manager, Ned Harman, has just launched a movement from Crommelin's former political headquarters at Wetumpka, Ala. (See FYI, June 1958).

Propaganda leaflets, issued during July, variously refer to the movement as "The Good Old U.S.A., Inc.," "The United Voters' Club" and "Manasseh -- U.S.A."

Employing a not-too-clear corporate style, one of the leaflets is headed "Certificate of Stock Ownership in the Good Old U. S. A., Inc." It provides appropriate space for "name of owner" and gives directions for "registration with Congressmen." Though heavily infused with legalisms, the import emerges:

> WE, THE UNDERSIGNED SOVEREIGN WHITE CHRISTIAN CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, of lawful age and duly qualified voters thereof, hereby issue, sign, execute and deliver to and among ourselves as such Citizens aforesaid.
> THE ONE-SHARE OF COMMON STOCK OF THE GOOD OLD USA, INC., to which each is entitled as such voting-citizens, now evidenced by this stock-certificate in writing; said citizen-stock and all the shares thereof to be dividend-bearing annually, which said income-dividends replacing income-taxes against individuals, are to be exempt not only from income-taxes, hereby repealed and cancelled as to individuals, but also taxes of any other kind or nature whatsoever.

Accompanying the leaflet is an enrollment form referring to the United Voters Club and to "Manasseh - U. S. A.," advising that:

> ...We fight the Jewish Communist Conspiracy with ballots; to be registered with our lawful representatives in Congress....During "Cease Fire" with physical weapons -- bayonets, bullets, bombs -- we must fight on with our intellects, with spiritual weapons and win the peace with these revolutionary ballots....

SURPRISE RELEASE OF KASPER IN ATLANTA AVERTS RALLY AT PRISON GATES

The followers of hatemonger John Kasper, planning a demonstration at the prison gates upon the release of their hero, were foiled by security measures taken by officials at Tallahassee Federal Correction Institute, where Kasper had been jailed since September. He had been serving out a sentence for contempt of court arising out of his activities in connection with disorders in 1956 at Clinton, Tenn., over the integration of the high school there. As the official release date, August 9, approached, Federal prison officials moved Kasper to the Atlanta Penitentiary, releasing him there on August 1.

In Atlanta, where he was met only by newsmen, Kasper spent his first moments of freedom delivering himself of his inflammatory views. He told reporters that eight months in prison had not changed his mind. Claiming to be a hater only in the sense that one hates cancer, Kasper avowed that it was impossible "to be too radical on racial matters." He did not feel up to running for President, the young demagogue added, despite the entreaties of his followers. Trying to explain away the embarrassing disclosure that he had once had a coterie of Negro friends, the segregationist leader alleged he was trying to "warn" them against Jewish exploitation. Later that day, Kasper flew to Tallahassee to join several racist leaders who were there as the advance guard for the abortive "celebration."

At present, Kasper is awaiting trial in Nashville, Tenn., on charges of incitement to riot during that city's school integration last fall. His future plans include promoting a form of apartheid of the black and white races and undertaking some "work needed to be done at Memphis" -- a reference, undoubtedly, to the scheduled opening of integrated classes at Memphis State College this September.

ANTI-SEMITIC PICKETS MARCH IN THREE CITIES

On Sunday, July 27, three incidents of anti-Semitic picketing occurred -- in Atlanta, Ga., Louisville, Ky., and Washington, D.C. The pickets created little stir in any of these cities, attracting only minor press or other public notice.

It is noteworthy, however, that each of these incidents followed a similar propaganda line. All the pickets peddled prose which attacked only the Jews, and exploited Middle East tensions rather than desegregation. The picketing also heralded the first public appearance of a new name, "The National Committee to Free America from Jewish Domination." This name, imprinted on literature passed out by pickets in two of the three cities, was apparently designed for its propaganda impact -- as yet there is no evidence of an active organization of this designation.

A city-by-city description of the picketing incidents follows:

Atlanta: Five men, bearing large, well-lettered signs, marched outside the offices of The Atlanta Constitution and the Atlanta Journal. One sign displayed a stereotyped caricature of a Jew aiming a pistol at President Eisenhower; the printed message urged, "Don't fight another war to save the Jews! Save Ike from the Kikes." Messages on other signs inveighed against the "Jewish-controlled press," proclaimed that "Arabs are NOT Communists," and charged that "Israel has the only Communist Party in the Middle East." Some of the literature distributed by the Georgia picketers bore the imprint of "The National Committee to Free America from Jewish Domination."

The five picketers were: Billy Roy Branham, 19, a brokerage firm employee; George Michael Bright, 35, a draftsman; Luther K. Corley, 35, a carpenter's helper; Kenneth Chester Griffin, 32, an auditor; and Philip Luther Wilson, 22, an exterminating company employee. All were arrested, tried and given 30 days each for disorderly conduct. They are now free on bond pending appeal.

During the trial, young Branham, in the course of his defense, passionately proclaimed his hatred of the Jews. A police official testified that three of the defendants had told him that the decision to picket was made at a meeting of the National States Rights Party [See FYI, July 1958].

Louisville: Five pickets paraded in front of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times Building and elsewhere in the city. Three were youths carrying placards similar to those used in Atlanta. The other two were Mrs. Edna Cowan, who claimed to represent "The National Committee to Free America from Jewish Domination," and Miss Bessie T. Morris. Both women were arrested for passing out handbills without permits. Their cases were continued.

Washington: Here eight persons picketed the White House for an hour, displaying anti-Semitic placards. No arrests were made. There were neither crowds nor disturbances. The previous day, however, leaflets were widely distributed, calling for mass demonstrations at the Soviet and Israeli embassies and at the White House. The "mass-meetings" materialized in none of these localities. The embassies were not even picketed.

SUMMER READING FOR BIGOTS

With the explosive Middle East back in the headlines, it is no surprise to find the hate press once again latching its anti-Semitic preachments onto the latest crisis in U.S.-Arab relations. Here is what some of the leading bigots had to say in print during July:

James Madole's National Renaissance Bulletin, published by the neo-Nazi group, the National Renaissance Party, asks, in headlines, "Why Are American Marines in Lebanon?"

> No self-respecting Arab ruler can align himself with the United States while American Jews are permitted to pour $1,500,000 per year in tax-deductible funds into the coffers of the Israeli war machine. . . .

Gerald L. K. Smith's July 25 newsletter, entitled "Blood Bath? To Save the Jews?" includes this vicious analysis:

> Every Zionist-Jew strategist and manipulator on earth is hoping and praying that the United States can be tricked into a situation which will compel us to slaughter the Arabs and build up the Jews in Palestine.

Conde McGinley's Common Sense of July 15 carries a banner headline reading, "Zionist Israel the Source of Arab Trouble in the Middle-East!" Promising to "open the eyes of the public" as to the reason U.S. Marines are in Lebanon, McGinley's lead article "explains" as follows:

> A terrific amount of propaganda has been built up against the Arab world . . . The Zionists and Zionist controlled organizations . . . control practically all the news outlets and continually feed "hate Nasser" propaganda to gullible Christians, just as they fed "hate Germany" propaganda before World War II.

McGinley has also completed a new broadside, "The Key to Freedom," as successor to his vitriolic "Coming Red Dictatorship," which was widely distributed over a period of some five years. A giant-size, four-page item garishly printed in red and black, "The Key To Freedom" bears the imprint of McGinley's Christian Educational Association. Prominently featured is the message, "The International War Machine Financed and Promoted by the Zionists." Old anti-Semitic canards, including "the international bankers," and abbreviated "quotes" from the forged Protocols of the Elders of Zion, are interspersed with photographs of prominent Americans of the Jewish faith.

CALIFORNIA CAMPAIGN CATAPULTS JOSEPH P. KAMP INTO HEADLINES

A political storm was raised this month when newspaper reports revealed that Joseph P. Kamp had raised funds from three Eastern industrialists to push the California distribution of his pamphlet attacking labor leader Walter Reuther. Mrs. William P. Knowland, wife of the Republican gubernatorial candidate, who had circulated copies of the Kamp tract, Meet the Man Who Plans to Rule America, disclaimed awareness of Kamp's background as a bigoted pamphleteer.

Senator Knowland's Democratic opponent in the race for California's governorship, Edmund G. Brown, promptly labeled Kamp an "anti-Semitic, anti-union pamphleteer . . . one of the nation's most dangerous bigots." Paul M. Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, asked his Republican counterpart, Meade Alcorn, to denounce and repudiate the "scurrilous Kamp pamphlets." In his reply, Alcorn rejected the use of Kamp's writings and told Butler that "Senator Knowland advises me that the Kamp pamphlet is not being used as a campaign document by him or his organization."

The flurry of hasty repudiation is explained by even a cursory review of Kamp's background. From 1933 to 1936, he was executive editor of The Awakener, a periodical at one time recommended by the eight-language Nazi propaganda sheet, World Service. One of Kamp's co-editors on this project was Lawrence Dennis, author of The Coming American Fascism, a book which extolled the fascist system.

Since 1937, Kamp has headed an extreme rightist organization, the Constitutional Educational League, now in Westport, Conn. Under this aegis, Kamp has been a prolific pamphleteer against organized labor, the New Deal, the United Nations, and liberal organizations, including the major Jewish groups.

In 1949, the Americanism Commission, Department of Illinois of the American Legion, issued a report, Subversive Activities of Hate Groups. As quoted in the Congressional Record (Oct. 6, 1949), this report denounced the Constitutional Educational League and its pamphlets which, in its words, "try to create religious hostility . . . The League is a personal vehicle of Kamp's which sells its pamphlets at profiteering prices in order to insure a good living for him."

In 1950, Kamp went to jail for contempt of Congress rather than reveal the names of contributors to his organization.

In 1952, a special edition of Kamp's periodical, Headlines, was devoted to an attack on General Eisenhower as Presidential candidate. About 100,000 copies were circulated. The implication was that Eisenhower was backed by Jews and was sympathetic to Communists.

Now in his late fifties, Kamp has been aiming his prolific pen toward Southern audiences. A widely circulated tract, The Lowdown on Little Rock and The Plot to Sovietize the South, rebukes "some intemperate Southern leaders" who "have compared Dwight Eisenhower to Adolph Hitler because the President ordered Federal troops to invade and occupy a part of the Sovereign State of Arkansas." Kamp concludes:

> They are wrong. Hitler had the constitutional right to use Nazi storm troopers any way he pleased. Mr. Eisenhower has no such right.

EXTREMIST NATIONAL STATES RIGHTS PARTY HOLDS CONVENTION

The National States Rights Party, formed by anti-Semitic and anti-Negro agitators, held a convention on August 30-31 at Liberty Hall in Louisville, Ky. Attendance was under 100.

Highlight of the convention was the appearance of the surprise guest speaker, Frederick John Kasper, billed in advance as a "national hero." According to the NSRP publication, The Thunderbolt, Kasper was given a standing ovation, and his talk was interrupted many times "by applause and rebel yells."

The announced purpose of the meeting was to formulate "a pledge for United Action in the Presidential elections of 1960." The convention passed a resolution urging that "a grass roots draft be started in support of Admiral John G. Crommelin for president of the U.S.A." Another resolution endorsed Millard D. Grubbs, longtime Louisville hatemonger, as candidate for Governor of Kentucky.

Most of those who attended were members of NSRP. Delegations were present from the Constitution Party of Indiana and Ohio. Speakers included the following: Joseph Beauharnais, head of the White Circle League of Chicago; Daniel Kurtz of Queens, N. Y., who describes himself as "the real head of the Christian Front"; Ned Dupes, NSRP secretary; and William M. Nevins of Lexington, Ky., who spoke on "the Negro problem." Others present included Peter Xavier, of Dayton, O., former publisher of a defunct anti-Semitic paper, the Dayton Independent; Ed Fields of Louisville, Ky.; and J. B. Stoner of Atlanta, Ga.

ENTERTAINMENT FIELD IS UNDER ANTI-SEMITIC ATTACK

Conde McGinley's Common Sense (Aug. 15) devotes virtually an entire four-page issue to listing "Name-Changers" in the field of entertainment. The listing includes the known and allegedly "Jewish names" of prominent entertainers, some alive, some dead. The point, according to the introductory text:

> It is a well-known fact that Jews dominate the entire entertainment industry ....Since no law protects us from the fraudulent and deceptive concealment of these people's Jewish origin, we must ferret out and publicize such changes.

The August issue of F. Allen Mann's monthly newsletter, The Revere, applauds the current probe into TV quiz programs. The object of these quizzes, in Mann's distorted view, is "to subsidize and glorify Jews, Negroes and gentile subversives."

THE LATEST WORD FROM GEN. DEL VALLE

Retired General Pedro A. del Valle, president of the Defenders of the American Constitution, Inc., is author of an outspokenly anti-Semitic article in the September issue of his organization's periodical, Task Force. He writes:

> The modern Pharisees, like those in the time of our Saviour, are people who call themselves Jews, but who are not Jews, but of the "SYNAGOGUE OF SATAN."

GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY?

Ron Gostick, bigoted publisher of the Canadian Intelligence Service, has a new pamphlet on its way to readers in the United States. It is Zionism and the Middle East Crisis, a hodgepodge of reproduced clippings and other excerpted items relating to the Jews. Here is editor Gostick's acknowledgement of help received.

> I should like to express my appreciation to Elizabeth Dilling, author of The Red Network and other works on Communism and the anti-Christ movement, for so graciously permitting use and reproduction of documentary evidence in her extensive files.

NEW RIGHT-WING FUND-RAISING COLLABORATION

As interest mounted in the November political campaign, Merwin K. Hart's Economic Council Letter in mid-September announced a "Platform for Patriotic Americans" -- an ultra-conservative program and appeal for funds. The most significant aspect of this political venture is the teaming up of hatemonger Hart with Edward Rumely, head of the Committee for Constitutional Government. Rarely have these two individuals collaborated overtly on a fund-raising enterprise. Although extreme in its right-wing viewpoint, the CCG as an organization has eschewed collaboration with biased groups.

The "Platform" was reportedly drafted by a small group of men to "appeal to all Americans who wish to preserve the freedom and independence of the United States." Its planks call for "states' rights"; attack Federal support of housing, education and medicine; deplore "indiscriminate and unlawful" immigration, agricultural subsidies, unions, and income and inheritance taxes. Its approach to economic "points" is illustrated by the following preface to the plank on taxes:

> Following the course prescribed by Karl Marx in his Communist Manifesto, outlining the means to be used in destroying the present capitalistic system, our Federal Government imposes heavy, progressive income, death and gift taxes....

A list of more than 100 endorsers contains many sincere advocates of right-wing philosophies. However, others among the endorsers have been linked with bigoted causes. Lt. Gen. Pedro A. del Valle, USMC (ret.), for example, has signed articles appearing in such vitriolic hate sheets as The Virginian and Common Sense. Lt. Gen. George R. Stratemeyer, Jr. (ret.) was an enthusiastic promoter of Iron Curtain Over America, an anti-Semitic book by John O. Beaty.

Hart's background includes the following appraisal, set forth in a Report of the House Select Lobbying Activities Committee of 1950:

> One of the National Economic Council's techniques, for example, is to disparage those who oppose its objectives by appeals to religious prejudice, often an ill-concealed anti-Semitism. While it might be argued that NEC's contributors share some responsibility for its activities, it is more likely that many... would be opposed to NEC's appeals to unreason if they were fully apprised of them.

For many years, Rumely has sparkplugged the Committee for Constitutional Government. A portion of his background was described by Representative Wright Patman in the Congressional Record of August 29, 1950. Describing Rumely's legal involvements of the '20s, Patman said:

> ...Rumely was indicted, tried and convicted of violating the Trading With the Enemy Act, and served a term in prison. Specifically, he was convicted of conspiring to defraud the United States by obstructing and preventing the United States from seizing the indebtedness which Rumely owed to the German Imperial Government and making false and misleading reports to the Alien Property Custodian by concealing the fact of such indebtedness.

Rumely eventually received a pardon from President Coolidge.

In 1946, Rumely was acquitted of a charge involving his refusal to furnish the names of his Committee for Constitutional Government members to a Congressional Committee. A 1950 conviction on a similar charge was later reversed on appeal.

REVIEW OF HATE LITERATURE FROM FOREIGN SOURCES

In England, Henley Hunter publishes The Review, a crudely mimeographed monthly which dwells on a "Luciferian Conspiracy" -- allegedly run by the Jews. One item by Hunter carries an ad for Common Sense. Another tells of a "secret item in Yiddish" addressed to "The Presidents of the Section of the International Alliance," with the sinister message that "we have won power in Russia....we have taken everything from the Russian people."

Australian D. W. de Louth combines anti-Semitism and health fanaticism. A recent mimeographed newsletter from de Louth declares:

> ...with their treacherous press and Churchill's like influence, the "Jews" deceived the British peoples into what history is proving to be a CRIME of such magnitude that words fail, namely the destruction of Hitler's GERMANY....

From Sweden's Einar Aberg, active anti-Semitic pamphleteer for more than a decade, comes an assortment of small, printed hate sheets, most published by Aberg himself. One -- The Falsehood about the Six Million Jews Said to Be Gassed by Hitler -- bears the name of Arab hatemonger Antoine F. Albina, of Jerusalem, Jordan. Another is reprinted from Fiat, a Dublin anti-Semitic publication.

Funds for the activities of the American Jewish Committee are raised jointly with the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith through the Joint Defense Appeal.

THE SYNAGOGUE BOMBINGS

Oct. 14, 1958, Peoria, Ill.	Crude bomb causes comparatively minor damage to synagogue -- presumed to be the act of a psychotic, in reaction to the widely publicized Atlanta bombing.
Oct. 12, 1958, Atlanta, Ga.	The bombing of The Temple, during the early hours of Sunday morning, causes extensive damage.
April 28, 1958, Birmingham, Ala.	54 sticks of dynamite, placed in a synagogue window well, are discovered. Soaked by an overnight rain, they fail to detonate.
April 28, 1958, Jacksonville, Fla.	During the early hours, the school of the Jewish Center is bombed, causing substantial damage.
March 16, 1958, Miami, Fla.	At 2:30 A.M., the religious school of a synagogue is damaged by a bomb explosion.
March 16, 1958, Nashville, Tenn.	The Jewish Community Center is bombed at 8:30 P.M.
Feb. 9, 1958, Gastonia, N.C.	An abortive bomb is found in a valise outside the temple.
Nov. 11, 1957, Charlotte, N.C.	A bomb placed outside the temple fails to go off.

(Fortunately, none of the incidents caused any casualties.)

ATLANTA VIOLENCE LINKED TO NATIONAL STATES RIGHTS PARTY

When The Temple, Atlanta's outstanding Jewish house of worship, was bombed and severely damaged on October 12, the criminal act was accompanied, like earlier incidents in Miami, Nashville and Jacksonville, by telephone calls to local newspaper reporters. In all four cases, the caller described himself as a member of "the Confederate Underground." In the Atlanta instance, the anonymous caller added, "This is the last empty building I'll blow up."

The reaction against the Atlanta outrage was swift. President Eisenhower on the same day publicly denounced the bombing in strong terms and called upon the FBI to give all possible assistance to the Atlanta police. As a result of diligent police and FBI work, four men were arrested within the week, and a fifth soon after. The following were indicted and are presently awaiting trial:

-- Wallace H. Allen, 33, advertising salesman.
-- George Michael Bright, 35, draftsman.
-- Kenneth Chester Griffin, 32, auditor in the Georgia Tax Department.
-- Robert A. Bowling, 25, unemployed.
-- Richard Bowling, 26, unemployed. Arrested later than the rest, Bowling was discovered with quantities of anti-Semitic literature in his car.

An associate of the indicted men, it is reported, told police that synagogue bombings in Atlanta had been discussed at meetings of an extremist anti-Semitic group. One of the suspects, Griffin, is an active member of the National States Rights Party.

Two of the indicted men, George Bright and Kenneth Chester Griffin, had been arrested July 27 with three others for picketing the building of the Atlanta Constitution, carrying anti-Semitic placards and distributing hate literature imprinted "The National Committee to Free America from Jewish Domination." The picketers were convicted of disorderly conduct, their sentences held in abeyance pending appeal. Another picketer, Luther K. Corley, was arrested after the Temple bombing, questioned intensively by the police, and released.

A close scrutiny of the National States Rights Party reveals a small but vitriolic confederation of anti-Semitic extremists. The NSRP claims units in New Albany, Ind., Minneapolis, Minn., Portland, Ore., Seattle, Wash., Charlotte, N.C., Knoxville, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., New York City, N. Y., Hinsdale, Ill., Louisville, Ky., Greenville, S. C. and Atlanta, Ga. At a "convention" last August, John Kasper was featured as guest speaker.

BOMBING SETS OFF A WAVE OF REACTIONS, BOTH GOOD AND BAD

The assault upon the Atlanta Temple served to awaken the American people to the critical condition of law and order in the South. None of the previous bombings or attempts had captured public attention so thoroughly as the Atlanta episode, with its severe damage, vigorous condemnation by the President and FBI intervention. Following are some noteworthy outgrowths of the incident:

-- The Atlanta community reacted with total revulsion. Churches immediately offered use of their buildings to the Temple congregation. Atlanta's Mayor Hartsfield denounced "every political rabblerouser" as "the godfather of every sneaking dynamiter and cross-burner in the South today." Describing the bombing as the "end result" of such demogoguery, the Mayor said that the outrage "pointed up the need for the decent people of the South to rise up and put an end to the preachers of hate and chaos."

-- News reports and editorials, both North and South, deplored the bombing in the strongest possible terms, often making the important point that such shameful violence is the product of racial and religious bigotry. The violence in Atlanta also had an impact on law enforcement agencies, Federal, State and municipal, stimulating a stronger interest and concern in the whole problem of hatemongering. This desire to acquire understanding of the bigot movement in the U.S. was reinforced by the reactions of many responsible civic, communal and religious groups throughout the nation.

-- The Atlanta police and FBI investigation of the Atlanta incident, furthermore, appear to be smoking out some "fat cats" or financial backers of hate movements. One trail led to Harold Noel Arrowsmith, young scion of a respected Baltimore family. An ideological Aryan, Arrowsmith admitted backing the July picketing activities of the National States Rights Party, and subsidizing the printer and publisher of the hate literature passed out by picketers. The previously anonymous "National Committee to Free America of Jewish Domination" was traced to George Lincoln Rockwell, for whom Arrowsmith had purchased a building and a printing press.

On the negative side, the events in Atlanta gave rise to extensive coverage by the press of the subjects of anti-Semitism and Southern desegregation tensions. In their eagerness to print something special on these topics, some newspapers were quick to publish "exposés" of the bigot movement. As a result, many hatemongers were handed the national notice they have long desired.

Furthermore, it appears that the cascade of publicity may have triggered off a series of bombings and threats by psychotics and vandals. The October 14th incident at the Peoria Temple (see page 1) was followed, two days later, by threats to blow up that city's high schools. In the following three weeks, the reports of disturbances multiplied. Mysterious threats were telephoned to: the Unitarian Church of Arlington, Va.; the Stephen Wise Synagogue and St. Patrick's Cathedral of New York City; a rabbi, two Protestant churches and one Catholic church in Miami; synagogues and Jewish religious schools in Elizabeth, Jersey City and Morristown, N.J. A bomb fuse was found between St. Peter's Catholic Church and Trinity Episcopal Church in New York's downtown section. A hand grenade was tossed by a juvenile delinquent into a Boston Jehovah's Witnesses meeting hall. Explosives were set off in the entrances of two Chicago apartment houses. At the Wichita, Kans. airport, a bomb exploded and killed the man carrying it -- an incident still not fully explained. This is only a partial accounting of the incidents which followed the widely reported Atlanta outrage. It is still too early to judge whether the epidemic of violence has abated.

Vol. III, No. 12, December 1958

NEW BIGOT GROUPS

Since the October arrest of five suspects in the Atlanta Temple bombing, several new extremist organizations have been formed:

1. Citizens' National Law Enforcement Commission: Based in Louisville, Ky., and headed by Millard Grubbs. This group was formed to combat the investigations of violence in Atlanta. It is represented in New York City by Daniel Kurts, self-styled "head of the Christian Front"; in Dayton, Ohio, by Peter Xavier, formerly publisher of the anti-Semitic Dayton Independent, now defunct; and in Chicago by Joseph Beauharnais, who also heads the anti-Negro White Circle League. Acting National Chairman Grubbs, an oldtime Louisville hatemonger, last summer was endorsed as a candidate for Kentucky's governorship by the extremist National States Rights Party.

A letter recently circulated by Grubbs describes his group's aim:

> Those who claim to be investigating the current alleged bombings, seem to be carrying on a desperate campaign to cast suspicion on every patriotic group....
> This organization has received several letters charging that those involved in > the present investigation have been guilty of gross official misconduct and flagrant unfairness. This organization is deeply concerned over these charges and is preparing to conduct an investigation of its own and will take appropriate action as the truth is known.

"Appropriate action" is defined in a legend on the organization's letterhead: "This Committee Will Make Arrests, Themselves, When Facts Authorize Such Action."

2. National Committee To Secure Justice For The Atlanta Five: Organized to raise a defense fund for those indicted for the October 12 Temple bombing, this committee is headed by William Stephenson of Newport News, Va., editor of the anti-Semitic magazine, The Virginian. Mrs. Wallace Allen, wife of one of the defendants, is listed as honorary chairman.

Public support was solicited with an "Emergency" letter urging sympathizers to write to their Congressmen:

> You are in danger of arrest right this minute -- and you may be branded as a "subversive" in the next session of Congress....
> Start writing now to your Congressmen and Senators to head off Congressman Walter's plan to brand you as a subversive -- and also protest...the outrageous suppression of Common Sense.

This appeal asked that donations to the defense fund be sent to "Justice," at a Sandy Springs, Ga., post office box.

3. American Party, World Union of Free Enterprise National Socialists (American WUFENS Party): National commander of this new international group is Lincoln Rockwell of Arlington, Va. According to Atlanta police and the FBI, wealthy Baltimorean Harold Noel Arrowsmith admitted subsidizing Rockwell to publish and print the hate literature passed out in July by anti-Semitic picketers. In October these same materials were found in the possession of one of the men arrested in connection with the Atlanta dynamiting.

Rockwell's creed for his Party is openly Hitlerite:

> We believe that Adolph Hitler was the gift of an inscrutable Providence to a world on the brink of Jewish-Bolshevik catastrophe, and that only the blazing spirit of this heroic man can give us the strength and inspiration to rise, like the early Christians, from the depths of persecution and hatred, to bring the world a new birth of radiant idealism, realistic peace, international order and social justice for all men.

A 12-point program is headed by a plank on the "Jewish Problem," which includes the following:

> We shall investigate, try and execute all Jews proved to have taken part in Marxist or Zionist plots of treason against their Nations or humanity...
> We shall cancel all debts owed to Jews by non-Jews, where there is evidence of unfair or immoral business methods or conspiracy.
>
> We shall establish an International Jewish Control Authority to carry out the above measures on a world-wide basis....
> We shall establish an International Treason Tribunal to investigate, try, and publicly hang, in front of the Capitol, all non-Jews who are convicted of having acted consciously as fronts for Jewish treason or subversion....

The next plank, headed "The Negro," promises to appropriate "ten billion dollars a year, for five years" to "build a modern, industrial nation in Africa." Then WUFENS will "grant $10,000 to every Negro family of five or more migrating to the new land.... Negroes remaining in America will be rigidly segregated non-citizens."

The third item of particular interest, "White Survival," declares:

> We shall establish a National Eugenics Commission to discourage the unlimited breeding of the least desirable elements of our society, to sterilize those who are hopelessly insane or otherwise biologically dangerous...

4. John Kasper is also said to have formed a new movement along old Nazi lines. As yet unnamed, the organization aims to deport every Negro to Africa, and to denaturalize American Jews, who would be required to report to the police as "aliens."

ANTI-SEMITIC COMMENT ON THE SYNAGOGUE BOMBINGS

The reactions of hatemongers to recent bombings of Jewish houses of worship are now beginning to appear in the bigot press. Virtually all follow the same line of reasoning.

A typical viewpoint is expressed by James Madole in his National Renaissance Bulletin (September-October). Madole draws a parallel between the acts of the "Confederate Underground" and the Irgun Zvai Leumi. In answer to his own question, "Who is to gain from the bombings?" Madole replies: "Quite obviously the Jews were the only ones to gain, both financially and politically, from the wave of dynamitings." Madole supports his conclusion in this fashion:

> Because of the bombings, pro-Jewish legislators are seeking to pass a law which would suppress all so-called

> "hate literature" by refusing publishers who dare to criticize the un-American policies of the Jew and his organizations their right to use the United States mail....
> The bombings have greatly increased Jewish contributions to their so-called "defense agencies," the Anti-Defamation League and the American Jewish Committee.

Conde McGinley jauntily embellishes the same theme in Common Sense (October 15):

> You Zionists are to be congratulated on the scheme you cooked up. For a long time, you have been trying to stop all patriotic publications from exposing your Marxist activities, just as was done in the Soviet Union when Communism took over and made it a crime to criticize you self-styled Jews....
> Could it be that you and the reds worked out the plan for the synagogue bombings? ($700,000 in contributions besides the insurance so far.)

REVIEW OF 1958

Organized anti-Semitic activity showed a marked increase during the past year. Principally this was due to sustained exploitation of Southern desegregation tensions. A series of synagogue bombings shocked the nation. For the most part, however, anti-Semitic activity focused on mass distribution throughout the South of hate literature charging that "Jews and Communists" were plotting to "mongrelize" the nation.

At the same time, U.S. anti-Semites continued to exploit their old themes. Middle East tensions still provided a handy vehicle for infusing the old canards of anti-Semitism with more topical pro-Nasser and pro-Arab propaganda. In domestic politics, attacks upon economic and social measures were aimed at ultra-conservative elements of the population; a strong "states' rights" appeal was aimed directly at Southerners. Other targets included, as in previous years, the United Nations, NATO, the income tax, collective bargaining, mental health and public welfare programs. At the core of all these propaganda lines was the persistent charge of a "Jewish-Communist-Zionist world conspiracy."

HATE AND VIOLENCE IN THE SOUTH

In even greater quantities than last year, hate literature streamed into the South, circulated in a variety of ways -- through the mails, by hand at meetings and demonstrations, and by surreptitious placement in buses, trains and mailboxes. As in previous years, these materials originated mainly from such non-Southern points as Union, N. J. (Conde McGinley) and Inglewood, Calif. (Frank L. Britton), reaching Southern troublespots in bulk and often distributed by "wholesalers."

Synagogue Bombings

Five bombings and two attempts to blow up synagogues were reported during 1958, all but one in the South. Fortunately, there were no casualties. It is important to remember that there have been more than 80 bombings in the South since the Supreme Court's May 1954 school desegregation decision, and that seven of the 80 were aimed at Jewish houses of worship.

The strongest nationwide reaction was evoked by the Atlanta Temple bombing on October 12. President Eisenhower denounced the act immediately. Within a week, five suspects were indicted. On December 10, a jury failed to agree upon a verdict in the trial of George Michael Bright, first of the five tried, standing 9 to 3 for conviction. Bright is now being retried. At year's end, changes in legislation were being considered by Federal officials and Congressional leaders -- to curb the distribution of hate literature, restrict the use of explosives, and extend Federal jurisdiction in bombing cases under certain circumstances.

Anti-Semitic Picketing

Picketing took place in Atlanta, Louisville and Washington, D. C., on July 27 under the auspices of the newly formed National Committee to Free America from Jewish Domination (NCFAJD). Scurrilous placards and hate literature with an NCFAJD imprint marked all three demonstrations. In Atlanta three of the five picketers were later questioned in The Temple bombing investigation; two of them were indicted for the bombing. The Atlanta investigation also led to public identification of Lincoln Rockwell of Arlington, Va., as printer and publisher of NCFAJD materials, and Harold Noel Arrowsmith, Jr., of Baltimore, Md., as the financial backer.

White Citizens Councils

The past year brought no significant change in the numerical strength of the WCC's, membership remaining at an estimated 300,000 to 500,000. Consisting mainly of self-governing local units, the Councils continued to vary in strength according to locality, leadership and -- most important -- the imminence of desegregation moves in the community. Some units steered clear of anti-Semitism, confining themselves to the avowed objective of preserving segregation "by all legal means." Other units tolerated or openly encouraged and supported the distribution of hate literature by their members. In the spring, the Seaboard White Citizens Council published Segregation or Death, a vitriolic pamphlet in tribute to their leader, John Kasper.

The Ku Klux Klan

Beset by internal schisms and rising public revulsion at acts of violence, Klanism registered no progress during the year. The U.S. Klans, headed by Imperial Wizard Eldon L. Edwards of Atlanta, Ga., still constituted the largest single group. Many Klansmen switched allegiances to racist groups with other names. The prestige of the hooded fraternity dipped after a farcical routing of the Klan by Lumbee Indians at an outdoor demonstration in Maxton, N.C., and the subsequent conviction of Klan leader James W. Cole for inciting to riot. In Charlotte, N.C., three Klansmen were convicted of attempting to bomb a Negro school. And in Waco, Texas, Klansman Horace Sherman Miller continued his one-man effort to distribute internationally large quantities of his anti-Semitic materials.

Frederick John Kasper

In August Kasper was released quietly from jail after serving ten months as the result of his part in the 1956 Clinton, Tenn. school disturbances. His subsequent public appearances during September and October in North Carolina and Tennessee produced heckling and unusually small audiences. In November the young rabble-rouser was convicted of inciting to riot in connection with the disorders at Nashville, Tenn., during the desegregation crisis there in September, 1957. Sentenced to a six-month workhouse term and fined $500, Kasper posted a cash bond, and remains at large pending appeal.

"POLITICAL" BIGOTS KEEP TRYING

Hatemongers continued to use politics as a vehicle for their propaganda. Although they made little impact as candidates or parties, they persistently tried to exert influence upon coalitions of extreme reactionaries and pro-segregationists.

A prime illustration was the unsuccessful campaign of Admiral John G. Crommelin, Jr. (ret.) for the Alabama governorship. Running on a platform of outright anti-Semitism, Crommelin made more than 100 stump speeches, appeared 15 times on television and distributed quantities of anti-Semitic campaign literature as far away as Chicago, Ill.

The National States Rights Party, an amalgam of Northern and Southern racist groups, was formed in May, holding its first convention during August in Louisville, Ky. The meeting attracted active hatemongers from many sections of the country. Conferees decided to "draft" Admiral Crommelin for President in 1960.

A number of ultra-conservative groups continued to demonstrate anti-Semitic bias along with their reactionary economic or political views. These included Merwin K. Hart's National Economic Council and the Defenders of the American Constitution, an anti-UN group headed by General Pedro A del Valle.

EXPLOITATION OF MIDDLE EAST CRISIS PERSISTS

While Arab propagandists confined themselves largely to exploiting the miseries of the refugees and hinting at the "dual loyalty" of American Jews, the hatemongers brashly repeated the charge that "Jews, Zionists and Communists" are to blame for every crisis, past and present, in the Middle East. Particularly active in using this line of propaganda during the year were Gerald L.K. Smith, Conde McGinley and James H. Madole.

A REVIEW OF THE LITERATURE

Bigots enjoyed their biggest year of the past decade in output and distribution of anti-Semitic items.

For sheer quantity, Frank L. Britton, Gerald L.K. Smith and Conde McGinley led the field. Britton's periodical, The American Nationalist, took a back seat to his crude, single-sheet leaflets. Smith, marketing a variety of hate materials, reported gross receipts of $115,000 for the first ten months of the year. McGinley unloaded reams of a new broadside, The Key to Freedom, as well as its predecessor, The Coming Red Dictatorship. His newspaper, Common Sense, continued as one of the hatemongers' best-selling items.

Among hate-sheets conspicuous during the period were: The Virginian, edited by William Stephenson in Newport News, Va.; The Georgia Tribune, published in Columbus, Ga., by "Parson Jack" Johnston, a Klan supporter; The Revere, F. Allan Mann's Hinsdale, Ill., periodical. Starting in the summer, Lincoln Rockwell's anti-Semitic propaganda appeared in quantity -- first under the imprint of The National Committee to Free America From Jewish Domination, and later under the new label of WUFENS, Rockwell's neo-Nazi Virginia hate group.

CONDE MCGINLEY STAGES MASS MEETING OF HIS SUPPORTERS

On Sunday afternoon, January 25, 175 supporters of Conde McGinley's newspaper, Common Sense, met at Union, N. J. Emphasis throughout the program of speeches was on the importance of raising funds.

"The Jews control Congress; the President takes their orders," McGinley declared. "Unless we get subscribers, we can't stop them." Citing a goal of one million subscribers, the anti-Semitic editor pledged to "show the enemy what's what!"

Speakers included: Carl Lyons of Alabama, a traveling salesman for Common Sense; Bishop C. C. Addison, a pro-segregationist Negro; W. Henry MacFarland, Jr., former head of an organization listed by the Attorney General in 1949 as "fascist"; and Benjamin Freedman. James Madole, head of the neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party, was present.

McGinley reported a recent order from Arkansas of 40,000 copies of his newspaper. He told of a "friend" who organizes Common Sense clubs in Arkansas, collects funds and sends in the proceeds.

The address of star salesman Lyons proved embarrassing to Catholics present; he referred to the crusade as a "Protestant fight."

WELL-ORGANIZED STUDENTS PROMOTE ARAB CAUSE

The 1958 Yearbook of the Organization of Arab Students in the U.S.A. (The O.A.S. Yearbook) details a marked increase of activity among the 4,000 young Arabs at colleges and universities here.

Organized clubs rose from 12 in 1955 to 55 in 1958. An intensive lecture program was conducted among educational groups, churches and religious organizations, service and women's clubs and other community groups. The Organization of Arab Students and its clubs undertook lecture series in New England, the mid-Atlantic area, the mid-West, South West and the West Coast. Most of the speakers booked by the O.A.S. Lecture Bureau were requested to talk on Islam, Arab nationalism and the Middle East crisis.

The success of the lecture program, according to the Yearbook, attracted the attention of many radio and TV programs. Thus "our radio and television representations increased astoundingly. Individual students and several clubs sponsored regular interviews, cultural programs and social shows."

The Yearbook published figures to indicate the extent of these activities. Arab students affiliated with clubs participated in 950 lectures, 75 film or slide showings, and 25 TV or radio appearances. Other students from campuses without clubs engaged in 575 lectures, 42 film or slide showings, and 59 TV or radio appearances.

ATLANTA BOMBING DEFENDANT IS ACQUITTED

The retrial of George M. Bright on charges of bombing The Temple in Atlanta resulted in his acquittal on January 23. Bright's previous trial had ended with the jury deadlocked 9 to 3 for conviction. A mistrial was declared.

Although evidence was substantially the same in the retrial, some new elements were introduced into the 11 days of testimony. An alibi was offered for Bright by a woman declared legally insane for the past two years; she said she had spent the entire night of the bombing with the defendant. The defense also presented as character witnesses Imperial Wizard Eldon L. Edwards of the Ku Klux Klan and Matt Koehl, Chicago neo-Nazi leader and a prime mover of the National States Rights Party.

Bright was freed, but the tactics of his defense counsel, Reuben Garland, led the presiding judge to order Garland jailed for 40 days for contempt of court.

Still awaiting trial for the same offense are Wallace H. Allen, Kenneth C. Griffin and Richard Bowling. Between the two Bright trials, the indictment against Robert Bowling was dismissed.

REVIEW OF NEW LITERATURE

Mimeographed copies of "Illegality and the F.B.I.," a four-page article, are being circulated by the Seaboard White Citizens Councils. This tract takes issue with F.B.I. investigations of the bombing of the Atlanta Temple and the Clinton, Tenn., high school:

> Their investigation was directed against people who had been classified as sending out "hate mail"; and people who knew or had been affiliated with John Kasper.... It is done to create suspicion; to invoke economic sanctions, and to destroy their will to resist.

Louis Marschalko's The World Conquerors, recently translated from the Hungarian, is a collection of discredited canards and quotations from notorious anti-Semites. According to the jacket blurb, "thousands of copies" of this book were sold in the Hungarian version. An entire section deals with The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion. Ignoring conclusive proof that these were a forgery, Marschalko writes, "Today, any person who dares to make even the slightest reference to the Protocols is labelled an uncivilized barbarian by the Jews."

Szabad Magyarsag, a Hungarian language publication, featured a front-page story by U.S. bigot Kenneth Goff on Jan. 25, 1959. A promotional flyer for this publication goes out with a tearsheet from the reactionary periodical Right, containing another Goff article.

A new broadside, Subversive Catholicism, is being distributed by Texan Horace Sherman Miller, one-man organizer of the Aryan Knights of the Ku Klux Klan. "Like Communism, Romanism is an international political movement," this attack reads.

The first issue of Southwest Klansman, a six-page racist newspaper, appeared as the official organ of the U.S. Klans, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc. An article attacking world federalist aims shows the tone of the paper:

> ONE-WORLD GOVERNMENT is a JEWISH-directed scheme at INTERNATIONAL dominated and centralized "WORLD SOVEREIGNTY", under which the United States would be a vassal and subject.

F. Allen Mann, head of the Christian Patriots Crusade -- quoted in a recent newspaper interview as saying he "completely endorsed the bombings in Peoria and Atlanta and elsewhere" -- has a new flyer, Exposing the Enemy, which includes the following:

> The mask of Jewish Sham Decency must be removed. The myths and lies surrounding the Jews must be dispelled. Only when the people know who the Jews are and what they really stand for can we begin to effectively combat the Pharisaic Conspiracy and rid ourselves of the Pharisaic Pests.

REVIEW OF BIGOT ACTIVITIES ABROAD

In a number of nations abroad, anti-Jewish and pro-Nazi movements continue to exist. This review describes some of the individuals and groups at work fomenting religious and racial hatred in Canada, South America, England, Central, Northern and Eastern Europe, the Middle East, Australia and South Africa.

As in the United States, the hatemongers abroad comprise extremist minorities in their respective homelands. For the most part, they doggedly continue to seek acceptance for their bigoted ideas by disseminating propaganda exploiting national and local tensions. In some countries, the volume of such propaganda has increased lately, and there has been a rise in anti-Semitic incidents as well. For instance, a number of outbursts occurred during recent months in West Germany, evoking immediate and vigorous reactions from governmental authorities who understandably were deeply concerned (see GERMANY for details).

It is evident that hatemongers the world over keep in contact with one another, and are quick to exchange materials. For example, Conde McGinley's writings were reproduced at length in Arabic in a February issue of the Cairo weekly, Aher Sah. Perhaps the most "international" venture in bigoted publishing is Northern World, a magazine published in England, co-edited by the anti-Semitic segregationist William Stephenson of Virginia, and carrying ads for "Nordic" publications in Austria, Denmark, Germany, Sweden and the United States.

The basic themes of the propaganda are much the same, whether written in Australia, Sweden or New Jersey. Foreign hate literature of recent date is built largely around such threadbare canards as the forged "Protocols of the Elders of Zion" and other variations of the world-conspiracy charge. Virtually all of it insists that "Hitler was right" and asserts that hardly any Jews were slaughtered by the Nazis.

The following reports on literature and anti-Semitic incidents during the past year illustrate where bigots are operating, what they are saying and doing, and how much interaction is taking place among agitators in different lands.

ARGENTINA

Der Weg, a monthly magazine featuring standard Goebbels-Streicher themes and reprinting in translation the works of U.S. anti-Semites, was first published by a hard-core group of Nazis who had found refuge in Argentina after World War II. Leaders included Luftwaffe Captain Heinz Rudel and General Johannes Von Leers. They maintained excellent relations with the Peron regime, dispersing only after the dictator's fall. Von Leers is presently a propaganda official in the Nasser government. Others of the group departed hastily to Austria, where they resumed publication of Der Weg. During the past year, the German-language magazine appeared in West Germany, where it is officially banned, and in Argentina, where the Jewish community has been urging the Frondisi government to take suitable action against it.

AUSTRALIA — In a series of mimeographed newsletters from Queensland, D. W. De Louth combines anti-Semitism and health fanaticism. His extremist propaganda warns, for instance, that "the Jews deceived the British people into what history is proving to be a crime of such magnitude that words fail, namely the destruction of Hitler's Germany."

AUSTRIA — Konrad Windisch, publisher of a neo-Nazi newspaper, Der Trommler, was arrested in January by Vienna police. At the same time, Austrian authorities confiscated all copies of the current issue of the paper, which was running an article replete with Nazi propaganda. The author of the article, eluding the police, fled to Germany.

BELGIUM — Belgian police raided a meeting of former Nazis held in March 1958 at Jand, a small Belgian town on the German border. Several were arrested.

CANADA — Of the several anti-Semitic publications originating in Canada, perhaps the most widely distributed is a monthly, the Canadian Intelligence Service. A recent issue was concerned with reporting the trial of one of the defendants in the Atlanta synagogue bombing case. The magazine appealed to its readers to contribute to the "defense fund" headed by the Alabama hatemonger, Admiral John G. Crommelin...Various Canadian localities have recently been exposed to a biased element among new Hungarian refugees. An outbreak occurred, for instance, in St. Johns, New Brunswick, when a group of Hungarian refugees attacked their fellow immigrants who were Jews.

CHILE — Activities of an anti-Semitic Ku Klux Klan unit in Santiago were halted in May when police arrested Franz Heinz, self-styled Grand Dragon, and several followers. They confessed committing terrorist acts against Jewish citizens and their property. Flags bearing the Nazi swastika and KKK emblems were found in their possession. According to Chilean police, the South American activities had been spurred by Klan literature received from Horace Sherman Miller of Waco, Texas. Other disturbances in England and Argentina were also traced to Miller's one-man Klan enterprise.

ENGLAND

Widely circulated during the year was Henley Hunter's The Review, a crudely mimeographed monthly that dwells with sinister intent on a "Luciferan Conspiracy" of the Jews. Hunter's publication advertises the U.S. hate sheet Common Sense.... In the book publishing field, an English translation of Hungarian Louis Marschalko's The World Conquerors was brought out by Joseph Sueli Publications of London.

FRANCE

Paris was the scene of a rash of anti-Jewish demonstrations during 1958. A number of assaults took place during the first half of the year. On March 13, more than 1,000 Paris police demonstrated in front of the French Parliament, mingling their denunciations of the regime with shouts of "Death to the Jews." Anti-Semitic slogans were written on the streets by an organization called "Jeune Nation," made up principally of students. In May, vandals painted slanderous emblems on the Paris monument to the Unknown Jewish Martyr, and a flood of mimeographed anti-Semitic leaflets appeared in the provincial towns and cities of France. The printed propaganda charged that the Jews are helping both the Communists and capitalists; that 700,000 of the best French dwellings are occupied by Jews; and that billions of francs have been smuggled out of the country into Israel.

GERMANY

In West Germany, there has been an increasing number of anti-Semitic incidents and a corresponding increase of concern by Jews and by the Federal Government, both highly sensitive on this subject. The flare-up started over a series of remarks by such individuals as a schoolmaster, a businessman and an official of the German consulate in New York. Swastikas were painted on the doors of the new Dusseldorf synagogue. The most recent controversy concerned Heinz Nieland, a timber merchant alleged to have published an anti-Semitic pamphlet in 1957. The Government has reacted strongly, approving a draft of a law which would make it a punishable offense to spread defamatory statements, and appealing to the Federal High Court to confiscate the pamphlet and destroy the type....Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, answering charges by the American Jewish Committee that anti-Semitism is on the rise in Germany, stressed that the incidents which "have so regrettably taken place in Germany" do not "represent the attitude of the German people as a whole." He suggested that a "deliberate campaign from the Communist side," was responsible and assured AJC leaders that his government would "proceed with all severity and every means at its disposal against anti-Semitic occurrences in the Federal Republic."

ITALY

The Jewish quarter of Rome was attacked and the Ardeatine Caves memorial to the Jewish dead desecrated in May, reportedly by youthful members of the Moviemiento Sociale Italiano, a neo-Fascist party. Although the M.S.I. officially denied involvement in the vandalism, Jewish leaders considered the Fascists alone responsible. The Vatican sharply condemned the attacks as "offensive to the civil and Christian conscience of Rome and Italy."

SOUTH AFRICA — The South African Observer, a monthly magazine published by C. E. D. Brown in Cape Town, uses U. S. bigots as a principal source. Recent issues have reprinted articles from Frank L. Britton's American Nationalist and Merwin K. Hart's Economic Council Letter.

SWEDEN — For more than a decade, hate pamphleteer Einar Aberg has been one of the most active anti-Semitic propagandists abroad, mailing an assortment of small printed hate sheets to all parts of the world in several languages. His most recent item -- "The Falsehood About Six Million Jews Said to Be Gassed by Hitler" -- bears the name of Arab hatemonger Antoine F. Albina of Jerusalem, Jordan.

TURKEY — The Islamic United Nations, a crudely printed English-language hate periodical, is printed in Istanbul. Its U. S. distributor is the neo-Nazi National Renaissance Party. A recent issue features an article by Alexey Jefimov, an aide of Conde McGinley.
